THE NCAA BASEBALL REGIONAL DEBATE

STATE 5-12-98

Whom would YOU have chosen?

USC's argument

Reasons USC should have received a regional before Clemson:

- USC bid more. The Gamecocks guaranteed $111,000, compared to Clemson's bid of $95,400.
- The Gamecocks (6th) were ranked higher than the Tigers (13th) in the Baseball America poll.
- It was USC's turn. How better to reward an improved team?
- Clemson's status in the ACC was tenuous at best. Only a UNC error in Sunday's final game prevented the Tigers from losing and finishing fifth in the conference. Georgia Tech didn't bid on a regional.

Your argument

Should Clemson have been awarded an NCAA baseball regional tournament site ahead of USC?

Call (803) 771-8777 to record your vote and leave a comment.

Clemson's argument

Reasons Clemson should have received a regional before USC:

- Clemson beat USC in their only head-to-head meeting this season, 6-4 on April 1.
- The ACC, which had the highest conference RPI rating, deserved a second host site. If the Gamecocks had been chosen, the SEC would have had three sites to the ACC's one.
- Recent history. This will be the Tigers' fourth regional in the past five years, and they've gone on to the World Series twice. USC last hosted a regional in 1985.
- Clemson posted a 4-0 record against the SEC this season.

WHO GOT IT

Florida State (10)

South I Regional

USC'S FATE

Monday's snub put the Gamecocks on the road:

- USC is virtually certain to play in one of the five southern regions. The three most likely options are Clemson, Miami or Florida State, away from SEC peers Florida and LSU.
- Pairings for the regionals will be announced Monday, after the conference tournaments are finished.

ERIC GRAUS / THE STATE

GETTING IN

If you're going to the regionals:

- At Clemson: On sale today. Tournament passes are $50 (reserved seating) or $40 (general admission); $28 for students. Single-game tickets are $7 (general admission) and $4 for students. Call (800) 253-6766.
- Where USC goes: The Gamecocks will find out Monday where they will play.

SELECTION HIGHLIGHTS

Facts and figures from Monday's announcement:

- USC was the highest-rated team not to be assigned a regional.
- The state of Florida received three regionals.
- The ACC and SEC each received two regionals.
- Only 51.3 percent of all regional hosts have made it to the College World Series in the past 10 years.
- In the 1990s, 21 SEC teams have had to travel to regionals. Of that number, only three moved on to Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Neb.

I. "Thy Classic Halls": Buildings and Campus

Near the Osborne Administration Building, in a niche on the ivy-covered wall that surrounds the campus, there is an historical marker that describes the University of South Carolina. The last sentence concludes with the observation that the University is a "faithful index" to the fortunes of the state of South Carolina. Nothing could be a better index to the fortunes of the University than its buildings. While the students and faculty are the lifeblood of any institution of higher learning, most people think of a university in terms of bricks and mortar, of buildings and grounds.

The historic Horseshoe is the heart of the Carolina campus. Rutledge, the first building of the old South Carolina College, was completed in 1805. Others followed with regularity during the next half-century until on the eve of the Civil War, the old campus contained 12 buildings.

In the fifty years after the Civil War, the University's turbulent history was reflected in the few new buildings constructed. Beginning in the early years of the twentieth century, the campus began to expand, to fill up the original campus square bounded by Sumter, Pendleton, Bull and Greene, and to cross these old boundary streets.

Davis and LeConte (now Barnwell) were built on Gibbes Green across Bull Street. The old infirmary was erected in 1908 at the corner of Bull and Greene streets. The Women's Dormitory Quadrangle began to take shape in 1924 with the construction of the first Wade Hampton Dormitory and was completed 35 years later with the opening of the new Wade Hampton. Veil Block Dorms, Russell House Student Union, McBryde Quadrangle, the old Business Administration Building (now Callcott) and Sumwalt joined the infirmary across Greene during the 1950s. The student body stood at nearly 5,000 in 1960. Major academic departments were still housed on the old campus — Biology in Coker, English in Davis, Foreign Language in DeSassure, Geology and Geography in new LeConte, History in Currell, Journalism in Legare, Law in Petigru, and Political Science in Harper.

Then came the population and building explosion that was to change the face of the University. Student enrollments mushroomed and dodging bulldozers came to be an accepted hazard for students and faculty trying to cross a campus that seemed to be in a state of perpetual construction. Presidents from Donald Russell through James Holderman came under attack, mostly good natured, from students and faculty for the turmoil caused by campus expansion. Jokes about the University's building program were common in classrooms where the roar of machinery frequently intruded. In English classes, there were references to Dante's Inferno; in History to Versailles; in Religious Studies to the Tower of Babel, but the work continued.

Not only did the new buildings alter the campus landscape, they changed the skyline of the city of Columbia. During the 1960s, South Building, South Tower, Capstone, and the Welsh Humanities Building rose on the southern and eastern fringes of the campus like giant sentinels guarding the old campus. In a rush, the University crossed Pickens Street to create what is now known as the East Campus area. The four lanes of Blossom Street, long a barrier on the University's southern perimeter were literally bridged in 1971, linking athletic facilities and dormitories with the main campus.

As the campus grew, Carolina did not lose its beauty as did so many other universities during the growth years of the 1960s and 1970s. The Horseshoe remained intact. The Horseshoe restoration project, begun in 1973, has restored the old campus to its antebellum appearance; interior renovations enable these historic buildings to serve the University for another century. Other older buildings have been remodeled and renovated rather than demolished. Some faculty houses were torn down during the 1940s and 1950s to make way for McKissick, Coker and a yard for University High (now the College of Education), but they were the exception. The only real sentimental loss occurred in 1968 when the old Field House burned. Fortunately, the Carolina Coliseum was completed later in the year so that the 1968-69 basketball season could begin as scheduled. Physical education classes had to wait until 1971 for a home in the Blatt Physical Education Center.

Over the past 25 years numerous changes have been made. Buildings have been remodeled. Some have been renamed and these name changes sometimes cause confusion among alumni. To students of the 1920s and 1930s, LeConte faced Davis on Gibbes Green; to students of the 1960s and 1970s, LeConte was located beside Davis and Barnwell was across the Green. To older alumni, the "old law School" meant Currell, located just off the Horseshoe; to more recent alumni, the "old Law School" meant Petigru on the corner of Pickens and Greene streets. Names and uses may have changed, but the buildings remain.

