Applicant: Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC

Serial No. 87952453

Mark:

REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION

After submission of argument and evidence by Applicant, the Examining Attorney has refused registration of the applied-for trade dress (“Mark”) on the basis that “the applied-for mark would not be perceived as a service mark but only as decoration or ornamentation.”

I. A FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT HAS FOUND APPLICANT’S MARK IS LIKELY INHERENTLY DISTINCTIVE.

In Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC v. Ruth Farm Inc., No. 4:19-CV-00067, 2019 WL 1560442 (E.D. Tex. Apr. 10, 2019), a federal district Judge, on a fully developed evidentiary record, found that Applicant would likely succeed in establishing that its trade dress for the White Sparrow venue was inherently distinctive. Ex. 1. In Sparrow Barns, Applicant sought a preliminary injunction against a Defendant that willfully replicated its trade dress. A preliminary injunction is an “extraordinary remedy” in federal court and because it serves as such extraordinary relief, Plaintiffs seeking to obtain a preliminary injunction have a very high burden of proof. See Texans for Free Enter. V. Tex. Ethics Comm’n, 732 F.3d 535, 536 (5th Cir. 2013). A plaintiff seeking preliminary injunctive relief must satisfy its burden of demonstrating a “substantial likelihood of success” to the district court on each element of its claim. Id. (emphasis added).

In Sparrow Barns, Applicant moved for preliminary injunctive relief on its trade dress infringement claim. To succeed, Plaintiff was required to demonstrate a substantial likelihood of success on each element of its trade dress infringement claim, including ownership of legally protectable trade dress, to the Court. 15 U.S.C.A. § 1051 et. seq. Applicant submitted argument and evidence to the district court that its trade dress was inherently distinctive.

After review of the record and hearing on the matter, the district court found that, “[l]ike the trade dress in Two Pesos, Sparrow Barns can likely show that the trade dress of the Grand Hall is inherently distinctive because its intrinsic nature serves to identify its source as The White Sparrow.” Sparrow Barns, 2019 WL 1560442, at *5 (emphasis added). The burden on Plaintiff in securing its preliminary injunction in federal district court was substantially higher than that of seeking registration of its mark before the USPTO.

After noting that it believed Plaintiff had satisfied its burden of demonstrating a substantial likelihood of success that its trade dress was inherently distinctive, the district court continued, holding that even if Plaintiff could not establish inherent distinctiveness (though the Court believed it could), Plaintiff had satisfied its burden that its trade dress had acquired secondary meaning, meaning that the mark “denote[s] to consumer[s] a single thing coming from a single source.” Sparrow Barns, 2019 WL 1560442 at *6. Thus, the Court found that consumers do indeed associate the trade dress of Applicant with its services. Id.

The Examining Attorney’s final refusal states that “[a] mark is inherently distinctive if its intrinsic nature serves to identify a particular source” (citing Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Samara Bros., Inc., 529 U.S. 205, 210, 54 USPQ2d 1065, 1068 (2000)). The federal court in Sparrow Barns reviewing Applicant’s mark found that “its intrinsic nature serves to identify its source as The White Sparrow.” Sparrow Barns, 2019 WL 1560442, at *5 (emphasis added). Thus, Applicant's mark is inherently distinctive and Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider its refusal and permit the mark to proceed to registration.

II. THE SEABROOK FACTORS SHOW APPLICANT'S MARK IS INHERENTLY DISTINCTIVE.

The Seabrook factors include whether the mark is (1) a "common" basic shape or design, (2) whether it is unique or unusual in a particular field, (3) whether it is a mere refinement of a commonly-adopted and well-known form of ornamentation for a particular class of goods viewed by the public as a dress or ornamentation for the goods, or (4) whether it is capable of creating a commercial impression distinct from the accompanying words. Seabrook Foods, Inc. v. Bar-Well Foods Ltd., 568 F.2d 1342, 1344 (C.C.P.A. 1977).

There is nothing common about the design of The White Sparrow. When viewing trade dress, it is the totality of the elements that are reviewed and not individual elements in isolation. With trade dress, the question is "whether the combination of features creates a distinctive visual impression, identifying the source of the product." Pebble Beach Co. v. Tour 18 I, 155 F.3d 526, 536 (5th Cir. 1998) (citation omitted) (emphasis added).

Here, the entire Grand Hall has been whitewashed, which is far from a common design. Most venues do not whitewash the entire space. Indeed, not a single barn photograph attached to the Examining Attorney's Final Refusal nor the barn photographs attached to the first Office Action show a single whitewashed interior. To the contrary, they all depict barns with stained brown or natural wood.

Furthermore, the large, decorative framed columns connecting the lateral framed beams along the ceiling are an atypical design. The minimal, decorative column design differs greatly from those cited by the Examining Attorney. Numerous barns attached to the Examining Attorney's Office Actions actually show a curved design or a design with trusses inset, such as raised post or queen post. This is not the trade dress of the White Sparrow. None of the attached barns show the whitewashed lateral exposed columns connected to the framed vaulted ceiling beams. Combined with the tiered candelabra chandeliers and the stacked window arrangement, the combination of elements used in the White Sparrow's trade dress is far from common.

The second factor of the Seabrook test inquires "whether the design, shape or combination of elements is so unique, unusual or unexpected in this market that one can assume without proof that it will automatically be perceived by customers as an indicator of origin—a trademark." Spark Indus., LLC v. Kretek Int'l, Inc., No. CV 14-5726-GW ASX, 2014 WL 4365736, at *7 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 28, 2014) (quoting J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks & Unfair Competition § 8:13 (4th ed.)). Here, the trade dress of White Sparrow is unique in its field. The attached evidence in Applicant's first Office Action response and this Response clearly demonstrate that consumers instantly associate the trade dress of White Sparrow with White Sparrow, with many labeling the venue as famous and iconic. The attached evidence actually demonstrates consumers and wedding industry professionals labeling the venue and its style as "unique." Ex. 2.

Lastly, the trade dress of White Sparrow is not a mere refinement of or variation on existing trade dress within the wedding industry. The White Sparrow was the first venue of its kind in the entire United States. It is the original white rustic elegance wedding barn. As an initial matter, the majority of the venues in the Examining Attorney's Office Actions were constructed after the White Sparrow; thus, White Sparrow's trade dress is no mere refinement or variation on the existing trade dress examples cited. For example, The Gambrel Barn cited in the Final Refusal was only in construction in late 2015. Again, whitewashing an entire venue is simply not a common design theme or refinement or variation of an existing trade dress. The White Sparrow created its own trade dress. Though others may seek to emulate the White Sparrow (a factor which strongly favors secondary meaning), the fact remains that White Sparrow created a protectable trade dress which, when viewed in combination and not isolation, is instantly recognizable to consumers as the White Sparrow.

III. APPLICANT'S MARK HAS ACQUIRED DISTINCTIVENESS.

Even if the Examining Attorney refuses reconsideration in finding that Applicant's mark is not inherently distinctive, Applicant's mark has acquired distinctiveness. In determining whether a mark has acquired secondary meaning, advertising expenditures and sales success; length and exclusivity of use; unsolicited media coverage; copying of the mark by the defendant; and consumer studies may be considered. Coach Servs. Inc. v. Triumph Learning LLC, 668 F.3d 1356, 101 USPQ2d 1713, 1729 (Fed. Cir. 2012) (citing In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 1300, 75 USPQ2d 1420 (Fed. Cir. 2005)).

One of the most prevalent indicators of secondary meaning here is that the White Sparrow's Grand Hall is continually the subject of a plethora of unsolicited media coverage. For example, the White Sparrow has been consistently voted one of the Best Wedding Venues in America. See, e.g., Ex. 3. The venue was featured in Country Living Magazines "30 Most Beautiful Barns for Weddings." Ex. 4. Fodors named the White Sparrow one of the "Dreamiest Venues for a Rustic Destination Wedding in the U.S." Ex. 5 ("...where delicate chandeliers hang from the whitewashed beams inside..."). The venue's Grand Hall was featured in Martha Stewart Weddings. Ex. 6. Venue Report named it "One of the Most Stunning Barns" in America in 2017 and used the Grand Hall's trade dress as the feature image for its article. Ex. 7. The White Sparrow has been named a "Best of the South" wedding venue. Ex. 8. Green Weddings awarded the venue as "One of the 17 Coolest Barns to Get Married at in the United States" and prominently featured The Grand Hall. Ex. 9. Magnolia Rouge featured White Sparrow as "one of the best wedding venues in the country." Ex. 10. Furthermore, the White Sparrow is routinely referred to as "famous" and "iconic" in online media articles. Ex. 11.

