By the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board:

Upon further review of the file, it is noted that applicant, in her February 8, 2010 filing, has requested until five months from the date of that filing in which to submit specimens to be reviewed in connection with her request for reconsideration. Because the specimens are a critical part of applicant's request for reconsideration, there is no point in remanding the application to the examining attorney at this time.

Accordingly, the Board's April 15, 2010 order is vacated. As a result, jurisdiction over the application remains with the Board. Applicant is allowed until July 8, 2010 in which to either file a new request for remand that is accompanied by the specimens, or to file a supplemental appeal brief directed to the refusal in the June 15, 2009 Office action.