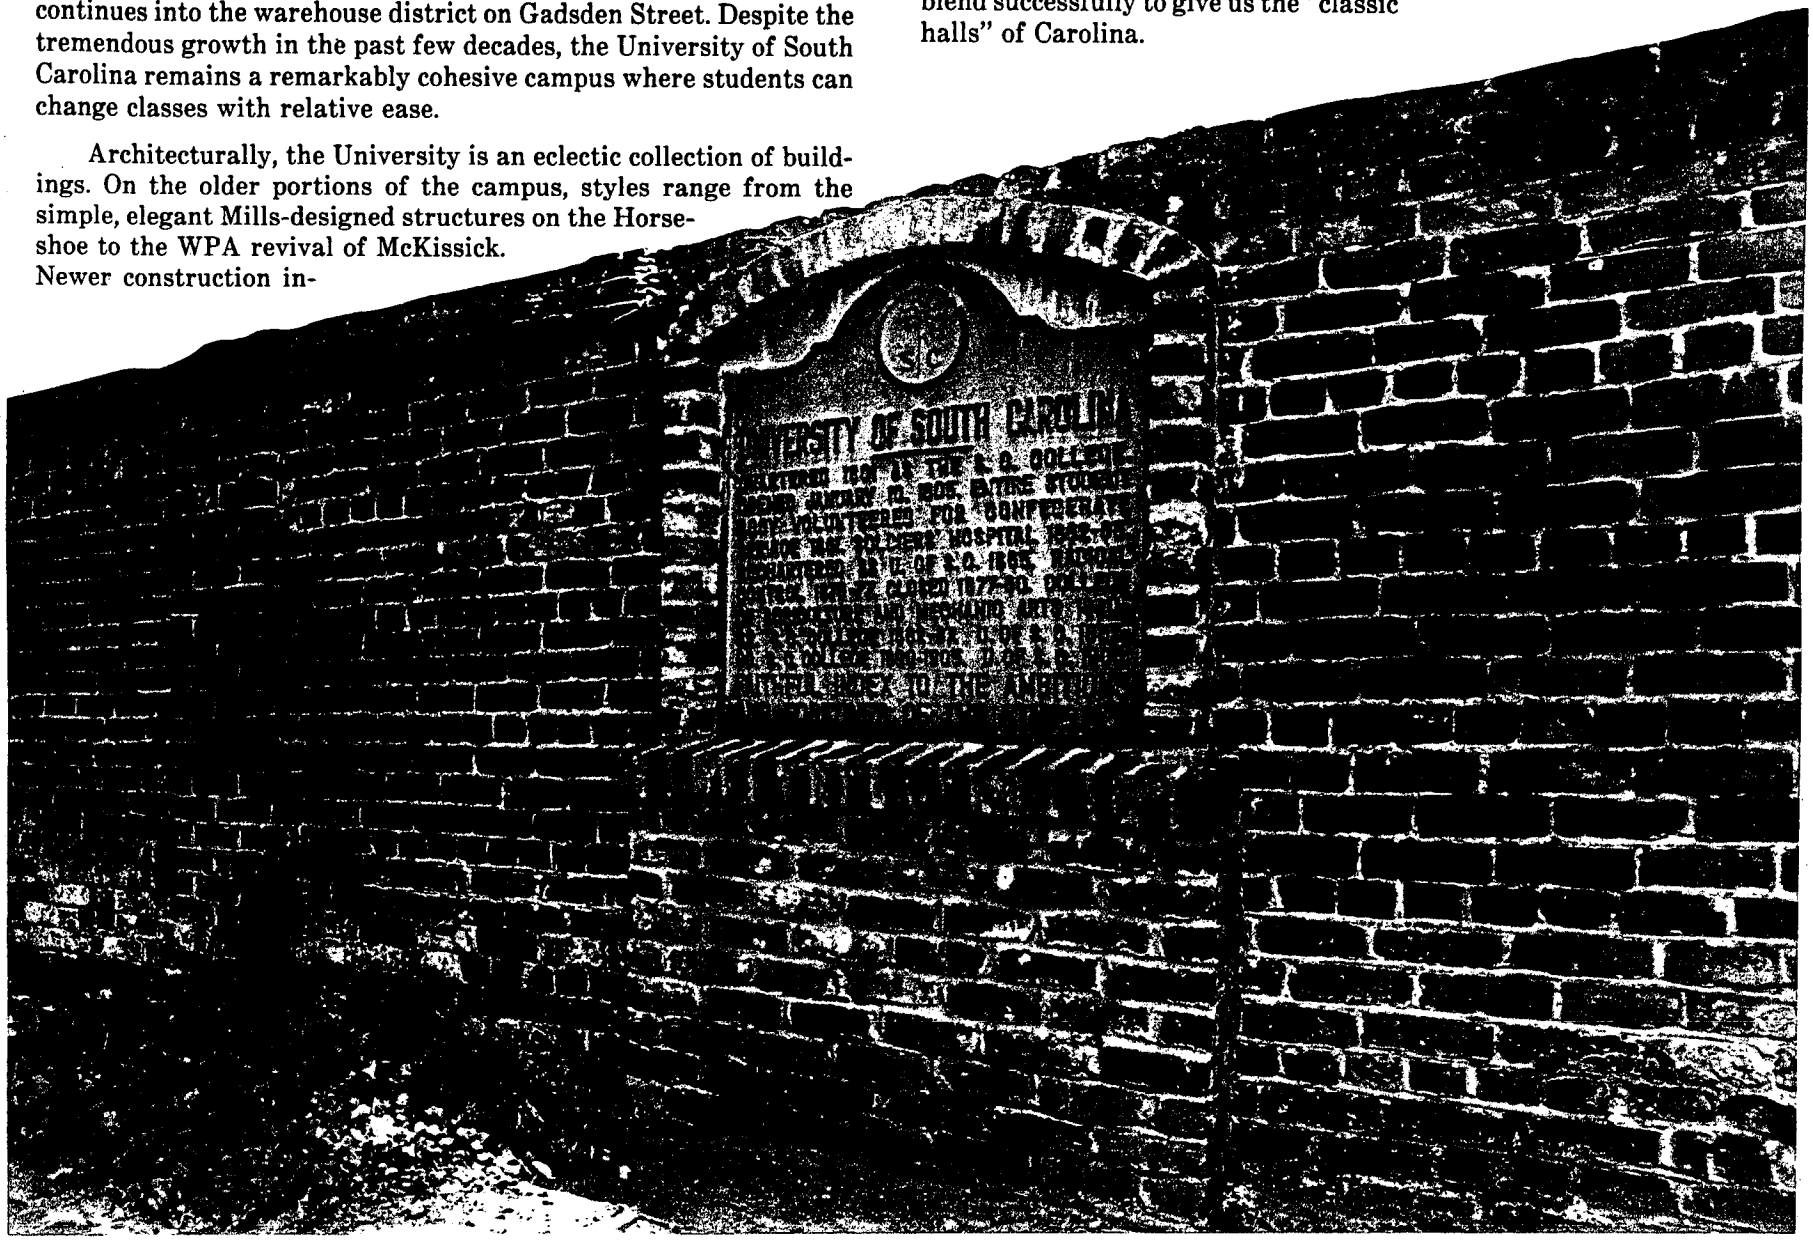
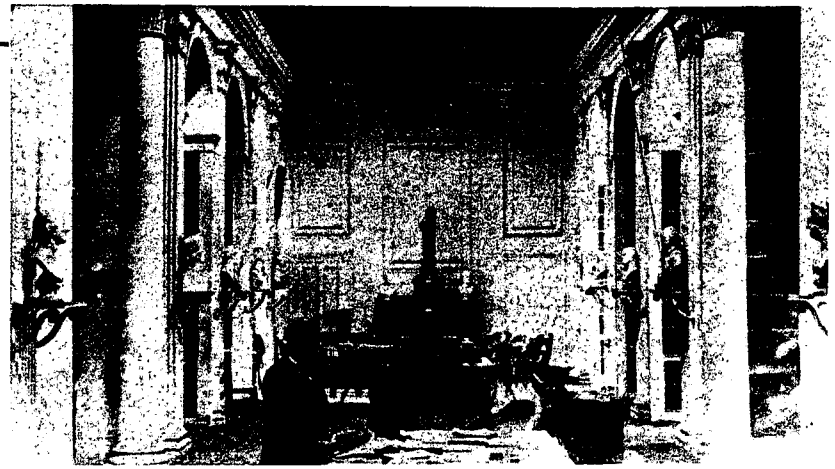
APPLICANT 00433

Since 1805, the University of South Carolina has grown from one building on an 8 acre campus to 136 buildings on 242 acres. The original boundaries of Sumter, Pendleton, Bull, and Greene Streets have been breached in all directions. On the North, there are University facilities across Gervais on Main Street; on the South, the Campus has been extended all the way to Rosewood Drive; the East Campus area boundary is now Gregg Street; and on the west, the Coliseum on Assembly is the most visable portion of the campus that actually continues into the warehouse district on Gadsden Street. Despite the tremendous growth in the past few decades, the University of South Carolina remains a remarkably cohesive campus where students can change classes with relative ease.

Architecturally, the University is an eclectic collection of buildings. On the older portions of the campus, styles range from the simple, elegant Mills-designed structures on the Horseshoe to the WPA revival of McKissick. Newer construction includes modern skyscrapers such as South Tower and Capstone, the traditionally-inspired Thomas Cooper Library, and the futuristic air-filled Field House.

Charles A. Beard, one of the great historians of the 20th century once called the Horseshoe "the most beautiful college campus in America." It still is, but the Horseshoe is only one small part of a growing urban university where the old and the new blend successfully to give us the "classic halls" of Carolina.





The South Caroliniana Library (1840), designed by Robert Mills, was the first separate college library in the United States.

A turn-of-the-century view of the library shows the structure before the wings were added. The later photograph shows its expansion.

Until 1940, this building housed the University's main library; today it houses the South Caroliniana collection of manuscripts and books related to the state and the South. The Caroliniana's collections make it one of the region's major research libraries.

The main reading room shown here is closely modeled after Charles Bullfinch's design for the original Library of Congress. Until late in the 19th century no fire or artificial light was permitted in the building by order of the Board of Trustees. This regulation was to limit the possibility of fire. Lighting was provided by large windows and skylights.

Obviously by the time the later photograph was taken, the regulation was no longer in force. This room is the most perfectly preserved interior on campus and with the literary society halls the only 19th century interior remaining on campus. All others have succumbed to remodelling or renovation.

SIR—At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, held at Columbia on the 28th of April last, it was resolved, that the College should be opened for the reception of Students on the second Monday in January next. And that for the purpose of enabling those who propose to send their children to that institution, to prepare them for admission, the following Rules be provisionally adopted and made public. You will therefore be pleased to insert them in the Carolina and City Gazettes once every week until this order be countermanded.

(1) Recruitment of students in 1804 paved the way for students to come together on a campus in Columbia and create a new life with a flavor of its own. The announcement of the opening of South Carolina College was carried in the July 13, 1804 issue of the Carolina Gazette in Charleston. The 1801 act establishing the institution acknowledged the relationship between the education of the state's youth and future prosperity of society. The college was envisioned as the place "where all its youth may be educated for the good order and harmony of the whole."

(2) A $40 tuition, hot and cold baths, electric lights and a recess for the State Fair were among the highlights of campus life according to this prospectus which appeared in the 1904 Garnet and Black.

(3) By 1902 students at South Carolina College had almost a century of campus experience and tradition behind them. One symbol of identity was the class ring such as the one shown here which is held in the University Archives.

Campus accommodations such as this dorm room of the 1930s did not come easily to Carolina coeds. In a grudging admission that women might be on campus to stay, the old coal room in the president's home was converted for their use as a lounge in 1912. Two years later, a few rooms were made available to coeds in a rented house close to the school on Marion Street. When the first women's dormitory (later named Wade Hampton) was finally completed in 1924 after a great struggle with the legislature, the coed population soon increased to one-third of the total enrollment.

Today females not only compose approximately 50% of the student body but they compete favorably with males in virtually every aspect of campus life, outrunning them in some areas.

The Freshman Rat Hat. Special headgear has long been used to designate incoming freshmen. The University Archives has a well worn one from 1899 which is not so different from ones sported by those in the 1950s.

The purpose of the beanie was to keep the new members of the college community from being too "fresh," but there was much debate between those who feared the practice was undemocratic and would crush the newcomers' individuality, and those who felt that this shared "burden" would serve to unite them as a class and engender school spirit. Until the practice was banned, freshmen hazing was generally limited to shoeblacking and compulsory songs "unless a belt got loose — by mistake."

