300 WAYS TO HAVE FUN IN THE STADIUM

ABOUT THIS ALMANAC

Rebelling against the autumnal rash of FOOTBALL BROCHURES that fall into the heavy practice of presenting endless statistics Oklahoma A&M last year experimented in the virgin field of presenting a pre-season booklet that sought to entertain as well as inform. We received literally thousands of letters, seven of them expressing appreciation and a few in critical vein.

Such a reception has prompted us to explore in this field again and the AGGIE FOOTBALL ALMANAC is the result. This is in keeping with the general A&M idea that college sports can be fun, were in fact originally intended to be a restful, enjoyable, robust outlet for the young and the young in heart.

Herein are contained the cold, vital statistics needed by sports writers in their trade but here also, we trust, will be found whimsical bits, prepared in an old-fashioned way with an eye to the forthcoming semi-centennial celebration of Oklahoma's statehood.

Gaffer Hagen is credited with saying that one should take time to smell the roses along the path. (Not necessarily four roses.) We don't want to revolutionize the football brochure industry; we just want to pick a blossom or two out of the past before the gay era passes.

ATHLETIC CABINET OF A&M

OKLAHOMA A&M IN ITS 65TH YEAR

With a faculty of near 600 and approximately 9,000 resident students, A&M has become one of the nation's leading land-grant colleges, famed for its contributions to the economy of the greater Southwest and the achievements of its graduates. More than 50,000 persons know A&M as alma mater.

Formally opened December 14, 1891 after having been founded on Christmas day, 1890, by act of the first Oklahoma Territorial Legislature, A&M observes the December 14 date as founder's day. Classes opened with 45 students in the Congregational church of Stillwater. Old Central was soon under construction, Oklahoma's first building for higher education.

Dr. Oliver Willham was named president in 1952, an alumnus of A&M with his doctorate from Iowa State.

A&M has a 1,280-acre campus at Stillwater, 41 major buildings, together with nine major structures due to be replaced and ten major buildings regarded as temporary. A&M's amazing library is the new model for US schools and the Union one of the finest. The physical plant evaluation is approximately $45,000,000.

Divisions: The major schools are Engineering (the Oklahoma Institute of Technology), Agriculture, Business, Arts and Science, Home Economics, Education, Veterinary Medicine and the Graduate School with the various subdivisions of each.

WROTE IT WHILE SLIDING DOWN THE POLE

Engraved in stone over the arched entrances of A&M's famed firemanship training school is this philosophy, chosen by A&M architect Phil Wilber:

"Men resemble gods in nothing so much as in doing good to their fellow creatures.—Cicero."

During a firemanship short course, a visiting fire chief read that thoughtfully, then said, "Who is this Cicero—I never hear of no fireman name of Cicero."

THE GAME BELONGS TO THE BOYS

It is said that history is made by the young and written by the old. Sports history, too, and we quote this delectable bit, author forgotten, that illustrates the fact so beautifully:

King David and King Solomon led merry, merry lives
With their many, many vinyards and their many, many wives;
But when old age crept o'er them with its many, many qualms,
King Solomon wrote the Proverbs and King David wrote the Psalms.

Love your neighbor
But don't cut down your hedge

National Collegiate Championships Won By Schools Of This Area

In the 50 years of the NCAA it is interesting to note the number of NCAA team championships won by various schools. Yale has taken the lead with 25 national team titles, University of Southern California has 23, Oklahoma A&M 22, Michigan 15, Ohio 12, Princeton 12, Illinois 11, Stanford 10, Penn State 8, Wisconsin 8, Indiana 7, Louisiana State 6, Harvard 6, Michigan State 6, Columbia 4, Oklahoma 4, North Texas 4, UCLA 4, among those with four or more.

ABOUT THOSE A&M NICKNAMES

Colleges founded under the Morrill act, which proposed to set up schools for the advancement of the agricultural and mechanical arts, long have shown a tendency to attempt to get away from their rather earthy heritage. Oklahoma A&M college is one of the great land-grant schools that has resisted the impulse to change its name. There has been a rash of such changes over the years resulting usually in tacking the word "State" to the state name and now and then Oklahoma State has been suggested for Oklahoma A&M. It would seem to have more tone and might keep the boys from the state university from sneering. Fortunately, it always seemed to us, Oklahoma A&M stood firm until its achievement enhanced its name. To us there is something not quite genuine about a person who seeks to achieve class by a name change.

The nickname "Aggies" naturally attached itself to the A&M schools. Oklahoma A&M has bigger divisions of engineering and other schools than agriculture but "Oklahoma Aggies" has come to be the most common of the nicknames and has come to denote a great school, not just the division of agriculture. Popular, too, is the nickname "Cowboys" or "Cowpokes" for this great southwestern school. There are those who do not like this nickname, who argue that it presents the school in the wrong light. We only know that the little cowpoke stirs the memory of A&M students, awakens a bit of the dash and daring that was a part of Oklahoma's colorful past. First thing the freshman does is paste a decal of the little cowboy on his car windshield. It's popular. It has a meaning and a link with the robust past. Does a Yale man have to look like a bulldog? That's Yale's emblem. The covered wagon emblem of Oklahoma U. doesn't mean those Sooners have no streamlined convertibles. Do Texans have long horns? What's in a name, the bard said. Mates, you make the name famous, not vice versa. And the Cowpokes from the old Aggie school have become established favorably through the land.

SAY SOMETHING IN QUAKER, YOU BUM

Of course it probably was a gross exaggeration but when footballer Jack Jacobs was ready for college the scouts were beating the well-known path to Muskogee. Indian Tom Stidham, at Oklahoma, brushed up his Creek Indian lingo and set out to convince Indian Jack Jacobs. He gathered the family into a circle and talked Creek for two hours. "Wasn't getting nowheres," Tom later explained, "until I started talking turkey."

CHAMPIONS OF THE BIG 8

OSU00205

Tough Luck, Bill—Cliff Speegle and Nebraska coach Bill Jennings leave field after OSU's Homecoming victory over Cornhuskers, 1961.

COWBOY PROSPECTS

Speegle cheered by slam-bang attitude as varsity ripped through spring practice chores.

It's Oklahoma State's 61st football season, and coach Cliff Speegle's eighth, as State's Cowboys brace for their third Big Eight gridiron season. Two tough years of Big Eight baptism left the Pokes restlessly contemplating two sixth-place finishes. They are of a mind to cancel that OSU credit card the rest of the league has been using while shopping around for football victories . . . "Time to wean 'em," the Pokes say, "no more of those free 13-7 wins in Stillwater."

The slam-bang spring practice that brought a reference to OSU as "the star-less Cowpokes," but resulted in a 20-0 shut-out of the Alumni in the spring game, is the basis for the feeling that the kindergarten days for the baby member of the Big Eight have got to end sometime soon.

It was the first shut-out of the Cowboy-Alumni series, and while no super-star emerged during spring drills and the climaxing Old Grad game, the varsity looked to be a balanced crew with a hot fire burning in the boiler.

Speegle sees improved balance that could keep the fight for positions going all autumn and he believes the incoming sophs will take up the slack with "a back or two who can make some yards on his own occasionally, and a line with more hustle than we've had for a while."

Only six of the hands will be going for their third letter this fall—Bob Adcock, John Ed Gardner, Tommy Jackson, Rod Replogle, Rex Russell and Billy York—meaning the team is young as experience goes. There are only 22 lettermen around. Six of last year's starters are gone.

Star-less the club may be, at least until they turn on the Saturday spotlights, but attention is bound to focus on the six mentioned above and on guard Mike Upton, injured most of last year; Don Derrick, big gun halfback of the Alumni game; fullbacks Adcock, the 110-per cent performer, and his co-partner Bill McFarland, last year's leading scorer, and those newcomers: Marcus Hendricks, end; Roody Cutsinger, tackle; Ed Thomas, guard; Wardell Hollis, halfback, and perhaps Ben Cravatt, guard, to mention those who have given the most advance notice.

The schedule: It's tougher than the bottom nine on a cowpoke's boot with the Big Eight buddies ginning along in the big time and with Arkansas and Army replacing Wichita and Houston who were on last year's Cowboy calling card. You can swing a pretty hairy forearm in this league and still get tossed clear over the back-bar if you stop to wipe sweat.

Ought to be a spectacular spin in the Big Eight this year, just as it has been the last two. Defending champion Colorado, eager to prove they can do it the NCAA way just as easy; impatient Kansas, bound and determined to whip Mizzou; Nebraska dreaming of the days that used to be; Oklahoma, all stocked up again and plotting a new reign of terror; Iowa State with a remodled single-wing designed for Hoppmann, and hungry K-State eating more regularly—you pick the soft Saturdays in that lineup.

HJALMARSEN, SUSA TO LEAD COWGIRLS IN 2008

12 new faces suit up for Oklahoma State in 2008

With a host of new faces dotting the 2008 Oklahoma State women's cross country roster, the coming season should be ripe with intrigue.

This much is certain: the team will count on the steady veteran leadership of junior Tone Hjalmarsen and on the dynamic ability of sophomore all Big 12 and all-Midwest Region performer Mihaela Susa.

A native of Bodoe, Norway, Hjalmarsen comes off a summer in which she won the Norwegian senior national championship in the 10,000 meter run after clocking a 34:44.22 at the National Track and Field Championship in Trondheim, Norway.

A knee injury kept Hjalmarsen out of the 2007 Big 12 Cross Country Championship. Though she returned to compete at the NCAA Midwest Regional Championship, she clearly was not herself placing 55th at the event when she would have been a contender if healthy. This year, she gets that second chance to make a name for herself on both the conference and regional levels. During her Oklahoma State cross country career to date, Hjalmarsen has been clocked at 17:46 in a 5,000 meter race and 21:26 in a 6,000 meter race.

As for Susa, the sophomore returns to Stillwater after an explosive freshman year that saw her secure all-Big 12 and all-Midwest Region honors in her first year at the collegiate level. Susa was OSU's top finisher every time she raced* in 2007 and looks to build on the success she enjoyed a year ago. Included on Susa's Cowgirl resume is a 20:35 at the 2007 NCAA Midwest Regional Championships that stands as the fifth-best 6,000-meter time in school history. Susa also posted a 17:28 at the Boston College Invitational that ranks 40th in OSU history.

Beyond Hjalmarsen and Susa, keep an eye on junior Natalia Kovtun. The USC transfer enrolled at Oklahoma State for the spring semester of 2008 and competed for the Cowgirl track team, but missed the cross country campaign a year ago. From Severodonetsk, Ukraine, Kovtun made her presence felt immediately by earning all-Big 12 honors with a 4:37.86 in the outdoor 1500 meters. To put that into perspective, the time she ran that day was well behind the season-best mark of 4:29.13 that she ran at the Payton Jordan Cardinal Invitational. The bottom line is this: Kovtun can run and she could emerge as a leader this cross country season.

Sophomore Teran Mixon and junior Leah Schroeder could be instrumental in providing depth for the Cowgirls in 2007, with Mixon coming off a solid rookie season in which she showed some promise in the middle distance events during the indoor and outdoor track and field seasons. Schroeder is a junior who is capable of productive cross country performances, evidenced by her 18:33 that was good for a top-20 finish at the 2006 Cowboy Jamboree.

All told, there are 12 runners on the 2008 OSU cross country roster who did not compete for the Cowgirls during last year's cross country season. That said, for OSU to be competitive this year, production from the newcomers will be imperative. In addition to Kovtun, one of the newcomers who can make an impact is freshman Brittani Johnson. Johnson was the Missouri state cross country champion in 2005 and 2006 and was honored as the Southwest Missouri Coaches Association Cross Country Athlete of the Year in 2005, 2006 and 2007. She led her team to state titles in 2004, 2006 and 2007 and set a new class 3A state course record with an 18:42.

Coming from north of the border, Victoria Fratczak was a productive prep performer that has the talent to be part of the Cowgirl rotation in 2008. Fratczak chose OSU over Oregon and Michigan, among others, after finishing a prep career that included a Nova Scotia junior provincial cross country title.

The Schultz twins, Courtney and Camille, can also get into the mix as true freshmen this year. Courtney won the 2007 New Mexico Cross Country title her junior year with Camille placing second. The two led Cloudcroft HS to the 2007 state championship, with Courtney placing first in the 800 meters, the 1600 meters and the 3200 meters and Camille placing second in both the 1600 meters and 3200 meters.

Minot, N.D., product Melanie Funke could also crack into the lineup as a freshman for the Cowgirls. A two-time North Dakota state cross country runner-up, Funke came to OSU after turning down opportunities to compete for Iowa, Iowa State, Oklahoma and Minnesota.

Regardless of who steps to the fore for Oklahoma State in 2008, one thing is clear: if recent history is any indication, the Cowgirls could be a contender when they host the 2008 NCAA Midwest Regional Cross Country Championships at the OSU Cross Country Course this November. OSU has finished in the top five at the regional meet each of the last four years and has placed in the top four at the Big 12 meet three of the last four years.

THE COWBOY LIFESTYLE

The day-to-day living for student-athletes at Oklahoma State rivals that of any campus in the country. Most Cowboys are housed on campus in spacious apartments that include living areas, private bedrooms, a full kitchen, washer and dryer, free local phone, free cable television and free internet access.

The apartments are located on north Monroe, a short walk from the Athletics Center as well as the academic center of the OSU campus.

OSU student-athletes also enjoy one of America's top training tables. With a chef dedicated to producing a menu tailored to the needs of student-athletes and with the training table located inside Boone Pickens Stadium, Cowboys and Cowgirls have the best of both worlds – great food in a convenient location.

Beginning in August 2007, OSU became one of the only schools in the country to provide oversized beds for its athletes. Each apartment is furnished with a custom athletic bedding system. The beds are 95 inches in length and over 84 inches in width, meaning even the tallest and largest OSU athletes will be completely supported for a comfortable night's sleep.

INCREDIBLE athletic facilities

The future of Oklahoma State University Athletics will not be defined by a single facility or venue but by an assortment of new facilities that will form a state-of-the-art complex on the OSU campus.

The Athletic Village - to be located just north of Boone Pickens Stadium - will benefit every program in the Oklahoma State athletic department while providing OSU with cutting edge venues located in a convenient and comprehensive setting. And unlike most campuses in which facilities are added individually, Oklahoma State is in the enviable position of being able to put together a long-range facility blueprint that will allow the venues to complement each other in an integrated fashion.

While planning for the Athletic Village is still in the early stages and all artists' renderings are subject to change, the completed projects will include new venues for track, baseball, tennis and soccer.

The village will also house the Sherman Smith Training Center, the new indoor practice facility that will benefit every student-athlete on the OSU campus.

COWBOYS ON SHORT LIST OF NCAA TITLE CONTENDERS IN 2008

Oklahoma State returns four of top five performers from last year's team that placed third at NCAAs, adds nation's top prep runner and high scorer from 2008 SEC Indoor meet.

The excitement level is as high as it has ever been for Oklahoma State men's cross country heading into the 2008 season.

A year ago, the Cowboys placed third at the NCAA Championships behind All-America performances from Ryan Vail and David Chirchir. Both Vail and Chirchir are back in 2008 and are joined by a host of experienced teammates and the best class of recruits in school history.

"There is definitely a buzz surrounding the program that seems to be growing as we get closer to the season," Reigning NCAA Midwest Region Coach of the Year Dave Smith said. "Our performance at the national championships last year, the depth and quality of guys we return, and this incredible group of newcomers, has many anticipating a very special season for OSU."

After a breakthrough year in 2007-08, Vail is well on his way to joining the list of all-time great Oklahoma State distance runners. Among the litany of honors and awards Vail secured as a junior were earning All-America honors during the cross country season (eighth, 29:58), winning the 3,000-meter Big 12 indoor championship (8:06.58) and earning All-America honors in the outdoor 5,000 meters (13:42.85). In addition, he was a finalist in the 5,000 meters at the U.S. Olympic Trials. Off the track, Vail was a first-team ESPN the Magazine Academic All-American and was also named to the U.S. Track and Field and Cross Country Coaches Association All-Academic team for both cross country and track and field.

"Ryan has definitely put his stamp on this program and I think the team has taken on the character of its leader. He is tough, tenacious and competitive," Smith said. "He pays attention to detail. He won't let anybody outwork him. He is blue-collar in his approach to training and isn't afraid to suffer when it comes time to race. He sets his goals extremely high and then pours everything into achieving them. He makes our entire team better by making believers out of each of his teammates. He has shown them again and again how to accomplish what most say you cannot. This is Ryan's team and I can't think of a better guy to lead us as we strive to climb a couple of more steps on that podium."

