OFFICE ACTION

ISSUE/MAILING DATE: 4/29/2015

THIS IS A FINAL ACTION.

INTERNATIONAL REGISTRATION NO. 1168730

On 9/30/14, the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (Board) suspended applicant's appeal and remanded the application to the trademark examining attorney to review applicant's request for reconsideration of the final Office action. Applicant presented a new issue in the request. Accordingly, the trademark examining attorney issued a new nonfinal Office action on 10/21/14, addressing the new issue and maintaining all the issues in the final Office action. On 4/7/15, applicant filed a response addressing the new issue and the issues in the final Office action.

The trademark examining attorney has carefully reviewed applicant's most recent response. In the response, applicant supplements the Section 2(f) evidence by providing five customer declarations. Proof of distinctiveness requires more than the existence of a relatively small number of people who associate a mark with the applicant. See In re The Paint Prods. Co., 8 USPQ2d 1863, 1866 (TTAB 1988) (ten customer affidavits not persuasive on the issue of how the average customer perceives the mark); Mag Instrument Inc. v. Brinkmann Corp., 96 USPQ2d 1701, 1723 (TTAB 2010) (finding sixteen declarations of little persuasive value).

The burden of proving that a mark has acquired distinctiveness is on the applicant. Yamaha Int'l Corp. v. Yoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1004 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Meyer & Wenthe, Inc., 267 F.2d 945, 122 USPQ 372 (C.C.P.A. 1959); TMEP §1212.01. An applicant must establish that the purchasing public has come to view the proposed mark as an indicator of origin. The ultimate test in determining acquisition of distinctiveness under Trademark Act Section 2(f) is not applicant's efforts, but applicant's success in educating the public to associate the claimed mark with a single source. TMEP §1212.06(b); see In re Packaging Specialists, 221 USPQ at 920; In re Redken Labs., Inc., 170 USPQ 526 (TTAB 1971).

The amount and character of evidence required to establish acquired distinctiveness depends on the facts of each case and particularly on the nature of the mark sought to be registered. Bd. of Trs. v. Pitts, Jr., 107 USPQ2d 2001, 2016 (TTAB 2013) (citing Roux Labs., Inc. v. Clairol Inc., 427 F.2d 823, 829, 166 USPQ 34, 39 (C.C.P.A. 1970)); In re Chevron Intellectual Prop. Grp. LLC, 96 USPQ2d 2026, 2030 (TTAB 2010); see TMEP §1212.05(a). More evidence is required where a mark is so highly descriptive that purchasers seeing the matter in relation to the named goods and/or services would be less likely to believe that it indicates source in any one party. See, e.g., In re Bongrain Int'l (Am.) Corp. , 894 F.2d 1316, 1317 n.4, 13 USPQ2d 1727, 1728 n.4 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (quoting Yamaha Int'l Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co., 840 F.2d 1572, 1581, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1008 (Fed. Cir. 1988)); Alcatraz Media, Inc. v. Chesapeake Marine Tours Inc., 107 USPQ2d 1750, 1767 (TTAB 2013).

The evidence of record shows SPANAIL is highly descriptive and the applicant's 2(f) evidence is insufficient to establish acquired distinctiveness. The applicant's 2(f) claim is based on a single location open for two years, PR generated articles referencing the recent opening, and five customer declarations. Such a low threshold for 2(f) evidence would effectively render Section 2(e)(1) meaningless.

The applied-for mark is extremely weak and the applicant's evidence does not show that the purchasing public has come to view SPANAIL as an indicator of origin. Therefore, applicant's response does not resolve the Section 2(e)(1) refusal in final status and all issues raised in the final Office action that issued on 4/8/14 remain outstanding.

Because applicant's response does not resolve all outstanding refusals and/or requirements nor otherwise put the application in condition for publication or registration, the trademark examining attorney is holding all issues final, including the new issue raised in applicant's request for reconsideration. See 37 C.F.R. §§2.63(b), 2.142(d); TMEP §715.04(b).

The following issues are in final status:

- Section 2(e)(1) descriptiveness refusal
- Insufficient evidence for Section 2(f) claim of acquired distinctiveness

The Board has been notified to resume the appeal. See TMEP §715.04(b).

Soulstice Spa Nail Polish Review

BY MARTA // OCTOBER 24, 2011 // 16 COMMENTS

I was recently contacted by NailPolishCanada.com to review a new line one nail polish: Soulstice Spa.

Soulstice Spa nail polish is:

* Vegan

* Cruelty-free (verified by PETA)

* Free of the toxins: dibutyl phthalate, formaldehyde and toluene

Currently there are 29 various shades named after various International cities. The polishes come in 12.7 mL / 0.43 oz bottles and are being sold for $8.50 Canadian.

* * * * *

I was given the option to pick three colours of my liking and decided to pick a cream, a pearl finish, and a foil finish. But I have to admit, I also let the names of the polish guide my choices!!! I love me a polish with a good name! I ordered Kyoto because it was a city I knew nothing about (and wanted to know more)... plus I've been on a hunt for a peachy shade. Venice because this city is on my Bucket List of travel destinations... And, how could I pass up London?!?!? I actually live in London (I know, I know... it was most likely named after London England... but why be a stickler for details)

Pssst, there is an awesome coupon code (at the end of this post) that you won't want to miss!

1) Kyoto:

Kyoto is a lovely creamy peach shade. This one is very flattering and had a shiny porcailin-like finish against my skin tone (without giving me mannequin hands). I've been on a hunt for the perfect nude-peach shade and I can finally say that my hunt is over! This is enough of a peach shade to make a statement all the while being a very work appropriate colour:

Manicures Pedicures - Does Spa Nail Polish Last Longer Than Drugstore?

MAY 30, 2012 BY SAFETYHARBORSPA LEAVE A COMMENT

When deciding to get a manicure or pedicure in a spa or doing it yourself, many question whether spa polish lasts longer than that you can buy at a drug store or retail outlet. Whether they are or not depends on what brands the spa uses, and on how you take care of your polish.

Nail polish manufacturers like OPI, China Glaze and Essie make high quality products and are more expensive because it's heavily pigmented. These heavily pigmented polishes are super rich and will stay on the nail longer. Less expensive polishes that use less pigments are more watery in color, need more layers to get the same rich color and chip more quickly. Sometimes quality is worth the cost. Higher end brands also follow fashion more closely. Some less expensive brands started doing this also.

Many mid-priced brands have good quality, but remember that spending the extra money to get the same shade in a better brand may mean the difference between a longer manicure, and being able to keep the bottle longer.

Another worry with cheaper brands is that they may use toxic ingredients like dibutyl phthalate, toluene and formaldehyde. Dibutyl phthalate is a plasticizer used to prevent cracks and chips. Formaldehyde, which has been classified as a known cancer-causing substance, is present in some nail hardeners. Toluene is a solvent that makes polish easy to apply. Would it be worth saving a few dollars and chance having those chemicals absorbed into your body?

If you do your manicure or pedicure yourself, here are a few tips to make your color last longer:

- First, make sure your nails are free of all oils. Wipe them with some alcohol or nail polish remover, and let your nails dry.
- Always use a base coat. It helps the color to adhere to your nail, and keeps them from being stained.
- Reapply the top coat every few days. This keeps your color shiny and keeps it from chipping.

Try these tips and your manicure or pedicure will last beautifully! If you are looking for a great mani pedi in the Clearwater or Tampa area, give us a call today 1-888-Best-Spa or visit our spa nail services page!

- It is a simple and natural alternative to purify water. Activated oxygen can break down the complex molecular structures of synthetic chemicals back to their safe original elements.
