Based on a myriad of factual and legal support, there is no likelihood of confusion between PROJECT 7 and the cited registered mark.

Likelihood of Confusion does not exist between PROJECT 7 and the Cited Mark - (Reg.No. 4072066).

There is no likelihood of confusion between PROJECT 7 and cited Registration No. 4072066 for PROJECT7.COM & DESIGN. Regardless of the portion that reflects a common letter string, there are sufficient differences to avoid confusion among consumers because the overall commercial impression is different when considered in the commercial context. Moreover, the customers and channels of trade are completely different. Applicant is a luxury car manufacturer of Jaguar and Land Rover vehicles. Applicant offers a variety of collateral merchandise related to vehicle names and other JLR offerings. These goods are generally offered via vehicle dealerships or other channels that are clearly associated with the vehicle brand. Whereas the cited registrant is a specialty gum and mint brand, which offers 7 gum flavors, for the purpose of donating a portion of the proceeds to 7 areas of need – e.g. health, food insecurity, peace, housing the homeless, water, education, and earth matters. These gum products are offered in a variety of large retail stores such as Meijer, Target, as well as at specialty stores such as Caribou Coffee, Party City and Dylan's Candy Bar, and online at Amazon. See, http://project7.com/. As a practical matter, there is no overlap in goods, customers, and channels of trade.

Registrant's t-shirt specimen shows how the mark is used in a manner that clearly identifies and explains registrant's business model. Registrant offers t-shirts as a collateral fundraising effort to supplement money raised from the sale of its gum/mints. Registrant's activity is clearly aligned and marketed with the objective of charitable giving. Although registrant appears to do wonderful work, there is absolutely no connection between PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII and applicant's PROJECT 7 mark and luxury goods. To deny registration of PROJECT 7 in light of PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII is akin to denying a mark for computer software for managing a dental office and software for sending text messages.

Furthermore, the term PROJECT and 7/SEVEN that cover Class 25 goods appear frequently on the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office register. There are at least 184 marks that are or contain the term PROJECT in Class 25, including PROJECT, PROJECT E, PROJECT 28 CLOTHING, PROJECT JEANS, PROJECT NO. 9, PROJECT SOCK, and PROJECT LACE. A similar search of the number 7, located 165 active marks and 117 marks with the word SEVEN in Class 25, including OLD No. 7, LEVEL 7, 7, 7 ONE, SEVEN 7, SEVEN D, SEVEN, and many more. It is clear that the public has become accustomed to distinguishing between these terms and may readily do so from the marketplace context of each. Likewise, the clothing industry is vast and the clothing at issue does not come into commercial conflict and there are enough differences between the marks that both should be able to co-exist on the register without likelihood of confusion.

The Examiner submits the respective marks are confusingly similar because the additional .COM element in the cited registration is generic. However, the examining attorney fails to fully consider the overall differences which include not only.COM but also the dominant design portion IIIIIII which comprises about 50% of the mark in size. For this and the legal support set forth below, Applicant demonstrates its mark is considerably different, not likely to confuse the source of the goods, and should be permitted to register.

The PROJECT 7 mark is distinct in appearance, sound, connotation, and commercial impression. In numerous cases the TTAB has decided that even a one-letter difference between marks that cover related goods or services can remove any likelihood of confusion. See, In re Software Design, Inc., 220 USPQ 662 (TTAB 1983), (DOX and DOC'S found not confusingly similar – for computer programming and custom manufacture of computer systems); NEC Electronics, Inc. v. New England Circuit Sales, Inc., 722 F.Supp. 861 (US Dist. 1989); 13 USPQ2d (BNA) 1058 (NECS not confusingly similar with NEC where both selling integrated circuits in the computer industry); and In re Reach Electronics, Inc., (TTAB, 1972), 175 USPQ (BNA) 7834 (REAC and REACH held not confusingly similar, each related to power supplies). These cases support the conclusion that consumers are not likely to believe PROJECT 7 and PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII, which have a significant 11 alpha-numeric and four-syllable difference between them, originate from the same source.