Copying of the mark by a Defendant is evidence of secondary meaning and is present in this matter. White Sparrow was forced to file a federal lawsuit after The Ruth Farm, Inc., intentionally copied its trade dress. As Judge Mazzant noted, “success often attracts imitation...” See Ex.1. In the Order Granting Plaintiff’s Motion for Injunctive Relief, Judge Mazzant found that “[t]here is evidence that Ruth Farm intended to copy the White Sparrow’s trade dress...”. Id. Evidence of a defendant’s copying is evidence of secondary meaning.

Additionally, the attached Declaration of Nadia Ramos, a managing member of Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC, demonstrates that The White Sparrow spends substantial time, labor, and money on advertising. See Decl. of Nadia Ramos. The venue expends, at a minimum, $70,000 per year on advertising expenditures. Id. Ms. Ramos explains in her Declaration that the best form of advertisement for the wedding venue is social media, which does not entail a paid expenditure. The White Sparrow has enjoyed vast success in its social media advertising efforts. For example, the White Sparrow’s Pinterest page receives nearly one million views per month. Id. It’s social media accounts have over 34,000 followers. Id.

It is well settled that “an applicant need not conclusively establish distinctiveness but need only establish a ‘prima facie case’ to warrant publication.” In re Capital Formation Counselors, Inc., 219 U.S.P.Q. 916, 919 (emphasis added). Applicant has established its prima facie case and respectfully requests that its application be approved for publication and that registration issue for its mark.

CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, Applicant respectfully requests the refusals be withdrawn and that Applicant’s mark proceed to registration.

EASTERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
SHERMAN DIVISION

SPARROW BARNS & EVENTS, LLC §
v. § Civil Action No. 4:19-CV-00067
 § Judge Mazzant
THE RUTH FARM INC. §

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Pending before the Court is Plaintiff Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC’s (“Sparrow Barns”) Emergency Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction (Dkt. #3). Having considered the motion and the relevant pleadings, the Court finds that the motion should be granted.

BACKGROUND

I. The White Sparrow

Sparrow Barns is owned and operated by the Huerta and Ramos families. Nadia Ramos dreamed of a custom-designed barn that could be used as a wedding and events venue. Nadia Ramos and her mother, Wanna Huerta, began developing plans for a venue in 2012. After completing the plans, Nadia’s father, John Huerta—a general contractor—constructed the venue in Quinlan, Texas sometime between 2012 and 2014. The family named the venue the White Sparrow. Sparrow Barns is the official owner of the White Sparrow.

The White Sparrow is not simply a traditional barn used for weddings and events. Inside the White Sparrow is the Grand Hall. The Grand Hall is framed like a traditional barn but includes vaulted ceiling beams and wrapped vertical columns (Dkt. #3 at p. 10). Lighting the Grand Hall are “ornate, tiered candelabra chandeliers” and a “selective back wall window design.” (Dkt. #3 at p. 10). The walls of the Grand Hall are “rustically whitewashed” from floor to ceiling (Dkt. #3 at p. 10). Due to the unique aesthetic of the White Sparrow, Nadia Ramos and Wanna Huerta sought copyright registration for the White Sparrow (Dkt. #3 at p. 3). On August 15, 2015, the United States Copyright Office issued a Certificate of Registration for the White Sparrow as an architectural work (Dkt. #3-5).

Since its opening in 2014, the White Sparrow gained a reputation in the wedding industry. Publications recognize the White Sparrow for its design, and the White Sparrow has been voted one of the best wedding venues in the United States (Dkt. #3 at p. 3). Additionally, couples travel from across the United States, and other parts of the world, to host their weddings in the White Sparrow while certain celebrities and large corporations use the White Sparrow for commercial photography shoots (Dkt. #3 at p. 1). As a result, Sparrow Barns accumulated significant business from the White Sparrow and gained substantial customer goodwill (Dkt. #3 at p. 3). But success often attracts imitation, and the success of the White Sparrow appears to have attracted the attention of another Texas family.

II. The Nest

Sparrow Barns alleges that on June 29, 2016, Courtney Wood contacted Sparrow Barns requesting a tour of the White Sparrow for her upcoming wedding (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). Sparrow Barns arranged for Courtney Wood and her parents, Christopher and Lawanna Thompson, to take a private, guided tour of the venue on July 14, 2016 (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). During the tour, Courtney Wood and her parents took multiple photographs and hand-written notes (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). Christopher Thompson also reportedly left the tour to view other areas of the venue before a Sparrow Barns manager asked him to rejoin the tour (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). A few months later, someone from the Thompson family contacted Sparrow Barns to ask about payment options and discounts (Dkt. #3 at p. 5).

On February 19, 2017, Sparrow Barns held an open house for the public and interested vendors to view the White Sparrow (Dkt. #3 at p. 5). Christopher and Lawanna Thompson attended the open house (Dkt. #3 at p. 5). Learning that John Huerta was a general contractor, Christopher Thompson asked John Huerta detailed questions about the construction of the White Sparrow (Dkt. #3 at p. 5). Later, Nadia Ramos found Christopher Thompson in a closed-off area of the White Sparrow and asked him to leave (Dkt. #3 at p. 5).

Sparrow Barns subsequently learned that Christopher and Lawanna Thompson were owners of Defendant the Ruth Farm Inc. (“Ruth Farm”) (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). In 2017, Ruth Farm began constructing another avian-themed wedding and events barn in Ponder, Texas—about ninety miles northwest of the White Sparrow (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). Ruth Farm called its venue the Nest (Dkt. #3 at p. 4). Sparrow Barns provides a picture-to-picture comparison of the White Sparrow and the Nest:

The White Sparrow

The Nest

(Dkt. #1-2; Dkt. #1-4; Dkt. #3 at pp. 14–15).

III. Notice

As Ruth Farm planned and constructed the Nest, it released concept photographs of the venue (Dkt. #3 at p. 6). After the release of the photographs, Sparrow Barns received questions from customers and vendors asking whether it was the owner of the Nest or whether it granted permission for Ruth Farm to build the Nest (Dkt. #3 at p. 6).

Anthony Ramos—a Sparrow Barns manager—called the Nest to inform its owners that the White Sparrow was protected by copyright and trade dress law (Dkt. #3-3). Whitney Wood, another daughter of Christopher and Lawanna Thompson, answered the call. Whitney Wood explained to Anthony Ramos that she knew of the White Sparrow but did not know it was protected by law (Dkt. #3-3 ¶ 11). Whitney Wood also explained that the Thompsons “tried to make changes” to their venue before construction, but would talk to the builder again (Dkt. #3-3 at ¶¶ 11–12).¹

Days later, Christopher Thompson called Anthony Ramos. Christopher Thompson told Anthony Ramos never to call and threaten his daughter again (Dkt. #3-3 ¶¶ 13–17). Anthony Ramos explained that he did not threaten Whitney Woody, but called to inform her of the intellectual property violations (Dkt. #3-3 ¶¶ 13–17). Christopher Thompson then called Anthony Ramos “dumb” and stated, “you can’t copyright a barn.” (Dkt. #3-3 ¶ 17). Anthony Ramos responded that you can copyright a barn and “we go after venues who try to copy us.” (Dkt. #3-3 ¶ 17). Christopher Thompson then threatened to drive to the White Sparrow and “kick [Anthony Ramos’s] a[].” (Dkt. #3-3 ¶ 18).

IV. Legal Action

Sparrow Barns indicates that after the construction of the Nest, customer confusion grew. Specifically, social media users began mistaking the White Sparrow for the Nest in their comments on and tags of the venues (Dkt. #3 at p. 7). Sparrow Barns also began receiving inquiries from vendors who confused the venues (Dkt. #3 at p. 7).

On June 28, 2017, Sparrow Barns sent a cease-and-desist letter to Ruth Farm urging Ruth Farm to cease its copyright and trade dress infringement (Dkt. #3 at p. 7). Ruth Farm responded denying any infringement (Dkt. #3 at p. 7). Sparrow Barns replied outlining specific acts of infringement (Dkt. #3 at p. 8). Ruth Farm did not respond to Sparrow Barns’ second letter.

After receiving no response to its second letter, Sparrow Barns filed suit against Ruth Farm in this Court on August 10, 2016 (the “First Suit”). Sparrow Barns & Events LLC v. Ruth

1. Christopher Thompson admits in his Declaration, “Lawanna [Thompson] and I were working on a barn-themed events venue and did take inspiration from the White Sparrow after visiting.” (Dkt. #11-1 ¶ 3).

