APPLICANT’S MOTION TO DISMISS NOTICE OF OPPOSITION

Pursuant to 37 C.F.R. §§ 2.127 and 2.116(a) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), Applicant Teacher Inspired Practical Stuff, Inc. (“TIPS”), through its undersigned attorney, hereby moves for dismissal of the Notice of Opposition filed by Opposer Inspiration Software, Inc. (“Inspiration”) for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted (the “Motion”).

FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

I. The Parties

Inspiration purports to be a private corporation organized under the laws of Oregon engaged in the business of marketing computer programs in the field of “idea development” and offering computer education training and other goods and services under the mark “INSPIRATION.” Inspiration claims to own the United States Patent and Trademark Office (the “USPTO”) registered mark “INSPIRATION” (Reg. No. 1768514) for computer programs in the field of “idea development” through visual diagramming, outlining and text creation, in International Class 9, and the service mark “INSPIRATION” (Reg. No. 1864117) for computer education training, in International Class 41, and for computer software design for others, in International Class 42.¹ Inspiration aggressively claims trademark infringement as demonstrated by the sixty-four (64) notice of oppositions it has filed since 2001. See Exhibit A, a copy the TTABVUE record listing oppositions Inspiration has filed before the TTAB.

TIPS is a private corporation organized under the laws of Florida. On August 21, 2003, TIPS, after due diligence and in good faith, filed an application for registration of the unique mark “T.I.P.S. – TEACHER INSPIRED PRACTICAL STUFF” (Serial No. 76/541630) for printed course materials, books, lessons plans, theme units and curriculum support materials, all featuring academic subjects, for the education of elementary school students, in International Class 16, and for educational services, namely, providing learning centers featuring instruction in academic courses for elementary school students, in International Class 41 (the “T.I.P.S. Mark”).

II. Inspiration’s Notice

Inspiration filed a Notice of Opposition (the “Notice”) to the registration sought by TIPS of the T.I.P.S. Mark.² The Notice fails to articulate a theory of damages with any particularity. The basis for Inspiration’s purported damage, however, appears to be customer confusion. Notice ¶ 7. As demonstrated below, because Inspiration has not and cannot sufficiently plead

¹ The registration copies attached to the Notice as Exhibit 1 and 2 are photocopies, not current status and title copies prepared by the USPTO as required by Trademark Rule 2.122(d)(1). Thus, the exhibits are not in evidence or part of the record.

² The mailing date of the Notice was February 7, 2005. The TTAB notified TIPS that it had forty (40) days from the mailing date of the Notice within which to respond to the Notice. TIPS filed, and the TTAB granted, a consented motion on March 18, 2005 for a sixty-day extension in which to respond to the Notice. Accordingly, TIPS’s Answer is due on May 20, 2005. In lieu of filing an Answer to the Notice, TIPS timely files this Motion. Pursuant to Trademark Rule 2.127(d), upon the filing of potentially dispositive motion, such as a motion to dismiss, the proceedings are suspended by the TTAB “with respect to all matters not germane to the motion”. Thus, the filing of this Motion suspends the May 20, 2005 deadline in which TIPS must file an Answer to the Notice.

facts to establish a cause of action for likelihood of confusion, the Notice must be dismissed as a matter of law.

ARGUMENT

III. Introduction

The right to bring an opposition to the registration of a mark flows from Section 13 of the Lanham Act. Section 13 requires that an opposer believe that it would be damaged by the registration of the mark and state the specific grounds for opposition. 15 U.S.C. § 1063; Young v. AGB Corp., 152 F.3d 1337 (Fed. Cir. 1998). To withstand a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, an opposer must allege that (1) opposer has standing to maintain the proceedings, and (2) valid grounds exist for denying the registration sought. TBMB § 503.02. The opposition must be examined in its entirety, construing the allegations therein liberally. Id. Nonetheless, to successfully prosecute an opposition based on alleged likelihood of confusion, an opposer must “assert[] more than a mere possibility of confusion; a probability of confusion is required.” See James E. Hawes and Amanda V. Dwight, 1 Trademark Registration Practice § 16:11, and the cases cited therein (emphasis added). Here, because Inspiration’s alleged belief of a likelihood of confusion with the T.I.P.S. Mark is demonstrably without merit, the Notice must be dismissed.

IV. The Relevant DuPont Factor Demonstrates No Likelihood of Confusion

A determination of the existence of a likelihood of confusion is based on an analysis of all of the probative facts relevant to the likelihood of confusion factors set forth in In re E. I. DuPont DeNemours & Co., 476 F.2d 1357, 1361 (CCPA 1973). See Shen Mfg. Co., Inc. v. The Ritz Hotel Ltd., 393 F.3d 1238, 1241 (Fed. Cir. 2004). Those factors are:

- (1) The similarity or dissimilarity of the marks in their entireties as to appearance, sound, connotation and commercial impression.