Furthermore, PROJECT 7 creates an entirely different overall commercial impression from that of the cited mark when considered in its complete commercial context. As described at applicant's website - http://www.jaguar.com/jaguar-range/f-type/f-type-models/f-type-project-seven.html - the Jaguar F-TYPE Project 7 was born out of a desire to celebrate Jaguar's historic reputation for head-turning design and philosophy to use cutting edge engineering technologies. The Project 7 vehicle captures the legendary looks and profile of Jaguar's Le Mans winning D-Type racing cars. The Project 7 Jaguar is a powerful production car, with the capabilities of a modern super car. "Only up to 250 of this contemporary classic will ever be made. F-TYPE Project 7 is a once in a lifetime opportunity to own the very best of Jaguar and a landmark in our history." Collateral merchandise, such as clothing, footwear, and headwear, will be clearly associated with the Jaguar vehicle and consumers will not believe there is any link to PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII gum. Hence, the cited mark should not block PROJECT 7.

Although several PROJECT and 7 marks were mentioned above, the following PROJECT alone and PROJECT + a NUMBER or LETTER in Class 25 are inherently weak and entitled to only a narrow scope of protection. The weak nature of PROJECT variant marks in this class is illustrated by co-existence of the following on the register and presumably in the marketplace. The following marks demonstrate the ability for the highly similar PROJECT variant marks to co-exist on the register in Class 25 provided there is a distinguishing element that may be a small as one letter or number (note: identical PROJECT marks co-exist). A copy of the registrations, publication, application or Notice of Allowance are attached as evidence with this response.

The additional elements of .COM and IIIIIII are clearly sufficient to render the marks different in overall commercial impressions, appearance and sound so there can be no likelihood of confusion between these marks by consumers. Particularly when identical marks for PROJECT (alone); PROJECT E and PROJECT J; and PROJECT SOCIAL T and PROJECT TEE are permitted to co-exist on the register. The marks PROJECT 7 and PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII should be permitted to co-exist on the Register in Class 25.

The common term "PROJECT" in these marks, the subject application, and the cited mark upon which the examiner bases the refusal, are utilized extensively as or in combination by many. There are currently at least 2880 live PROJECT applications or registrations that can be found on the USPTO database. Of those, at least 189 are pending or registered in connection with Class 25 goods. This could establish that "PROJECT" is part of a crowded field of marks. Thus, such use is entitled to only a very narrow scope of exclusive rights as a trademark. In re Lucky Co., 209 USPQ 422 (TTAB 1980). In a crowded field, PROJECT 7 and PROJECT7.COM are not too close to be confusingly similar for clothing items.

Extensive use of this term in a wide variety of formats by different entities suggests that no one entity has the exclusive rights to such a mark that is comprised of, or contains, PROJECT in this field. This further negates the likelihood that consumers will be confused between marks that incorporate this highly utilized term. Given the existence of numerous marks for clothing items, even minor differences in the nature of the marks and/or goods should be sufficient to avoid likelihood of confusion.

The law is very precisely summarized in McCarthy's Desk Encyclopedia of Intellectual Property, J. Thomas McCarthy:

> "Customers Can Distinguish Among Members of a Crowd. The greater the number of similar marks used on similar goods and services, the less distinctive and strong is any one of those marks. A mark hemmed in on all sides by similar marks on similar goods cannot be very distinctive. In such a "crowded" field of similar marks, each member of the crowd is relatively weak in its ability to prevent use by others in the crowd. Customers will not likely be confused between any two of the crowd and may have learned to carefully pick out one from the other. When many similar marks coexist for years, the public learns to differentiate one from the other".
> At page 85, emphasis added.

The PTO, by allowing many PROJECT marks to be registered, has expressed its opinion that this term is weak. By the USPTO's own standards, the cited mark cannot block the way for Applicant's mark to proceed to registration.