Farm Inc., 4:17-CV-558-KPJ. On April 17, 2018, the parties mediated the case and reached a compromise (Dkt. #3 at p. 8). In the following Settlement Agreement, Ruth Farm agreed to make certain changes to the Nest by January 1, 2019, and to notify Sparrow Barns within seven days of completing the changes (Dkt. #3 at p. 8; Dkt. #7). Sparrow Barns agreed to release its claims after confirming Ruth Farm completed the changes (Dkt. #3 at p. 8; Dkt. #7).

V. Back to Court

Sparrow Barns filed this suit against Ruth Farm on January 30, 2019 (“Second Suit”) (Dkt. #1). Sparrow Barns alleges that Ruth Farm did not comply with the Settlement Agreement. Sparrow Barns reasserts its claims from the First Suit along with a breach of contract claim. Ruth Farm filed an answer to the Second Suit on March 29, 2019 (Dkt. #15).

Before Ruth Farm filed its answer, Sparrow Barns filed the motion at issue on February 18, 2019 (Dkt. #3). Sparrow Barns requests the Court enjoin Ruth Farm from:

- (a) . . . from selling, offering for sale, distributing or advertising in commerce its services displaying the trade dress owned by [Sparrow Barns] and (b) must remove from commerce any advertisement or offer to sale in commerce its services displaying the trade dress owned by [Sparrow Barns] on its website, social media, and accounts with third parties.

(Dkt. #3-19).

The Court set a hearing on the motion for March 1, 2019, and ordered Sparrow Barns to serve the order setting the hearing on Ruth Farm (Dkt. #6). The Court then reset the hearing for March 11, 2019 (Dkt. #9). Despite service and the resetting, Ruth Farm filed a response to the motion only seventeen minutes before the hearing (Dkt. #11). At the hearing, the Court allowed both parties to argue the motion and present evidence (Dkt. #12). The Court then provided Sparrow Barns a week to file a reply to the motion and denied Ruth Farm’s request to amend its response (Dkt. #12). Sparrow Barns filed its reply on March 15, 2019 (Dkt. #13).

LEGAL STANDARD

When an opposing party receives adequate notice of, and an opportunity to be heard on, a motion for a temporary restraining order, the procedure that follows does not functionally differ from that of an application for a preliminary injunction. See Harris Cty., Tex. v. CarMax Auto Superstores Inc., 177 F.3d 306, 326 (5th Cir. 1999); Dilworth v. Riner, 343 F.2d 226, 229 (5th Cir. 1965) (citation omitted); Empower Texans, Inc. v. Nodolf, 306 F. Supp. 3d 961, 965 (W.D. Tex. 2018) (citing Dilworth, 343 F.2d at 229); Jaroy Constr., Inc. v. La. State Licensing Bd. for Contractors, CIV.A. 10-958, 2010 WL 1254717, at *1 (E.D. La. Mar. 24, 2010) (citation omitted). A party seeking a preliminary injunction must establish the following elements: (1) a substantial likelihood of success on the merits; (2) a substantial threat that plaintiffs will suffer irreparable harm if the injunction is not granted; (3) that the threatened injury outweighs any damage that the injunction might cause the defendant; and (4) that the injunction will not disserve the public interest. Nichols v. Alcatel USA, Inc., 532 F.3d 364, 372 (5th Cir. 2008). “A preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy and should only be granted if the plaintiffs have clearly carried the burden of persuasion on all four requirements.” Id. Nevertheless, a movant “is not required to prove its case in full at a preliminary injunction hearing.” Fed. Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Dixon, 835 F.2d 554, 558 (5th Cir. 1985) (quoting Univ. of Tex. v. Comenisch, 451 U.S. 390, 395 (1981)). The decision whether to grant a preliminary injunction lies within the sound discretion of the district court. Weinberger v. Romero-Barcelo, 456 U.S. 305, 320 (1982).

ANALYSIS

The Court ordered Sparrow Barns to serve its order setting the hearing on Ruth Farm (Dkt. #6). Ruth Farm filed a response to Sparrow Barns' motion and Counsel for Ruth Farm appeared at the March 11 hearing to argue against the motion and present evidence (Dkt. #11; Dkt. #12). As Ruth Farm received notice of, and a fair opportunity to be heard on, the motion, the Court treats the motion as a motion seeking a preliminary injunction. See CarMax Auto Superstores Inc., 177 F.3d at 326; Dilworth, 343 F.2d at 229; Empower Texans, Inc., 306 F. Supp. 3d at 965; Jaroy Constr., Inc., 2010 WL 1254717, at *1.

To prevail on its motion and obtain a preliminary injunction, Sparrow Barns must establish: (1) a substantial likelihood of success on the merits; (2) a substantial threat that Sparrow Barns will suffer irreparable harm if the injunction is not granted; (3) that the threatened injury outweighs any damage that the injunction might cause Ruth Farm; and (4) that the injunction will not disserve the public interest. Nichols, 532 F.3d at 372.

I. Likelihood of Success on the Merits

Sparrow Barns contends it will succeed on its trade dress infringement claim. "The Lanham Act creates a cause of action for trade dress infringement. This action is analogous to the common law tort of unfair competition." Blue Bell Bio-Med. v. Cin-Bad, Inc., 864 F.2d 1253, 1256 (5th Cir. 1989) (citations omitted). "Trade dress refers to the total image and overall appearance of a product and may include features such as the size, shape, color, color combinations, textures, graphics, and even sales techniques that characterize a particular product." Amazing Spaces, Inc. v. Metro Mini Storage, 608 F.3d 225, 251 (5th Cir. 2010) (quoting Pebble Beach Co. v. Tour 18 I Ltd., 155 F.3d 526, 536 (5th Cir. 1998), abrogated on other grounds by, Traffix Devices, Inc. v. Marketing Displays, Inc., 532 U.S. 23, 32-33 (2001)).

Trade dress protection has also been extended to the overall “motif” of a restaurant. See Two Pesos, Inc. v. Taco Cabana, Inc., 505 U.S. 763, 775 (1992). “The purpose of trade dress protection, like trademark protection, is to ‘secure the owner of the [trade dress] the goodwill of his business and to protect the ability of consumers to distinguish among competing products.’” Eppendorf-Netheler-Hinz GMBH v. Ritter GMBH, 289 F.3d 351, 355 (5th Cir. 2002) (alteration in original) (quoting Two Pesos, Inc., 505 U.S. at 775). To prevail on a trade dress infringement claim, a plaintiff must prove three elements: (1) the trade dress is inherently distinctive or has acquired a secondary meaning; (2) its trade dress is primarily nonfunctional and therefore protectable; and (3) there is a likelihood that the defendant’s trade dress will lead to customer confusion. Fantastic Sams Franchise Corp. v. Mosley, CV H-16-2318, 2016 WL 7426403, at *7 (S.D. Tex. Dec. 23, 2016) (citing Pebble Beach Co., 155 F.3d at 536); Grand Time Corp. v. Watch Factory Corp., 3:08-CV-1770-K, 2011 WL 2412960, at *7 (N.D. Tex. June 10, 2011) (citations omitted).

A. Inherently Distinctive or Acquisition of Secondary Meaning

i. Inherently Distinctive

Sparrow Barns does not possess a federal registration for its trade dress (Dkt. #3 at p. 11). However, unregistered trade dress is protected under the Lanham Act if the trade dress is distinctive and nonfunctional. Test Masters Educ. Servs., Inc. v. State Farm Lloyds, 791 F.3d 561, 565 (5th Cir. 2015). “Marks whose ‘intrinsic nature serves to identify their particular source’ are inherently distinctive.” AMID, Inc. v. Medic Alert Found. U.S., Inc., 241 F. Supp. 3d 788, 801–02 (S.D. Tex. 2017). Although Courts struggle to devise a test to determine when trade dress is inherently distinctive, caselaw provides useful guidance. See id. at 800–05. In Two Pesos, the Fifth Circuit upheld a jury verdict finding Taco Cabana’s trade dress was inherently distinctive. Taco Cabana Intern., Inc. v. Two Pesos, Inc., 932 F.2d 1113, 1120 (5th Cir. 1991), aff'd sub nom, Two Pesos, Inc., 505 U.S. at 763. Taco Cabana described its trade dress as:

[A] festive eating atmosphere having interior dining and patio areas decorated with artifacts, bright colors, paintings and murals. The patio includes interior and exterior areas with the interior patio capable of being sealed off from the outside patio by overhead garage doors. The stepped exterior of the building is a festive and vivid color scheme using top border paint and neon stripes. Bright awnings and umbrellas continue the theme.