Though Vail has emerged as OSU's most recognizable track and field performer, Chirchir is emerging as a star in his own right. The 2007 Big 12 Cross Country Newcomer of the Year and an all-midwest region performer, Chirchir earned All-America honors during the cross country season by placing 15th at the NCAA Championships with a time of 30:20 despite hanging back in the pack for the first 5,000 meters as part of Oklahoma State's team strategy. His willingness to sacrifice individual glory for team success played a large part in the Cowboys placing third at the NCAA Championships. Chirchir's success translated into the track and field portion of the schedule, where he earned all-Big 12 honors after placing eighth in the indoor 5,000 meters (14:27.42). He was also an all-Big 12 performer during the outdoor season by placing sixth in the 3,000 meter steeplechase with a time of 9:27.19.

With Vail and Chirchir commanding most of the attention and accolades, Matt Barnes-Smith, Sean Fleming and Daniel Watts are the athletes who may just end up having the biggest impact on how well OSU does as a team this year. All three were all-midwest region honorees during the 2007 cross country season and provide Smith with the luxury of having quality performers throughout the lineup. Barnes-Smith and Fleming were both all-Big 12 honorees during the 2007 cross country season and Watts was a 2006 all-conference honoree to go with 2006 Big 12 Cross Country Newcomer of the Year accolades. Both Watts (42nd) and Barnes-Smith (48th) placed among the top 50 at the 2007 NCAA Cross Country Championships, with Fleming taking 19th at the regional championship.

"Those guys are all veteran guys now and they understand how we train and how we run a race as a team," Smith said. "The have all trained hard with the philosophy that they train like the number one guy, but they compete within the team strategy, which may mean running as the fourth or fifth guy. I have a lot of confidence in those three and they are a key to our season."

As good as Oklahoma State's returners are, perhaps an equal buzz surrounds the bumper crop of newcomers that Smith has attracted to Stillwater. Leading the way is freshman German Fernandez (Riverbank, Calif./Riverbank HS).

Yes, THAT German Fernandez.

Fernandez was honored as the 2008 Gatorade National Boys Track and Field Athlete of the Year and was the consensus pick as the No. 1 recruit in the nation. Fernandez's list of accomplishments rivals that of any track and field performer, but it was his showing at the 2008 California state meet that elevated him to a new level. Fernandez's performance in the 1,600 meters (4:00.29) broke the California Interscholastic Federation state meet record (4:02.62), set in 2001 by 2008 U.S. Olympic Team Trials Men's Marathon champion Ryan Hall. Fernandez's time was only 0.78 seconds away from the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations record (3:59.51), set in 2001 by the current American record holder in the mile and 2000-01 Gatorade National Boys Track & Field Athlete of the Year, Alan Webb.

After a mere two hours of rest following the 1,600-meter race, Fernandez clocked an 8:34.23 finish in the 3,200 meters, shattering the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations record (8:41.10), set in 2000 by Dathan Ritzenhein, the runner-up in the 2008 U.S. Olympic Team Trials Men's Marathon. This performance also broke a hand-timed CIF state meet record (8:44.9) set by the late Eric Hurst in 1975.

Without going into too much detail on Fernandez, his other prep highlights included shattering the existing national record in the two-mile with an 8:34.40 at the Nike Outdoor Nationals and securing the 2007-08 Gatorade Boys Cross Country California Runner of the Year honor.

"German is a phenomenal talent and as cliche as it might sound, truly the sky is the limit for him," Smith said. "He has some big dreams for the long-term future of his career and some pretty lofty goals in the short term for both himself and the team. He is still a very young athlete and we are going to take a very conservative, deliberate approach to his training to give him all the time he needs to develop at his own rate. That being said, if all goes well, I have no doubt that he could have a major impact on our team finish as early as the NCAA championships in Terre Haute this November."

Fellow freshman Colby Lowe (Southlake, Texas/Carroll) has an impressive résumé as well. Lowe is on most everyone's list of top five middle distance/distance runners entering the college ranks this year after he placed third in the two-mile at the 2008 Nike Outdoor Nationals, just .01 behind the second-place finisher. Lowe took second in the two-mile at the 2008 Nike Indoor Nationals and was the fourth-place finisher at the 2007 Foot Locker Cross Country Championships.

Ryan Prentice (Seattle, Wash./Mount Rainier) and Ryan Farrar (Broken Arrow, Okla./Broken Arrow) round out OSU's incoming group of freshmen, with both carrying the title of state champion with them and Prentice having won the 5,000 meter title at the 2007 USA Track and Field Junior Olympic National Championships.

A pair of transfers are also set to compete for the Cowboys in 2008-09, with John Kosgei (Eldoret, Kenya/South Plains College/LSU) and Josh Thebeau (Potosi, Mo./Belmont University) both joining the fold. During his time at South Plains College, Kosgei won a national title in the 5,000 meters at the 2007 NJCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships and was the runner-up in the 1,500 meters and 10,000 meters at the national meet. At LSU, he was the high scorer at the 2008 SEC Indoor Championships, winning SEC titles in the mile and the 3,000 meters. He became only the second Tiger ever to break the four-minute mark in the mile when he clocked a 3:59.85 in 2008. Thebeau was a high school teammate of current Cowboy Josh Mathis at Potosi HS before going on to Belmont University, where he suited up for four indoor races and one outdoor event in 2008.

"This is by far the best team I have ever been associated with. They are talented, they are hungry, and they have worked incredibly hard to climb into the ranks of the elite cross country programs," Smith said. "I am really excited for them and can't wait to see what they do when it comes time to race. Winning the Big 12 and NCAA championships is always the goal and this is a team that is now in position to compete for either title. We have a tough, tough conference and I think that the top five or six teams in the NCAA are as strong as a group as they have ever been so both races will be fiercely contested. This team is not afraid to put it out there, though. We will be ready and eager to mix it up with the best."

DAVE SMITH

THIRD YEAR AS HEAD CROSS COUNTRY COACH :: FIRST YEAR AS HEAD TRACK COACH
MICHIGAN STATE, 1993

Quickly establishing himself as one of the nation's top cross country coaches, Dave Smith is in his third season as the head coach of the Oklahoma State cross country team after serving as an assistant coach under Dick Wels since 2002. He moves into the role of head track and field coach for the 2009 season.

The reigning Midwest Region Coach of the Year, Smith guided the Cowboys to one of the finest seasons in school history in 2007 as the Pokes placed third in the team standings at the NCAA Cross Country Championships behind All-America performances from Ryan Vail and David Chirchir. In addition, Smith coached the Cowboys to their third straight NCAA Midwest Regional title.

In addition to All-Americans Vail and Chirchir, Smith's 2007 cross country squad featured all-region performers Matt Barnes-Smith, Sean Fleming, David Jankowski and Daniel Watts, with Vail, Chirchir, Fleming, Jankowski and Barnes-Smith earning all-Big 12 honors as well. Chirchir was honored as the 2007 Big 12 Cross Country Newcomer of the Year after placing eighth at the Big 12 Championship.

The Cowboys also succeeded in the classroom under Smith in 2007-08, as Vail was a first-team ESPN the Magazine Academic All-American and was joined on the U.S. Track and Field and Cross Country Coaches Association's All-Academic team by Jankowski during the cross country season and by Jankowski, Barnes-Smith and Terry Jossrand during the track and field season. Both Vail and Jankowski were voted to the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-District Team as well. As a team, OSU sported a combined grade point average above 3.0 to earn USTFCCCA All-Academic team honors in both cross country and track and field.

The 2008 track season was highlighted by Smith coaching Vail to a Big 12 indoor title in the 1,000 meters and by Vail following that up with All-America honors in the outdoor 5,000 meters with a fifth place finish at the NCAA Championships.

In his first season, Smith led the Pokes to the 2006 Midwest Regional championship, as OSU finished 16 points ahead of the second-place Kansas and 49 points ahead of third-place Iowa. Smith coached both Joe Gray (sixth place, 30:56.74) and David Jankowski (seventh place, 30:57.49) to top-10 finishes at the event, with Daniel Watts and Brian Ehlis both placing in the top 20.

Smith's Cowboys followed their Midwest Regional title up with a 10th-place finish at the 2006 NCAA Championships, with Gray leading the way with a 32nd-place finish at the event.

The success enjoyed by the Cowboys in 2006 also extended to the classroom, where the Pokes posted a team GPA of 3.442 and 22 of the 25 runners on the track and cross country roster finished the semester with a 3.00 grade point average or better. Eight Cowboys made Dean's Honor Roll (3.5-3.9 GPA) and three Cowboys made President's Honor Roll. Joseph Gray and Michael Breshears each finished with a 4.00 GPA, however they were not candidates for President's Honor Roll because they were in Graduate School at the time.

Smith coached Daniel Watts to Big 12 Newcomer of the Year honors in 2006, making him the first Cowboy ever to win the award.

Smith came to Stillwater from Texas Tech, where he was the head men's and women's cross country coach, as well as assistant track coach from 1998-2002. Prior to his stint at Tech, Smith was a volunteer assistant coach for the University of Washington track and cross country programs from 1997-1998. He was also the head coach of Club Northwest women's cross country and track those same years. Athletes that Smith has coached have won two NCAA Championships, 14 All-American awards, 12 Big 12 Championships, and a World University Games gold medal.

While competing collegiately at Michigan State, Smith was the Big Ten Conference champion in the 10,000m in 1993 and placed second in the 1,500m that season. He earned all-Big Ten honors four times in cross country and track during his career. He was also an II-time academic all-Big Ten selection and three-time Academic All-America selection. Smith also won the Big Ten Conference Medal of Honor in 1993.

Smith graduated from Michigan State in 1993 with a degree in fisheries and wildlife, and continued his education at the University of Washington, where he earned a Ph.D. in pharmacology in 2000.

Smith Instills Winning Attitude At OSU

By Kasey Blevins

Oklahoma State men's cross country coach Dave Smith tries to instill the same attitude he had as a cross country runner in college into his student-athletes today.

"I try to stress this attitude that you don't settle for mediocrity," Smith said. "If you're going to do something, whether it's academic or athletics, do it the best you can or don't do it."

While in college at Michigan State, Smith's attitude helped him excel in athletics as well as academics. He began his collegiate career as an engineering major. After learning he didn't enjoy doing things like the labs, he decided to switch majors to fisheries and wildlife.

A strange major for a college athlete and current coach? Smith says no.

"It's not as strange as you might think," Smith said. "I love the outdoors. Growing up in Washington, I was outside my whole life doing things like backpacking, camping and hiking. Running cross country and doing those kind things are kind of related. It's all about being outdoors and being health conscious and so."

By the end of his career at Michigan State, Smith was an II-time academic all-Big Ten selection and four-time academic All-America selection. He was also honored for his athleticism with four all-Big Ten honors in cross country and track as well as being the Big Ten conference champion in the 10,000 meter.

After he graduated from Michigan State, Smith wasn't quite ready to be done with school. He was interested in the life sciences after winning a Howard Hughes fellowship. In between his fourth and fifth years at Michigan State, Smith went to Santa Cruz, Calif., and did a research project in the cellular biology and said he really got into it.

Upon graduation, he applied to a fully-funded doctoral program closer to home, at the University of Washington. He was accepted and in 2000 received his PhD in pharmacology and neurobiology. Upon receiving his doctorate, Smith went right back to cross country and began coaching.

"I got my doctorate just to expand my horizons and learn some more," Smith said. "But I love my sport and I love the outdoors so I decided to coach for a year. That year turned into 10."

Smith's "do everything your best" attitude has obviously been rubbing off on his athletes.

"The two main things we're doing here are school and running," Smith said. "We really stress focusing on those things and taking them seriously. We're setting high goals and attitude for the team and for each individual that you don't accept anything less than your best in anything that you do."

COACH DICK WEIS, SUPPORT STAFF

DICK
WEIS
26th year at OSU
Kings College, 1971

2003, 2006, 2007
NCAA MIDWEST REGION CHAMPIONS

Coach Dick Weis is now in his 26th season on the Oklahoma State cross country coaching staff. He has enjoyed great success as a coach and is well-known and respected in the sport throughout the United States and in international communities.

Weis led the Cowboys to the 1995 Big 8 Cross Country team championship and guided OSU to 12 NCAA Cross Country Championship appearances as head coach. He has led or helped lead the Cowboys to NCAA appearances in 14 of the last 15 years, with OSU securing top-five finishes in 1995 (third), 1996 (fourth) and 2007 (third) and posting an average finish of 14th in the nation during that time.

In addition, Weis served as head coach for eight Oklahoma State teams that competed at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships and eight OSU teams that competed at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Weis helped the Cowboys to one of the finest seasons in school history in 2007 as the Pokes placed third in the team standings at the NCAA Cross Country Championships behind All-America performances from Ryan Vail and David Chirchir. In addition, the Cowboys won their third straight NCAA Midwest Regional title.

In addition to All-Americans Vail and Chirchir, the 2007 OSU cross country squad featured all-region performers Matt Barnes-Smith, Sean Fleming, David Jankowski and Daniel Watts, with Vail, Chirchir, Fleming, Jankowski and Barnes-Smith earning all-Big 12 honors as well.

The Cowboys also succeeded in the classroom in 2007-08, as Vail was a first-team ESPN the Magazine Academic All-American and was joined on the U.S. Track and Field and Cross Country Coaches Association's All-Academic team by Jankowski during the cross country season and by Jankowski, Barnes-Smith and Terry Josserand during the track and field season. As a team, OSU sported a combined grade point average above 3.0 to earn USTFCCCA All-Academic team honors in both cross country and track and field.

The 2008 track season was highlighted by Vail winning a Big 12 indoor title in the 3,000 meters and by Vail following that up with All-America honors in the outdoor 5,000 meters with a fifth place finish at the NCAA Championships.

Weis gained a great deal of recognition in the 1990s for coaching his cross country squad to nine straight NCAA appearances, six District V titles and six District V Coach of the Year honors. In addition to the team success, Weis produced individual cross country All-Americans Joe Metcalf (1985), Steve Fury (1989), Solomon Kerkuki (1993-95), Patrick Kiptum (1995), Kim Critchley (1995), Jon Wild (1993-95), Christian Nicolson (1996), Christopher Kebenei (1996), Chuck Sloan (1999), and Mindi Pukstas (2003). Weis, who has coached OSU cross country for 23 years, came to Stillwater, Okla., from Missouri and quickly turned both the men's and women's cross country teams around. In his first year with the Cowgirls, the team placed last in the Big Eight Conference. Just three years later in 1986, the Cowgirls were the Big Eight Champions. They proceeded to an fifth-place finish in the 1988 NCAA Championships and followed it up with a fifth-place finish in 1989. He also coached the individual cross country champion for eight years, from 1982 to 1989. Weis also coached women's cross country All-Americans Christine McMiken (1984-85), Jackie Goodman (1986-89), Sonia Barry (1988) and Heather Garrett (1989).

In the years since he came to Oklahoma State in 1983, Weis has produced some outstanding athletes. During Weis' time in Stillwater, Cowboy and Cowgirl track and cross country has produced 86 All-Americans, nine NCAA champions, five NCAA runners-up, one world-record holder and two Olympians. Christine McMiken set the world record in the three-mile run with a time of 14:53.80. She also represented her home country of New Zealand by placing ninth in the 10,000m run in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea. He also has coached 21 individuals to world cross country selections. He spent four years, from 1979 to 1982, as the track coach at Missouri. While there, he led the Lady Tigers to the 1980 Big Eight Championship and two second-place conference finishes. He coached 26 All-Americans while at Missouri, including two-time Big Eight champion Sabrina Dornhoeffer (1982, 83), world-record setter Rosalyn Dunlap in the 600y indoor (1:18.56) and 1984 Los Angeles Olympian Pam Page. He began his coaching career at the high school level in the state of New York. He enjoyed considerable success as a cross country coach at Albertus Magnus High School in Bardonia, N.Y., where his team was ranked first in the nation in 1974.

From there, Weis moved to Monroe-Woodbury High School in Central Valley, N.Y., and produced two state high school titles. The White Plains, N.Y., native earned his bachelor's degree in 1971 from Kings College in New York. He is married to Donna and is the father of five children, including Joe (OSU alumnus and two-time track indoor 1,000m Big Eight Champion in 1990 and 1992) and Ray (OSU alumnus and member of the OSU wrestling team in 1993 and 1996). Ray is also the Head Wrestling Coach at Jenks HS. Weis was born in 1938 in Montreal, Canada.

oklahoma state golf history

For the last 60 years, the Oklahoma State men's golf program has continuously been an example of excellence both on and off the golf course. The tradition of excellence established by the school is among the nation's best. The consistency of its outstanding performance is a tribute to the school's first two coaches and its long list of outstanding players.

With only three coaches in its 60-year history, the Oklahoma State program has been able to consistently maintain its high level of success. From 1947 to '73, the program was in the hands of the legendary Labron Harris, who passed away on August 14, 1995, at the age of 86. From 1973-2005, Mike Holder, who played for Harris, was at the helm before turning the reins of one of collegiate sport's elite programs over to first-year head coach Mike McGraw for the 2005-06 season.