When analyzing similarity or dissimilarity, the marks are considered "in their entireties as to appearance, sound, connotation and commercial impression." In re Van Es Home B.V., 2015 WL 3777557 *3 (citing Palm Bay Imports, Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondee En 1772, 396 F.3d 1369, 73 USPQ2d 1689 (Fed. Cir. 2005). "It is appropriate to give greater weight to the important or 'dominant' parts of a composite mark, for it is that which may make the greatest impression on the ordinary buyer." Diner, Inc. v. Dream Kitchen, Inc., 95 Civ. 4130, 1995 WL 438627, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. July 24, 1995) (quoting 3 J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition, § 23.15 [1][b] (3d ed., 1995)); see also In re National Data Corp., 753 F.2d 1056, 224 USPQ 749, 751 (Fed. Cir. 1985). As such, it is not proper to look only at the common elements of the respective marks, but rather the entire context of each must be considered.

With respect to all the cited marks, the activity surrounding the marketing of Applicant's goods is such that confusion as to origin is unlikely. When conducting a likelihood of confusion analysis, courts have held "[i]f the goods or services in question are not related or marketed in such a way that they would be encountered by the same persons in situations that would create the incorrect assumption that they originate from the same source, then, even if the marks are identical, confusion is not likely. TMEP § 1207.01(a)(i), (bold emphasis added), citing to, Shen Manufacturing Co. v. Ritz Hotel Ltd., 393 F.3d 1238, 73 USPQ2d 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2004) (cooking classes and kitchen textiles not related); Local Trademarks, Inc. v. Handy Boys Inc., 16 USPQ2d 1156 (TTAB 1990) (LITTLE PLUMBER for liquid drain opener held not confusingly similar to LITTLE PLUMBER and design for advertising services, namely the formulation and preparation of advertising copy and literature in the plumbing field); Quartz Radiation Corp. v. Comm/Scope Co., 1 USPQ2d 1668 (TTAB 1986) (QR for coaxial cable held not confusingly similar to QR for various products (e.g., lamps, tubes) related to the photocopying field).

Here, clothing, shoes and hats which are associated and intended to invoke a high-end, limited edition, racing car are not marketed in a way that they would be encountered by consumers seeking to purchase gum or t-shirts for a charitable cause. There is no likelihood of confusion as to source under these circumstances. Applicant's goods/services are specifically related to luxury Jaguar Land Rover vehicles, whether for existing customers or prospective customers. It is unlikely for example, that a consumer in Walmart buying gum, mints or buying t-shirt for a charitable cause associated with the gum brand, will confuse the childlike font of PROJECT7.COM IIIIIII with Applicant's PROJECT 7 vehicle and collateral clothing merchandise. As such, the conditions of the purchase process and environment do not give rise to a mistaken belief that the products of Applicant and those of the cited registrant emanate from the same source. Applicant's mark is clearly distinguishable as a source indicator for Jaguar goods and is not likely to be confused with the cited mark under the factors set forth in In re E.I. DuPont De Nemours & Co., 476 F.2d 1356, 177 USPQ 563 (CCPA 1973).

Applicant submits its PROJECT 7 mark is different in appearance, sound, and overall impression from the cited registration given the clearly distinguishable contexts of use, subject matter and consumers.

In the alternative, Applicant asks the Examining Attorney to consider whether there is an amendment to the identification of goods in the application for PROJECT 7 that would allow Applicant to overcome the present refusal.

Please read below for important information regarding the applicant's pending six (6) month deadline.

SIX (6)-MONTH DEADLINE: Applicant has six (6) MONTHS from the NOA issue date to file either:

- An SOU, if the applicant is using the mark in commerce (required even if the applicant was using the mark at the time of filing the application, if use basis was not specified originally); OR

Both the SOU and Extension Request have many legal requirements, including fees and verified statements; therefore, please use the USPTO forms available online at http://www.uspto.gov/teas/index.html (under the "INTENT-TO-USE (ITU) FORMS" category) to avoid the possible omission of required information.