Id. at 1117. The description of Taco Cabana's trade dress is like the description of Sparrow Barns' trade dress.

Sparrow Barns describes the trade dress of the Grand Hall in the White Sparrow:

The Grand Hall features a large, open floor plan with exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed, vaulted wooden beams placed laterally across the wooden cathedral ceiling; exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed wooden columns placed vertically along the wooden side walls; tiered exposed bulb candelabra chandeliers; rustic whitewashing of the wooden interior features; and a stylistic, stacked window display along the back wall.

(Dkt. #3 at pp. 11–12). Like the trade dress in Two Pesos, Sparrow Barns can likely show that the trade dress of the Grand Hall is inherently distinctive because its intrinsic nature serves to identify its source as the White Sparrow.

Ruth Farm's response further demonstrates that the White Sparrow is inherently distinctive. Ruth Farm states that Sparrow Barns "is correct in its assertion that [Ruth Farm] has had a rather cavalier attitude about this case from the beginning." (Dkt. #11 ¶ 2). Ruth Farm argues that Sparrow Barns does not possess the "exclusive right to construct white barns" and Ruth Farm "has viewed numerous Barn[]s similar to plaintiff[]'s barn. The White Sparrow Barn is a white barn, with components common to barns and event spaces, arranged in a practical, obvious manner.” (Dkt. #11 ¶ 3) (citations omitted). Ruth Farm then provides photographs of “other white barns” to support its argument. Oddly, a review of the photographs provided by Ruth Farm shows that the other white barns do not resemble the White Sparrow and, therefore, support the argument that the White Sparrow is inherently distinctive.

The White Sparrow

The Nest

(Dkt. #3-12 at pp. 5-7; Dkt. #11-1 at pp. 4-5).

Ruth Farm's Photographs of "Other White Barns:"

(Dkt. #11-1 at pp. 6–12).

Reviewing the photographs provided, two barns—the White Sparrow and the Nest—share many distinct similarities, including: internal and external shape, decorative columns, vaulted and beamed ceilings, candelabra chandeliers, picturesque haylofts, window arrangements, wooden flooring, large entrance doors, and rustic whitewash paint. The other white barns, at best, share one or two of these features.² As a result, the Court finds that Sparrow Barns can likely succeed in showing that the White Sparrow is inherently distinctive.

ii. Secondary Meaning

Even if Sparrow Barns cannot prove that the White Sparrow is inherently distinctive, Sparrow Barns can likely demonstrate that the White Sparrow developed secondary meaning. “Trade dress acquires distinctiveness, even if it is not inherently distinctive, if it has developed secondary meaning.” AMID, Inc., 241 F. Supp. 3d at 808. To develop secondary meaning, a “mark must denote to the consumer a single thing coming from a single source to support a finding of secondary meaning.” Nola Spice Designs, L.L.C. v. Haydel Enters., Inc., 783 F.3d 527, 543 (5th Cir. 2015) (quoting Zatarains, Inc. v. Oak Grove Smokehouse, Inc., 698 F.2d 786, 795 (5th Cir. 1983), abrogated on other grounds, KP Permanent Make-Up, Inc. v. Lasting Impression I, Inc., 543 U.S. 111 (2004)). “The inquiry is one of the public’s mental association between the mark and the alleged mark holder.” Amazing Spaces, 608 F.3d at 247–48 (quoting Bd. of Supervisors for La. State Univ. Agric. & Mech. Coll. v. Smack Apparel Co., 550 F.3d 465, 476 (5th Cir. 2008)). Courts consider the following factors when determining whether a claimed trade dress acquired secondary meaning:

- (1) length and manner of use of the mark or trade dress, (2) volume of sales, (3) amount and manner of advertising, (4) nature of use of the mark or trade dress in newspapers and magazines, (5) consumer-survey evidence, (6) direct consumer testimony, and (7) the defendant’s intent in copying the trade dress.

2. Ruth Farm also provides a letter from architect Jennifer Alford (Dkt. #11-2). Jennifer Alford compares drawings and photographs of the White Sparrow, the Nest, and other barns to conclude, “While some elements may be present in the design of the White Sparrow, as they are in all of the inspiration photos, certainly no Architectural Features are treated in the same manor, size, style, or proportion that is not indicative of this simple Barn Architectural style.” (Dkt. #11-2 at p. 2). As mentioned at the hearing and in Sparrow Barn’s reply, Jennifer Alford’s letter is unsigned and unverified. Further, it appears Jennifer Alford considers only the architecture of the venues and not the other distinct factors contributing to Sparrow Barns’ trade dress. For example, the Court doubts Jennifer Alford would consider the candelabra chandeliers, decorative columns, or the unique window arrangement of the White Sparrow part of the traditional “Barn Architectural Style.”

Id. at 248 (quoting Smack Apparel Co., 550 F.3d at 476).

The Court considers the factors:

1. Sparrow Barns has used the White Sparrow's trade dress for nearly five years (Dkt. #3 at p. 13).
2. There is no direct evidence concerning the White Sparrow's volume of sales. However, there is evidence that the White Sparrow is a popular wedding and events venue (Dkt. #3-4; Dkt. #3-6). Therefore, the Court assumes a high volume of sales.
3. Sparrow Barns invests significant time, labor, and money into advertising the White Sparrow annually (Dkt. #3 at pp. 12–13).
4. The White Sparrow is often depicted in online publications, magazines, and photoshoots for large corporations and celebrities and is considered one of the top wedding venues in the United States (Dkt. #3 at pp. 3, 10; Dkt. #3-1; Dkt. #3-3; Dkt. #3-4; Dkt. #3-15). The White Sparrow also maintains a significant social media presence (Dkt. #3 at p. 13).
5. There is no consumer-survey evidence provided.
6. There is direct consumer testimony associating the White Sparrow with its trade dress (Dkt. #3-3; Dkt. #3-4; Dkt. #3-15; Dkt. #3-16; Dkt. #3-17).
7. There is evidence that Ruth Farm intended to copy the White Sparrow's trade dress, including: Christopher Thompson's admission that he took "inspiration" from the White Sparrow when designing the Nest; the Thompson's visits to the White Sparrow; the Thompson's questions about the White Sparrow; the notes and pictures taken by the Thompsons of the White Sparrow; and the evidence that Christopher Thompson viewed unauthorized areas of the White Sparrow (Dkt. #3-1; Dkt. #3-2; Dkt. #3-3; Dkt. #3-8; Dkt. #3-9; Dkt. #3-10; Dkt. #3-11; Dkt. #11-1 ¶ 3).

Considering the factors and evidence presented, the Court finds that Sparrow Barns can likely succeed in proving that the White Sparrow acquired secondary meaning. As Sparrow Barns can likely succeed in proving that the White Sparrow is either inherently distinctive or acquired secondary meaning, Sparrow Barns can likely succeed on the merits in proving the first element of its trade dress claim.

B. Nonfunctional

To succeed on its trade dress claim, Sparrow Barns must also prove that its trade dress is nonfunctional. “The Lanham Act protects only nonfunctional distinctive trade dress, a limit that ‘serves to assure that competition will not be stifled by the exhaustion of a limited number of trade dresses.’” AMID, Inc., 241 F. Supp. 3d at 819 (quoting Two Pesos, 505 U.S. at 755). There are two tests to determine whether a product feature is functional—the traditional and competitive necessity tests. YETI Coolers, LLC v. JDS Indus., Inc., 300 F. Supp. 3d 899, 913 (W.D. Tex. 2018). “The traditional test of functionality is whether the product feature ‘is essential to the use or purpose of the article or if it affects the cost or quality of an article.’” AMID, Inc., 241 F. Supp. 3d at 819 (quoting TrafFix, 532 U.S. at 32). “Under this definition, ‘if a product feature is the reason the device works, then the feature is functional.’” YETI Coolers, 300 F. Supp. 3d at 913 (quoting Ritter, 289 F.3d at 355). “‘Essential,’ as used in the traditional test of functionality . . . is a term of art, used to distinguish product features that only serve to identify a product’s source from those that serve ‘any other significant function.’” Poly-Am., L.P. v. Stego Indus., L.L.C., 3:08-CV-2224-G, 2011 WL 3206687, at *10 (N.D. Tex. July 27, 2011), aff’d sub nom. Poly-Am., L.P. v. Stego Indus., LLC, 482 F. App’x. 958 (5th Cir. 2012)). Under the competitive necessity test, a feature is functional “if the exclusive use of the feature would put competitors at a significant non-reputation-related disadvantage.” Ritter, 289 F.3d at 356. “Even if individual constituent parts of a product’s trade dress are functional, ‘a particular arbitrary combination of functional features, the combination of which is not itself functional, properly enjoys protection.’” YETI Coolers, 300 F. Supp. 3d at 913 (quoting Two Pesos, 92 F.2d at 1119). In other words, “‘in order to receive trade dress protection for the overall combination of functional features, those features must be configured in an arbitrary, fanciful, or distinctive way.”” Clearline Techs. Ltd. v. Cooper B-Line, Inc., 948 F. Supp. 2d 691, 701 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (quoting Antioch Co. v. W. Trimming Corp., 347 F.3d 150, 158 (6th Cir. 2003)). Therefore, the question is not whether some component of a product’s trade dress is functional but whether the entirety of a product’s trade dress is functional. Id. (citing Two Pesos, 92 F.2d at 1119).