The South Carolina Air National Guard

The South Carolina Air National Guard was formed in December 1946 and today is made up of 1,250 members who train at McEntire ANG Station. The 2,400-acre base is located about 12 miles east of Columbia.

About 1,000 of those assigned to the SCANG are traditional Guard men and women who work in the community and train part-time with the Air National Guard. More than 150 members are women, whose military duties span all areas of the SCANG, including F-16 pilot. Some 400 members are minorities (including women). About 300 federal employees serve as full-time technicians at McEntire and drill with their respective Air Guard units. About 55 state employees work at McEntire, and some of them are also Guard members.

The 169th Fighter Wing is the primary unit of the SCANG. It has about 1,000 members. Wing units include the 157th Fighter Squadron, 169th Maintenance Squadron, 169th Aircraft Generation Squadron, 169th Civil Engineering Squadron, 169th Security Forces Squadron, 169th Services Flight, the 169th Mission Support Flight, 169th Logistics Squadron and 169th Medical Squadron.

The mission of the 169th FW is to maintain wartime readiness and the ability to mobilize and deploy expeditiously to carry out tactical air missions or combat support activities in the event of a war or military emergency. The SCANG operates as part of the Total Force of the U.S. military and is fully integrated with the active duty Air Force to perform its military mission.

The 169th FW flies the F-16 Fighting Falcon, a single-seat multi-purpose fighter with the capability to fly at up to twice the speed of sound. It has the capabilities to perform both an air-to-air and air-to-ground tactical mission. The 169th flew the F-16A from 1983-1994, and in 1994 transitioned to the F-16C/Block 52, the newest, most advanced F-16 in the Air Force. The SCANG also flies a C-130 Hercules for airlift support.

Also located at McEntire is the 240th Combat Communications Squadron, a diversified communications unit with more than 100 members; and the 245th Air Traffic Control Squadron. The many missions of the 240th CCSQ include ground communications, satellite communications and other advanced communications systems. The 245th ATCS has the ability to perform air traffic control at fixed air bases and at remote sites.

McEntire ANGS is named for the late Brigadier General Barnie B. McEntire, Jr., the first commander of the SCANG and its first general officer. McEntire died in May 1961 when he rode his malfunctioning F-104 into the Susquehannah River to avoid crashing in the populated area of Harrisburg, PA. The base was previously known as Congaree Air Base and was used in World War II as a U.S. Marine Corps training base.

The SCANG has been called to active military service for four major contingency deployments in its 55-year history. In 1950, SCANG members were called to serve for the Korean War, and its members served at various installations in the United States and abroad. In late 1961, the SCANG was called to active duty during the Berlin Crisis, and the 169th Tactical Fighter Group was stationed at Moron, Spain. In late 1990, units of the SCANG were activated and deployed to Saudi Arabia for Operation Desert Shield/Storm. In January 2002, aircraft and personnel of the 169th Fighter Wing were deployed to Southwest Asia in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, directly participating in combat operations. In late February 2002, the 240th CCBS deployed a 50-member team to Central Asia in support of President Bush's war on terrorism.

The 169th FW is also a regular participant in the Air Expeditionary Force, which patrols the Iraqi no-fly zones. The unit has deployed for Operation Southern Watch (Qatar, 1996), to Operation Northern Watch (Turkey, 2000), and again to Southern Watch (Saudi Arabia, 2001). The 169th FW was the first Air National Guard unit to deploy alongside active-duty Air Force units to comprise an AEF.

Governor-elect Sanford Selects Faith to Head Commerce

Governor-elect Mark Sanford nominated Bob Faith, a 39-year-old Mount Pleasant real estate executive, to lead the South Carolina Department of Commerce.

As Sanford's first cabinet-level appointee, Faith will become the state's chief business recruiter and developer. Faith is founder and leader of Greystar, a real estate conglomerate with investments of more than $1 billion, mostly outside the Palmetto State.

Sanford also said Jim Morris, the current Commerce chief of staff, will stay on to work with the new administration. Faith will fill the post vacated by Charles S. Way, Jr. following his confirmation by the state Senate. MORE >>

South Carolina Historical Marker Program

The South Carolina Historical Marker Program, originally the South Carolina Highway Historical Marker Program, was authorized by an act of the South Carolina General Assembly in 1905 creating the Historical Commission of South Carolina with authority "to have direction and control of the marking of historic sites, or houses, or localities," but was not officially established until 1936 when a marker was erected near the site of the Long Cane Massacre near Troy, in McCormick County. More than 800 markers have been erected by the program in its first sixty years. Since 1954 the South Carolina Department of Archives and History, as the successor state agency to the Historical Commission of South Carolina, has been responsible for the program as part of the Historical Services Division. The enabling legislation creating the Department of Archives and History gave it the responsibility for "the approval of the inscriptions for all historical markers or other monuments erected on state highways or other state property."

South Carolina Historical Markers mark and interpret places important to an understanding of South Carolina's past, either as the sites of significant events, or at historic properties such as buildings, sites, structures, or other resources significant for their design, as examples of a type, or for their association with institutions or individuals significant in local, state, or national history. Historic properties individually listed in the National Register of Historic Places are ordinarily eligible for historical markers, as their status guarantees that a case has already been made for their significance. Many other places, however, either not eligible for listing in the National Register or not yet nominated through that program, are also eligible for historical markers. National or statewide significance is not a prerequisite, and many properties of primarily local significance have already been marked.

In the past, markers were placed along the nearest South Carolina state highway and contained references to the location of the place being marked, usually some distance away. More recently, markers have been erected at the historic site itself without restriction to state highways and on other public streets and county roads.

Without state funding, the Historical Marker program has always depended on the citizens of South Carolina to suggest, document, sponsor and pay for its historical markers, and to maintain them once erected. Markers may be sponsored by historical, patriotic, civic, or other organizations, or by institutions such as church congregations or schools and colleges. Though individuals may not sponsor markers, they may propose and pay for them provided the marker is sponsored by an appropriate local organization or institution.

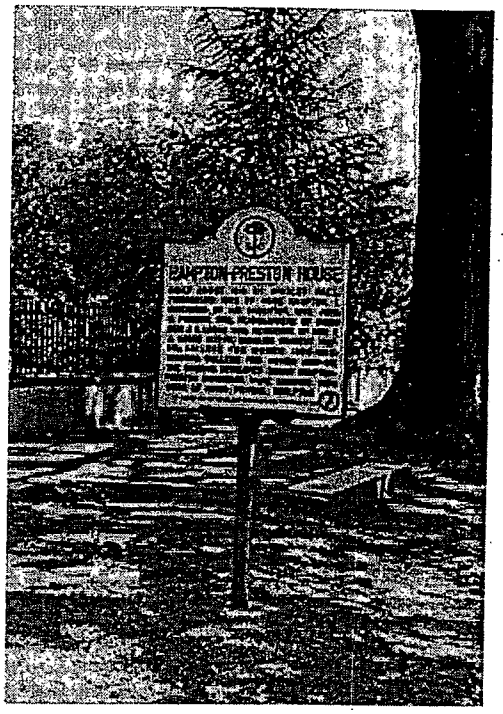
PROGRAM GUIDELINES

- South Carolina Historical Markers are intended to mark historic places and are not primarily memorials to individuals or institutions associated with those places.
- Historic properties less than twenty-five years old, associated with events that occurred less than twenty-five years ago, or significant for their association with significant persons who died less than twenty-five years ago will not ordinarily be eligible for historical markers. Any exceptions will only be made on a case-by-case basis after review by the Archives and History Commission.
- The sites of significant buildings no longer standing may be eligible for historical markers under the same criteria as other historic properties.
- Historic properties or sites closely associated with significant persons may be marked primarily for that association only if:
  a. the property is the property or site in the state which best represents the individual's community of birth or residence, productive career, association with a particular institution, or association with a significant event, AND
  b. no other site in South Carolina closely associated with the individual and marked primarily for that association has already been marked.



- Sites of significant events should be marked, when possible, on the nearest public street, county road, or state highway.
- Counties, cities, or towns may erect markers based on their establishment or date of incorporation.
- Cemeteries may be eligible for a single marker based on their significance to a particular community, significant persons buried there, their association with significant events, or their significance in gravestone art, but individual gravestones, gravesites, or plots within cemeteries will not be eligible for historical markers.
- Individual components of a historic property already marked as an entity will not be eligible for historical markers.

- South Carolina Historical Markers are made of cast aluminum. The earliest markers, cast from 1936 to 1954, have a circular device at the top center bearing a palmetto tree and "S C". They are gray with raised gray letters or silver with raised black letters. Markers cast since 1954 have a triangular device at the top center bearing the state flag; those cast from 1954 to 1990 are dark blue with raised silver letters, and those cast since 1990 are silver with raised black letters.
- City Size Markers, erected in incorporated cities and towns, measure 24" x 36", with one title line (1.5" letters, 17 characters per line) and 18 lines of text (1" letters, 27 characters per line). These markers are available with either a standard 7' post or a 10' post if required by local governments.
- Country Size Markers, erected at all other sites, measure 42" x 32", with one title line (2" letters, 25 characters per line) and 11 lines of text (1.5" letters, 36 characters per line). These markers are available with a standard 7' post.