How much stability and production has the program had? Well, Oklahoma State is the only school to have competed in each of the last 60 NCAA Championships. During those 60 consecutive appearances at the national tournament, OSU has produced an amazing record

The Cowboys have claimed 10 national team championships, including the 2006 title. OSU has posted 15 runner-up finishes and finished among the top five 46 times and in the top 10 on 50 occasions during those 60 years. In addition, OSU has produced eight NCAA individual champions.

In 1958, Ab Justice became OSU's first official All-American, and in the last 48 years, OSU players have earned All-America mention 146 times, including 50 first team selections. Since the golf coaches started naming academic All-America teams in 1984, Cowboys have earned that honor on 23 occasions.

Cowboy golfers have earned national honors on a regular basis. Eight players have been named the top collegiate golfer in the country during a particular season including Lindy Miller (1978), Bob Tway (1981), Willie Wood (1982), Scott Verplank (1986), Alan Bratton (1994), Charles Howell (2000), Hunter Mahan (2003) and Pablo Martin (2006). Four Cowboys have earned first-team All-America honors three times including Miller, Tway, Verplank and Kevin Wentworth

TWO-TIME MISSOURI VALLEY CONFERENCE CHAMPION BEN DICKSON

Three others have earned the prestigious Ben Hogan Award. Wentworth claimed the award in 1990, Trip Kuehne was the recipient in 1995, and Hunter Mahan was the latest honoree in 2003 Zack Robinson was named the winner of the Byron Nelson Award in 2006.

The OSU Tradition

Over the years, Oklahoma State has always been among the nation's top teams. While dual play was in fashion during the Labron Harris years, tournament play took over in the early 1970s. Since 1974 when Mike Holder became the head coach, OSU's tournament success has become legendary.

The Cowboys have entered 462 tournaments during the past 33 years and have won 184 times for an unbelievable 39.8 winning percentage. OSU has also managed 101 runner-up finishes, meaning the Cowboys have been first or second in 67 percent of the tournaments they have entered.

Notable players that competed for OSU during the Harris years include Earl Moeller, Ab Justice, Bob Dickson, Danny Edwards, George Hixon and Mark Hayes. Holder era standouts include Lindy Miller, Bob Tway, Scott Verplank, Kevin Wentworth, David Edwards, Willie Wood, Brian Watts, Michael Bradley, Alan Bratton, Chris Tidland, Charles Howell, Hunter Mahan and Bo Van Pelt.

And now with the outstanding golf course, Karsten Creek, and all its exceptional practice facilities available to members of the OSU golf teams, the tradition established in the first 60 years should continue into the next half century for Cowboy Golf.

- Only school to compete in each of the last 60 NCAA Championships winning nine national titles and finishing lower than fifth just 13 times.
- Owns 49 conference titles, including 36 of 39 Big Eight championships.
- Boasts 146 All-Americans, including at least one first team All-America in 34 of the last 38 years.
- Has produced eight NCAA individual champions, including Earl Moeller (1953), Grier Jones (1968), David Edwards (1978), Scott Verplank (1986), Brian Watts (1987), E.J. Pfister (1988), Charles Howell (2000), and Jonathan Moore (2006).
- Has produced eight National Players of the Year in Lindy Miller (1978), Bob Tway (1981), Willie Wood (1982), Scott Verplank (1986), and Alan Bratton (1994 co winner), Charles Howell (2000), Hunter Mahan (2003) and Pablo Martin (2006).
- Has produced 23 Academic All Americans since honors started in 1984.
- Boasts eight student athletes who earned first team Athletic and Academic All America honors.
- Has been under the direction of only three coaches as Labron Harris coached from 1947 to '73, Mike Holder led the program from 1974 through 2005 before Mike McGraw took over during the fall of 2005.

THE FIRST 60 YEARS

- In 1947, when OSU first fielded a golf team that would win the Missouri Valley Conference Championship and finish fifth at the NCAA Championship in its inaugural season. Former head coach Mike Holder was still a year away from being born.
- In 1953, OSU's Earl Moeller won the individual national title.
- In 1958, OSU joined the Big Eight Conference, winning the team title in its first year in the league and then finishing second at the NCAA Championship, then its highest finish at that tournament.
- In 1963, OSU claimed its first NCAA team title, edging Houston by one shot. George Hixon was the NCAA individual runner up by one stroke.
- In 1968, Grier Jones joined Moeller as NCAA individual champions from OSU
- In 1975, OSU started a stretch where it finished first or second at the NCAA Championship in 13 of 14 years.
- In 1978, David Edwards claimed the NCAA individual title as the Cowboys won NCAA team championship number three.
- In 1986, OSU started a three-year string that saw a Cowboy win the NCAA individual championship each spring. Scott Verplank won in 1986, Brian Watts in 1987 and E.J. Pfister in 1988.
- In 1991, OSU won NCAA team championship number seven.
- Karsten Creek opens in May 1994
- In 1995, OSU won NCAA team championship number eight and for the second consecutive year boasted the individual runner-up at the meet as Alan Bratton was second in 1994 and Chris Tidland finished as runner-up in 1995.
- In 1996 OSU celebrated its 50th year of collegiate golf excellence as arguably the nation's premier program.
- In 2000, OSU won NCAA Team Championship number nine in a playoff over Georgia Tech. Charles Howell, fueled by a record-breaking performance, became OSU's seventh individual champion.
- In 2003, Oklahoma State plays host to the 106th NCAA Championship at Karsten Creek.
- In 2005, Oklahoma State became the first team to capture four Big 12 Championships
- In 2006, OSU continued its record streak of competing in every NCAA Championship for the last 60 years and captured its 10th NCAA title.

cowboy scholarship endowment program

Twenty-five years ago, Oklahoma State University launched a program to endow the athletic grants-in-aid for the men's golf program. At that time it would take $50,000 invested in the OSU Foundation to earn enough interest to pay for one student-athlete's educational expenses for one year.

The first year, $50,000 was raised and the scholarship was named in honor of the University's first golf coach, Labron Harris, Sr. That same year, an endowment in memory of Stephen B. Payne was started by his family through a $30,000 donation, which was matched by $20,000 from the Endowed Scholarship Sponsors of the Cowboy Pro-Am. These two scholarships were followed by grants from T.A. Mace, T.J. Dulaney, Dr. Kemper Lain in memory of his father Taylor Lain, Wilfred A. Clark in memory of his son Brian, E.L. Ball, Tom Carey and Tommy Moore.

Today, the endowment fund contains more than $3.1 million, but tuition increases dictate that this total continue to grow in the future.

cowboy pro-am

The inaugural Oklahoma State Cowboy Pro-Am was played in the fall of 1973 at the Stillwater Country Club. It was the continuation of an idea conceived by Labron Harris, Sr., to generate interest in the NCAA Golf Championship, which had been held at the Stillwater Country Club in June of that same year.

The original Pro-Am turned out to be a reunion and festive gathering of former players and various people interested in OSU golf. And, at the same time, it became a source of revenue for the men's golf program.

Since that first year the Pro-Am has fueled the Cowboys' rise to the summit of the collegiate golf world and created a solid foundation for the future. Pro-Am proceeds have paid a large portion of the golf program's annual operating expenses and funded the golf endowment fund, which now exceeds $3.1 million.

The 1997 Pro-Am marked the 25th anniversary of the event. It generated $250,000 for the golf program, of which $175,000 was provided by the Platinum Sponsors to construct an indoor practice facility complete with state-of-the-art video equipment.

In 1998 Cowboy supporters got together to raise money for an endowed scholarship in memory of former All-American Cowboy golfer Tommy Moore, who passed away in May of 1998. Over $130,000 was raised in the event.

On October 8, 1999, over 125 Cowboy Golf sponsors played the 27th Annual Pro-Am to help raise funds for the construction of a new clubhouse at Karsten Creek.

On Sept. 15, 2001, Cowboy Golf boosters gathered despite rainy conditions and raised over $1 million, marking the first time that milestone had been reached.

[illegible] prosper in the face of adversity. Conceived in the mind of one man and brought to life [illegible] was as a [illegible] of the commitment to excellence of the OSU golf program.

Karsten Creek was built for the OSU golf teams, and its purpose is to aid in the recruitment and development of future OSU [illegible]s. It was designed by Tom Fazio and honored as the Best New Public Course for 1994 by G[illegible]est Magazine. It stretches over 7,4[illegible] with SR1020 bent-grass greens and z[illegible]ys. All of the holes were carved from the [illegible]e oak trees surrounding Lake Louise.

Karsten C[illegible] was so named to honor Karsten S[illegible] founder of Karsten [illegible] Manufacturing, and Lake Lou[illegible] honors his wife. Their support of OSU golf over the last 25 years [illegible] instrumental in the [illegible]cess of the golf team. [illegible] Karsten Creek would never [illegible] a reality.

In the May 1998 edition of Golf Digest, Karsten Creek Golf Club was awarded its first five-star rating, making the course one of 10 in the nation to be so honored. The rating was not a surprise to those who have followed the course from its opening in May 1994, when the heralded Tom Fazio design received the Best New Public Course in the Nation award. Since that time, the course has gone on to receive numerous accolades. Karsten Creek joined the likes of Pebble Beach Golf Links, Spyglass Hill Golf Course and Pinehurst Resort and Country Club (No. 2). Four of these courses have hosted major championships, and most of the others maintain national prominence. While other courses are located in resort areas or near the coasts, Karsten Creek's surprising beauty is derived from an unsuspecting tract of land that is densely covered with black jack and pin oak trees and contains dramatic elevation changes that are not common to the heartland of America. As the course continues to mature, it steadily climbs all of the top 100 lists across the country and has been ranked as the best college course in the country by Travel & Leisure Golf magazine.

The golf course's first college event was the Karsten Creek Collegiate in 1996, only two years after its opening. Karsten Creek then played host to the NCAA Central Regional in May of 2001 before serving as the host of the 2002 Ping/Golfweek Preview. Each year, the top 15 teams in the country are invited to compete in the event, which is held at the site of the following spring's NCAA Championship.

The following May, the nation's top 30 teams arrived in Stillwater for the 103rd NCAA Championship. Clemson claimed the team title, while the host Cowboys finished as the runner-up at two shots off the pace of the Tigers. Interestingly enough, the top five teams heading into the tournament all finished in the order they were ranked, 1-5.

Karsten Creek was built to host championships and will do so in the near future. In October of 2006, the course will hold the first of two upcoming AJGA events with the inaugural Ping Invitational. In 2007, the prestigious AJGA Rolex Tour of Champions will come to town and will precede the 2011 NCAA Men's Division I Championship.

In addition to one of the country's finest golf courses, Cowboy Golf boasts an elaborate practice facility that is used exclusively by the men's and women's golf teams.

Cowboy golfers utilize a practice range which possesses tee boxes that surround the entire landing area to allow players to practice with any wind direction.

The players' short-game area comes complete with three tee boxes to hit 40 to 80-yard shots and three putting greens with varied grass types, allowing players to prepare for a wide range of courses.

Reserved solely for team members, the players' practice facility at Karsten Creek allows OSU golfers to hone all facets of their game and continue the 60-year legacy that is Cowboy Golf.

DIRECTOR OF INSTRUCTION/HEAD GOLF PROFESSIONAL

Professional Golfers Association, 1991

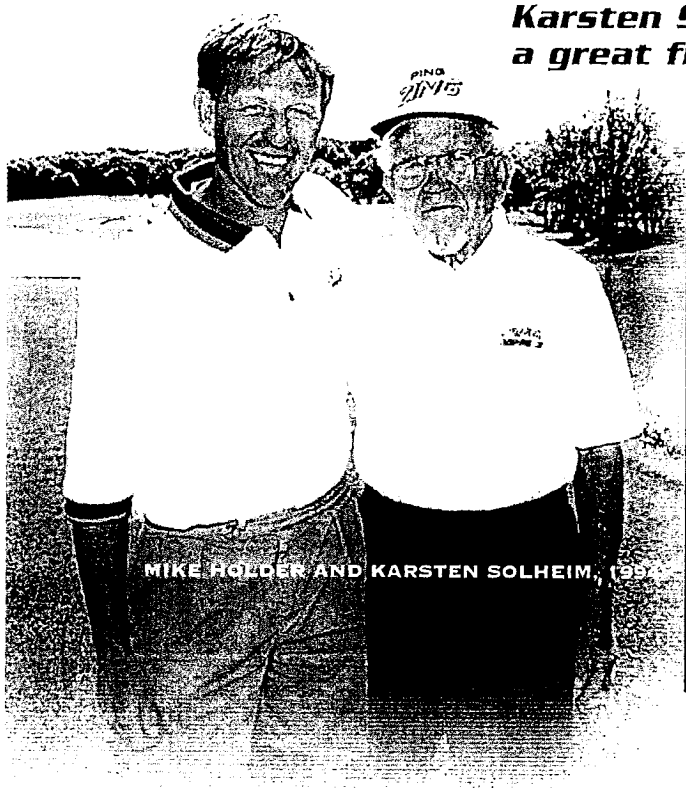
Originating from Cheshire in the North of England, Scott Davies embarked on his professional career in 1991 at the age of 20. He completed his diploma with the Professional Golfers Association and became one of the few people to receive a coveted Trainee of the Year award from his Royal Highness, the Duke of York.

Having spent a short but successful period as the head teaching professional at a prestigious Golf and Country Club in the Northwest of England. Scott joined world-renowned David Leadbetter in his expanding network of golf academies. It was here that Scott spent seven years building his reputation as a respected coach, progressing to a position of senior instructor and academy director.

During his career, Scott has been able to work with many of the world's top professionals including Mark McNulty, Nick Price, Peter Baker and Silvia Cavalieri. Davies has also been able to convey his understanding of the golf swing to many amateurs through private and corporate golf instruction and as the author of golf instructional articles in newspapers and magazines.

Scott and his wife, Anne, moved to Stillwater in April 2004 whereupon he took up his current position as Director of Instruction at Karsten Creek.

Karsten Solheim... a great friend of Cowboy Golf



MIKE HOLDER AND KARSTEN SOLHEIM, 1951

Any successful program is not without its very special supporters, and Karsten Solheim was certainly a great friend of Cowboy Golf.

Solheim, who revolutionized the golf industry n the 1960s, '70s and '80s, will long be remembered for his outstanding contributions to golf-club design.

A native of Bergen, Norway, Solheim moved with his family to Seattle as a little boy. Karsten had a great love for engineering, and despite having to leave the University of Washington after one year due to lack of funds during the Great Depression, he would later continue his engineering training during World War II.

Moving to San Diego, Calf., Solheim worked as a flight research engineer in the 1940s, working on the Fireball jet fighter. In 1951, he worked as a project engineer for the Atlas missile's first ground guidance system. In 1953, he began a lengthy association with General Electric, becoming a mechanical design engineer on sophisticated radar and guidance systems at GE's facility in Ithaca, N.Y.

It was in Ithaca that he first played golf at the age of 42. Throughout the 1950s, he continued golf as a hobby and became keenly interested in designing the world's first heel-toe-balanced putter. In doing so, he changed the game of golf forever. The production of the first PING putter (so named because of the sound it made at ball contact) eventually took him into the golf-design business full time.

During the 1960s, Solheim had been working on his own line of irons and woods. In July 1967, he incorporated as Karsten Manufacturing Corporation, and soon, his heel-toe weighting theory for clubs revolutionized the industry. He also pioneered investment casting in the golf-club manufacturing business.

Over the years, an important business principle for Solheim was giving back to the game that meant so much to him. He made major contributions to many athletic centers at universities and clerical institutions, including Stillwater's Karsten Creek Golf Club.

He supported collegiate golf and made it a high priority within the company. As a result, virtually every major golf company has a presence in college golf today.

Karsten Solheim's belief in and support of Oklahoma State University's golf program has been a major reason for the team's success. His memory will always be a cherished part of the history of Karsten Creek and OSU golf.

2006-07 Season Outlook

Head coach Kurt Budke enters the second year of his rebuilding project with a revamped roster that includes 10 newcomers and a renewed sense of optimism.

With an emphasis placed on athleticism during recruiting, the Cowgirl coaching staff landed a stellar recruiting class that bolstered the squad's depth across the board as well.

While the ultimate result will be measured in wins and losses, the early returns are favorable as the Cowgirls' incoming crop of players was ranked as the 27th-best in the nation according to the All-Star Girls Report. OSU will use a blend of junior college and prep standouts as well as a pair of transfers that sat out last season.

The quartet of junior college players were all ranked among the top 35 prospects overall and the top 10 at their respective positions, while the prep standouts have all competed at a championship-caliber level as well.

A core group of returning players will be looked upon to provide valuable experience in the early going. Five members of the roster have all endured the rigors of major college basketball and can ease the transition of the incoming group to the Division I level.

Senior center Christian Hood etched her name into the Cowgirl record book last season, blocking 38 shots to break the school's all-time mark that had stood since 1988. The Hutchinson, Kan. native enters her fourth season with 124 career rejections and will be counted on to provide a presence in the middle.