Sparrow Barns can likely succeed in showing its trade dress is nonfunctional. Sparrow Barns describes the trade dress of the White Sparrow:

The Grand Hall features a large, open floor plan with exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed, vaulted wooden beams placed laterally across the wooden cathedral ceiling; exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed wooden columns placed vertically along the wooden side walls; tiered exposed bulb candelabra chandeliers; rustic whitewashing of the wooden interior features; and a stylistic, stacked window display along the back wall.

(Dkt. #3 at pp. 11–12). These features are not functional because none enable the White Sparrow to operate as a wedding venue. For example, the White Sparrow could host weddings and events with glass chandeliers, laminate flooring, and a different window arrangement. However, even if one considered the features comprising the White Sparrow’s trade dress functional, the functional features are combined in an arbitrary and fanciful way to create a distinct venue. Therefore, under the traditional test, the White Sparrow’s trade dress is likely nonfunctional.

Further, the exclusive use of the combination of these features does not place competitors at a significant non-reputation-related disadvantage. Competitors of the White Sparrow may employ many different combinations of architectural and decorative features to distinguish their venues from the White Sparrow without infringing on Sparrow Barns’ trade dress. In fact, the photographs of the “other white barns” presented by Ruth Farm demonstrate how other white-barn-wedding venues may distinguish their venues from the White Sparrow. Accordingly,

Sparrow Barns can likely succeed on the merits—under the traditional and the competitive necessity tests—in proving its trade dress is nonfunctional.

C. Customer Confusion

Finally, to succeed on its trade dress claim, Sparrow Barns must demonstrate that there is a likelihood of customer confusion. “Likelihood of confusion’ means more than a mere possibility; the plaintiff must demonstrate a probability of confusion.” Xtreme Lashes, LLC v. Xtended Beauty, Inc., 576 F.3d 221, 226 (5th Cir. 2009) (citing Smack Apparel, 550 F.3d at 478). Courts examine the following non-exhaustive “digits of confusion” in evaluating likelihood of confusion:

(1) the type of trademark; (2) mark similarity; (3) product similarity; (4) outlet and purchaser identity; (5) advertising media identity; (6) defendant’s intent; (7) actual confusion; and (8) care exercised by potential purchasers. No digit is dispositive, and the digits may weigh differently from case to case, “depending on the particular facts and circumstances involved.”

Id. (citation omitted) (quoting Marathon Mfg. Co. v. Enerlite Products Corp., 767 F.2d 214, 218 (5th Cir. 1985)). The Court considers the factors:

1. Sparrow Barns alleges that Ruth Farm infringed on the White Sparrow’s trade dress by constructing and advertising the Nest.
2. As discussed previously, the White Sparrow and the Nest share many similarities.
3. The White Sparrow and the Nest are both barn-themed wedding and event venues.
4. The White Sparrow and the Nest are in the greater Dallas-Fort Worth (“DFW”) area—about 90 miles apart—and the likely customers are couples searching for wedding venues in the DFW area (Dkt. #3-7).
5. The advertising media specifically used by both venues is social media and the internet (Dkt. #3 at p. 16; Dkt. #3-6; Dkt. #3-13; Dkt. #3-14; Dkt. #3-15). While the White Sparrow appears in magazines and other print media, it is unclear whether the Nest also appears in this media.

6. The Court previously found evidence of Ruth Farm's intent to copy Sparrow Barn's trade dress.
7. Sparrow Barns provides more than a mere possibility, or even probability, of customer confusion. Sparrow Barns provides evidence of actual customer confusion of the two venues (Dkt. #3-16).
8. Although Sparrow Barns alleges that some couples book the White Sparrow based on photographs alone, there is no evidence presented by the parties of the care used by potential customers. Due to the nature of the industry and cost of wedding venues, the Court assumes most couples exercise a higher than normal degree of care in selecting a wedding venue.

Considering these factors and the evidence presented, the Court finds that Sparrow Barns can likely succeed on the merits of showing customer confusion. As Sparrow Barns can likely demonstrate the three elements of its trade dress infringement claim, Sparrow Barns meets the first factor for obtaining a preliminary injunction.

II. Substantial Threat of Irreparable Harm

To meet the next factor for obtaining a preliminary injunction, Sparrow Barns must show that there is a substantial threat that Sparrow Barns will suffer irreparable harm if an injunction is not granted. An irreparable injury is one that is more than de minimis and cannot be undone through monetary remedies. Paulsson Geophysical Servs., Inc. v. Sigmar, 529 F.3d 303, 312 (5th Cir. 2008). In trademark infringement cases, many courts presume the existence of an irreparable injury if the plaintiff establishes a substantial likelihood of confusion. See TWTB, Inc. v. Rampick, 152 F. Supp. 3d 549, 576–77 (E.D. La. 2016) (citing Abraham v. Alpha Chi Omega, 708 F.3d 614, 627 (5th Cir. 2013); Equibrand Corp. v. Reinsman Equestrian Products, Inc., 307-CV-0536-P, 2007 WL 1461393, at *15 (N.D. Tex. May 17, 2007); Ramada Franchise Sys., Inc. v. Jacobcart, Inc., CIVA 3:01CV0306D, 2001 WL 540213, at *3 (N.D. Tex. May 17, 2001). To the extent this presumption applies, the Court presumes irreparable harm based upon the likelihood of confusion discussion above. See T-Mobile US, Inc. v. AIO Wireless LLC, 991

F. Supp. 2d 888, 928 (S.D. Tex. 2014) (noting the presumption is “somewhere between shaky and reaffirmed” in the Fifth Circuit); ADT, LLC v. Capital Connect, Inc., 145 F. Supp. 3d 671, 694–96 (N.D. Tex. 2015) (discussing the presumption).

Even if the presumption does not apply, the Court finds there is a substantial threat that Sparrow Barns will suffer irreparable harm if an injunction is not granted for three reasons. First, Sparrow Barns will likely lose customers and vendors if couples mistake the Nest for the White Sparrow. See Paulsson, 529 F.3d at 313 (considering loss of business and customer confusion substantial threats). As cited above, there is actual evidence of customer and vendor confusion. Second, as Sparrow Barns cannot control Ruth Farm’s use of its trade dress, it is powerless to control its reputation and place in the market without an injunction. ADT, LLC, 145 F. Supp. 3d at 696 (citations omitted) (considering the loss of control of reputation and place in the market irreparable harm). Third, there is the potential that Sparrow Barns will suffer irreparable harm to its customer goodwill and reputation because of Ruth Farm’s use of Sparrow Barn’s trade dress (Dkt. #3 at p. 18). The injury to Sparrow Barn’s control of its trade dress, customer goodwill, reputation, and potential loss of customers and vendors is difficult to quantify and likely cannot be fully compensated with monetary remedies. See Paulsson, 529 F.3d at 313. Accordingly, even if the presumption does not apply, there is evidence that Sparrow Barns will suffer irreparable harm without an injunction.

In response, Ruth Farm again raises its “other white barns” argument:

Defendant calls the court[’]s attention to the fact that there are white wedding barns throughout the country, many with chandeliers and columns inside. Likewise, several of them have walls full of windows to maximize the natural light for the photographer. All of these barns could be confused with the others. The mere existence of other white barns that hold weddings is insufficient grounds to show irreparable harm, despite a few people being confused.

(Dkt. #11 ¶ 4). Ruth Farm oversimplifies the White Sparrow's trade dress.

The Court again uses the example of Two Pesos. 932 F.2d at 1113. The trade dress of Taco Cabana's restaurant was not that it was a Mexican restaurant. Id. at 1117. Instead, Taco Cabana's trade dress was the aesthetic arrangement of its Mexican restaurant:

[A] festive eating atmosphere having interior dining and patio areas decorated with artifacts, bright colors, paintings and murals. The patio includes interior and exterior areas with the interior patio capable of being sealed off from the outside patio by overhead garage doors. The stepped exterior of the building is a festive and vivid color scheme using top border paint and neon stripes. Bright awnings and umbrellas continue the theme.