- Prices effective 1 October 2000:
  - City Size:
    - same text both sides $1265.00
    - different text each side $1400.00

  - Country Size:
    - same text both sides $1350.00
    - different text each side $1510.00

- DO NOT SEND CHECKS TO THE SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF ARCHIVES AND HISTORY. When the final marker text is approved by the director, the applicant will send payment to:

  Sewah Studios
  P.O. Box 298
  Marietta, Ohio 45750
  (740) 373-2087

The coordinator of the South Carolina Historical Marker Program will advise applicants on the procedures for ordering historical markers once the final text is approved. It usually takes Sewah Studios, the foundry which casts historical markers for South Carolina and many other states, six to twelve weeks to cast and ship a particular marker once payment is received.

LOCATION OF MARKERS

Markers are usually placed in the right-of-way of state highways or public roads. The precise location of the marker must be approved by the South Carolina Department of Transportation in the case of markers erected on state highways and the chief elected official of a particular county, city or town in the case of markers erected on county or other public roads; when markers are erected on private property the property owner must approve their location. Permissions should be obtained early in the approval process. The Department of Transportation will often erect or assist in erecting markers, and applicants should contact:

Assistant Director of Maintenance
South Carolina Department of Transportation
P.O. Drawer 191
Columbia, SC 29202

MARKER TEXTS

- Markers may either have the same text on both sides or different text on each side, depending upon the significance of the property being marked and the space required to properly interpret its history. Most markers for properties of national or statewide significance will require two sides of text, and while most markers for properties of primarily local significance will have the same text on both sides, those properties may also require two sides of text. Sponsors may wish to prepare draft texts for both types before making that decision.
- Applicants will submit a draft text for the proposed marker, which will be reviewed and revised as necessary by the coordinator of the South Carolina Historical Marker Program for content, style, and space. This second draft text will be sent back to the applicants for their review and approval, and then revised as necessary. The final marker text will then be approved by the director of the South Carolina Department of Archives and History, and copies will be sent to the applicant, the Department of Transportation, and Sewah Studios. The approval process generally takes from one to three months; marker applications are approved in the order in which they are received.
- Draft marker texts should be accompanied by documentation of the history and significance of the property being proposed for a historical marker. Footnotes or endnotes are not required, but copies of relevant portions of major primary and secondary sources used (including family papers; county and state government records; church, school, or cemetery records; newspaper, magazine, or journal articles; and county, city, or town histories, church histories, biographical sketches, or other pertinent sources) should be included.

MARKER DEDICATION CEREMONIES

Many historical markers, though not all of them, are dedicated or unveiled with ceremonies that range from the simple to the elaborate. The coordinator of the South Carolina Historical Marker Program can help you plan a ceremony and representatives from the South Carolina

Department of Archives and History can usually attend.

MAINTENANCE AND REPLACEMENT

There are no state funds for maintenance or replacement of historical markers; sponsoring organizations are responsible for any maintenance necessary, most often no more than a simple cleaning or repainting, or for replacing destroyed or badly-damaged markers. Archives and History Information Leaflet No. 1, "Cleaning, Repairing, and Repainting Historical Markers," contains more detailed information on the maintenance of markers.

Addressing Your Mail for Delivery

It is important to use all address information for proper delivery of your mail. For example, today there are more than 40 streets in Atlanta, Georgia, with the name Peachtree - N Peachtree Ct, Peachtree St NW, W Peachtree St NE, and so on. Imagine trying to deliver a letter addressed only to Mrs. Smith on "Peachtree"! We would not know where to send it.

Destination Address

Be sure to include the following in the destination address:

Recipient's name (and/or company name, if applicable). Recipient's street address, post office box number, rural route number and box number, or highway contract route number and box number. In addition, include all required suffixes, directionals, and locators (see Addressing Tips) in the address line. Recipient's city, state, and ZIP Code or ZIP+4, if known. For international mail, include the applicable foreign postal code, if known, city or town, province or state name, and country name (see International Addressing Tips for more details).

Return Address

Include all the elements of the destination address. Place the return address in the upper left corner of the mailpiece.

Dual Addressing

When a post office box number and a street address are used, make sure that the place where you want the mail delivered appears on the line immediately above the city, state, and ZIP Code line and that the ZIP Code or ZIP+4 code corresponds to that address. For example:

Addressing Tips

- Write, type, or print the complete address neatly.
- Always use a return address.
- Always use complete address information, such as the suffixes AVE, BLVD, and ST. Always include locators such as the apartment or suite number.
- Always use correct directionals, such as N, W, and SW.
- Don't let an incorrect ZIP Code delay delivery of your mail. Local post offices and the Postal Service web site, www.usps.gov, offer ZIP Code information.
- Use the four-digit add-on, ZIP+4, in your addressing. Hyphenate the ZIP+4.
- Always use the two-letter state abbreviations listed in the chart in Abbreviations.
- Use common addressing abbreviations listed in the chart in Abbreviations..
- Place endorsements for special services, such as Priority Mail, First-Class Mail, or insured, above the destination address and below and to the right of the return address.

International Addressing Tips

- Put foreign postal codes, if known, in front of the city or town name and on the same line.
- Place the city or town name and the province or state name on the next line after the street address information.
- Write the name of the foreign country in capital letters on the last line of the address.

Packaging Tips

- Select a box that is strong enough to protect the contents.
- Leave space for cushioning inside the carton.
- Cushion package contents with shredded or rolled newspaper, bubble wrap, or Styrofoam peanuts. Plain air-popped popcorn is also good for cushioning; it's inexpensive and environmentally friendly. Pack tightly to avoid shifting.
- Always use tape that is designed for shipping, such as pressure-sensitive tape, nylon-reinforced kraft paper tape, or glass-reinforced pressure-sensitive tape.
- Do not use wrapping paper, string, masking tape, or cellophane tape.
- Put the delivery and return addresses on one side only of the package.
- Suggestion: Place a return address label inside the package.
- Stuff glass and fragile hollow items, like vases, with newspaper or packing material to avoid damage due to shock. When mailing framed photographs, take the glass out of the frame and wrap it separately.
- Remove batteries from toys. Wrap and place them next to the toys in the mailing box.
- Take packages that weigh at least 1 pound into the post office for mailing.
- Publication 2, Packaging for Mailing, and Publication 227, Preparing Packages for Mailing, contain more tips and are available free from your post office.
- Obtain Express Mail and Priority Mail boxes, envelopes, and tubes for free from your post office.

Opposition No. 91125615

Univ. South Carolina

Applicant's
Ex. No. 98, Pg. No. 2

- Purchase packaging products, including tape, envelopes, padded bags, corrugated boxes, mailing tubes, and cushioning material, from your post office. Some locations offer decorative boxes and expander packs that are suitable for mailing gifts.

Special Tips

- Access the Postal Service's web site, www.usps.gov, for postage calculations, the latest addressing information, and unique gifts.
- Avoid waiting in line for stamps by buying Stamps by Phone (1-800-STAMP24), Stamps by Mail, or stamps from postal self-service vending machines.
- If you are a last-minute international mailer, do not despair. The average Global Priority Mail delivery is 4 days to many countries for items up to 4 pounds. The average Express Mail International Service delivery is 1 or 2 days to most major cities.

ZIP Code

The ZIP Code is extremely important in the processing and delivery of mail. An envelope that does not include a ZIP Code in the delivery address must be manually sorted. This increases the cost of sorting the mail and causes mail to be delayed en route to the delivery address. Even though use of the ZIP Code is voluntary for most mail types, we urge you to include it in your return address and the mailing address. ZIP Code directories (Publication 65, National Five-Digit ZIP Code and Post Office Directory) are available for use or sale at your local post office. You may download the order form, PS 4243 by following this link.

City/State/ZIP Code Association Lookup

ZIP+4

In 1983, the Postal Service began to use an expanded ZIP Code called ZIP+4. It is composed of the original five-digit code plus a four-digit add-on. Use of the four-digit add-on number is voluntary for most mail. However, this add-on number helps the Postal Service direct mail efficiently and accurately. Even if you prefer not to use your four-digit add-on number, using the correct five-digit ZIP Code helps prevent delays.

The four-digit add-on number identifies a geographic segment within the five-digit delivery area such as a city block, an office building, an individual high-volume receiver of mail, or any other unit that would aid efficient mail sorting and delivery. Using ZIP+4 reduces the number of handlings and significantly decreases the potential for human error and the possibility of misdelivery. You can purchase Publication 66, ZIP+4 State Directory, at your post office. You may also download the order form.

Zip+4 Lookup

Minimum Size Standards

Pieces 1/4 inch or less thick are mailable if they are rectangular and:

- At least 3 1/2 inches high.
- At least 5 inches long (items sent to foreign countries must be at least 5 1/2 inches long).
- At least 0.007 inch thick (about the thickness of a postcard).

Mail not meeting these standards is returned to the sender.

Nonstandard Size Mail

Nonstandard size mail is more costly to handle because it usually cannot be mechanically processed. First-Class Mail and international letters are nonstandard if they weigh 1 ounce or less and they exceed any of these size limits:

- Height exceeds 6 1/8 inches, or
- Length exceeds 11 1/2 inches, or
- Thickness exceeds 1/4 inch, or
- Length divided by height is less than 1.3 or more than 2.5 inches.

A surcharge, in addition to the applicable postage and fees, is applied to each piece of nonstandard size mail for two reasons: it compensates the Postal Service for the added cost of manually handling nonstandard mail, and it promotes the design and use of mail that can be processed mechanically.

Abbreviations

Abbreviations used in addressing can be confusing at times. When in doubt, check these lists. In addition to the official Postal Service abbreviations for states, territories, and the District of Columbia, we have included the official abbreviations for some common street suffixes, directionals, and locators. A complete listing is printed in Publication 65, which is available at your local post office.

