Amy Matelski, Paralegal Specialist

On March 17, 2005, applicant filed its appeal brief.

On July 26, 2004, the Board sent applicant a notice acknowledging receipt of its notice of appeal, and indicating that applicant's appeal brief was due by September 23, 2004.

The Board has no record of a timely request to extend the time for applicant to file its appeal brief.

Accordingly, applicant is allowed until twenty days from the date of mailing in which to provide an explanation as to why its appeal brief is late. If no explanation is received, or if the Board deems the explanation to be insufficient, then the appeal brief will be given no consideration.