Id. at 1117. The fact that there are many other Mexican restaurants did not prevent Taco Cabana from establishing the trade dress for its Mexican restaurants.

Here, the alleged trade dress of the White Sparrow is not that it is a "white barn." Instead, Sparrow Barn's trade dress is the aesthetic arrangement of the White Sparrow:

The Grand Hall features a large, open floor plan with exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed, vaulted wooden beams placed laterally across the wooden cathedral ceiling; exposed, decorative, wrapped and framed wooden columns placed vertically along the wooden side walls; tiered exposed bulb candelabra chandeliers; rustic whitewashing of the wooden interior features; and a stylistic, stacked window display along the back wall.

(Dkt. #3 at pp. 11–12). The fact that there are many other white barns will likely not prevent Sparrow Barns from establishing protectable trade dress for the specific arrangement of its white barn. Therefore, Ruth Farm's "other white barns" argument does not mitigate the irreparable harm identified above.

III. Weighing the Injury

Under the third factor required to demonstrate the necessity for a preliminary injunction, Sparrow Barns must demonstrate that the threatened injury outweighs any damage that the injunction might cause Ruth Farm. There are three identifiable injuries to Sparrow Barns discussed above: (1) loss of customers and vendors, (2) loss of control of trade dress, and (3) the potential that Sparrow Barns will suffer harm to its customer goodwill and reputation. In response, Ruth Farm contends Sparrow Barns fails “to show how its reputation will be harmed if certain consumers think that all white barns look alike. . . . If anything, some consumers may mistakenly inflate the reputation of [Sparrow Barns’] barn by confusing [Ruth Farm’s] barn for it.” (Dkt. #11 at ¶ 5). Although not specified, the Court assumes Ruth Farm will also likely lose customers and business if the injunction is granted. Considering these injuries, the Court finds that the threatened injury to Sparrow Barns outweighs the damages that might be caused to Ruth Farm if the Court issues a preliminary injunction.

IV. Public Interest

To meet the final factor demonstrating that a preliminary injunction should be issued, Sparrow Barns must show that the injunction will not disserve the public interest. “The public interest is always served by requiring compliance with Congressional statutes such as the Lanham Act and by enjoining the use of infringing marks.” T-Mobile, 991 F. Supp. 2d at 929 (quoting Quantum Fitness Corp. v. Quantum LifeStyle Ctrs., L.L.C., 83 F. Supp. 2d 810, 832 (S.D. Tex. 1999)). When a plaintiff demonstrates a substantial likelihood of success on a trade dress infringement claim, a preliminary injunction serves the public interest as the trade dress is entitled to protection. See TWTB, 152 F. Supp. 3d at 578. Sparrow Barns demonstrates a likelihood of success on the merits of its trade dress infringement claim. Therefore, a preliminary injunction will not disserve the public interest. As Sparrow Barns clearly carries its burden of persuasion on all four requirements of the preliminary injunction analysis, the Court will enjoin Ruth Farm with a preliminary injunction.

CONCLUSION

It is therefore ORDERED that Sparrow Barn's Emergency Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction is hereby GRANTED (Dkt. #3). Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65, Ruth Farm is ENJOINED from (1) selling, offering for sale, distributing or advertising in commerce its services displaying the trade dress owned by Sparrow Barns and (2) must remove from commerce any advertisement or offer to sale in commerce its services displaying the trade dress owned by Sparrow Barns on Ruth Farm's website, social media, and accounts with third parties, within three (3) days from the signing of this order.

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65(c), Sparrow Barns is ordered to post a bond in the amount of $500, by depositing this amount with the Clerk of the Court within three (3) days of the signing of this order.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SIGNED this 10th day of April, 2019.

LOVED our experience! Absolutely beautiful and unique venue. From the moment our guests stepped foot on the grounds they were taking pictures and raving about the location. Big shout out to Marissa who knows that venue like the back of her hand and was our month of planner. She was FANTASTIC and made the day stress free and run smoothly. She is a great communicator and very efficient. It was unfortunately pouring rain on and off during the day of our wedding so we only got to enjoy the outside of the barn for a short amount of time, but the inside of the barn is so stunning that it didn't matter!!! We couldn't have been happier with The White Sparrow, all of our vendors, and how our wedding day turned out! We look forward to coming back in a year for more pictures!!!

The White Sparrow is truly a dream! Not only is the venue gorgeous, but Marissa and the owners were so kind and easy to work with. Marissa is very responsive - typically emailed me back same day or within 12 hours, so we had no issues with communication. On the day of the wedding, we were asked several times if the temperature was right and if the set up looked how we envisioned. They really want the day to be perfect for you. Our guests had nothing but great things to say about The White Sparrow and it was truly a dream come true for us to get married there. Highly recommend this venue! The venue and team/owners are top notch and will help make your wedding day perfect!

The White Sparrow barn in Quinlan, Texas is such a beautiful and unique venue - so this shoot was a huge treat for us! The White Sparrow barn's architecture and beautiful, crisp, clean white interior were a photographer's dream. Ruffled blog produced the dreamiest inspo shoot with the color palette of blush, pops of citrus and Mustard tones - that are so on trend right now! A DOCUMENTARY OF THE BEAUTY WE HAVE SEEN AND CAPTURED

Hey there! Thanks for stopping by!

Kristin + Chase

This sweet couple will marry at the White Sparrow in December and I am crazy excited that this will be my last wedding for 2017.

We all know by now that the White Sparrow barn is known for its unique design and it's white everything!! Shooting engagement sessions here is like giving an artist a blank canvas and saying "here paint what you want." There is no right or wrong here. Kristin and Chase give the perfect example of how to dress for an engagement session. Keeping it very elegant for their first outfit, which will make anyone rethink those workout goals! Seriously

Kristin you look smokin hot in that Red dress! White walls and that pop of color is everything with these engagement portraits.

Her next outfit was a white dress from Free People and it was perfect! A casual outfit that showed off her personality and I love how it made their images look softer and dreamier. Her eyes, a beautiful shade of blue even matched her shoes and I loved how she chose little details that stood out! Spring weather is the best time for engagement sessions. The lush greens and blooms on trees begin to peek out and it added those nice tones to their portraits.

Being a Dallas Wedding Photographer I get to see many wedding venues, but the White Sparrow barn always leaves

PLANNING & BUDGET
America's Best Wedding Venues

By Amanda First and Anna Price-Olson
Updated on January 20, 2017

Stop dreaming about your fantasy wedding and make it happen at one of the best venues in the country.

With seemingly endless wedding venue options to choose from, it's hard to narrow down your choices and select a spot that aligns with your budget, location, and style criteria. Lucky for you, we did the research and legwork, scouring the country (and the Internet!) to compile a master list of wedding destinations that are our go-to recs, year after year. From mountain locales with panoramic views and rustic-glam summer camps — so hip for 2017, mark our word — to chic landmarks in your all-time favorite cities, we've got a wedding venue for you, your groom, and your style.

If you're into the grand outdoors, check out The Little Nell's sundeck, which sits at a 11,000 feet and features panoramic views of the Elk Mountains, or Brush Creek Ranch, where you pose for portraits, exchange vows, and party on 30,000 acres of untouched landscape. Prefer manicured gardens to the rough terrain? You'll fall head-over-heels for Jardin de Buis, a picture-perfect estate and gardens in northern New Jersey. It's so hot right now that photographers are literally begging to shoot there—yes, really.

Whether you're planning a laid-back wedding or looking to connect with nature during your nuptials, these rustic wedding venues are every bit as chic as they are cozy.

High eaves and exposed beams have taken the place of cathedral ceilings and gilded alters for many couples looking to say their vows in venues that offer a bit more personality. Rustic wedding venues can add a touch of charm and intimacy to the big day, where venues range from historic barns deep in the country to scenic overlooks on vineyard grounds.

The White Sparrow Barn

WHERE: Quinlan, Texas

Located just 40 minutes from downtown Dallas, the White Sparrow Barn \(https://thewhitesparrowbarn.com\) is nestled in a field of soaring oak trees in the rural town of Quinlan, Texas. This white vintage barn is straight out of a magazine, where delicate chandeliers hang from the whitewashed beams inside the country-chic venue while picturesque flowerbeds guide the way to photo shoot backdrops that include an old feed shed, a grove, and a country swing.