Origin of the Rattlesnake

Opposition No. 91125615
Univ. Southern California v.
Univ. South Carolina

Ex. No. 105, Pg. No. 1

In 1751 Benjamin Franklin's paper carried an article recommending that a cargo of rattlesnakes be sent to England. Three years later, in 1754, Benjamin Franklin published a drawing of a snake cut into parts (Georgia was not included). This was to show the members of the Albany Congress the danger of disunity. By 1754 the segments of the snake had grown together, and the motto had been changed to read 'United Now Alive and Free Firm on this Basis Liberty Shall Stand and Thus Supported Ever Bless Our Land Till Time Becomes Eternity'.

The rattlesnake had become a favored symbol among pre-Revolutionary War colonists.

Secessionist Rattlers

Several Southern states, upon the secession of late 1860, early 1861, used rattlesnake flags for secession banners - as well as for company flags.

These seem to have been most popular in South Carolina and Georgia - two of the original 13 colonies from the American Revolution. Since many Southerners considered their secession of 1861 no different from the secession of 1776 the symbolism was the same.

One South Carolina company flag that I know of had a palmetto tree on one side with a coiled rattlesnake wrapped about the trunk of the tree. There were quite a few others, some with the phrase "Don't tread on me."

Freshman State Champions 1924

THE habit of winning State titles has taken such a hold on the Carolina Biddies that they also annexed the basketball honors. This year the squad had a regular coach, manager and schedule. They showed their appreciation by the fine work displayed all during the season. The Freshmen engaged in nine battles and won all but one. The Furman Freshies downed the Birds on their visit to Greenville by six points, but a week earlier the score had been reversed with a margin of thirty-one points. A season, with but one defeat, is something to be proud of. Among the members of the squad, Captain "Bill" Rogers could not be beaten at running guard. "Si" Seidman was there to help him at the other guard position. "Bus" Wise, the tall, lean, lanky center could not be beaten, and always got the tip. Mikell and Schumpert, forwards, took great delight in doubling the score. Russomano also played well at guard.

Many members of the squad are going to land places on the Varsity team next year. Under the direction of Coach Crawford, Carolina is going to be unbeatable next season.

The following is the schedule of the Freshman Team 1924:

Carolina		Opponents
Carolina	39	Sumter Y. M. C. A.	13

FRESHMAN SQUAD

Resume of Freshman Baseball

Disguised in moth-eaten, clay-stiffened, sweat-rotted uniforms, the Biddies looked like a bunch of ham and eggers, but when they took their places on the diamond they proved that beneath their dingy exteriors beat the heart of true leaguers.

Crossing bats with the varsity, they often made practice miserable for them, while in their regular scheduled games, they slugged out five victories.

On the team were none other than Heyward Culp, John Assey, Oscar Skinner, Lew Wallace, Herbert Watson, John Leipersock, Horace McGhee, Bill Brigham, Archie Vaughn, Edward Sykes, Buddy Laval, N. B. Hicks, Fred Floyd, William Harley, Schwartz, Ritch and Hendry.

Little Archie Vaughn, scintillating second baseman, was elected captain. George King managed the squad.

With a weakened squad the problems of Coach Baskin were numerous due to the rough schedule that he stepped into. Such track powers were Georgia, Davidson, North Carolina State, Clemson, Presbyterian, and Furman. In addition to these dual meets the team participated in the state meet at Clinton, and the Southern Conference Meet at Chapel Hill. Baskin did a wonderful job considering his material and the schedule he had to handle. However, his coaching ability can be judged better after he has had a chance to build up the team and develop his own men. We are sure that Carolina has had a letdown after a great 1948 season, and we are looking forward to its return to the top of the state's track luminaries in the future.

With spring and its showers and flowers so comes baseball and the crack of a bat and the thrill of a home run.

The nation's number one pastime is reflected at Carolina, where Coach Ted Petoskey is opening the season with more satisfaction and assurance than this same time last year.

Pitching seems to be the brightest star in this year's baseball picture.

Gene Molnar, Howard and Heyward Tunstall, plus Johnny Cooley, give the Gamecock's more depth in the hurler's department.

The shift of Jimmy Cox from second base to catcher will help fill the gap in the fielding department.

At the plate the Gamecocks face their real major problem. Carl Brazell, Frank Ellerbe, and Tom Hofferth are being looked to as the men to wield a big stick and improve over last year's batting average.

Gamecock baseballers start getting in shape for the new season by exercising their legs in one of the workouts.

Baseball Gamecocks Have One Of Best Seasons Yet

With eight lettermen returning, coach Joe Grugan got set to whip his Gamecock baseballers into action for the 1962 spring campaign.

Fellows like George Epps, John Jones, Frankie Knox, Bobby Robinson, Jim Lanford, John Farnsworth, Charley Williams, Bobby Smith, and a few unknowns began getting in shape in early spring, and the word was out that this year's team would be one of the best in the past several years.

After the season was completed, the word had been proven true. Even though the record stood 9-11, and 6-7 in the ACC, it was considered one of the finest teams fielded at Gamecock U. in the last two or three years.

In the first three outings, the Gamecocks took on Georgia Southern in a two-day affair, and were dealt losing hands on both accounts. The Citadel came into the picture next, and after the Bulldog encounter, the Gamecocks were 0-3.

Gamecocks Play On Cold, Muddy Field To Win

The Gamecocks made their second venture into Yankee land to play Detroit, and this time it was successful. Playing on a muddy field in cold weather, Carolina slid hither, tither and yon for a 26-13 victory. About the only thing good that came out of the game was the 26 points. The Gamecocks played before a disappointing crowd of 10,000 and Davis Field had more turf in the end zone than Detroit's had per 100 yards.

Jim Moss (71) and Wood Barfield (67) wait for USC trainers Jim Price and Johnny Downs at muddy Detroit halftime.

The assassination of President Kennedy delayed the Clemson game until Thanksgiving Day.

In this one, the Tigers accepted the gift of a USC fumble and moved 25 yards for a first quarter 7-0 lead. But the Gamecocks came back for two touchdowns and a 14-7 halftime score.

Deacon Dan guided the first march that covered 52 yards. He passed to Bill Nies for the score. Jim Rogers took over and guided the Gamecocks 34 yards for the second score. He passed to Charley Williams for the points.

Clemson scored 10 points in the third period and added seven more early in the fourth to take a 24-14 lead. But the Gamecocks were not through. Reeves passed to Marty Rosen for a TD, but it was all over when an on-sides kick failed.

The long losing streak came to an end the following week with a 17-14 decision over The Citadel. USC took control of the game early and it was never in doubt. The Bulldogs seemed eager for a close loss and put on a time consuming march late in the game to cut the deficit.

Wake Forest, the surprise team of the conference, came to town, scored on the third play of the game, and things looked black for the Gamecocks. But USC came back with Reeves and Jim Rogers at the helm and salvaged a 23-13 victory. Deacon Dan who had a brilliant three-year career at USC, was injured on a key third quarter run, didn't return and played only at half speed in the finale against Clemson.

The Tigers took a 3-6 lead in the second quarter and it looked like that would be enough. The Gamecocks, with Reeves out, generated little offense during the first three periods.

The farmers moved to the Carolina one in the fourth period, but a brilliant goal line stand repelled them and USC surged 93 yards to victory behind Rogers. The junior quarterback scored on a 12-yard run late in the game.

Taking a team that had finished 7-14 in 1963, Reising built the club's record to 15-12 and 6-7 in the conference.

Lefty Loveard McMichael was the workhorse of the pitching staff and finished with a 7-3 mark and a 2.06 earned run average.

In the offensive department, co-captain Hoke Greiner led the way with a .339 average. Jack McCathern, in all-conference outfielder as a sophomore, played first base and finished with a .317 mark.

The ensuing week brought the Duke Blue Devils to the Carolina campus. We lost one we should have won but the game was an introduction for an estranged word to the lips of fans. Sophomore was the word but it came in more than one form Offensively it was spelled Fair or Garnto, defensively Galloway or Reeves. These weren't by any means the only ones but they were the ones that stuck hardest in our minds

Following the Blue Devil's invasion the Cocks regrouped their forces and soundly defeated an attack by N C. State's Wolfpack. With two victories under our belts we felt fat and those most optimistic began talking of championships and bowl bids but the season was still a long uphill pull especially with nationally ranked Tennessee next on our program

BASEBALL COACH BOB REISING SOUTH CAROLINA

APPLICANT 00921

It's over. We're done. The 1971 Garnet and Black has been sent to the printer and we can all breathe a little easier now. Now there's time to reflect and to review; to make a thousand revisions in our minds that might have made a better book. But it doesn't really matter now, cause it's over.

I think we all learned more than a little from working so close to each other. There have been trials and tribulations, sleepless nights and drousy days, lost pictures and pictures that were never taken. There have been good layouts, there have been lousy layouts; good workers, lousy workers. But it's over. We're done. The 1971 Garnet and Black has been sent to the printer.

In putting this book together we have encountered very helpful people in the student body and the administration. Likewise we have been forced to deal with some who were anything but helpful. We've made friends and we've made enemies. Much of what we did might have been done better by someone else, or so 'someone else' says, but there was no one else who would try. But all that doesn't matter now, cause it's over. We're done.

Here is the book, the product of our minds and bodies. We sincerely hope that it is received well. There is no social comment made or intended. There is no protest lodged. There are no philosophical or political overtones. What there is, is an accurate account of what happened at Carolina in the year 70-71. And that matters a lot. Cause it's over. We're done.

