I reckon them's were the days before open and shared lists, 'nger'. So if he/she listed 8 and only has 4 on a single list, proly ghosties. Edit: and words on his/her profile!

peteyk also added fish and a word that is actually a sentence with no spaces to their list of 4 words. An eclectic mix? Made a comment on TooHotty's profile ('nice words') and added 4 words, presumably to other lists. Then 'doesn't appear to have done anything recently'. It would be interesting to know those other 4 words?

Still one of the best fucking words around, is fuck. I once saw a t-shirt that said "[Fuck you], you fucking fuck." Hard to find any other words quite as versatile. Also, one of my favorite language-arts books is "English as a Second F*cking Language." Cabbagee, I'm afraid it was never true that one had to ask permission of some third party, let alone one's monarch, to have intercourse. (I hank tucking heaven.)

I thought the word was from when you had to get permission to have intercourse (because you were only supposed to if you wanted children) and you had to hang a sign on your door while you were saying Fornication Under Consent of the King. I don't know if that's correct though, I read it on a radom facts website XD display a glimmer of the creativity shown by a fellow soldier in my Army days. The jeep he was driving broke down. Looking under the hood, he needed only four words to pronounce the vehicle beyond repair. The first was 'the,' followed

Bad Words, Overused, Can Lose Their Sting (New York Times, 05/16/08): The most surprising thing about Sue Simmons's unbleeped blooper the other night is that anyone in this city even noticed. You may have read about her unfortunate slip. Ms. Simmons, a news anchor on WNBC-TV, tried to get the Feedback of her longtime partner, Chuck Scarborough, by asking him, "What are you doing? Only she did not realize that they were live on the air. And she didn't quite say "What are you doing? She inserted two words between "what" and "are." One of those words was "the." Sorry to be coy about the other one, but it is not allowed to be printed here. Rules are rules. If you can't figure out what it is, you have not been in New York very long — like less than four minutes. Despite a certain amount of twitter over this incident, it seems that both the republic and Ms. Simmons will survive. "She'll continue to be on the air," said a WNBC spokeswoman, Susan Kiel. The reality is that this vulgar word has been tossed about with such abandon in public for so many years that Feedback ers tend to tune it out. Its endless, and mindless, repetition left them numb long ago. By now, the word is no longer shocking, just tedious.