Destanie Sykes also begins her senior season with plenty of game experience under her belt. The Duncanville, Texas native has played in a team-high 83 games and her 64 career starts are also tops on the squad.

Rounding out the trio of returning seniors for the Cowgirls is guard Brisa Silva. A native of Sinaloa, Mexico, Silva is capable of stretching the floor with her long-range prowess. After transferring last year from Central Arizona College, she led the squad with 49 3-point baskets, the fourth-best single-season total in school history.

Sophomore Shaunte' Smith showed flashes last year of becoming one of the conference's prominent offensive threats. The Oklahoma City native finished her rookie campaign as the squad's second-leading scorer at 10.8 points per game and turned in a team-best five double-doubles.

Taylor Hardeman also begins her second year with the squad after logging significant minutes last season. The sophomore from Norman, Okla. made 12 starts and proved capable of providing offensive punch as well, tying the school's single-game mark with six 3-pointers against Iowa State.

The 2006-07 season will also bring about the highly anticipated debuts of a pair of transfers that sat out last season in accordance with NCAA transfer guidelines.

Senior Rashidat Sadiq and sophomore Natasha Doh should figure heavily into the game plan after having a year under their belts to get acclimated to Budke's system.

Two year's ago, Sadiq competed in 26 games for the University of Connecticut following a stellar two-year stopover at Central Arizona College. The Lagos, Nigeria native finished her junior college career as the school's all-time leading scorer and earned All-America honors each year. In addition to gaining NCAA Tournament experience while competing for the Huskies, Sadiq also competed as a member of the Nigerian Olympic Team in 2004.

Doh began her career at NAIA powerhouse Oklahoma City, leading the Stars to the national title game two years ago as a true freshman and earning conference freshman of the year honors. The Oklahoma City native will help shore up the guard slot for the Cowgirls and could prove to be an offensive asset after averaging 14.7 points per game as a freshman.

In addition to Sadiq and Silva, OSU will add two more Central Arizona College products with Maria Cordero and Danielle Green joining the mix this season.

The duo knew nothing but winning during their first two collegiate seasons, leading CAC to a combined record of 69-2 and a national championship in 2005. A 6-3 center, Cordero earned will help solidify the post position for the squad, while Green will provide a lock-down defender on the perimeter for the Cowgirls.

Forward Dominque Chism joins the squad after competing for the ultra-successful program at Trinity Valley (Texas) Community College, Budke's former coaching post. The 6-1 forward was rated as the second-best player at her position in the junior college ranks and will figure immediately into OSU's frontline attack.

Rita Kollo arrived in Stillwater after rewriting the record books at Colby (Kan.) Community College. The junior forward has compiled an impressive resumé that includes six school records at Colby and a wealth of experience gained by competing for the Hungarian U20 national squad this past summer.

A trio of prep standouts will look to make their mark in the backcourt as Ally Clardy, Christina Fox and Andrea Riley will all vie for time at the guard slot. Clardy was a four-year letterwinner at Argyle (Texas) High, while Fox has already competed at the international level for her native Australia during her young career.

A product of Lincoln (Texas) High School, Riley could be counted on to handle the point guard duties early and often for the Cowgirls.

A favorable schedule awaits Budke's crew in the early going as they will play their first six games at home and will not venture outside the state of Oklahoma until their ninth game.

All told, nine of the squad's 13 non-conference games will be contested at home, giving the squad a chance to gain valuable experience as it gears up to navigate the 16-game Big 12 Conference slate.

The squad's lone true road game will be a Dec. 9 tilt at Arkansas State, while a possible meeting with Hawaii in the Hawaii Invitational could come to fruition as well.

A 16-game conference schedule awaits the Cowgirls with the start of the new year as the Cowgirls will open on the road with a Jan. 6 date with Texas Tech in Lubbock and begin to make a run at garnering their first postseason bid since 2001.

COWBOYS

Oklahoma State enters 2007 coming off its best season in five years, and the Cowboys will be among the favorites in the Big 12 Conference while also looking to make noise on a national scale.

The Cowboys return six position players who started at least 28 games last season, including the reigning conference player of the year, and have added several talented newcomers, which could give fourth-year head coach Frank Anderson his best offensive lineup since arriving in Stillwater.

Anderson also has several key pitchers returning from a year ago, and the Cowboys added six freshman hurlers to the recruiting class, several of whom Anderson expects to be immediate contributors in the rotation.

OSU appears among the nation's top 25 teams in numerous preseason polls, and the Cowboys are hopeful to earn even more respect throughout the season.

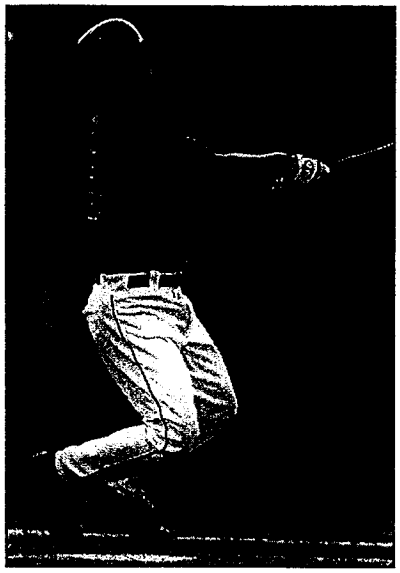
"We've got a chance to be a very good ballclub and build on the success we were able to have last season," Anderson said. "Offensively, we've got a strong group of guys who have proven they can get it done. Pitching-wise, we've got a lot of talent. Some of the older guys will have to help carry us while those young guys mature and get adjusted to this level.

"I really like our ballclub, and we have a chance to be a team that can get it done offensively, defensively and on the mound."

Catcher

The Cowboys will be trying to replace two-year starter Matt Clarkson, who was an All-Fayetteville Regional pick and who Anderson called one of the keys to last year's success.

Trying to fill that void is senior catcher Ryan Flavell, an outstanding defensive catcher with a very strong arm who is hoping for the same kind of improved offense that Clarkson had a year ago. Flavell played in 15 games in 2006.



Senior Tyler Mach

Several others will challenge for playing time behind the dish, including redshirt freshman Ryan Pittman and freshman Eric Walker.

First Base

First base will be manned by sophomore Rebel Ridling, who started 28 games a year ago as a sophomore.

Despite missing 22 games with a broken wrist, Ridling hit .324 with two homers and 21 RBIs in 2006 and also tied for second on the club with 13 doubles.

Second Base

A year after playing third base for the Cowboys, senior Tyler Mach has moved to the right side of the infield and will try his hand at second.

Mach made just 13 errors at the hot corner last season but is switching positions to make way for transfer Matt Mangini.

Mach's resume is impressive as he earned Big 12 Conference Co-Player of the Year honors in 2006 after hitting .364 with 16 homers and 66 RBIs. He hit safely in 51 of the 60 games he played in and had hitting streaks of 17 and 16 games along the way. Mach was named an All-American by several publications and was a semifinalist for the Brooks Wallace Award.

Kendall Horner appeared in 15 games for the Cowboys as a redshirt freshman and hit .286. A talented switch hitter, Horner will battle for playing time in the middle infield.

Shortstop

Sophomore Jordy Mercer burst onto the scene in his rookie campaign, proving to be a slick fielder and solid hitter. He hit .270 with six homers and 24 RBIs and emerged as the Cowboys' closer. He earned first-team All-Big 12 Conference honors, as well as Freshman All-America status.

Also in the mix in the middle infield is freshman Kevin David.

Third Base

The Cowboys added one of the top third baseman in college baseball when Matt Mangini transferred from North Carolina State in the offseason.

Mangini, who will be a junior this season, hit .343 with seven homers a year ago with the Wolfpack and led the club in RBIs with 60. He then went on to star in the Cape Cod League over the summer, where he captured the league batting title with a .310 average.

Redshirt freshman Matt Lopez could also see some action at the hot corner.

Left Field

Senior Ty Wright returns as the starter in left field, where he led all Cowboy outfielders in assists a year ago with nine. Wright, a four-year starter for the Cowboys, also hit .316, ranked third on the club with 47 RBIs and was an All-Fayetteville Regional selection.

Sophomore Donnie Webb is a switch hitter who redshirted last season. As a freshman at Northeastern State, Webb hit .338 with six homers and 33 RBIs and was named the Lone Star Conference Freshman of the Year.

Center Field

Keanon Simon and Corey Brown both roamed center field for the Cowboys last season, but the nod will likely go to Simon in 2006. A senior, Simon is coming off a career year in which he was a second-team All-Big 12 pick after hitting .336 with six homers, 25 RBIs and 19 stolen bases.

Junior Steve Ptak is a strong defensive presence in center field and has experience, having played in 75 games over the last two seasons.

A pair of talented freshman could also challenge for time in center. Dusty Harvard was a draft choice of the San Francisco Giants in 2006, while Dylan Brown had a storied prep career in Tampa, Fla. before joining his older brother, Corey, in Stillwater.

Senior Keanon Simon

Right Field

Corey Brown is one of the top outfielders in the Big 12, and he returns for his junior season looking to continue the success that has made him a .353 hitter with 26 homers and 86 RBIs in his first two collegiate seasons.

Pitchers

OSU's pitching staff loses its top starter from a year ago (Brae Wright), but several key contributors return and a number of talented newcomers give Anderson hope that he can develop a strong group of hurlers.

Junior Matt Gardner was an honorable mention all-conference pick in his first season with the Cowboys as he went 7-3 with a 4.43 ERA. He tossed a pair of complete games in 10 starts and was 5-2 in seven starts in Big 12 play.

Oliver Odle enters his senior season coming off a 5-4 campaign in which he also had three saves. The righty compiled a 4.15 ERA in 20 appearances and tossed two complete games in 10 starts.

Jordy Mercer emerged as the Cowboys' closer in 2006 and racked up a team-high five saves and a 5-0 mark in 12 appearances.

Another freshman, Jeff Breedlove, led the Cowboys with 24 appearances in 2006. He finished with a 2-1 record and a 3.32 ERA and proved to be reliable in long or short relief.

Southpaw Josh Fritsche was 2-2 in 13 appearances, including five starts, in 2006 and recorded 26 strikeouts in 28.1 innings.

Joe Kent made just nine appearances as a freshman in 2006, but Anderson believes the left hander has matured into the type of pitcher who can help bolster the pitching staff.

The Cowboys have several talented freshmen arms in the mix, the most talented of which might be Andrew Oliver. A southpaw from Vermilion, Ohio, Oliver was a 17th-round draft pick of the Minnesota Twins after going 21-4 with three saves, a 0.96 ERA and 354 strikeouts in 196 innings as a prep.

A pair of freshmen southpaws from west Texas should also factor into the rotation. Tyler Lyons was a two-time district MVP in high school and was 21-4 with nine saves and 363 strikeouts over his final two prep seasons, while Thomas Keeling tossed 14 complete games and racked up over 200 strikeouts as a prep.

Aerik Taylor was 16-3 during his high school career, and the freshman impressed coaches in the fall.

Hard-throwing right hander Tyler Blandford was a draft pick of the Baltimore Orioles in 2006, while fellow freshman Matt Willis led Tulsa Union to a pair of state titles and was 25-9 with four saves during his high school career.

OSU also signed several talented junior college prospects, among them righthanders Martin Beno and Nick Buchta, who are expected to challenge for innings.

The Schedule

Oklahoma State's 2007 schedule is highlighted by 11 NCAA Tournament teams from a year ago.

The Cowboys play 30 home games at Allie P. Reynolds Stadium. They will play games against five conference champions and 27 games against teams that had 35 or more wins last season. Contests against NCAA tourney teams Ball State, Texas-Arlington, Pepperdine, Wichita State and Oral Roberts, highlight the non-conference portion of the schedule, while the Big 12 will once again be one of the top leagues in college baseball.

"It's a challenging schedule where we play some tough teams at home and on the road," Anderson said. "We're really going to be tested in the month of February with a bunch of road games, but that should help prepare us for conference play. Overall, it's a schedule that should help us out in the R.P.I."

OSU opens the season Feb. 2 with the first of three games against Hofstra in Stillwater. Following that series, the Cowboys won't return home until Feb. 27, with appearances at the UTPA Classic, the Florida Atlantic Tournament and a three-game series at Cal State-Northridge on the agenda.

In Big 12 Conference action, Anderson's club, which finished second in the regular-season standings a year ago with an 18-9 league mark, will play host to Baylor, Kansas State, Texas and Missouri. The Bears, Longhorns and Tigers were all NCAA Tournament teams a year ago.

The Cowboys open Big 12 play March 23 against defending Big 12 Tournament champion Kansas in Lawrence. OSU was 2-2 against coach Augie Ritch Price's Jayhawks in 2006.

Following the trip to Kansas, OSU hosts Baylor in its conference home opener on March 30.

Senior Ty Wright

Another highlight of the schedule is the annual Bedlam series against Oklahoma. Considered one of the top college baseball rivalries in the nation, the Cowboys and Sooners will open their series May 4 at Drillers Stadium in Tulsa. The series then shifts to Oklahoma City's SBC Bricktown Ballpark for the final two games.

The Big 12 Tournament, which OSU won in 2004, will be played in Oklahoma City on May 23-27, while the NCAA Tournament gets underway on June 1.

Nathan Zane Fleming

September 11, 1980

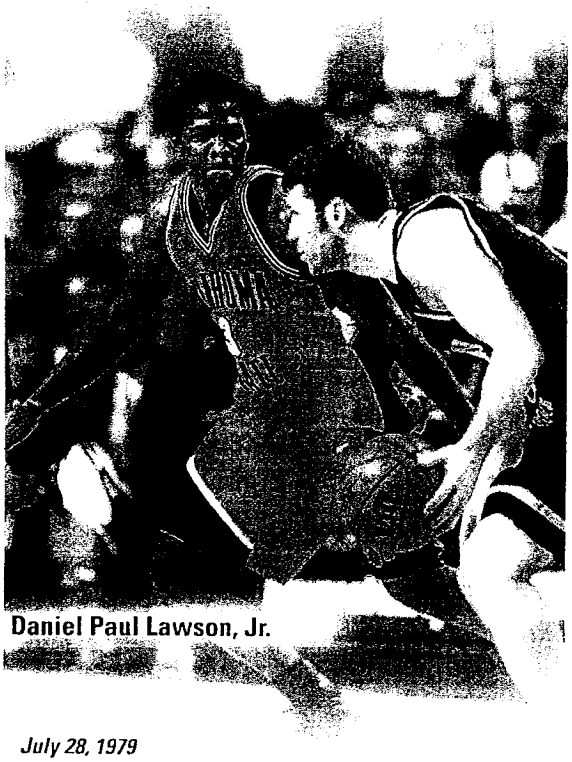
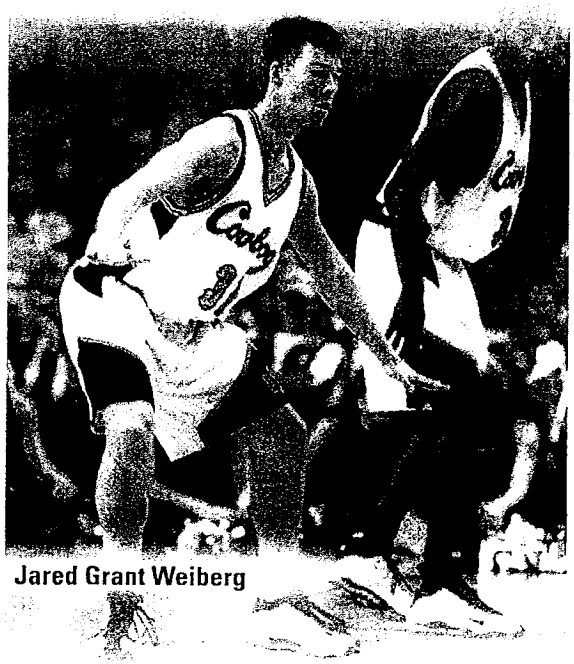
Nate was a walkon to the Cowboy program, but he was more than that. He was one of the hardest-working, most enthusiastic members of the squad. As a redshirt freshman, most of his playing time was at the end of the game. He was a fan favorite, as the student section would chant, "Nate ... Nate ... " in an apparent OSU win. He played in eight games this past year and scored three points. As a freshman at OSU, he received the Student Athlete Academic Award and was a three-time member of the Big 12 Commissioner's Honor Roll. Nate was first-team All-State in tennis, and honorable mention All-State in Basketball at Edmond North High School. He was also the class valedictorian and a National Honor Society member. Nate received the state's Jim Thorpe Award as a senior at Edmond North. He was a member of the President's Leadership Council at Oklahoma State, and was named to the first-team academic All-Big 12 team. Nate is the son of Ann and Zane Fleming, and has two sisters, Drue and Sarah. He was awarded a posthumous degree in business administration in May of 2001 from Oklahoma State University. Nate was 20 years old.



Daniel Paul Lawson, Jr.

