The Examining Attorney has refused registration of the mark AIRWEDGE for "inflatable pillows for moving patients during intubation" on the basis that the mark is allegedly merely descriptive and that the composite mark does not create a unique, incongruous or nondescriptive meaning in relation to the goods. Applicant respectfully disagrees for the reasons discussed below. In addition, the Examiner has requested information about Applicant's product, and Applicant herein submits product information at the attached Exhibit A.

Applicant's mark is not descriptive

A mark is considered to be "merely descriptive" if it immediately imparts information concerning those goods and/or services to an average prospective purchaser of the goods and/or services. In re Intelligent Medical Systems, Inc., 5 U.S.P.Q.2d 1674 (T.T.A.B. 1987). A mark is considered suggestive and not merely descriptive if imagination, thought or perception is required to reach a conclusion as to the nature of the goods or services. In re Application of Quik-Print Copy Shops, Inc., 616 F.2d 523, 205 U.S.P.Q. 505 (C.C.P.A. 1980); Maidenform, Inc. v. Munsingwear, Inc., 195 U.S.P.Q. 297 (S.D.N.Y. 1977) (mark UNDERNEATH IT ALL for ladies undergarments is suggestive because the "words do more than convey an immediate idea of the ingredients, qualities or characteristics" of the undergarments.). See also In re Wells Fargo & Co., 231 U.S.P.Q. 116 (T.T.A.B. 1986) (holding an exercise of "mental gymnastics" is required to determine the descriptive significance of the mark EXPRESS SAVINGS, for banking services). "[A] mark that connotes two meanings - one possibly descriptive, and the other suggestive of some other association - can be called suggestive, as the mark is not 'merely' descriptive." 2 McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition § 11:19 (4th ed.). See also TMEP 1209.03(d) and 1213.05(c). Thus, if one must exercise "mature thought or follow a multi-stage reasoning process" to determine the attributes of the product or service, the term is suggestive. See 2 J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition § 11:67 (2004).

Here, Applicant's use of the mark AIRWEDGE does not immediately describe a characteristic or quality of the underlying goods. Applicant's good is an inflatable pillow used to move a patient during intubation. Certainly the characteristics of these goods are not immediately apparent from Applicant's mark AIRWEDGE, without the exercise of mental gymnastics. See In re Southern National Bank of North Carolina, 219 U.S.P.Q. 1231 (T.T.A.B. 1983) (holding that the mark MONEY 24 did not immediately describe services for accessing one's money by use of an ATM machine on a 24-hour basis). As the Wells Fargo and Southern National Bank cases illustrate, a mark requiring "mental gymnastics" elevates a mark from merely descriptive to suggestive. Using "mental gymnastics" can lead a consumer viewing the mark to arrive at different interpretations for the mark, but certainly a consumer is not going to view the mark and know that it is used to move patients during intubation.

Moreover, in concluding that Applicant's mark is descriptive of the goods, it seems that the Examining Attorney failed to view Applicant's mark in its entirety. Since the combination of two or more descriptive elements of a composite mark may result in a unitary mark which is non-descriptive, a mark must be considered in its entirety to determine its distinctiveness. See Q-Tips, Inc. v. Johnson & Johnson, 206 F.2d 144 (3d Cir. 1953), cert. denied, 346 U.S. 867 (U.S. 1953); In re Automatic Radio Mfg. Co., 404 F.2d 1391, 1395 (C.C.P.A. 1969). As demonstrated by the Examining Attorney's separate analysis of the terms "air" and "wedge," the Examining Attorney has dissected the elements of Applicant's mark and found the component parts descriptive. The test, however, is whether the composite mark, in its entirety, is capable of registration. See In re Hester Industries, Inc., 230 U.S.P.Q. 797, n.5 (T.T.A.B. 1986) (THIGHSTIX for boneless chicken parts held not to be a descriptive composite); In re Colonial Stores, Inc., 394 F.2d 549 (C.C.P.A. 1968) (SUGAR & SPICE for bakery products resulted in a composite mark that could not be said to be merely descriptive).