I cannot end without giving special thanks to Richard Taylor whose aid was invaluable. And to Dr. Paul Fidler and Dot. To Fred Bostrom and American Yearbook Co. and most of all, to the staff of the 1971 Garnet and Black.

I leave you with it.

Ed.

Hitting Hard

The USC baseball team battled their way to a 37-18 record in regular season play. In their first season competing in the SEC, the Gamecocks began with a 1-9 record against SEC opponents. The Cocks did not lie down, however, and powered their way to victory in twelve of their last fourteen SEC games.

This late season drive pushed the Gamecocks to second place in the Eastern Division. Second in the east was good enough to send them to New Orleans to compete in their first SEC tournament.

Early season victories against Western Carolina, Charleston Southern, College of Charleston, Georgia Southern, Campbell and Winthrop had all of USC excited.

The Gamecocks took one from UNC-C, won two against Richmond and beat Kansas, Wagner and Jacksonville one each. The stage was set for a three game series at Sarge Frye against West Virginia. The Cocks did not disappoint their fans as they swept the series.

The team boasted a 19-4 record in late March and were poised for a three game series at home against the then ranked number one team of LSU. LSU defeated the Cocks in all three games over the weekend series. Clemson then visited Sarge Frye field. The Gamecocks tamed those Tigers, 8-6.

SEC troubles continued for the team as they dropped two games to Arkansas before winning the series finale.

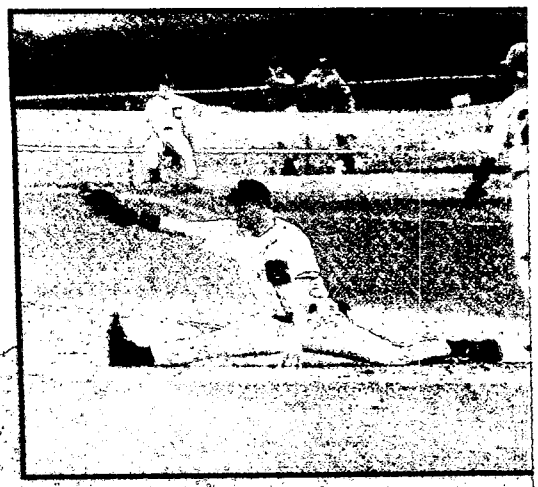
Get A Hit!

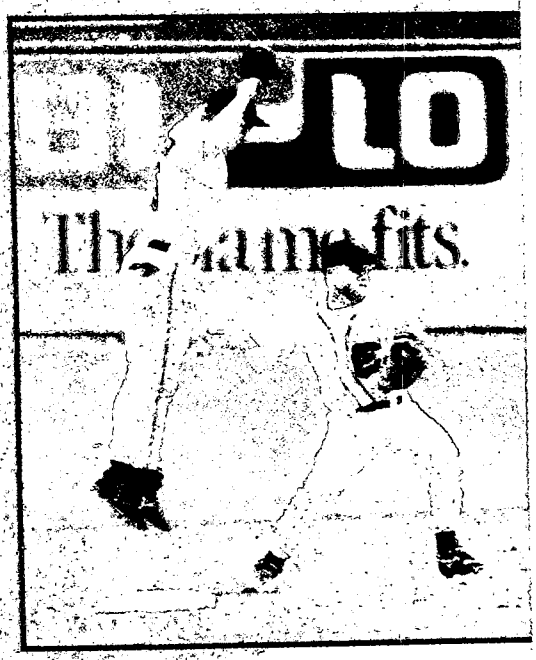
About this baseball team, I am a bit confused. Everyone knows Carolina has some awesome athletes, but number one in the entire SEC? Well, all I can say is: Thank Heaven for June Raines and his men. They are like a driving force for Carolina athletics. The only major problem they have had was losing to Clemson a few times, but, we won't go into that.

Some incredible players have made up one incredible team. Parnell, DeBoer, White, Tartar . . . if I were to go on we would be here for days discussing talent. Why don't we just concede that these boys are marvelous and get on with our discussion of the game?

OK. Something else that confuses me is the fact that these men are doing so incredible but the stands are often pretty empty. What's up with that Carolina? We had been desperately seeking a team to be proud of, some men (or women) behind whom we can pool our support, someone on this campus that was r only competetive but incredil successful. Well, we found c men, but many Carolinia weren't paying much attentic For now I will urge you to g out to some baseball games. (the next spread I will tell y more about why you should

"Yeah, I liked that pitch." Jason Haynie delivers another strike in his brilliant season.





"Gee, I'm glad I stretched before th game today." Jeff Parnell reaches out to g another force at first base.

"Okay Stacy, it's all yours." Joe Bi and Tracy Stakes converge at second ba during a double play.

ALEX WAITE, Captain and Manager

To see this big man in action is a real treat. In all meets he throws the discus and javelin, and puts the shot. Waite's form, especially when putting the shot, is nearly perfect. In the State meet he won first places in shot put and javelin throw.

H. H. CROSBY

"Hucks" is an old timer at the game. He has the wind of a circus balloon and is especially good on the mile. He has not had all the time that he could use this year to give to track, but the time that he has been out has been very helpful to him and to the Carolina track aspirations.

C. B. PARSONS

Parsons, realizing there are some good distance runners in other institutions in the South, has started early training for the 1922 season. We are sure he will be dependable this year.

HARRY LIGHTSEY

This big man has been confining himself to football for the greater part, but now he has come out for the heavy end of track work. He is becoming adept at hurling the javelin and at handling the weight and discus.

S. D. ERVIN

We expect great things of this vaulter and jumper during the 1922 season. With an early start he should equal the Southern records for these events.

BURNEY SMITH

Burney, thru constant hard work, made Carolina an excellent high jumper. In the State meet Smith placed first in high jump, second in broad jump and third in 440 dash. This is no mean record.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS

AS THE GARNET AND BLACK goes to press the crack of bats and the thud of balls against gloves can be heard resounding on Melton Field. South Carolina's 1927 baseball squad, led by Captain Bill Rogers, began practice early in March, and is now rounding into shape.

There is a wealth of material both from last year's team and from the 1926 freshman squad. The team is strong at the bat and in the field. Provided the pitchers weather the chill early spring days and come through with the goods, there is ample reason to believe that Carolina will win many ball games.

Godshall, Scott and Reeves are pitchers who saw service last year and will probably bear the burden of the 1927 campaign. Stoddard, Sanders, McKnight and Ritch are sophomores who will get a chance to prove their worth.

"Red" Swink and Bill Boyd compose the varsity catching staff and they will be assisted by Stowe, last year's freshman receiver.

At first base, Captain Rogers will have first call with Mike Windus coming second. Billy Lamar and Billy Miller, both small but fast infielders, will hold down second. Nolan is also out for this position.

Sam Burke, last year's heavy hitter, will be back at his old position at shortstop. Bill Cooper, freshman shortstop, will give him a merry chase for the position.

At third, Bob Wimberly, who played outfield last year, will probably get the early call with J. Gross and McElrath coming next in line.

In the outfield Shelton, Farr and Salley will be pushed hard by Power, Rogers and Chandler, candidates from the freshman team. Shelton is handy with the bat and should play regularly in one of the outfield positions. Salley and Farr have had considerable experience and will no doubt be in the lineup when the first ball is tossed.

The Gamecocks will miss Marion Swink and "Red" Adams, regular outfielders from last year's team, and Bob Wimberly will have to exert himself to fill the shoes of the dependable Bill Jeffords.

Bouncing back, the team took the last three meets in a row: Clemson, P. C. and Furman.

Throughout the season the team consistently worked hard and the meets they lost were fought as hard as those in which they were triumphant. Charlie McGill was probably the most valuable all around contestant, averaging 15 points per meet.

Tommy Woodlee won every 100-yard and 220-yard event he entered, running the 100 in ten seconds or less at each outing. His best time in regular dual meets was 9.8. Ray McKensie was consistent at 440 and the javelin throw.

The Gamecocks captured the State Meet at Clinton by a decisive margin with the Baskinmen taking seven firsts to Clemson's three. The mile relay team of Spence, Woodlee, Ward and McKensie set a new state record at 3′22.3″, breaking the old record of 3′23.7″ established by Carolina in 1948.

Woodlee tied the State record of 9.7 for the 100-yard dash set by a former Carolina great, Scooter Rucks. Charlie McGill took individual honors with 15 points, winning firsts in the 120 high hurdles and the broad jump.

Tommy Woodlee entered the Southern Conference Meet in Chapel Hill and captured firsts in the 100 and the 220.

ON THE COVERS

It looks to be an exciting year at Sarge Frye Field with the facility upgrades. The three senior captains are featured on the front cover. Catcher Rob Streicher, second baseman Ryan Szwejbka and outfielder Etienne Hightower look to lead the Gamecocks under the direction of new skipper Ray Tanner. On the back cover, catcher Ryan Bordenick and outfielders Derick Urquhart and Mike Curry look to also lend a hand with the Gamecock cause. Curry was named to Mizuno's Freshman All-American team in 1996 when he hit .346, stealing 20 bases.

CAROLINA ENTERS 105TH SEASON OF BASEBALL AS RAY TANNER ERA BEGINS

Ray Tanner came out of his first fall practice as South Carolina's new head baseball coach pleased with the way his everyday lineup had shaped up but admitted the jury was still out on the pitching staff.