July 28, 1979

Dan came to Oklahoma State from Detroit, Mich., via Mott Community College. He redshirted his first season at OSU, but played in all 17 games his junior season. Dan had come into his own defensively, as he was typically one of the first guards off the bench. Dan made all of the players on the team better with his never-ending drive and dedication to the game of basketball. He had 33 points, 15 rebounds and nine assists in 2000-01. A second-team NJCAA Division II All-American, Dan earned Michigan community college Player of the Year honors. He attended MacKenzie High School in Detroit, and lettered three years in both basketball and cross country. The son of Daniel and Phyllis Lawson, he has two brothers, Eric and Austin, and two sisters, Karen and Shynika. He was awarded a bachelor of science degree in sociology posthumously in May of 2001. Dan was 21 years old.



Jared Grant Weiberg

March 9, 1978

Jared was a student assistant with the men's basketball team. He joined the program as a player after transferring from Northern Oklahoma College in 1999, and decided to work on the administrative side of the game. Jared was one of the most enthusiastic, energetic and hard-working individuals to ever come into contact with Cowboy basketball. He graduated from Tonkawa High School in 1997. He is the son of Mick and Vina Weiberg, and has two brothers, Chad and Brett. His father is the head basketball coach at NOC, while his brother, Brett, is an assistant coach there. Chad works in the Alumni Association office at OSU. Jared's uncle, Kevin Weiberg, is the Commissioner of the Big 12 Conference. Jared was a senior and was student-teaching at Stillwater High School during the 2001 spring semester. He was awarded a posthumous degree in secondary education in May of 2001. Jared was 22 years old.

OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY

CAMPUS OF CHAMPIONS

The banners fly from the rafters. The trophy cases are bulging and the building is booming.

SEAN SUTTON | Head Basketball Coach

Welcome to Oklahoma State Athletics. It is a place where Olympic gold medalists and NCAA champions pass each other in the halls. It is the home of perhaps the best basketball facility in the country and the future home of one of the nation's top football complexes.

It is the home of the Heisman Trophy, the NCAA baseball player of the century, and several of the greatest wrestlers in history. It is the home of one of college basketball's first great big men, not to mention the home of one of the founding fathers of the sport. Its golfers go on to become household names. And its biggest booster is already a household name.

It is the home of 48 national team championships – a total better than all but three schools in America.

This is Oklahoma State Athletics.

2006 NCAA Wrestling Champions | Two Individual Champions
OSU has accumulated 34 national titles in wrestling and the team's victory in 2006 marked the program's fourth consecutive win.

Jake Rosholt

Johnny Hendricks

OSU's athletic department has long been known as one of the most tradition-rich in the country – not just in one or two sports, but across the board. In fact, during the 2006-2007 academic year, Oklahoma State's athletic squads reached the top 10 in 10 different sports. And that total does not include an NCAA Tournament appearance by women's basketball or the Independence Bowl win by the football squad.

In the annual Director's Cup standings, which grades overall athletic performance by NCAA members, OSU has finished among the top 30 programs six times since the award's inception in 1994.

Individually, more than 140 OSU student-athletes have won national titles, including Cowboy wrestlers Johny Hendricks and Jake Rosholt, and men's golfer Jonathan Moore during the spring of 2006.

While competing in the Big Eight Conference, the Cowboys and Cowgirls won 135 team titles and crowned 500 individual conference champions.

Most recently, the wrestling team claimed OSU's 47th NCAA title in the spring of 2006, followed quickly by championship No. 48 when men's golf brought home it's 10th national championship just a couple of months later. For the grapplers, the title was their fourth in a row, and men's golf claimed the NCAA's top prize for the third time in 12 years.

The Cowboy wrestling team is among the most storied programs in all of college athletics. OSU's 34 team titles are the most collected by any school in one sport. The Cowboys have also produced 132 individual national champions, including the sport's first-ever four-time champion, Pat Smith.

Priding itself on producing talented running backs, greats such as Bob Fenimore, Ernest Anderson, Terry Miller, Thurman Thomas and 1988 Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders have roamed the offensive backfield at "Tailback U".

The Cowboy baseball program is one of the most successful in the country. OSU has made the trek to Omaha, Neb., for the College World Series 19 times, fourth most in NCAA history, and won the national title in 1959.

The program has also produced two of the game's best collegiate players, Pete Incaviglia and Robin Ventura. One of the game's most revered power hitters, Incaviglia rewrote the NCAA record books en route to being named the "Player of the Century" by Baseball America. After amassing a 58-game hitting streak, Ventura earned "Player of the Decade" honors and finished third in the player of the century voting.

Under former head softball coach Sandy Fischer, who produced the fourth-highest win total in Division I history, OSU made six appearances in the Women's College World Series.

Legendary basketball coach Henry Iba assembled one of the nation's first men's basketball powerhouses at OSU, then Oklahoma A&M, in the 1940s. His 1945 and 1946 teams were the first in NCAA history to win back-to-back national championships. They were led by Bob "Foothills" Kurland, who helped usher in the goaltending rule.

The Cowboys returned to the national scene under one of Mr. Iba's former pupils, Hall of Fame nominee Eddie Sutton, who led the Cowboys to the 1995 and 2004 Final Fours.

The Cowgirl basketball squad has had its share of postseason action as well.

OSU GOLF IN 2006 – NCAA CHAMPIONS
Jonathan Moore led the OSU team at the NCAA Championships as Medalist and was named a First-Team All-American and 2006 Phil Mickelson Award Winner.

The program has played in eight NCAA tournaments, including 2007, and made a Sweet 16 appearance in 1993.

One of golf's finest venues, Karsten Creek, serves as the backdrop for two of college golf's premier programs. Opened in 1994, the Tom Fazio layout was named Golf Digest's "Best New Public Course". In 1998, the course was one of only 10 in the nation to be awarded a five-star rating. The course served as the host site for the men's NCAA Championship in 2003.

The men's squad has qualified for the NCAA Championships in each of its 61 seasons, a feat unmatched by any other program in the country, while winning a stunning 50 conference championships. OSU has claimed 10 national titles, including eight by former head coach turned OSU athletic director Mike Holder.

The Cowgirl golfers have made 16 NCAA appearances and won 15 conference titles, not to mention the 2007 NCAA regional.

Since 1983, the cross country and track and field programs have had more than 50 All-Americans, four NCAA champions, one world-record holder and one Olympian emerge from the program.

The men's cross country team has also contributed to the legion of national titles with its victory at the 1954 national meet.

The women's program has produced numerous All-Americans and conference champions, led by 1988 Olympian Christine McMiken's nine conference championships and eight All-America honors.

Both the men and women's cross country teams finished in the top 10 in 2005.

The OSU tennis teams have consistently been front-runners in conference and national competition.

On the men's side, the Cowboys have 12 league titles and more than 120 individual conference champions to their credit. Included in that group is three-time national champion Pavel Kudrnac. The Cowboys hosted an NCAA regional in 2006 and 2007 and advanced to the Sweet 16 last spring.

Beginning with the 1980 season, the women's team put together an impressive string of 11 consecutive conference crowns and has finished among the top 10 nationally on a regular basis.

A pair of sports, women's soccer and equestrian, have been added in recent years to boost the number of varsity sports at Oklahoma State to 18, and both have attained success. Soccer has raised Big 12 championship banners and reached the top 10 in 2006, while equestrian ranks with America's best.

In 2001, the most unique athletic complex in the country was unveiled. The Athletic Center, which houses the renovated Gallagher-Iba Arena, is a state-of-the-art facility. Capacity was more than doubled, rising from 6,381 to 13,611, and included skyboxes that can be utilized for both football and basketball. Gallagher-Iba Arena is recognized by many as America's best college basketball facility.

Boone Pickens Stadium changes almost hourly as the home of the Cowboys continues to evolve into one of America's top facilities.

And across the street from the stadium, work is underway on the Athletic Village and indoor practice facility.

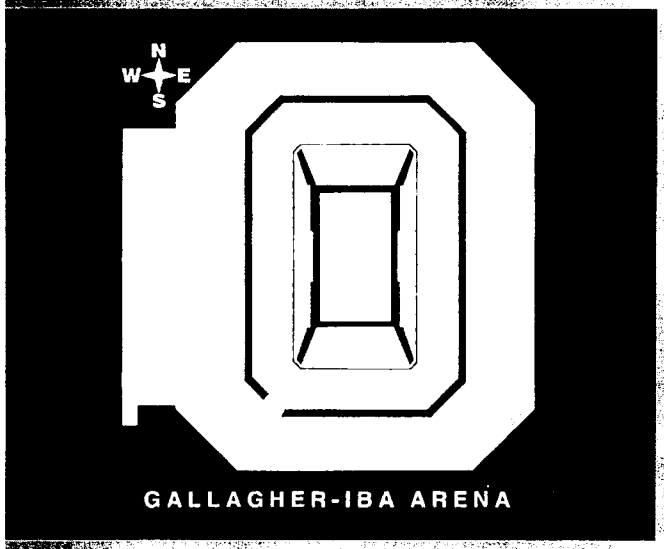
GALLAGHER-IBA ARENA



In 2007-08, for the 70th season, the home of Oklahoma State University will be storied Gallagher-Iba Arena, but the venerable fieldhouse has a vastly new look. The arena still provides an up-close view from any seat in the house, helping to give the Cowboys a tremendous home-court advantage — but it has been doubled in size and modernized in appearance.

The historic building underwent a massive $55 million construction project and is part of the OSU Athletics Center. Its 13,611-seat capacity allows more O-State fans to enjoy OSU athletics events, and the auxiliary facilities are second to none in the region.

Originally named Gallagher Hall after OSU's fabled wrestling coach Ed Gallagher, the Board of Regents honored legendary Cowboy basketball coach Henry Iba when the arena was remodeled in 1987, and his name was added to the arena's title.

Gallagher-Iba ca. 1938

HOME OF THE COWBOYS

Gallagher served as OSU's wrestling coach from 1916-40. In his 23 years, OSU won 11 national team titles and compiled a 138-5-1 dual record. Gallagher was also an outstanding athlete while attending Oklahoma State. He was captain of the track team for three years, and his 99-yard run against Kansas State in 1908 will always stand as the longest football run in school history.

Iba, who passed away in January of 1993, was a coaching giant in the sport of basketball. He coached in 1,105 collegiate games, and his 767 career wins are fourth only to Dean Smith, Adolph Rupp and Jim Phelan. Iba served as coach and athletic director at OSU from 1935 to '70, and in those 36 seasons, posted a 655-316 record while guiding the Cowboys to 13 league championships, eight NCAA appearances and the 1945 and 1946 NCAA Championships.

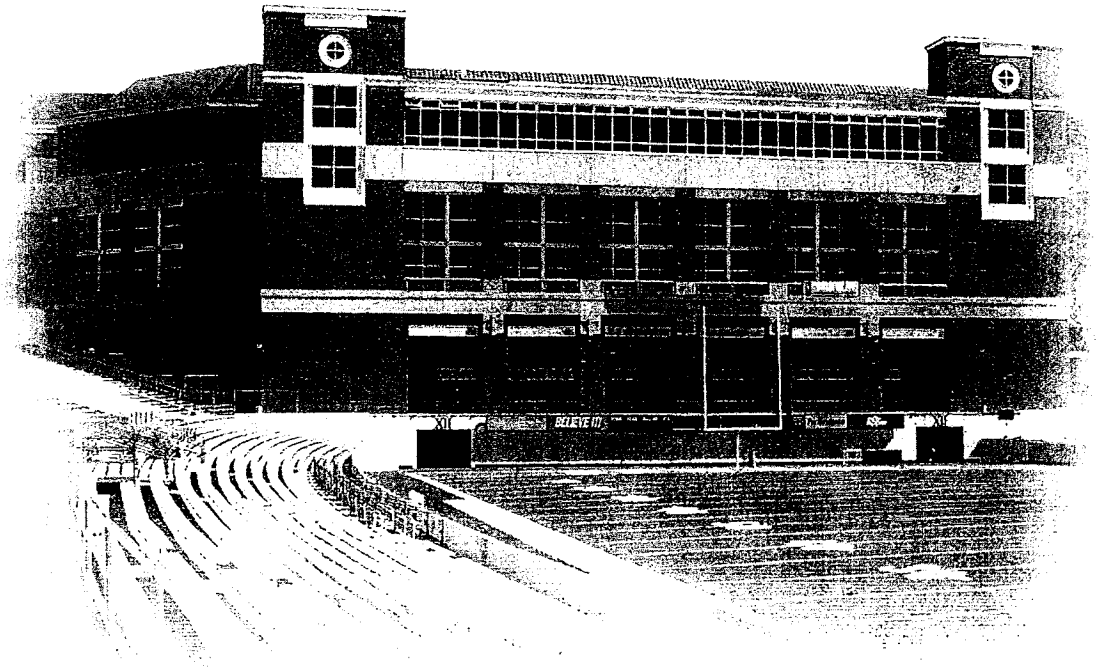
Along with the expansion of the historic arena, the Athletics Center has many features. A total of 14 luxury suites stretch across the west side of the facility, overlooking both the basketball court and Boone Pickens Stadium. Banners signifying the success of Oklahoma State Athletics are hung from the rafters. The pride of OSU athletic triumphs are also illustrated in photographic and trophy displays in the new Heritage Hall, a museum dedicated to athletic excellence at OSU.

Even after two major construction projects, today's players still compete on the gym's original white maple floor, which was the country's most expensive when it was installed in 1938. The arena was built in 1938 at a cost of $1.5 million. National powers Oklahoma State and Kansas opened the facility on Dec. 9 in a game that matched coaching legends Henry Iba and Phog Allen. OSU won that game, 21-15.

As OSU enters the 2007-08 season, its home record has been impressive. Through the first 69 years in the building, the Cowboys have posted a 660-188 record at home with nine undefeated seasons. Over the last 19 years, OSU has recorded a 248-33 record at home. In addition, the Cowboys' 80-game homecourt nonconference winning streak, which ran from 1986 to '98, ranks fifth in NCAA Division I history.

THE ATHLETICS CENTER – FROM PLANS TO REALITY

ATHLETICS FACILITIES



While construction continues on the west end zone project, the Athletics Center, located in the east end zone, is the home of Cowboy and Cowgirl Athletics, including the OSU basketball program.

The unique facility, still in its first decade of service, features modern amenities and yet remains very much an homage to one of college athletics' most historic venues.

- Built at a cost of approximately $56 million, the Athletics Center was a landmark project for Oklahoma State University, as well as the state of Oklahoma.
- Funding of the project was a total team effort, supported by OSU students through a self-imposed activity fee, private donations, loyal season-ticket holders and a use-tax voted on by the citizens of Stillwater.
- The Athletics Center features an academic counseling center, training facilities for all sports, a new strength and conditioning center, expanded offices, a recruiting lounge, an auxiliary gym, new wrestling facilities and the Heritage Hall museum.
- Heritage Hall features more than 5,000 square feet of displays highlighting OSU's many athletic and scholastic achievements.
- Historic Gallagher-Iba Arena was not demolished — it was encapsulated by a new roof structure and concourse. Once the historic building was enclosed by the new structure, demolition began on the existing roof structure and upper wall. Actually, three buildings — Gallagher-Iba Arena, the football coaches' building and the strength, training and locker-room center — became one.
- The original structure, called the 4-H Club and Student Activity Building when it was built in 1938, was dubbed the "Madison Square Garden of the Plains."
- Construction more than doubled the height of Gallagher-Iba Arena from 60 feet to more than 120 feet.
- Seating in Gallagher-Iba Arena was expanded from 6,381 to 13,611, making it the largest on-campus sports arena in the state of Oklahoma.

- The arena's original white maple wood court remains intact. Installed in 1938, it is undoubtedly the oldest and most heralded court still being used by a major-college team today.
- This grand facility, now bigger and better than ever, remains home to more national championships than any other facility in America.
- Supporting the entire roof structure are two massive box trusses, nearly a football-field long, 40 feet tall and weighing 1 million pounds each.
- One of the nation's largest collegiate strength and conditioning facilities (30,000 square feet of space including the weight room and oval running track) is housed in the basement level of the Athletics Center.
- Five laps around the concourse equals a mile.

- The Athletics Center's sports medicine facility boasts a cutting edge Hydroworks Therapy Pool with a variable-speed treadmill for student-athletes to rehabilitate injuries safely and effectively by running in water.
- The Athletics Center features the nation's only skybox suites that allow fans to view basketball or wrestling in the arena from the east side and football games from the west side.

HERITAGE HALL

Heritage Hall showcases more than a century of excellence in athletics at Oklahoma State University.

Located within the Athletic Center, the Hall honors the countless men and women who have left their mark on the OSU campus, as well as in our hearts and minds.

Four main eras in OSU history are displayed chronologically from north to south, each filled with success stories and memorable moments. Browsing through the exhibits, visitors find national champions, Olympians, academic accolades, mascots, military heroes, campus life and much more.