Viewed in its entirety, Applicant's AIRWEDGE mark creates a unitary mark with a separate, nondescriptive meaning, such that it is entitled to registration. As such, the mark is suggestive of a pillow used to move a patient during intubation.

Below are examples of registrations and/applications on the Principal register (with no claim of acquired distinctiveness) for marks that include the terms "AIR" or "WEDGE" for same and/or related goods as Applicant's goods, but where the PTO did not seek a disclaimer nor refuse registration based on descriptiveness. Herein attached at Exhibit B are the PTO TSDR information for each mark identified in the chart above.

The fact that the PTO registered a number of marks containing the same designation without requiring proof of secondary meaning is evidence that the PTO considers the designation not descriptive. See J. Thomas McCarthy, 2 McCarthy on Trademarks § 11:69 (4th ed. 1999, Rev. 3/2008); Boringquen Biscuit Corp. v. M.V. Trading Corp., 443 F.3d 112 (1st Cir. 2006).

The following noteworthy points can be summarized from the marks above:

- The majority of these marks are composite marks that clearly create a unique unitary mark, i.e., AIRFLO; AIRSTACK; AIRCELL; AIRWEAVE, etc.
- Many of the registrations/applications have the term “air” or “inflate” in the description of goods, and still no disclaimer was required.
- Separating the elements of these marks (although impermissible) and investigating the underlying goods, one could argue that almost all of the marks listed above are descriptive. For example:

- AirWeave is 90% air and a 3-D minute fiber weaving structure keeps it dry. See: Exhibit C.
- AirFlo “allows for unobstructed air flow and enhances the mattress”. See Exhibit D.
- AirPods is an “air transfer mattress system” and “comprises of an array of multitudinal air collection, distribution and expulsion chambers known as PODS.” See Exhibit E.
- AirLite is an “air support pad” and is “only two pounds” “continues the tradition of lightweight products.” See Exhibit F.
- AirForm is an “adjustable air bladder” that provides “a custom fit and offers focused compression”, which means it ‘forms’ around the person. See Exhibit G.

Although each case must be decided on its own merits, the United State Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit encourages uniform treatment of trademark applications. See In re Nett Designs, Inc., 57 USPQ2d 1564, 1566 (Fed. Cir. 2001) (“Needless to say, this court encourages the PTO to achieve a uniform standard for assessing registrability of marks”). If the foregoing marks were allowed to register on the Principal register, without a disclaimer or a requirement to prove acquired distinctiveness, the subject mark should be permitted to register as well.

It is the Board’s practice to resolve any doubts as to whether a mark is merely descriptive in favor of the Applicant. See In re Platinum Technology, Inc., 1998 WL 663302 (PTO), at *3 (TTAB Sept. 18, 1998) (invoking rule that doubt as to whether a mark is merely descriptive should be resolved in favor of the Applicant, and finding that PLATINUM INTEGRATOR is not descriptive for computer software that ties computer applications together); In re Shutts, 217 U.S.P.Q. 363, 364 (TTAB 1983) (invoking rule that doubt as to whether a mark is merely descriptive should be resolved in favor of the Applicant, and finding that SNO-RAKE is not descriptive for a snow removal hand tool). Accordingly, Applicant requests that any doubt as to whether AIRWEDGE is descriptive be decided in Applicant’s favor. When the mark is published, any person who has a legitimate interest in the mark “AIRWEDGE” may oppose. Accordingly, Applicant requests that the AIRWEDGE mark be allowed to register on the Principal Register.

In the alternative, if the Examiner continues to refuse registration based on descriptiveness, the Applicant should be allowed to amend its application to the Supplemental Register.

Favorable action is respectfully requested.

AirWedge™ Adjustable Positioning Device

The AirWedge is an inflatable device used to adjust the position of the head, neck and chest of a supine patient for convenient and efficient use in any patient care setting. The dual chamber design allows the patient's head and chest to be adjusted separately, making it easier to achieve ear to sternal notch positioning regardless of the patient's body type.

