Springtime in London means Kate isn't going to be able to hide that cute baby bump of hers under fabulous coats for very much longer. According to People Magazine, (cover story on Kate's pregnancy week), Kate is feeling great and taking on lots of projects before the baby comes. Ahh, the second/third trimester energy streak. I'm excited because this means we will get to see lots more of her baby bump fashion in upcoming weeks. I have a feeling she will be rocking wrap dresses. They tuck you in in all the right places and they are very flattering of the bump, as well.

#10 Princess Kate in Alexander McQueen

Kate donned one of her most elegant looks to date, a black strapless velvet gown by Alexander McQueen with accenting jewels received as wedding gifts. Prince William escorting her is pretty dashing in a tux too!