Heritage Hall provides a glimpse into OSU's proud past as it looks forward to an ever-brighter future.

Leave A Legacy

The future of Oklahoma State University athletics has never been brighter! Within seven years, world-class facilities will be the norm for every sport. These facilities will provide each team an opportunity to compete for championships, but this is only part of the winning equation. Just as important is the annual budget given to each sport, which provides scholarships, travel, academic support, strength & conditioning, housing, food, etc. In an effort to ensure that all of our sports are competitive, the OSU Athletic Department is initiating a fundraising campaign to fully endow all scholarships.

- Click Here For More Information On The Leave A Legacy program.

Endowed Athletic Scholarships

Assisting OSU Athletics through funding scholarship helps our student-athletes with financial aid in their respective studies, takes pressure off the annual operating budget and leaves a life-long legacy honoring the donor's family. Our goal is to endow all 229 athletic scholarship positions to ensure that every OSU athlete has the chance to achieve a first-class education at a winning

Three Cowboy Callers raise more than $120,000 for Oklahoma State University

Friday, 08 June 2007

STILLWATER, OKLA., June 8, 2007 -- The Oklahoma State University Foundation (OSUF) recognized Chelsey Hazelton, Candace McCreary and Sydney Garner as the top three Cowboy Callers for the 2006-07 school year after their combined efforts resulted in raising $120,896 to benefit university programs and students. Combined efforts of Cowboy Callers raised nearly $300,000 for the year.

"These three young women have made an impact on OSU and on future students they will never know," said Debbie Rence, assistant director of annual giving programs. "Each one of them loves OSU and is very proud of the work they do as student Cowboy Callers. They are positive role models for our students, displaying a healthy work ethic and understanding the importance of giving back to OSU."

Hazelton, an El Reno, Okla., native, began working as a Cowboy Caller in the OSU Foundation's telemarketing department in the spring of 2005 and was responsible for raising $41,936 of the total.

"We are doing much more than fundraising for the colleges on campus," Hazelton said. "We raise money to help others reach their goals. I, myself, have been lucky enough to be a scholarship recipient that was made possible by an alumnus giving back to OSU."

Hazelton graduated in May from OSU with a degree in communication sciences and disorders and is continuing her education at the University of Tulsa where she will earn a master's degree in speech pathology.

Chelsey Hazelton

The second highest grossing caller, McCreary, is a native of Idabel, Okla., and began working as a Cowboy Caller in the fall of 2006. The junior international business major secured $40,015 in donations for the fiscal year.

Garner, a native of Durant, Okla., also joined the Cowboy Callers in the fall of 2006 as a freshman at OSU majoring in hotel and restaurant management. Her efforts resulted in $30,345 benefiting OSU students and programs.

Candace McCreary

Sydney Garner

Overall, $620,963 was raised in fiscal year 2006 by nearly 50 student callers who contacted more than 26,000 alumni and friends who played a significant role in OSU's annual giving efforts. Ten months a year, five days a week OSU students work to raise funds for the university through academic and financial student support. Future OSU students will see the results of these collective efforts for many years to come.

"Every OSU student could benefit from working at least one semester as a Cowboy Caller," Rence said. "The exposure the students receive to other academic colleges and faculty is priceless as is the interaction with OSU alumni."

The Oklahoma State University Foundation serves as the private fundraising organization for OSU, as designated by the OSU Regents. Its mission is to unite donor and university passions and priorities to achieve excellence.

Top Cowboy Callers raise more than $95,000 for Oklahoma State University

Wednesday, 23 April 2008

Student telemarketing group raises more than half a million dollars for OSU

(April 23, 2008 STILLWATER, OKLA.) -- The Oklahoma State University Foundation (OSUF) recognized Audra Stubbs, Christiane Rudd and Jenna Brown as the top three Cowboy Callers of the 2007–2008 school year. With their combined efforts they raised $96,209 of the total $525,000 raised through the 29-member student telemarketing group.

"These women have made a tremendous impact on their university and fellow students," said Debbie Nance, director of annual giving programs. "Their love for OSU is evident in every call and I believe this, along with their positive attitudes, has helped them be so successful."

Stubbs, a native of Muskogee, Okla., led the group raising $44,250. The junior dietetics major has been a Cowboy Caller for two semesters.

"I joined this program because I loved the idea of talking to alumni and helping them stay involved in current students' lives," Stubbs said. "It's enjoyable hearing [them] reminisce about their times at OSU, their stories are always so entertaining!"

Raising $28,508, Rudd grossed the second highest amount of all Cowboy Callers. The Tulsa native is a junior elementary education major and has been a Cowboy Caller since 2007.

Durant native, Brown, has served as a Cowboy Caller since January 2007. The sophomore hotel and restaurant administration major raised $23,451.

"Our calling program continues to gain in its competitiveness, and we will be adding additional positions in the future," said Heather Briggs, annual giving coordinator. "We want to be OSU students' preferred place to work."

The Oklahoma State University Foundation serves as the private fundraising organization for OSU, as designated by the OSU Regents. Its mission is to unite donor and university passions and priorities to achieve excellence.

900 OSU donors "Cowboy Up" to provide $66.8 million in private funding for endowed faculty positions

Wednesday, 02 July 2008

40-day fundraising blitz following T. Boone Pickens' historic $100 million gift garners significant academic support prior to changes in state's matching program

View Full List of Endowed Faculty Chair Announcements

(STILLWATER, Okla. July 2, 2008) – In an incredible demonstration of loyalty and support, Oklahoma State University announced today approximately 900 individuals, companies and foundations donated $66.8 million the last six weeks to create a multitude of endowed faculty positions that will touch nearly every college and campus across the OSU System.

Once fully matched dollar-for-dollar by T. Boone Pickens' $100 million chair match commitment, as well as the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education, the total impact of the historic initiative will be $333.6 million for endowed chairs and professorships at OSU. All the gifts were made prior to the July 1 change in the state's endowed chair matching program.

The unprecedented number of gifts could increase OSU's current number of professorships and faculty chairs of 101 by more than 175 positions. With the new donations and matches, the OSU endowed chair program will have three and-a-half times the amount that was available for endowed chairs prior to the Pickens gift on May 21.

"The response from our alumni and friends exceeded our wildest expectations," said OSU President Burns Hargis. "Inspired by Boone Pickens' astounding generosity, donors answered the call to make a lasting difference and open a new and exciting chapter at Oklahoma State University. We can't thank them enough."

Hargis said, "These gifts will allow us to attract and retain the best and brightest faculty as we pursue a bold vision of creating a modern land-grant university that cuts across disciplines to better prepare students for a new world and expands outreach across our state and around the globe.

"To raise the money we did in 40 days is a testimony to the passion people have for OSU and higher education, as well as the tireless hours and work of the OSU Foundation and academic leaders from across the campus," Hargis said.

"There is great enthusiasm building at OSU, in academics and athletics," said Pickens. "Burns has done a phenomenal job leveraging my $100 million gift. Give Burns an axe and he'll do some chopping, and he really whacked away on the opportunity to improve our endowed chair program."

"We are absolutely overwhelmed by the outpouring of support we have received in recent weeks," said Kirk A. Jewell, OSU Foundation President and CEO. "Boone provided a tremendous incentive for donors to play a critical role in our future. It is clear that these individuals, businesses and foundations believe in President Hargis' leadership and the essential part our faculty must play to transform OSU while we prepare our students to thrive in today's dynamic and competitive world."

Jean Van Delinder, chair of the OSU faculty council, said, "Like everyone else, OSU faculty members have been amazed and delighted at the generous response of OSU supporters. I commend Boone Pickens and President Hargis for their leadership on this initiative. Endowed positions allow OSU to attract and retain the best faculty and we look forward to the tremendous impact this will have on academics at OSU."

Some of the professorship and chair gifts involved pooling of donations from individuals or organizations, while many were single gifts from individuals, couples, corporations and foundations. OSU has announced many of the gifts and will be making additional announcements in the coming weeks to recognize these supporters who quickly and generously responded to Pickens' May 21 gift.

The $66.8 million in new endowed faculty funds includes $22 million of the recent gift of $57.2 million by Amy and Melone Mitchell 3rd, which also included $28.6 million for athletics and $6.8 million for the new OSU entrepreneurship program.

On May 21, OSU alumnus Pickens made the largest single academic donation in Oklahoma history, a $100 million donation to dramatically transform OSU academic advancements by endowing major faculty chairs. Once combined with the state's match, Pickens' gift value doubled to $200 million.

Pickens' gift also served as a matching gift incentive for other OSU donors. He agreed that if other donors funded a chair or professorship, they could name the chair and determine the academic program to be supported.

With $66.8 million already secured and matched against Pickens' challenge, more than $33 million remains eligible for OSU donors to utilize for future chair and professorship gifts. Even with the changes to the state's matching chair program, OSU donors may still triple a gift to the endowed program by taking advantage of Pickens' match plus the state's match on Pickens' gift.

Endowed professorships and chairs are academic designations which provide support for faculty salary, graduate assistantships, equipment and research needs, as well as other support. These endowed faculty positions allow a university to attract and retain the best and the brightest academic minds in the world.

Oklahoma State Universityâ€™s Cowboy Covenant provides additional financial aid to OHLAP students

Tuesday, 19 December 2005

STILLWATER, OKLA. -- Oklahoma State University is strengthening its commitment to providing affordable college education for students across the state through Cowboy Covenant, a valuable enhancement to the state's Oklahoma Higher Learning Access Program, or OHLAP.

In addition to the cost of tuition covered by OHLAP, Cowboy Covenant will provide for mandatory fees and books for OHLAP students. Based on 30 credit hours, Cowboy Covenant will offer up to $2,600 in additional financial aid each year for those who demonstrate eligibility.

"A pillar of OSU's strategic plan is to create access and affordability for students who want to attend an institution of higher learning," said David Schmidly, OSU System CEO and President.

"Thanks to Oklahoma's forward-thinking OHLAP program, the state has made a commitment to provide tuition assistance to qualifying students. Now OSU is making a commitment with Cowboy Covenant, which will make obtaining a degree at OSU even more affordable," Schmidly said.

The tuition assistance provided by OHLAP and the support from Cowboy Covenant is worth nearly $24,000 over four years for an OHLAP scholar attending Oklahoma State University.

Currently there are 2,054 students enrolled at OSU, including 540 freshmen, who receive OHLAP assistance. Based on current status, Cowboy Covenant will be available to existing OHLAP students, as well as incoming freshmen beginning in fall 2007.

For more information for current and prospective OHLAP students contact (405) 744-6604 or finaid@okstate.edu

Story Photo

The Oklahoma State Cross Country Course is the home of the oldest cross country race in the country, the Cowboy Jamboree, which dates back to 1937. 2006 marked the Jamboree's 69th year, and the course offered the over 6,000 runners the chance to run on one of the oldest cross country courses in the country. Every year an outstanding field competes in the Jamboree, with teams traveling from around the country to test their skills on this historic course.

In the beginning, the course was only two miles in length but has now grown into an 8k trek. The course is a 5k loop that is run twice for major championship races. One of these is the Midwest Regional Championship, which was held on the Jamboree course in 1996 and again in 2003. The Regional Championships will be returning to the OSU Cross Country Course in 2008, and the course will hold the Big 12 Championships in 2003.

The course itself is grass, with wood chips making for a soft surface for the OSU harriers to train on year round. The rolling hills give it an added element that makes the course perfect for training in many different scenarios. The course also has something that many cross country courses do not have in this day and age 8— steps located in three positions on the course. Each set is three steps, which gives the course the feeling of a typical European cross country course. The many features of the OSU Cross Country Course help runners experience a course that is challenging and unique at the same time. The location is one of the best possible as it is only a half mile from the track and cross country locker rooms, which allows easy access to a great running experience and also external conditions for workouts.

Another characteristic which sets the OSU course apart from any other in the country is the fact that it is one of the few courses actually located on a college campus. This provides a great opportunity for not only the team members to utilize the course, but also for the other students and faculty of the great university to have easy access.

The Cowboy Jamboree has grown to the point where it is now one of the largest non-championship races held in the country. In 2006, there were 666 teams, over 6,000 runners and roughly 15,000 people who attended, and with the traditions that have been passed down over the years the Cowboy Jamboree will continue to be one of the best and longest running cross country meets in the country. One of the main goals of Oklahoma State University and the cross country coaching staff is to continue the experience that so many runners, coaches and spectators have experienced for the last 10 years and to continue these traditions for many more years to come.

Real Cowboys recycle

Thursday, 30 October 2008

By Katie Butler

(October 30, 2008 Stillwater, OK) -The Student Government Association Sustainability committee is helping educate and encourage tailgaters to recycle cans through the Real Cowboys Recycle Tailgate program.

The program was created in 2007 by Cortney Timmons and is in its second year, but this is the first year that SGA has teamed up with Habitat for Humanity and will be donating all of the cans collected to Habitat's CANS program. The group has already collected almost 300 30-gallon bags of aluminum cans in their recycling efforts.

"We go from tailgate to tailgate not only to collect cans but also as an environmental education outreach," said Savannah Smith, chair of the sustainability committee this year. "Most people really want to help but there are still some tailgaters that don't pay attention or aren't aware of our program."

The Real Cowboys Recycle program will be adding extra volunteers at tomorrow's game with Iowa State in an attempt to make all tailgaters aware of the program. The President's Leadership Council will be joining efforts with the Sustainability Committee adding almost 70 extra volunteers.

"We really just want more people to be aware that we are not only trying to help the environment, but we are also donating to a great cause," Smith said.

So far this season, the committee has collected 52 bags at the Houston game, 11 bags at the Missouri State game, 58 bags at Troy game, 61 bags at the Texas A&M game and a record 83 bags during the Homecoming game against Baylor.

The goal is to fill up the can cage at the Stillwater Habitat for Humanity Restore by the end of the football season, which will mean Habitat will receive about $2,400.

"We are going to have to work really hard, but we have involved many more tailgaters this season and improvement is all we can ask for," said Smith.

Volunteers who want to participate in the recycling project meet around 10 a.m. on the west side of Boone Pickens Stadium in the Posse parking lot in front of the Big 12 flag poles.

The sustainability committee is also working on a paper recycling program using five "paper retriever" bins around campus to give students and faculty a place to recycle any kind of paper including magazines, newspapers or colored paper. The committee expects to generate money with the recycled paper program to fund more sustainability programs.

Newest cowboys are at OSU's Camp Cowboy

PDF PRINT

Thursday, 10 July 2008

(July 10, 2008 Stillwater, OK) - Oklahoma State University will celebrate the 10th anniversary of Camp Cowboy by hosting past directors of the camp from throughout the country.

In fact, more than two dozen of the 42 past directors have already sent in their reservations to attend the event on July 26, according to Tony Borell, 2008 Camp Cowboy programming director.

Each year Camp Cowboy, held at Camp Redlands just west of Stillwater, offers first-year students a fun-filled freshman orientation experience that includes small group activities, a ropes course, campfire activities and much more.

The three-day weekend is designed to prepare students to experience the best of what OSU has to offer, including an opportunity to get to know other incoming freshmen, "experienced" OSU students, and faculty and staff, all of which will lead to an easier transition into college life.

One of the highlights of each weekend is the high energy spirit session with OSU coaches, athletes, pom pom squad members, cheerleaders and Pistol Pete, complete with music, video and an opportunity to learn the alma mater and various spirit songs.

Three camps already filled up, and only limited spaces are now available in the last two weekend camps this year, set for July 18-20 and July 25-27.

A limited number of fee waivers, provided by the Office of the President, are available for students who qualify for the remaining camps, according to Kent Sampson, OSU director of Campus Life.

For more information, please contact the Camp Cowboy office at (405) 744-0383, or go to the Web site http://campcowboy.okstate.edu .

Cowboys on the Move moves employees to reach exercise goals

Send | Print

Thursday, 30 April 2009

Cowboys on the Move reached 500,000 minutes on April 7, 2009, getting OSU halfway to the goal of one million minutes as a campus.

The program was launched on February 5, 2009 and now has a total of 879 participants. Participants use the program to track minutes of physical activity using the Cowboys on the Move Web site.

The site provides information on starting workout programs, staying motivated, nutrition and a Physical Activity Calendar with local training activities. Participants also receive weekly e-mail updates with different health tips.

Director of the Seretean Wellness Center, Robin Purdie, said the program is meant to encourage

"The goal is to give employees encouragement and added incentive to increase physical activity," Purdie said. "We know that Oklahomans need more exercise and this is a way to encourage them."

Cowboys on the Move also offers a free walking club. The group meets twice a week at Chi-O clock for a 30-minute walk around campus. Leaders for walks include Burns and Ann Hargis, Anna Maloy, Terry Baker, Pam Eilers, Pam Fry, Marlene Strethe, Laurie Bass, Lee Bird and other OSU administrators. The club meets Mondays at 12:05 and Wednesdays at 5:30.