CATCHER

"We have two veteran catchers in senior Rob Streicher and junior Ryan Bordenick," Tanner said in assessing his talent. "There's no difference between number one and number two. Catching is a very demanding position and I am very pleased with both Bordenick and Streicher. I like to use two catchers and both are capable offensively."

Mark Medlin, who had junior college experience at USC-Salkehatchie, is a capable third catcher.

INFIELD

The infield, which was riddled by illness and injury in 1996, appeared healthy again but suffered a preseason setback with the ineligibility of second baseman Randy Stegall. Stegall missed virtually an entire 1996 season with mononucleosis and fifth year player Ryan Szwejbka missed the final 17 games with an ankle injury.

Szwejbka, a fifth year player, is back but will likely move to another position to make room for sophomore shortstop Adam Everett who transferred from NC State. Everett started all 61 games for the Wolfpack as a freshman.

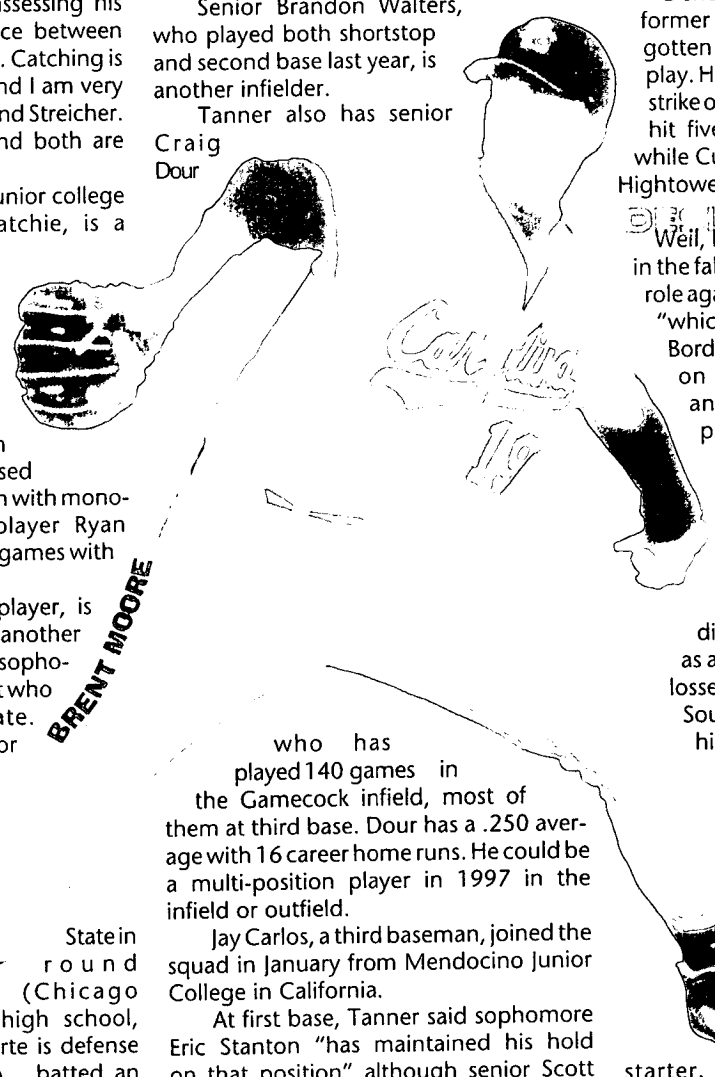
Shortstop Adam Everett transferred to South Carolina after starting all 61 games as a freshman at North Carolina State in 1996. A fourth round draft choice (Chicago Cubs) out of high school, Everett's forte is defense but he also batted an even .300 at N. C. State with 11 doubles, one triple and one home run, and stole 11 bases in 12 attempts. A broken bone in his left wrist kept him from swinging the bat in fall practice but did not affect his ability to play defense.

Mac Baroody is a promising freshman who could fit in as a middle infielder, either at shortstop or second base.

With the arrival of Everett, Szwejbka will likely move to second base, or possibly third. Tanner calls the graduate student "a veteran player with a great feel for the game. He is solid defensively and will bunt and draw walks.." When injured after 36 games in 1996, Szwejbka was batting .279 with one home run.

Senior Brandon Walters, who played both shortstop and second base last year, is another infielder.

Tanner also has senior Craig Dour who has played 140 games in the Gamecock infield, most of them at third base. Dour has a .250 average with 16 career home runs. He could be a multi-position player in 1997 in the infield or outfield.



BRENT MOORE

Jay Carlos, a third baseman, joined the squad in January from Mendocino Junior College in California.

At first base, Tanner said sophomore Eric Stanton "has maintained his hold on that position" although senior Scott Weil showed a strong bat in fall practice. Stanton batted .274 as a freshman with eight home runs and 36 runs batted in. Defensively he may be the best at his position in all of the SEC.

OUTFIELD

The Gamecock outfield is solid with three veteran starters, junior Derick Urquhart in left field, senior Etienne Hightower in center, and sophomore Mike Curry in right. Freshman Adam Poe should be a capable fourth outfielder, and football wide receiver Jason Pomar also plays the outfield although he may be more valuable to the pitching staff. Dour may also see outfield duty.

In Hightower and Curry, Tanner said he had "two players who should challenge for All-SEC. They are good runners, capable of having 30 plus stolen bases." Curry, Urquhart and Hightower were the top three hitters on the 1996 squad with averages of .346, .331 and .321, respectively. Hightower stole 34 bases and Curry stole 20.

"Derick Urquhart was a steady performer in the fall," Tanner said. "He has gotten stronger and makes the routine play. He was the only player who didn't strike out during fall practice." Urquhart hit five home runs as a sophomore while Curry had two as a freshman and Hightower one as a junior.

DESIGNATED HITTER

Weil, based on the power he showed in the fall, could fill the designated hitter role against righthanded pitching, with "whichever catcher isn't starting" — Bordenick or Streicher—also counted on for DH duties. Craig Dour and Brandon Walters are also possibilities.

PITCHER

Sophomore right-hander Brett Jodie is counted on to be a starting pitcher "if he is healthy."

Jodie has been bothered by tendinitis. He recorded a 1-3 record as a freshman with two of his three losses by 2-1 scores to Charleston Southern when he allowed only one hit, and to Arkansas.

Tanner said Jodie had limited action in the fall but " we scheduled it that way" to allow his arm problems to recover. "He has shown he is very capable."

Left-hander Steven Bray, a newcomer from San Mateo junior college in California, is also counted on as a starter. Tanner said Bray "pitched very well in the fall. He has a good change up and breaking ball and is very competitive."

Jason Pomar, a right-hander, previously thought of as a closer, may be converted to a starting role. As a freshman, he appeared in 15 games, starting five, and posted a 3-5 record in 33 2/3 innings. However, Tanner didn't have a chance to see Pomar in the fall due to football.

Left-hander Jake Whitfield, from Tallahassee Community College in Florida where he had a 6-4 record, could also make the starting rotation as could another junior college player, right-hander Patrick McCance, whose record at Mendocino JC in California was 10-4. Another possibility is freshman right-hander Jamie Poston from Lugoff-Elgin High School in South Carolina, who Tanner said "had a good fall."

Whitfield has been chosen twice in the professional baseball free agent draft, by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1994 and the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1995.

Junior Chad Hoshour, a right-hander, and senior left-hander Brent Moore could be spot starters or setup men out of the bullpen. Hoshour had a 3-4 record with two saves in 21 appearances, five starts, and 61 1/3 innings of work last year. Moore's record was 2-5 in 17 appearances, 13 of them starts. He pitched 64 2/3 innings.

Senior right-hander Rob Watson is a veteran of setup roles and two freshman right-handers, Poston and Bryan Kirby may also see setup action.

Two right-handed pitchers joined the team in January. Eddie Hoff transferred from the University of Miami and Tyler Speer came from Sacramento City College in California.

At the conclusion of fall practice, Tanner had not decided on a short relief pitcher or closer and said, "we may have to do that by committee."

PROSPECTS

In summing up propects, Tanner described the pitching as "iffy," the infield, outfield and overall defense as "solid," and said the offense would have "good balance between power and speed."

He said overall team speed will be "average to slightly above average" with two legitimate stolen base threats in Etienne Hightower and Mike Curry. As for power, he said, "we have three or four guys capable of double digit home run production." He listed Eric Stanton, Mike Curry, Ryan Bordenick and Rob Streicher in this group, adding Scott Weil could also fit into this role "if he gets enough at bats."

"Our strong suits are our offense and our defense," he said. "We have two veteran catchers, a solid double play combination and Hightower" in center field, "which provides us with strength up the middle."

Tanner said he was "extremely pleased with the offensive output " in the fall.

"We showed good balance between power and speed. The question is how our pitching staff will fare. I'm encouraged that we were better at the end of fall practice than before."

Tanner said pitching coach Jerry Meyers had done a great job in a short period of time and "I believe if our pitching staff can be solid, we have a chance to turn it around in a hurry. I'm very optimistic. I know we're playing in the best league in the country and our pitching staff is questionable. But, if we can get a solid year from our staff we can have a better year than expected."

CHALLENGE

The 56 game schedule is again demanding with 30 conference games plus a four game home-and-home series with College World Series participant and in-state rival Clemson. The Gamecocks also have two games, home-and-home, with traditional rival Georgia Southern, and participate in the Citgo Southern Challenge hosted by The Citadel at Charleston. In additional to The Citadel, the Gamecocks will meet Furman and East Tennessee State in the Citgo Southern Challenge.