2 OF 15

The Stepladder Ranch

WHERE: Cambria, California

Family owned and operated since it first opened as a working goat farm and creamery in 1871, the Stepladder Ranch and Creamery (<https://www.stepladdercreamery.com>) is best known for their small-batch cheeses made from the milk of their Lamancha goats, but they also operate an avocado farm and multiple wedding venues on their sprawling acreage. This 750-acre, central California ranch's stunning views overlooking the ocean below have become a favorite spot for outdoor weddings, while a renovated tin barn gives the betrothed an indoor option for a rustic yet chic wedding in pastoral paradise.

Sunriver Resort

WHERE: Sunriver, Oregon

The Cascade Mountains loom in the distance to one side as the high desert extends far to the other side of this pine-treed resort in the Pacific Northwest. Sunriver Resort \(https://www.destinationhotels.com/sunriver-resort\) offers five different venues for weddings, including the Historic Great Hall and Mt. Bachelor Lawn, the Homestead Lawn and Heritage Room, the Besson Commons, Caldera Springs Lake and Lakehouse, and the Fireside Room. Guests can take in a game of bocce ball or sit around a crackling fire in the outdoor firepits or the indoor stone fireplaces after the ceremony to fully soak in the laid-back, Dirty Dancing-esque vibe of the resort.

4 OF 15

Foster Creek Farm

WHERE: Belgrade, Montana

Foster Creek Farm (<https://www.instagram.com/fostercreekfarm/>) captures the historically untamed and wild nature of Montana's rural landscape with decidedly upscale additions. The farm was once vital for barley and wheat farmers in the area back in the early 1900s when the two-story white barn was built on the property. Now, the barn is the site for countless weddings as its renovated digs offer a heated or air-conditioned environment with timbered walls and floor-to-ceiling windows. Although the property is just a few short minutes from downtown Bozeman, guests are invited to stay in the rustic log cabins or the stylish glamping tents on the property.

HorseTail Ranch

WHERE: Creston, California

A sparkling lake set between rolling hills and grand oak trees act as the natural backdrop for outdoor weddings at this 150-acre ranch near California's Paso Robles wine region. Guests at the HorseTail Ranch \(http://horsetail-ranch.com\) can meander through the fields of wildflowers before the ceremony, and dance the night away under the stars or within the grand guesthouse.

Los Poblanos Historic Inn & Spa

WHERE: Albuquerque, New Mexico

This working lavender farm offers something few wedding venues are able to match. Not only do the lush gardens and soaring cottonwood trees paint an ideal backdrop for weddings, but as guests arrive, they are welcomed in by the fragrant scent of lavender as they take their seats at the base of the Sandia Mountains. Los Poblanos Historic Inn & Spa \(https://lospoblanos.com\) sits on 25 acres and features multiple options for outdoor or indoor weddings and receptions with farm fresh catering highlighting seasonal picks from the onsite organic garden.

Della Terra Mountain Chateau

WHERE: Estes Park, Colorado

Despite the fourteen acres of sprawling mountainside scenery that make up Della Terra Mountain Chateau (<https://www.dellaterramountainchateau.com>)'s grounds, the venue only allows one wedding per day to ensure each event is as personal and intimate as the ceremony taking place. The chateau's mountain lodge ambiance adds a rustic charm to indoor weddings, while Rocky Mountain National Park acts as a backdrop for outdoor weddings.

Biddle Ranch Vineyard

WHERE: San Luis Obispo, California

Clusters of ripe Chardonnay grapes hang in delicate bunches from rows of manicured grapevines stretching for 17 acres within the Biddle Ranch Vineyard \(https://www.fodors.com/world/north-america/usa/california/the-central-coast/things-to-do/sights/reviews/biddle-ranch-vineyard-290688010\) as the Santa Lucia Mountains emerge in the distance. The vineyard produces some truly memorable wines, but it's the rustically elegant weddings that take place on the property that many visitors will not soon forget. The idyllic landscape is the perfect blank canvas for brides and grooms looking to showcase their personal style, and the converted dairy barn tasting room and indoor/outdoor reception venues add the perfect touch to a dreamy day in the vineyard.

Couples can select their perfect spot among the 900 acres that make up the Idaho Rocky Mountain Ranch \(http://www.idahorocky.com\) when they book this entire Idaho ranch for their wedding. The property is surrounded by the Sawtooth and White Cloud Mountains that seem to emerge from the horizon beyond a picturesque wilderness of wildflower fields and a meandering river that traces the terrain. Historic log cabins and a large lodge are available for overnight guests who can unplug for the weekend without phones, televisions, or radios in the rooms.

The West Monitor Barn

WHERE: Richmond, Vermont

It took nearly 10 years to restore this classic red dairy barn back to its original 1903 splendor, but the labor of love made it one of the most sought after rural venues in Vermont. Nearly 40 percent of the timber is original—as are all of the stone walls and stone foundation—but modern updates to the West Monitor Barn \(http://monitorbarn.org\) include rustic carriage barn lamps, a commercial kitchen, two restrooms, an elevator, and a third floor reception area with an 80-foot private deck that's perfect for outdoor cocktail hours. All of the proceeds from wedding rentals go to the Vermont Youth Conservation Corps \(https://www.vycc.org/\) programs, and the onsite organic farm allows for a truly farm-to-table concept for receptions.

Sweet Meadow Farm and Homeplace

WHERE: Tallapoosa, Georgia

Although the pristine lake, impressive mountain range, and sweeping views of rolling fields attract countless brides and grooms to the Sweet Meadow Farm and Homeplace each year, it's the 100-year-old farmhouse and barn that act as the centerpiece for remarkable weddings at this site. The property spans 160 acres in Georgia's Haralson County, where the Old Homeplace can accommodate up to 16 overnight guests.

The Barn at Chestnut Springs

WHERE: Sevierville, Tennessee

A large, weathered gray barn is either the backdrop or the venue for couples saying their vows at this Great Smoky Mountain destination. The Barn at Chestnut Springs \(https://www.thebarnatchestnutsprings.com/home\) has been carefully renovated over the years to give couples a rustic yet modern choice as a wedding venue, where grand chandeliers and wall sconces create a romantic atmosphere among the vaulted ceilings and exposed beams of the barn. Ceremonies outdoors are held either on the lawn or in a wooded cove for a more intimate affair.

The Roxbury Barn and Estate

WHERE: Roxbury, New York

Whether couples say their vows inside the 168-year-old carriage barn or within the natural maze of pine trees nicknamed “The Natural Cathedral,” guests are sure to remember the rustic romance they experience while at this Central Catskills gem. The Roxbury Barn and Estate (<https://roxburybarnandestate.com>) was once owned by a Mississippi boat captain but has been painstakingly restored to include 42-acres of forested land with lily ponds and tree-lined courtyards and modern touches like Italian chandeliers, Wi-Fi, air conditioning and heating, and state-of-the-art lighting and audio systems.

Pippin Hill Farm and Vineyards

WHERE: North Garden, Virginia

Set in the hills overlooking the Blue Ridge Mountains, the Pippin Hill Farm and Vineyards \(https://www.pippinhillfarm.com\) was developed by a husband and wife team who had a vision for creating a space for delicious memories seasoned with loads of Southern hospitality. The vineyard sits along Virginia's Monticello Wine Trail and offers multiple venues for indoor or outdoor weddings, most notably the two-story Granary barn or the winery tasting room with a bar made from a 400-year-old cypress tree.

The Silos

WHERE: Bono, Arkansas

The journey to this rustic wedding venue begins with a country road that traverses fields of corn and soy as guests roll past historic railroad tracks and pastoral countryside. The Silos \(http://www.thesilosbarn.com\) offer an escape from traditional wedding venues (for instance, the basic rental package comes with 12 whiskey barrels and two bars on wheels), where a rustic barn, historic wedding chapel, or multiple outdoor venues set the stage for beautiful ceremonies in one of the country's best-kept secrets: Northeastern Arkansas.

2017's Most Stunning Barns Across The USA

There's something pretty wonderful about a wedding at a barn. You're often away from the city, hidden from the world, and surrounded by nature. The sun stretches its beams in full during the ceremony and the moon watches over the festivities of the reception. It's a really good deal.

We love all kinds of barns, from peaceful forest scenes in the Pacific Northwest to sprawling lawn offerings in the South. There's a storybook quality to them and it always seems like the most welcoming atmosphere and spirited celebration around. That's why we put together the latest edition of this annual collection. Make sure to check out the previous editions of our favorite wedding barns in America as well, because it seems like that's where the best times happen.

