However, contrary to the Examining Attorney's assertion, PRINTERQ is not merely descriptive of the goods in the application. As further described below, given the arbitrary inclusion of the letter "q," and the therefore fanciful nature of the term PRINTERQ, Applicant's Mark at most suggests some of the services provided under the software. Even if consumers were to ascribe some connotation to the Mark given the inclusion of the term "printer," the Mark as a whole has no definitive meaning or significance other than as a trademark.

As stated in its First Response, Applicant respectfully submits that the letter "q" in its mark is not an abbreviation for, a shorthand reference to, nor a phonetic misspelling of the word "queue." Applicant's inclusion of the letter "q" is arbitrary, and the "q" has no meaning as applied to the Mark.

In addition, as shown by the Examining Attorney's evidence, a "queue" when it comes to computers or printers is a line, a spool, a list of jobs waiting to be printed in turn. It is "a sequence of messages or jobs held in temporary storage awaiting transmission or processing." The software relating to printer queues appears to manage this line or spool of print jobs; they basically manage where and when the jobs in the queue will be printed (or perhaps identify the order of the printing).

Such software is different from Applicant's goods identified in the application. Applicant's software assists healthcare facilities with conversion to electronic records, by printing documents, managing online documents, converting paper documents to an electronic format, and sending and receiving faxes. Applicant's software does not relate to managing printer queues.

Moreover, the Examining Attorney states "[a] determination of whether a mark is merely descriptive is considered in relation to the identified goods and/or services, not in the abstract." Applicant agrees with the Examining Attorney on this point, and asks that the Examining Attorney note the identified goods do not include printer drivers or software that manages or relates to printer queues. When encountering Applicant's software offered under the PRINTERQ mark, consumers would not somehow believe that the software manages printer queues. Consumers using Applicant's software are in the healthcare industry, and use Applicant's products to aid in their conversion to and use of electronic records. They are not using Applicant's products to simply work with or manage printer queues.

B. Applicant's Mark Is At Least As Distinctive As Other Third-Party Marks Registered On the Principal Register Without A Disclaimer

A cursory search of the USPTO TESS database reveals other marks that contain single letters that are arguably "phonetic equivalents" of words that would related to words in the description of goods and services (perhaps suggestive or maybe even descriptive of such goods and services). In such cases, the marks were allowed registration on the Principal Register, without disclaimers. Applicant submits the following representative examples.

Mark	Reg. No.	Goods/Services
T-LEVL	3,193,055	"golf tee markers"
PRESS'T (Stylized)	3,619,528	"...tea bag squeezers" and "...tea"
SPECIAL.T (Stylized)	3,826,925	"tea, tea extracts..."
BRIGHTQ (Stylized)	2,944,052	"printer driver software and printer management software"

QCHECK	3,389,038	"...software for tracking project tasks and due dates, creating and maintaining status reports and preparing other reports in connection with project and task management"
QSTATUS	3,389,039	"...software for tracking project tasks and due dates, creating and maintaining status reports and preparing other reports in connection with project and task management"
I-PRO	3,354,324	"protective eyewear, namely, ballistic impact resistant safety glasses and goggles for combat use"
I. IMAGE	2,917,993	"optical goods, namely, reading glasses, optical frames and eyeglass cases"
C-MATES	3,420,371	"combination sunglasses and reading glasses"

See pages from USPTO TESS database attached hereto as an Exhibit.

Applicant respectfully submits that such marks are stronger examples of marks that contain phonetic equivalents of words, such as "I" for "eye," or "C" for "see," or "T," for "tee" or "tea," or "Q" for "queue." It seems apparent in the referenced examples that the marks in those cases really were choosing a letter to represent a word, and such use was not found to be descriptive. Accordingly, in the case where Applicant's arbitrarily chosen letter is not meant to be a phonetic equivalent of a word, would not be perceived by consumers encountering the goods under the Mark as representing a real word, and is not descriptive of the identified goods, Applicant's Mark should be considered as registrable as (if not more than) the referenced examples above.

CONCLUSION

Having responded fully to the Final Office Action, Applicant respectfully submits that the application is in condition for publication and registration, and hereby requests such actions.

Request for Reconsideration after Final Action

To the Commissioner for Trademarks:

Application serial no. 77803412 has been amended as follows:

ARGUMENT(S)

In response to the substantive refusal(s), please note the following:

PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF FINAL OFFICE ACTION

In response to the communication from the Examining Attorney dated June 11, 2010 (the "Final Office Action"), regarding the referenced matter, Applicant submits this Amendment and Response.

INFORMALITIES

Notice of Appeal

In addition to this Petition, Applicant also has filed a Notice of Appeal with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, dated December 13, 2010.