Home series are scheduled with College of Charleston, Kent, West Virginia, and Virginia Military Institute, as well as single home games against Davidson, Charleston Southern, Western Carolina, The Citadel, Wofford and Furman.

Within the Southeastern Conference, the Gamecocks travel to defending NCAA champion Louisiana State. The Tigers won their third College World Series championship in the past six years last June at Omaha. South Carolina must also play at Florida, which tied for fourth in last year's College World Series.

The conference road schedule also takes the Gamecocks to Mississippi State and Tennessee, both 1996 NCAA playoff selectees, and to Georgia. The home conference schedule includes Arkansas, which made the NCAA field last year, Auburn, Mississippi, Vanderbilt and Kentucky.

The New Spring Sports Complex

Mike McGee

"We look forward to the improvements that are underway at Sarge Frye Field. This initial phase includes remodeling of the dugout and construction of a new lockerroom and lounge area for our players and coaches. The next phase will include additional seating down the first base line. We're excited about Coach Ray Tanner and his staff and the direction they are moving with our baseball program. Sarge Frye Field has always been known for its outstanding playing surface and with these improvements, it should rank as one of the best college baseball facilities in the nation,"

Carolina Athletics Director Dr. Mike McGee

Ray Tanner

"The renovation of the Spring Sports Center will enhance what is already one of the finest places in the nation to play college baseball. Sarge Frye Field will be the central location for the baseball team. A new weight room, player's lounge, the Academic Enrichment Center, the Roost Dining Facility, and the Sports Medicine and coaches offices will all be just steps from home plate. The student-athletes in baseball and other spring sports will have a superior environment to assist in one's total development,"

Weldon B. "Sarge" Frye "retired" from full time employment by the University of South Carolina July 1, 1977, but in the 20 years since he hasn't missed "a day at the office."

The office in Sarge's case is Sarge Frye Field, the 4,000 seat home of Gamecock baseball, and other University of South Carolina athletic facilities. The playing surface at Sarge Frye Field is universally recognized as one of the finest in the nation and Sarge was honored in January 1993 by the American Baseball Coaches Association, as national Groundskeeper of the Year.

The University of South Carolina honored Frye on May 11, 1980 when it named its baseball stadium for him.

A combat veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, Frye was a master sergeant when he retired from the U.S. Army in 1953 after 23 years of service. He participated in the allied invasion of Europe, was wounded in action, and was decorated with the bronze star. He earned a second bronze star in Korea.

Now in his 45th year at the University of South Carolina, Frye came to the University in 1953 and was placed in charge of athletic facilities. His duties were soon expanded to include supervision of grounds for the entire campus. He retired from full-time employment in 1977 but has continued to supervise maintenance of athletic facilities.

In addition to groundskeeping and landscaping duties, Sarge for many years operated the game clock for men's and women's basketball games at Carolina Coliseum.

A native of Medon, Tennessee, Frye is married to the former Ruby Howard of Anniston, Alabama. Their son, Jerry, was a standout end on the South Carolina football squad, 1958-60, and was co-captain his senior year. Jerry's son Jay, Sarge's grandson, was a Gamecock football letterman, 1983-84.

Weldon B. "Sarge" Frye

Sarge Frye Field is part of a 30 acre complex of athletic fields and buildings at the Rex Enright Athletic Center, named for the late University of South Carolina director of athletics and head football coach. Other facilities include "The Roundhouse" office building, and the George Terry spring sports building, which houses dressing and sports medicine facilities.

The New Roost, a dormitory for student-athletes, was completed in August 1989 and replaced the original Roost, built 20 years earlier. A portion of the original Roost has been remodeled into an academics enrichment center.

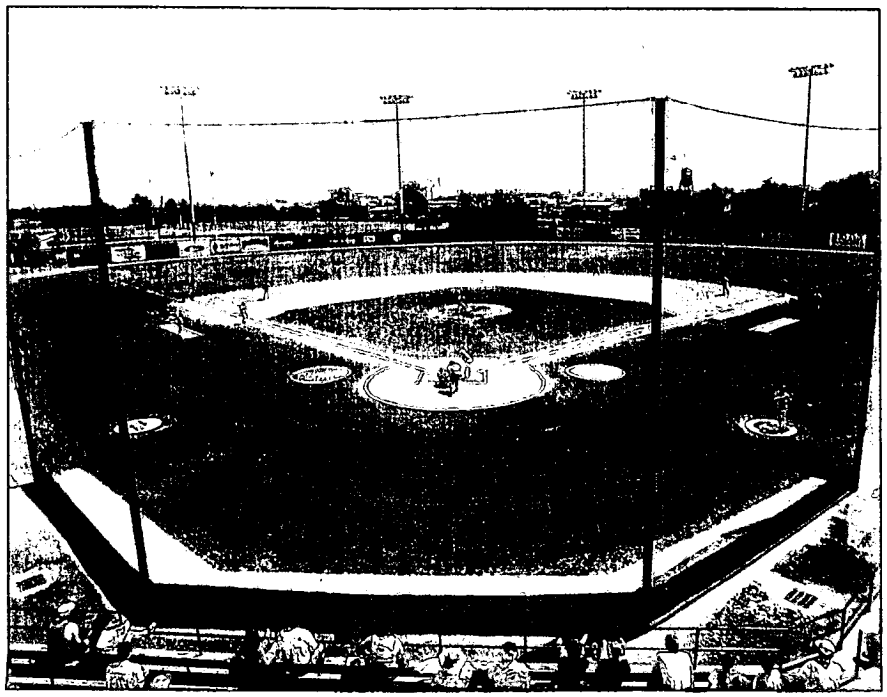
The Weems Baskin Track, Sam Daniel Tennis Stadium, varsity soccer field dubbed "The Graveyard" because it is adjacent to a cemetery, football practice fields, and a golf green and practice area, all maintained by Sarge Frye, are also part of the complex.

A field house containing indoor practice facilities for football, baseball, track, tennis and other sports was completed in 1991 and replaced a "Bubble" that was destroyed by Hurricane Hugo in 1989.

Sarge Frye Field was the site of the 1993 Southeastern Conference Eastern Division Baseball Tournament. Prior to that, the facility has hosted six NCAA regional baseball tournaments and the Metro Conference championship tournaments of 1987 and 1989. The South Carolina High School League often uses the facility for state championships and all-star games.

Dimensions are 330 feet at the left field foul pole, 360 feet in the power alleys, 390 feet in center field, and 320 feet at the right field foul pole.

A two tier press box was completed in 1987. A 10 foot chain link fence covered with windscreen surrounds the outfield and there is a large batter's background, 20 feet high and 40 feet wide, behind the center field fence. A computerized scoreboard and message center was installed in 1984. Sarge Frye Field is well lit for night baseball.



Sarge Frye Field is one of the best kept playing surfaces in the Southeastern Conference.

RAY TANNER TAKES OVER AS CAROLINA'S HEAD COACH

Head Coach Ray Tanner

Ray Tanner, one of the nation's most successful young coaches during nine years at North Carolina State and a three year affiliation with Team USA, was named South Carolina's 28th head baseball coach June 14, 1996, succeeding June Raines who resigned after 20 years at the Gamecock helm.

The 38 year old Tanner averaged nearly 44 wins per season between 1988 and 1996, compiling a 395-173-4 record at N. C. State, his alma mater. That's a winning percentage of .694. He led the Wolfpack to seven appearances in the NCAA post-season tournament and ranked as the second winningest coach in N. C. State history. He was the 1990 Atlantic Coast Conference Coach of the Year and in 1993 was named Atlantic Region Coach of the Year when his team won 49 games.

Tanner served as an assistant coach with the USA National Team in 1993, followed by a two-year stint, 1995-96, as an Olympic assistant with the team that represented the United States in the Games of the XXVI Olympiad in Atlanta during the summer of 1996.

In announcing Tanner's hiring at a news conference in Columbia, University of South Carolina Athletics Director Mike McGee said:

"We took a close look and talked with some outstanding baseball coaches during the search, and throughout the process, Ray Tanner's name kept rising to the top of our list. Coach Tanner comes to us with the highest of recommendations from respected baseball people across the country and his credentials are outstanding. We welcome him and his wife, Karen, to the Carolina family and we look forward to having him lead our baseball program."

Tanner was no stranger to some of the top coaches in the Southeastern Conference when he moved to the SEC. Skip Bertman, head coach at Louisiana State University, was head coach of Team USA and Mississippi State head coach Ron Polk, like Tanner, was a Team USA assistant under Bertman.

In commenting on Tanner's appointment, Bertman said, "Ray Tanner is one of the most outstanding young coaching talents in this country. The South Carolina fans will be very pleased. Ray has an incredible work ethic that is second to none. He has a tremendous knowledge of the game and really cares about his players. Dr. McGee and the University of South Carolina have made a great choice."

While he was head coach at N. C. State for nine seasons, Tanner was affiliated with the Wolfpack baseball program for more than 20 years. He came to the Raleigh campus in the fall of 1976 as a player following an outstanding career at South Johnston High School in Four Oaks, N. C. A four year starter at shortstop and third base, he earned All-Atlantic Coast Conference honors his senior season and still ranks among the Wolfpack's all-time leaders in several categories.

During his tenure as an assistant the Wolfpack reached the NCAA tournament twice. He had additional duties as assistant to the athletics director and as assistant athletics director in charge of game operations.

Tanner received the Bachelor of Arts degree in Recreational Administration from N. C. State in 1980, and the Master of Public Affairs, Public Administration in 1993.