That's the mentality found at this elegant farm. 50 acres of rolling hills and lush gardens surround the farm's barn venue, a loving blend of old soul and contemporary charm. With an equally charming cocktail area and some fireside seating, your 165 guests aren't going to want to ever see the end of the reception.

Birch Hill Barn is seriously swoon-worthy with its reclaimed wood walls and large sliding doors that let the natural light flood in. The barn is set on a beautiful property and is perfect for the event you envision. Located an hour from Minneapolis, Wisconsin is one you can't miss.

Bloom Lake Barn is a short forty-mile drive from the Twin Cities and offers up the idyllic views of St. Croix Valley. Wooden harvest tables line the interior of the vaulted-ceiling barn, along with salvaged Gothic church windows, and gorgeous chandeliers. In case that wasn't enough—the courtyard includes a spacious pavilion, bonfire pit, tree swing, lawn games, and a walking trail through the woods.

Imagine this: a romantic ghost town, set in an extraordinary alpine forest; the whole town has been renovated and can be rented out. That's Dunton Hot Springs (also featured in our Top 26 Coolest Places to Get Married). Located in the Colorado Rockies, the log cabins here are exquisitely furnished, there's a timeworn saloon, and everything is sort of off the radar. (WiFi works, but usually cell phones don't, which is part of the appeal.)

THE WHITE SPARROW BARN DALLAS VENUE

The White Sparrow wedding barn venue located in Union Valley, Texas – not too far from the DFW metroplex – is one of the best venues in the country. The white barn's rustic charm is breathtaking in its idyllic natural setting amidst impressive oaks and lush gardens. This vintage Dallas wedding venue is a charming gem tucked away in the natural landscape of Union Valley. Just a 40 minute drive from downtown Dallas will transport you from urban hubbub to countryside getaway. This makes the barn an ideal Dallas wedding venue, without the hectic wedding coordination found in the city. The White Sparrow is honoured to serve DFW and beyond as a romantic wedding and event venue filled with rustic charm.

INTERVIEW

IF I HAVE A FREE SUNDAY I WOULD SPEND IT... I would spend it cleaning my home and watching Netflix.

MY MOST MEMORABLE TRAVEL EXPERIENCE WAS... my honeymoon on St. John, Virgin Islands.

THE COUNTRY I MOST WANT TO VISIT IS... anywhere in Asia.

WHAT I LOVE MOST ABOUT MY JOB IS... the freedom to be creative.

The White Sparrow Barn

IF I DIDNT DO THIS FOR A JOB I WOULD BE... a large animal veterinarian.

IF I COULD GIVE NEWLY ENGAGED COUPLES ONE PIECE OF ADVICE IT WOULD BE... to not stress the small stuff.

I LOVE WHERE I LIVE BECAUSE... it's in the country where I can always step out, smell the fresh air and unwind from the hustle of everything.

IF I COULD LIVE ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD IT WOULD BE... it would be the Virgin Islands, so many great memories and a beautiful part of the United States.

MY FAVOURITE MOVIE IS? Pride and Prejudice, 2005 version.

MOST MEMORABLE MEAL I'VE EVER EATEN WAS... was for my birthday in Dallas, at Charlies.

THE PETS I OWN ARE... a French Bulldog, Etta Mae, and a lab mix named Maggie.

WHITE SPARROW BARN BRIDAL SESSION

KRISTIN

The White Sparrow Barn as we all now by now is famous for it's rustic elegance. I especially love photographing not only weddings here, but of course Bridal sessions. Kristin was such a gorgeous bride on her wedding day, but it was absolutely so much fun seeing her pre-wedding day in her gorgeous gown by Lazaro Bridal. It was such a unique wedding gown. Kristin said that she tried this gown on first and immediately knew it was "the one"!

She brought her adorable niece Finley to the session for a pre mini bridal session with her and I absolutely loved how teeny Finely Marie was just a natural.

The White Sparrow barn has a new addition to the grounds and I was pleasantly surprised by how gorgeous the new greenhouse and the lavender fields. I was so happy that despite the November weather the sun came out and allowed for us to shoot a little outside towards the end of the bridal portraits. Too bad the greenhouse wasn't there yet, when we photographed Chase and Kristin's engagement session earlier in the spring.

Please enjoy some of the highlights from this stunning bridal session!

The White Sparrow Barn Wedding ~ Dallas Wedding Photographer

Cindy and Joseph

I spent an incredible two days in March at the famous White Sparrow Barn located in Quinlan, Texas.

The first ever Styled Shoots Across America Conference was held there and it was nothing short of incredible. I spent the days learning from other creatives in the industry, listening to some of my idols speak, and photographing the most amazing couples and details a girl could ask for!

This is the type of stuff that fuels my creativity and feeds my soul. I'm so ready for all my upcoming 2018 weddings!

I can't wait to do it again!

The White Sparrow Barn: Styled Shoots Across America Conference

Last Month, I Had The Amazing Experience Of Attending My First Photography Conference. This Conference, In Quinlan Texas, Took Place At The World Famous White Sparrow Barn. Decked From Head To Toe In White, This Barn Truly Was A Vision In White. I'm Do Impressed With The Thought That Went Into The Venue Itself. I'm Even More Impressed, However, With The Thought That Went Into The Conference. Heather Benge, Of Heather Benge Events, Put Her Heart And Soul Into This. We Had The Most Amazing Speaker And, As You'll See, The Most Amazing Details To Capture In The Styled Shoots. Honestly, This Conference Was A Game Changer For Me. As A Graduate Student, I've Had To Place Photographer On The Back Burner Quite A Bit. I Only Take On A Little, So That I Can Handle It, And I Often Lag Behind My Colleagues On Marketing And Just Getting Out And Shooting In General. This Conference Left Me Asking Myself Two Questions: "What Is My Purpose In Photography?" And "What Do I Need To Do In Order To Shift My Business In The Direction It Wants To Go?" Luckily, I Was Asking These Questions, But I Also Got Answers From These Amazing Speakers. I Now Have A Game Plan, And I Hope You Will All See A Lot More Of Me In The Future Because Of It. Photography Is Hard! But, Seeing So Many Couples Find Love And Seek To Capture Their Love Is Totally Worth It. So, Without Further Ado, Let Me Show You Some Of The Conference.

Spring Wedding Inspiration at The White Sparrow Barn

Weddings

Give me a location with white walls, natural light, beautifully crafted details, and a couple in love and I'm a happy camper. I recently attended a styled shoot out at the world famous White Sparrow Barn in Quinlan, Texas and I'm just blown away. I loved everything about it (except the cold weather)!

If you're still on the hunt for vendors for your dream wedding, be sure to keep reading through! From bakeries to bridal salons to makeup artists, you'll be able to find what you need to make that wedding you've been dreaming of since you were little a reality.

<https://swanphotographytxblog.com>

Now if only spring would actually get here. This Texas girl is not loving this 20 degree weather. I'm ready for pink blossoms, sunshine galore, and 70 degree weather! 😊

Huge shoutout to the incredible vendors who brought all this gorgeousness together.

IN THE UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

Applicant: Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC

Serial No. 87952453

DECLARATION OF NADIA RAMOS

1. My name is Nadia Ramos. I am of sound mind and am over the age of eighteen. My date of birth is 6-7-1982.
2. I am a managing member of Sparrow Barns & Events, LLC, which owns The White Sparrow venue in Quinlan, Texas.
3. The White Sparrow is a famous wedding venue in the United States. Those in the wedding industry know The White Sparrow and they certainly recognize our Grand Hall. The Grand Hall is the most famous room in the venue. It is consistently featured in media across the United States.
4. The Grand Hall is the single-most photographed and advertised room in the venue. It is the heart and soul of the venue. We feature the Grand Hall prevalently in all of our advertising efforts.
5. Corporations such as JCPenney and celebrities like Joanna Gaines have used The White Sparrow's Grand Hall for their photoshoots and advertising.
6. I have attached a list of some of the publications that the Grand Hall has been featured in, along with how many website views or followers that publication or magazine has. This list is attached as Exhibit A to my Declaration.
7. Sparrow Barns and Events, LLC, spends, at a minimum, around $70,000 per annum advertising the venue.
8. In the wedding venue, social media is the largest and most preferred platform for venue advertisement. Unless you are running a paid advertisement on social media, social media advertising is free; though, it accounts for a substantial portion of advertising labor for wedding venues.

9. The White Sparrow has over 34,000 followers among its various social media accounts and over 976,000 monthly views of its Pinterest page alone. Exhibit B.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed in Hunt County, State of Texas, on the 11th day of November 2019.