Additional features and benefits of the AirWedge:

- Two chamber design provides maximum adjustability of head, neck and chest
- Low profile allows deflated product to be left underneath the patient when not in use
- Separate inflation/deflation valves located on either side of the head chamber offer easy access for independent inflation and adjustment of the head and chest chambers
- Heat-sealed construction and a microbial-controlling nylon fabric facilitate cleaning and minimize infection risk
- HT-Air[®] 1200 (or HT-Air[®] 2300) Air Supply delivers variable speed inflation for optimal patient stability and precise positioning
- Weight limit of 800 lbs. accommodates most patients

Total Pressure Management®

Maceration Resistance

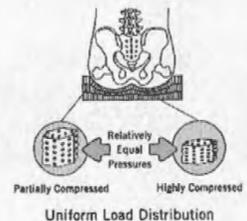

Skin maceration is softening of the skin as a result of continual exposure to heat and bodily fluids or moisture. Severely softened or macerated skin is less tolerant of pressure and can lead to breakdown. Stimulite honeycomb is perforated, enabling air to circulate and moisture to evaporate which helps maintain skin integrity. The "footprint" of the honeycomb cells and their flexing action stimulates blood flow to enhance circulation.

Complete Ventilation System

Pressure Relief plus Positioning

Stimulite honeycomb relieves pressure by distributing it away from hot spots. As a result, bony protuberances "feel" the same pressure as the surrounding anatomy. The honeycomb cells conform to body shape, and distribute weight uniformly. Additionally, Stimulite honeycomb stabilizes any position due to the axial buttressing of the honeycomb cell walls perpendicular to the anatomy.

Uniform Load Distribution

Shear Force Reduction

The horizontal stiffness of a material determines both its shear resistance and stability. Too much stiffness increases shear forces, while too little decreases stability. Stimulite honeycomb minimizes shearing without sacrificing stability. The honeycomb cells align themselves axially to the body, flex with movement to reduce shear forces against the skin and then instantaneously resume their original shape.

Air Pod™

Single Patient Use
Lateral Air Transfer System

Reduce the risk associated with patient handling and movement

Protect your caregivers and reduce injury costs with the Air Pod™, a single patient use, disposable lateral air transfer mattress system from RecoverCare. The system pushes air through the silicon coated Base Fabric of the perforated mattress, creating a cushion of air, which allows one or two caregivers to easily transfer or reposition the patient. The air cushion greatly reduces the amount of force necessary in lateral patient transfer, thus reducing risk of caregiver injury.

FEATURES & BENEFITS

EASE OF USE:

With the pre-set AIR FLOATATION component, just put the AirLITE cushion in the wheelchair and enhance alignment, comfort and durability. No adjustment necessary.

COMFORT:

By combining a contoured, anatomical-shaped foam with a pre-set sealed AIR FLOATATION component, the AirLITE enables individuals to sit comfortably for an extended time. AirLITE's technology and design provides the comfort individuals want and the support they need.

POSITIONING:

The contoured shape of the AirLITE cushion provides individuals with support for basic positioning needs. Leg (knee) troughs and an ischial well provide support for lower extremity control and stability.

LIGHTWEIGHT:

Weighing only 2 lbs (1kg), AirLITE is a lightweight cushion that makes a mobility system easier to propel and transport.

FLUID RESISTANT:

The breathable, fluid resistant cover protects the cushion from fluids, odor and is machine washable.

SECURITY:

The non-skid bottom of the AirLITE's cover increases security of the cushion not moving in the wheelchair.

The ROHO® AirLITE® Cushion (AirLITE) is a wheelchair support surface with a non-adjustable, segmented ROHO AIR FLOATATION insert encased within contoured foam. The AirLITE is intended for individuals who weigh 275 lbs (125 kg)* or less and who may require positioning while seated. The AirLITE is intended to be used with the supplied cover.