The Seretean Wellness Center has additional services to help members with physical activity goals. The O-Zone Fitness Center includes weights, cardio machines and group exercise classes. Personal training is also available to help implement a personal workout program. Members can join for $21.75 a month.

Incentives are provided to members for various levels of physical activity. Rewards include a free moisture management shirt when an account is created, an OSU workout bag when members reach 900 minutes and a clear paperweight with the Cowboys on the Move logo when 1800 minutes is reached by a member.

Purdie said once the goal of one million minutes is reached, they will look at other initiatives to build on the concept.

"We may try some competitions with other universities," Purdie said.

For more information contact, Kendria Cost at (405)744-WELL or e-mail at kendria.cost@okstate.edu.

"Cowboys on the Move" reaches one million minute milestone

Thursday, 04 June 2009

A program to get more Oklahoma State University employees moving toward better health is already paying off with more than one million minutes of physical activity clocked as of June 1. The program, known as “Cowboys on the Move,” started in February with a Web site that provides practical information and a weekly e-mail to help participants stay motivated.

“Almost 1,000 individuals have been inspired to get up and get moving since we debuted ‘Cowboys on the Move,’ and that kind of increased daily activity improves the overall health of OSU employees and also helps maintain health care costs,” said Robin Purdie, director, OSU Seretean Wellness Center. “We encourage anyone who hasn’t joined us to sign up at our Web site.”

The program Web site—cowboysonthemove.okstate.edu—provides participants with ideas and solid information for various modes of physical activity. They can also receive a weekly e-mail with a different health tip each week. As an incentive, participants who are full time employees at OSU in Stillwater are given the opportunity to claim various giveaway items from T-shirts to personalized paperweights as they reach certain levels of minutes spent in physical activities, according to Purdie.

Plans are already in the works to enhance offerings on the Web site in September by including a personalized way to track workout activities, a nutritional component, a social networking option and an IPhone application.

But before all that, Purdie says the center is planning to mark the one million minutes of exercise at OSU with a celebration soon after the start of school in August.

“We’re thrilled to reach this milestone and happy to move OSU one step closer toward the goal of becoming ‘America’s healthiest campus.’”

The SWC has additional services to help with physical activity goals including the O-Zone Fitness Center. For just $21.75 per month, members can take advantage of weight training equipment, cardio machines, and all group exercise classes – including ZUMBA, Yoga, Aerobics, Step Aerobics, and Strength and Stretch. The monthly rate drops to just $14.95 if you join the O-Zone Fitness Center with a friend. Personal training is also available to help individuals implement a personal workout program or change an existing routine.

"Houston, the Space Cowboys are a go"

mail print

Thursday, 30 April 2009

By: Courtnie Simpson

(STILLWATER, OKLA., APRIL 28, 2009) – A group of talented aerospace engineering students at Oklahoma State University took a chance last fall and applied for NASA's Microgravity University program. Though their proposal was one of hundreds competing with universities across the country, they recently learned their team was one of 20 selected for this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Seniors Jeremy Hill, Abraham McClellan, Eric Johnson, Johnny Chandler, Alan Larson and Josh Hathaway.

The undergraduates, known as the "Space Cowboys," will be spending one week this summer at NASA in Houston where they will conduct their unique microgravity experiment under the same conditions as NASA's own scientists. The Space Cowboys include seniors Jeremy Hill, Midwest City; Abraham McClellan, Bethany; Eric Johnson, Caldwell, Idaho; Johnny Chandler, Chowchilla, Calif.; Alan Larson, Oklahoma City; and Josh Hathaway, Tulsa.

The Microgravity University program involves the testing of inflatable space habitats in a microgravity environment aboard NASA's "vomit comet." "Hopefully, the results of the experiment will provide valuable data for the students and the scientists at NASA on how large space habitats can be deployed under weightless conditions," said Dr. Jamey Jacob, associate professor of aerospace engineering.

All six students on the Space Cowboys team were personally asked by Jacob to be involved in the program. However, each student has different expectations for the trip.

"I hope to take data from this project and apply that information to future experiments so that we can keep this program going," said Hill, the team leader. He explains that the experiment is essentially testing whether or not people will be able to live in outer space.

Hathaway said he is looking forward to the weightlessness he will experience in high altitude test chambers. He chose OSU because of its outstanding engineering program, and is looking forward to "doing what the astronauts do." He hopes to eventually join NASA's team as an astronaut.

Flying in the "vomit comet," NASA's zero-gee aircraft and a major requirement for all astronauts, should be an unforgettable experience. The students will experience about 25 seconds of microgravity where they will essentially be weightless.

Pistol Pete:
The Past 50 Years

Edward Dobson • 1962 -1963, 1964 -1965

Favorite sports memory: I have so many great memories, but one would be when I led the football team on the field and jumped over the team benches every home game, and I managed to never screw it up.

Favorite non-sports memory: I would have to say it would be moving the Pete head in my VW bug with Pete's hat sticking up through the sun roof.

Phil Glasgow • 1965 -1966

Favorite sports memory: The week before the OU/OSU game, I was given the freedom of being on the field with the band at halftime. They said I could do whatever I wanted. As they played the War of 1812 Overture, I acted out being in battle and ended up dying as I crawled up the field. The crowd went wild so they asked me to do the same thing again in Norman the next week. I did and after the game I needed security to get me off the field as we won the game, and I was the most visible icon of their loss.

Favorite non-sports memory: I was playing with a busload of kids when I was hit from behind by a car of Tulsa students. I was knocked down and the head came off. Some of the kids looked like they were crying, so I jumped up, put the head back on, shot my guns and clicked my heels; bystanders started to clap and yell.

Richard Forshee • 1971 -1972

Favorite sports memory: My favorite memory is the way the fans, especially the children react to Pete.

Favorite non-sports memory: It is not my favorite memory, but it is one that my friends and I still talk about. It is when I took a fraternity brother to the old campus infirmary after having discharged Pete's pistol in the house and accidentally peppered him with hot gun powder. When the nurse asked what happened, he replied that he had been shot by Pistol Pete.

OSU 01254

Michael Entz • 1976 -1977

Favorite sports memory: It would have to be beating OU at Norman and watching grown people cry in the stadium. It was like their lives had just lost all meaning. I almost felt bad.

Favorite non-sports memory: In those days, Pistol Pete loaded his own blanks to shoot at games. Along the history of Pistol Petes it was discovered that if you mixed a fast burning powder with black powder, it would shoot out and the black powder would burn outside the barrel—making more smoke. So I always had primers and two big cans of gun powder sitting around my college room. Can you imagine that now?

T. Shane LaDuke • 1981 -1983

Favorite sports memory: OSU vs. KU basketball game; it was halftime and I was walking around mid-court and a KU male cheerleader tumbled into me, knocking me out for a second. Coach Hason and LeeRoy Combs were over me when I opened my eyes. I got up, put my Pistol Pete head on, and fired my gun at the cheerleader.

Favorite non-sports memory: My favorite non-sports memory would be attending a party at the Governor's Mansion. I got to hang out with Michael Martin Murphey, the country singer.

OSU 01255

Robert Reynolds • 1982 -1984

Favorite sports memory: Bowl games were a highlight. I still have my jersey from the Houston Bowl played on New Year's Eve. The front of the jersey says 83, the back says 84. We were all still in the stadium at midnight.

Favorite non-sports memory as Pete: I loved making friends with all of the other Pete's; there were three in my wedding.

Kent Walstad • 1989 -1990

Favorite sports memory: The wrestlers won the National Championship, and the baseball team was in the middle of their incredible run of Big Eight championship titles.

Favorite non-sports memory: I'll never forget the time the cheerleaders left me in Lawrence, Kan., after a Cowboy football victory. I had to hitchhike a ride to Stillwater with some fellow Cowboy fans.

Tyler Mullman • 2001 -2002

Favorite sports memory: Being 10 feet away from Rashuan Woods when he caught the winning touchdown in Norman to beat OU 16 -13.

Favorite non-sports memory: The numerous times that I knew I was making lifelong memories for a kid who adores Pete by showing up at their birthday, signing an autograph, giving them a bullet or a shotgun shell.

Due to Big 12 Conference television contracts, dates & times are subject to change.

It's not just a game anymore. It's an event.

Crisp fall afternoons. The smells of brats and burgers roasting on the tailgate grill. The sounds of friends and family talking, laughing and playing. Everyone's listening to the pre-game and checking their watches, waiting for kickoff.

Just as Boone Pickens Stadium has reached the next level, so has the OSU fan experience.

Tailgating is just the beginning of the fun. A carnival of activity waits for the whole family. There'll be an inflatable playground for the kids, cotton candy and even an old west shootout.

But don't wait too long to take your seats. There's more excitement to be had inside the stadium. One of the Big 12's most exciting football teams is ready to make a run at another bowl game, battling through the likes of Nebraska, Texas A&M, Baylor and Oklahoma.

25 Recruiting Goes Global 1957-1960

When Oklahoma State University met ancient foe Arkansas at Little Rock's Memorial Stadium in the fall of 1957, Coach Cliff Speegle's football players represented two important "firsts." They were the initial athletes to compete under the new school name and as the newest members of the Big Eight. Although OSU would be playing out prior commitments as an independent grid team for the next three seasons, by 1960 all seven conference schools would be on the Cowboys' schedule. Already there were predictions that the Big Eight would become the nation's strongest conference.[1]

Fans throughout the state were now able to listen to live or delayed Cowboy football and basketball action through a network of thirty-five radio stations. Football play-by-play was provided by Mack Creager from Tulsa for the Sports Broadcasting Company. Game color was added by Bill Platt, Ponca City.[2]

Speegle's third Orange and Black team gained more campus support throughout its 6-3-1 season than had been displayed since the bowl-going teams of 1944 and 1945. The week before the 1957 opener with Arkansas, everyone on campus sported a lapel sign urging "Flog the Hogs," but a sodden romp in the rain meant five lost fumbles and Jack Mitchell's Razorbacks did the flogging, 12-0. Sophomores Dick Soergel and Dave Cross took over much of the season's quarterbacking.[3] A 13-0 homecoming victory over Texas Tech, the first win over the pesky Texans since 1945, sent 25,000 fans celebrating all the way home.

Kansas still held the upper hand, as did Oklahoma with its new "running spread," which made the most of swift Sooner backs Clendon Thomas and Jakie Sandefer. Football wits called the Big Eight "Oklahoma and the Seven Dwarfs." Despite the Cowboys' holding the score 0-6 until late in the second quarter, OU broke the game open for the annual 53-6 romp over OSU. Notre Dame had broken the Sooners' 47-game winning streak two weeks before, and the Crimson and Cream was not sitting around moping before a date with Duke in the Orange Bowl.

When the buzzer sounded in Seattle, the Punchers had tripped Washington, 46-39, marking Coach Henry P. Iba's 600th intercollegiate basketball victory. Long one of the nation's outstanding mentors, his overall record, including high school coaching, stood at 670 victories and 187 losses. Eleven times his Cowboys won the Missouri Valley Conference; three times they tied; four times they competed in the National Invitation Tournament at New York.[4]

In 1944-45 and 1945-46, the Iron Duke had put together back-to-back National Collegiate Athletic Association championships teams. In 1958, he was shaping his sixth NCAA tournament team around playmaker Jerry Adair, 6-8 Arlen Clark, Eddie Sutton, and Jerry Hale. Off to a 16-2 mark, the Cowboys bowed to Wilt Chamberlain-powered Kansas, but won a wild return bout there in overtime. Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson shone in Gallagher Hall, and still the Pokes prevailed, 61-57.

When flu gripped the team, the season dipped to 21-8, still enough for a seventh NCAA bid in fourteen years. In the regional, Kansas State ended title hopes, 69-57. Bob Mattick's scoring record stood as Clark hit 502 points in twenty-nine games, fourth best in school history. The Cowboys topped the nation in free throwing with .791, breaking Southern Methodist's 1954 record of .754. Playing ball-control at its best, OSU's defense was second nationally, as the Pokes allowed an average of 51.9 points per game.[5]

When crew-cut blond Myron Roderick took a good look at wrestling competitors before his first year of Big Eight coaching, he thought it would be harder to win the Big Eight than the Nationals. And he said so. He got some tolerant grins. After all, he was young, only 23. But Roderick was a realist. For eight years OU had dominated the Big Seven. O-State was tough, but so was Iowa State. They were the best teams in the country. And they were all in the same conference.

It was the first year Oklahoma State had faced a dozen duals, but ahead of the Big Eight, the team was undefeated for the 30th year, although with two ties. Predictably, they were 13-13 with Iowa State and 12-12 with Oklahoma. Roderick was right about the difficult tourney. Iowa State scrambled to the title with 67 points; OSU and OU tied for second with 65 apiece.

Depth in ten weights instead of the eight wrestled in duals would swing the balance in favor of the Cowboys at the Nationals in Laramie. Dick Beattie took the gold at 157 and Duane Murty at 167. Runnersup

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

When wrestling mentor Art Griffith retired in 1957 after producing eight national championship teams in thirteen years, he was succeeded by his three-time champion, Myron Roderick, age 22. The rich wrestling tradition continued. The aggressive Roderick and his teams would bring home to OSU seven more NCAA team titles and two NAAU crowns in the next thirteen years. His first NCAA champs brought the trophy home from the University of Wyoming in 1958.

were Bob Taylor, Bobby Herald, and Shelby Wilson. Heavyweight Earl Lynn brought in third place points, and Ted Pierce and the first of Roderick's imports, Adnan Kaisy, an Iraqi Olympian, were fourth. The Pokes compiled 67 points, a new NCAA high, to surpass Iowa State by fifteen and bring home Oklahoma State's 20th NCAA wrestling team championship since 1928. It was a pattern other schools would strive to perfect; those in Iowa were particularly adept as the coming years would show.[6]

Otis Wile wrote that Roderick was the toast of the collegiate wrestling world. His pride in his team was boundless.[7] Yale still led in NCAA titles with twenty-five that spring, but OSU and Southern California were tied with twenty-three each. And the youngest wrestling coach to win the NCAA Championship was just getting started.

Trackster Aubrey Dooley found the new fiberglass vaulting pole promising. When Olympian Jim Graham suffered a fractured wrist during an indoor dual at Kansas State, Coach Ralph Higgins, in his first season in the tough new conference, winced. His thinclads were well stocked in sprinters, slim in other events. But Dooley and his pole were ready. He took both the Big Eight indoor and outdoor vaulting champiin most sports.[10]

Speegle was given another year. Assistant Neill Armstrong returned to coaching professional football. Olen Treadway joined the OSU staff and former player Leland Kendall moved from coaching freshmen to working with the varsity.

A 14-11 basketball season did not make Iba's own coaching fortunes more palatable. When his son Moe returned from resting a badly bruised thigh, knee surgery was again necessary. Don Linsenmeyer came on as a scorer, dropping in 20 points in an early 81-point rout over Tulsa. It was the first time in eight years that OSU was able to break the 80-point mark, but Linsenmeyer's knee was injured and he was lost. After ten weeks, the resolute Moe Iba was back in the lineup, helping a late-season rally.[11]

Keeping his perspective as line-ups shifted, Iba joked at midseason, "We ought to have a get-acquainted banquet and introduce the players to each other." Bunch led OSU to a 68-62 trouncing of third-ranked Kansas State at home, the first win from K-State in fourteen tries. Former Poke Coach Don Haskins hired Moe Iba as his assistant at Texas Western, but a new Iba would be enrolling next fall.[12] thon and just missed setting an American father-son record with his father. He also established an American junior 20-kilometer record in 1:03:53.

The fleet Cowgirls were out of the Big Eight's basement at last. Runners-up at the Sooner event, they zipped into sixth at the conference championships and eighth in district finals. Making the difference were Linda Thompson, OSU's top finisher at both the Big Eight and District V races, and Angela McGeown, both of Scotland. Despite updated training facilities, OSU cross country runners often trained on the old intramural fields, whose hills offered the typical swelling terrain they would face in races.[3]

The top four scorers and rebounders returned to Cowgirl basketball 1982-83 to steer a strong freshman corps. But instead of a fruitful year, the team suffered its worst year, a dismal 4 wins against 23 losses. The leading scorer, Rosie Aldridge, returned to Texas for cancer therapy. Without Aldridge, the team played tough competitors close and were "almost, but not quite" up to their potential in big-time basketball. It was Coach Judy Bugher's final—and only losing—season. In six years, her teams had claimed 90 victories and 89 losses.[4]

"The team we have coming back should have the potential to win a Big Eight title," Coach Paul Hansen said of his 1982-83 Cowboy cagers. "This is the strongest team I've had in four years." Not given to superlatives, the veteran strategist held his ground, to the surprise of those who recalled the painful 15-12 season just past. Valuable experience in the form of Matt Clark, Leroy Combs, Lorenza Andrews, Ray Crenshaw, Joe Atkinson, and Bill Self, provided one of the quickest front lines in the conference, he promised.