REMARKS

Section 2(e)(1) - Merely Descriptive Refusal

The Examining Attorney has maintained her refusal to register "PRINTERQ" (the "Mark") on the Principal Register on the asserted ground that the Mark merely describes a feature of Applicant's goods. As shown in its Response to Office Action (the "First Response") which is incorporated herein by reference, and as further evidenced below, the fanciful PRINTERQ mark does not merely describe the nature of Applicant's goods. Therefore, the mark is registrable and Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider the refusal.

A. Applicant's Mark Is Not Descriptive Of And Requires Consumer Imagination To Reach A Conclusion As To The Nature Of The Goods To Which It Is Applied.

The Examining Attorney asserts that the mark PRINTERQ is descriptive because (1) "the term 'q' is a phonetic misspelling of the word 'queue,' and (2) applicant is providing computer software that relates in some way to a printer. However, contrary to the Examining Attorney's assertion, PRINTERQ is not merely descriptive of the goods in the application. As further described below, given the arbitrary inclusion of the letter "q," and the therefore fanciful nature of the term PRINTERQ, Applicant's Mark at most suggests some of the services provided under the software. Even if consumers were to ascribe some connotation to the Mark given the inclusion of the term "printer," the Mark as a whole has no definitive meaning or significance other than as a trademark.

As stated in its First Response, Applicant respectfully submits that the letter "q" in its mark is not an abbreviation for, a shorthand reference to, nor a phonetic misspelling of the word "queue." Applicant's inclusion of the letter "q" is arbitrary, and the "q" has no meaning as applied to the Mark.

In addition, as shown by the Examining Attorney's evidence, a "queue" when it comes to computers or printers is a line, a spool, a list of jobs waiting to be printed in turn. It is "a sequence of messages or jobs held in temporary storage awaiting transmission or processing." The software relating to printer queues appears to manage this line or spool of print jobs; they basically manage where and when the jobs in the queue will be printed (or perhaps identify the order of the printing).

Such software is different from Applicant's goods identified in the application. Applicant's software assists healthcare facilities with conversion to electronic records, by printing documents, managing online documents, converting paper documents to an electronic format, and sending and receiving faxes. Applicant's software does not relate to managing printer queues.

Moreover, the Examining Attorney states "[a] determination of whether a mark is merely descriptive is considered in relation to the identified goods and/or services, not in the abstract." Applicant agrees with the Examining Attorney on this point, and asks that the Examining Attorney note the identified goods do not include printer drivers or software that manages or relates to printer queues. When encountering Applicant's software offered under the PRINTERQ mark, consumers would not somehow believe that the software manages printer queues. Consumers using Applicant's software are in the healthcare industry, and use Applicant's products to aid in their conversion to and use of electronic records. They are not using Applicant's products to simply work with or manage printer queues.

B. Applicant's Mark Is At Least As Distinctive As Other Third-Party Marks Registered On the Principal Register Without A Disclaimer

A cursory search of the USPTO TESS database reveals other marks that contain single letters that are arguably "phonetic equivalents" of words that would related to words in the description of goods and services (perhaps suggestive or maybe even descriptive of such goods and services). In such cases, the marks were allowed registration on the Principal Register, without disclaimers. Applicant submits the following representative examples.

Mark	Reg. No.	Goods/Services
T-LEVL	3,193,055	"golf tee markers"
PRESS'T (Stylized)	3,619,528	"...tea bag squeezers" and "...tea"
SPECIAL.T (Stylized)	3,826,925	"tea, tea extracts..."
BRIGHTQ (Stylized)	2,944,052	"printer driver software and printer management software"
QCHECK	3,389,038	"...software for tracking project tasks and due dates, creating and maintaining status reports and preparing other reports in connection with project and task management"
QSTATUS	3,389,039	"...software for tracking project tasks and due dates, creating and maintaining status reports and preparing other reports in connection with project and task management"
I-PRO	3,354,324	"protective eyewear, namely, ballistic impact resistant safety glasses and goggles for combat use"
I. IMAGE	2,917,993	"optical goods, namely, reading glasses, optical frames and eyeglass cases"
C-MATES	3,420,371	"combination sunglasses and reading glasses"

See pages from USPTO TESS database attached hereto as an Exhibit.

Applicant respectfully submits that such marks are stronger examples of marks that contain phonetic equivalents of words, such as "I" for "eye," or "C" for "see," or "T," for "tee" or "tea," or "Q" for "queue." It seems apparent in the referenced examples that the marks in those cases really were choosing a letter to represent a word, and such use was not found to be descriptive. Accordingly, in the case where Applicant's arbitrarily chosen letter is not meant to be a phonetic equivalent of a word, would not be perceived by consumers encountering the goods under the Mark as representing a real word, and is not descriptive of the identified goods, Applicant's Mark should be considered as registrable as (if not more than) the referenced examples above.

CONCLUSION

Having responded fully to the Final Office Action, Applicant respectfully submits that the application is in condition for publication and registration, and hereby requests such actions.