Even when Atkinson's wrist was broken, the Pokes went on their winning way, piling up a 24-7 epic, not remotely paralleled since the 24-5 record of 1954. They were back on target as they hadn't been for years, beating Kansas, Kansas State, and Missouri. Titles in the Blade-Grass Invitational at Toledo and the All-College also came their way.

The cohesive team snared the Big Eight tournament in their debut in that event, scrambling all the way up the basketball ladder to the first game of the NCAA Western Regional. Although they lost the lead and the game to Princeton, 56-53, the outing marked the Pokes' first trip to NCAA competition since 1964-65. Clark made the Big Eight's first team and Andrews the All-Big Eight Academic team. The Cowboys's strong run at the conference title landed them in third place, behind Missouri and Oklahoma.[5]

But all was not well in the athletic director's office. In mid-December, having led Oklahoma State out of probation-related problems, Director Dick Young resigned. Supporters of the popular director were surprised and dismayed. A lengthy search for Young's replacement followed. It was a position that would be filled with care.[6]

Meanwhile, All-Americans Liz Parry and Janette Cortright were leading the gymnastics team to a 6-8 record, fourth in the Big Eight, and sixth in the NCAA Regional. Hampering the team was a bicycle accident that sidelined the accomplished Linda Elstun with a broken collarbone. When Parry captured her third straight title on the uneven bars, she established a new Big Eight record for individual crowns. Working on the vaults, freshman Terri Collins also made All-Big Eight.

Nor was gymnastics the primary purpose of these athletes' daily routine on campus. As Coach Larry Bilhartz continued to encourage scholastic achievement, six of the seven team members were listed on their deans' honor rolls or the president's honor roll.[7]

Experience and point producing mat talent were on tap as Tom Chesbro launched his 14th year. There was the problem of compensating for the graduation of four-time All-American Ricky Stewart, but there were two-time All-American Randy Willingham, along with Kenny Monday and Mike Sheets, who had dropped heartbreaking overtime decisions in the 1982 NCAA finals, and Mitch Shelton, who'd pinned Oklahoma's Steve "Dr. Death" Williams to win a Bedlam dual and a hero's adula-

39 The Year of the Cowboy! 1984-

Experienced and eager, Erwin Patrick Jones moved easily into the head football coaching assignment, added the necessary one-size-fits-all discipline, and produced a season like no other before it at Oklahoma State University.

It was a campaign that stirred memories of the glory years of Fenimore and the forties, one that produced ten football victories for the first time in school history and saw the Cowboys earn nationwide respect and season-long ratings among the nation's elite.

But even at this level, football was only part of the year's success story. Baseball, golf, and track saw three Cowboys flash across the national scene like skyrockets, as the spectacular exploits of Pete Incaviglia, Joe Dial, and Scott Verplank kept OSU in the spotlight.

Yet football was the bellwether. From the first crushing 45-3 defeat of highly regarded Arizona State, it was obvious that years of frustration and lack of national ratings could end with an overwhelming rush. Even with a letdown against Bowling Green, OSU's margin was a comfortable 31-14, as Mark Moore returned an interception 17 yards for one touchdown and Rod Brown dashed 95 yards to score with another. Larry Roach, on his way to a school career record of seventy field goals, kicked four of them in the 19-16 squeaker over San Diego State. Defensive tackles Leslie O'Neal, perhaps the best of a long series of great Cowboy linemen, and Rodney Harding helped smother Tulsa, 31-7.

O-State was rated No. 9 and toe-to-toe with eighth-ranked Nebraska. Rusty Hilger passed for 242 yards and the Cowboys clung to a 3-0 lead through three quarters, but three muffed scoring opportunities let the Cornhuskers off the hook, 17-3. Approximately fifteen million

Like so many before him, Rusty Hilger wasn't expected to do great things on the gridiron. But the spunky quarterback steered the Cowboys to the Independence, Bluebonnet, and Gator Bowls and broke nine school records in an exhilarating football era from 1981 to 1984.

televiewers tuned in for the clash in Lincoln, the highest single rating for any college football game during the 1984 regular season, according to a post-season announcement by ABC-TV.[3]

The world didn't end with the loss. Still fired up, the offense exploded for 551 yards to out-man Kansas, 47-10. Although the Cowboys tried hard to fumble away the Colorado game—a snap for them in any other year—they couldn't. A free-wheeling 34-6 shot at Kansas State earned a No. 7 ranking and unveiled a new star as freshman tailback Thurman Thomas rushed for 206 yards and heralded bright things to come.

When the Cowboys cavorted beneath rented lights in college football's first night game at Lewis Field in fifty-two years, Tom Kensler of the Daily Oklahoman dubbed 'em "The Saturday Evening Pokes," and they kept the lid on Missouri, 31-13.

As the spectacular Saturdays unfolded, the nation learned its view of the Sooner State as a one-team state was a misconception. For Oklahomans who had not previously noticed, 1984 emphasized that the state had two nationally-ranked powerhouses.

AMERICA'S Greatest HOMECOMING CELEBRATION!

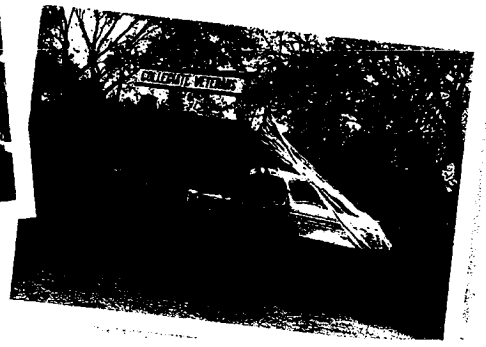
Since 1913, OSU homecoming has been celebrated with floats and faithful parading down Main Street, homecoming queens crowned, elaborate house decorations, walkaround attended by thousands, and Cowboy football.



HOMECOMING – OSU'S GREATEST TRADITION – GOT ITS start in 1913 as Oklahoma A&M's Harvest Carnival, a celebration showcasing student projects, much like a county fair. Alumni Association sponsorship began in 1920, and since then homecoming has won national recognition and grown to become America's Greatest Homecoming Celebration.

Homecoming's hallmark tradition – house decoration – began in the 1920s when sororities decorated their doorways. The first official homecoming parade, a mile long, marched down Main Street, Stillwater, in 1930. Even in those days, more than 17,000 alumni would come home for the annual celebration. The new pep song "Ride 'em Cowboys" was introduced at homecoming in the late 1930s, and the first homecoming queen was crowned in 1938. With the coming of war, homecoming fell quiet. Gas rationing restricted travel, and without crowds to please, floats and parades and decorations were put away for the duration.

At war's end, homecoming made an exuberant comeback as record numbers of alumni returned. In the 1950s and 1960s, homecoming parade was the big event, as outsized floats, with moving parts and loudspeaker sound, trundled up Main Street. Soon, house decorations gained attention. Friday night traffic grew so congested that in 1966 "drive around" became walkaround. Ever since, streets around campus have been packed with pedestrians – in some years as many as 45,000.

Classes and colleges reunite to remember good times and celebrate their heritage. Students work hundreds of hours "pomping" chicken-wire masterpieces with rainbows of tissue paper. Orange lights are strung around residence halls and Theta Pond, illuminating campus and reflecting from the ripples. Evening descends, lights go on, colors blaze, music blares, and the OSU family gathers from near and far. Walkaround, parade, pep rally, Cowboy football – nothing else in America rivals OSU homecoming.

Product Description

In November 2004, the storied Oklahoma State wrestling squad, led by legendary coach and Olympic champion John Smith, embarked on what some considered the toughest and most grueling schedule in college wrestling history in quest of the unthinkable their third consecutive and 33rd overall national team title. For 18 weeks the Cowboys traveled almost 16,000 miles by bus, plane, van and automobile to 12 different states, through four time zones, in and out of 10 hotels as they wrestled 21 dual matches and three tournaments against bone-hard competition. Cowboy wrestling is truly one of Oklahoma s most masterful historical treasures, with more national collegiate titles than Notre Dame football and UCLA basketball combined. Cowboy Up provides an intimate, inside look at that historic effort. Coach Smith granted author Kim D. Parrish unprecedented access to the Cowboy program for an entire season. He has crafted an enchanting, poignant and revealing story of college wrestling s most storied program - and college athletics most punishing yet gratifying sport. It is a story of glory and heartbreak, sacrifice and betrayal. Wrestlers and coaches will be instructed as they read of Coach Smith applying training techniques and motivational tools in the context of an actual championship season. Wrestling fans will learn how a slight boy from Del City, who was pinned in his first five matches, rose to become arguably the greatest American athlete in the 20th century. All Oklahomans will take pride as they read of perhaps the most successful endeavor, sporting and otherwise, since Oklahoma s statehood in 1907.

Learning From the Best, April 17, 2008
By Randal J. Watkins - See all my reviews

This book captures the behind the scenes grit, the preceding events and the lives of the individual wrestlers and coaches that produced such a fantastic season and team. Kim Parrish, has gone beyond just telling the story of the team but has deftly used the "power of the pen" to recreate the events in such detail the only thing you actually miss are the sounds and smells of each event. More than just a sports book this is a training manual on "How to Win"! Cowboy Up reveals the winning principles that can be applied to any life pursuit you may desire. This book will hold your attention, bring great enjoyment, show you what makes champions and what keeps OSU the leader in collegiate wrestling. I thoroughly enjoyed the book and heartily recommend it.

Inside a Sports Dynasty, January 2, 2009

By J. Hammond "odanuki" (Gotha, FL USA) - See all my reviews

You do not have to be a cowboy to enjoy Cowboy Up, an account of Oklahoma State's 2005 wrestling season. John Smith, OSU's head coach, gave Kim Parrish, the book's author, virtually unlimited access to the team during the 2005 season. The result is a remarkably intimate and candid look at collegiate wrestling at the elite level. It is a must read for any dedicated fan of the sport.

The book is as much about John Smith as it is about the team's season. An early chapter takes a long look at the evolution of Smith as a wrestler and a coach. It describes how a redshirt year enabled Smith to reach new heights as a collegiate wrestler and set the stage for a uniquely successful international career.

While some people may think that a redshirt season is devoted to physical development and the refinement of technique (in Smith's case his famous low single), for him it was a much different matter. "In the final analysis, I'm not sure style really matters. We can talk about the low single leg and how effective it was for me, but what changed in me was my passion, drive, and commitment to develop into the athlete I wanted to become."

Smith had a similar epiphany as a coach. He won a team title for the Cowboys in 1994, after OSU came off probation, but it would be nearly a decade before the Pokes won again. This was despite the fact that Oklahoma State did not lose a dual meet for three straight seasons from 1997 to 1999. The author notes that "... just as Smith had adapted to his environment a decade earlier in developing a new way to wrestle, the Cowboy coach gradually revamped his coaching and teaching methods during the late 1990s."

Said Smith of his transformation, "I began to understand that athletes had to be brought along at the right pace. Instruction had to be tailored differently to each athlete." He further observed that "coaches have to learn to give and give and give and not expect anything in return in the short term. It's similar to the dynamic we face in parenting."

The 2005 season offered Oklahoma State the opportunity to win a third straight NCAA team title for the first time in nearly half a century. John Smith could do something that no Cowboy mentor had done since Art Griffith accomplished a three peat in his final year at the Pokes' helm in 1956. Smith's task was made easier in the months leading up to the season when Steve Mocco, 2003 NCAA heavyweight champion, transferred from Iowa to Oklahoma State.

The book looks at the 2005 season in a chronological fashion from the Orange & Black Match in November to the NCAA tournament. The trials and tribulations of redshirt freshman Daniel Frishkorn was one of the great dramas of the campaign. Frishkorn started the year at 133 pounds, but the weight proved to be too low for him. It was first apparent when an exhausted Frishkorn lost the lead in the third period of his bout in the Minnesota dual. Then he "broke" just prior to the first Bedlam (Oklahoma State vs. Oklahoma) meet by being 17 pounds over the limit one day before the weigh in for the contest.

Frishkorn's move up to 141 had a domino affect on the Cowboy's lineup and generated a number of story lines: the agony of fifth-year senior Ronnie Delk being displaced from the lineup; Smith's decision (and all its ramifications) to bring freshmen Coleman Scott and Nathan Morgan off redshirt to bolster the lightweights; and Frishkorn's effort to regain credibility with his teammates.

As the season wears on the reader gets a real sense of just how grueling and demanding, both physically and mentally, the sport is for athletes at the top of Division I. The Cowboys' travel schedule was brutal, involving trips to both the west and east coast. There is no end to the very early morning calls for seemingly endless bus rides. Even a time saving plane trip to Nebraska turns into an ordeal when the return flight is delayed for hours by equipment failure. Add into this mix punishing practices, weight management and academic demands. It makes one wonder just how these young men can do it.

The ultimate prize for any college wrestler is the NCAA tournament in March and for some just qualifying is enough. Of course that is totally unacceptable for Smith and he emphasized mental over physical preparation in the two weeks prior to the tournament. Smith observed, "Most athletes look in the mirror and negotiate with themselves a way out. They allow themselves to consider an option other than victory. But a very small number negotiate no option other than winning."

At the 2005 tournament, five of Smith's athletes negotiated the latter option as the Cowboys crowned an NCAA record tying five individual champions and two other All-Americans. The Pokes captured a third straight team title and set a school record for team points and margin of victory.
The book does have a few flaws that could have been eliminated with better editing. The most obvious error was the multiple misspellings of the name of former Cowboy head coach Tom Chesbro. There was also the laughable reference to the "Eyes of March", rather than the Ides of March. These are minor quibbles and should not deter anyone from reading this unique inside look at college athletics and achieving success at the highest level of competition.

Editorial Reviews

Product Description

What happens when two of the best running backs in NFL history are on the same college campus at the same time? You win a lot of games, of course.Barry Sanders and Thurman Thomas were teammates at Oklahoma State in the 1980s, when the Cowboys made history by producing three 10-win seasons in a five-year span.Pat Jones spent 11 seasons as Oklahoma States head coach and five seasons as a Cowboy assistant under Jimmy Johnson, who would later become an NCAA champion at Miami (Florida) and a Super Bowl champion with the Dallas Cowboys. Jones, who had the pleasure of coaching Thomas and Sanders, accumulated as many behind-the-scenes OSU football stories as Sanders and Jones accumulated yards. Jones shares his recollections in this book, which provides insight into one of the most exciting 10-year periods in Cowboy football history. The book details Johnsons five-year stay in Stillwater and the first five years of the Jones era, including Sanders Heisman Trophy season in 1988. What role did Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones have in steering OSUs football fortunes? What happened to allow OSU to contend for a national title in 1984? How did a lightly recruited and soft-spoken kid from Wichita, Kansas, come out of nowhere to produce the greatest season by a running back in college football history? Pat Jones answers those questions and tells you how the Cowboys caught lightning in a bottle

Coach was....., September 12, 2007

By W. J Yates "j-b1" (Oklahoma City, OK USA) - See all my reviews for want of better words was "a helluva football coach," and equally as funny as Lou Holtz. At Oklahoma State, he often operated with one bullet in his gun, not unlike Barney Fife, but he was good football man and a great guy to listen too. Jimmy Trammel is a well recognized sportswriter for the Tulsa World.

Pat Jones was assistant at Arkansas and Pitt, part of the Jimmy Johnson, Dave Wannstedt, Butch Davis et al staff. When Johnson left us in the lurch at OSU (clouds of NCAA probation looming on the horizon) by booking for Miami, coach inherited a doomed program. But for a brief season or two, when he had the players his was a top 10 program nationally. He later coached for about 10 years for the Miami Dolphins.

Great read.

Golden Cowboy Years, January 19, 2009

By J. S. Smith "Liberal Evangelical" (Ft. Wayne, IN USA) - See all my reviews

Pat Jones, Thurman Thomas, Barry Sanders, national rankings and scaring the pants off of the Huskers and the Sooners, were our Saturday afternoons for those glorious golden years of OSU Cowboy football. Pat Jones tells all of us who enjoyed those great games, the inside stories. We yelled and screamed for Thurman and Barry and it is fun to learn what was going on in the locker room before and after the games. Cowboy fans will love this book. Steve Smith OSU '85

Interesting Anecdotes , November 23, 2008

By Johnny Mullens (El Paso, AR) - See all my reviews

I can hear Pat Jones tell the stories in the book because he has a unique voice. This is the best sports tales book I have read because the anecdotes are very interesting, such as Jerry Jones helping Jimmy Johnson get the OSU head coaching job and Frank Broyles giving Johnson a token interview when Lou Holtz was fired at Arkansas. I wish he would elaborated on what led to the probation in the late 1980's and his time in the NFL that led him to do sportstalk.

OUR PROGRAM

IS JUDGED BY A DIFFERENT STANDARD.

Our fans, coaches and student-athletes don't measure success by the competition. Our motivation comes from tradition: a championship legacy that calls us to

CHEER LOUDER. TRAIN HARDER. DIG DEEPER.

We owe it to those who built the foundation.