- (2) The similarity or dissimilarity and nature of the goods or services as described in an application or registration or in connection with which a prior mark is in use.
- (3) The similarity or dissimilarity of established, likely-to-continue trade channels.
- (4) The conditions under which and buyers to whom sales are made, i.e. “impulse” vs. careful, sophisticated purchasing.
- (5) The fame of the prior mark (sales, advertising, length of use).
- (6) The number and nature of similar marks in use on similar goods.
- (7) The nature and extent of any actual confusion.
- (8) The length of time during and conditions under which there has been concurrent use without evidence of actual confusion.
- (9) The variety of goods on which a mark is or is not used (house mark, “family” mark, product mark).
- (10) The market interface between applicant and the owner of a prior mark:
 - (a) a mere "consent" to register or use.
 - (b) agreement provisions designed to preclude confusion, i.e. limitations on continued use of the marks by each party.
 - (c) assignment of mark, application, registration and good will of the related business.
 - (d) laches and estoppel attributable to owner of prior mark and indicative of lack of confusion.
- (11) The extent to which applicant has a right to exclude others from use of its mark on its goods.
- (12) The extent of potential confusion, i.e., whether de minimis or substantial.
- (13) Any other established fact probative of the effect of use.

Id. In determining whether a likelihood of confusion exists, however, the TTAB need not consider every DuPont factor. Id. (citing Han Beauty, Inc. v. Alberto-Culver Co., 236 F.3d 1333, 1336 (Fed. Cir. 2001); see also Champagne Louis Roederer, S.A. v. Delicato Vineyards, 148 F.3d 1373, 1375 (Fed. Cir. 1998). Rather, the TTAB is only required to consider relevant factors. See Shen Mfg. Co., Inc., 393 F.3d at 1241. As conclusively shown below, the first DuPont factor – “[t]he similarity or dissimilarity of the marks in their entirety as to appearance, sound connotation and commercial impression” – by itself is dispositive of this case. In re E. I. DuPont DeNemours & Co., 476 F.2d at 1361. E.g., Kellogg Co. v. Pack'em Enterprises, Inc., 951 F.2d 330 (Fed. Cir. 1991) (affirming TTAB decision finding no likely confusion based on the first DuPont factor alone).

A. Appearance

The Notice fails at the most basic aspect of likelihood of confusion in that the marks at issue are patently dissimilar. Indeed, no common words are shared. Additionally, the marks are clearly dissimilar in appearance. See Kellogg Co. v. Pack'em Enterprises, Inc., 951 F.2d 330 (Fed. Cir. 1991) (finding no likely confusion between the marks “FROOTEE ICE” and “FROOT LOOPS” based on dissimilar appearance). The T.I.P.S. Mark consists of four words and a corresponding acronym, “T.I.P.S.-TEACHER INSPIRED PRACTICAL STUFF.” On the other hand, Opposer’s putative mark consists of only one word, “INSPIRATION.” Such dissimilarity of the marks in appearance prevents a likelihood of confusion. See Shen Mfg. Co., Inc., 393 F.3d at 1243; Champagne Louis Roederer, S.A. v. Delicato Vineyards, 148 F.3d 1373, 1375 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (affirming TTAB finding of no likelihood of confusion between “CRISTAL” and “CRYSTAL CREEK” wines).

B. Sound Connotation

Just as the T.I.P.S. Mark and “INSPIRATION” are visually distinct from one another, the marks are also verbally dissimilar. See Jet, Inc. v. Sewage Aeration Sys., 165 F.3d 419 (6th Cir. 1999) (finding the marks “JET” and “AEROB-A-JET” visually and verbally distinct). The T.I.P.S. Mark is a unique phrase consisting of ten (10) syllables, where as “INSPIRATION” is a common four (4) syllable word. Moreover, the marks have only one common syllable: “in”. As such, the marks are phonetically dissimilar. See Shen Mfg. Co., Inc., 393 F.3d at 1243. Inspiration’s overbroad claim that it owns all marks containing some form of the word “inspire” should not be allowed to proceed. See Gruner + Jahr USA Publ’g, A Div. Of Gruner + Jahr Printing Publ’g Co. v. Meredith Corp., 991 F.2d 1072, 1077 (2nd Cir. 1993) (reasoning that registering a proper noun as a trademark cannot by itself “remove it from being available to others” or “grant exclusive possession” of variations of the word to the trademark registrant”).

C. Commercial Impression

The word “INSPIRATION” and the T.I.P.S. Mark evoke completely different images in the minds of relevant consumers. The “INSPIRATION” mark suggests nothing about the goods or services offered by Inspiration.³ In fact, the “INSPIRATION” mark is illustrative of the weakest category of marks, descriptive marks. Gruner + Jahr USA Publ’g, 991 F.2d at 1072 (finding no likely confusion between magazines using the descriptive mark “PARENTS” and the mark “PARENTS DIGEST”); see also Long John Distilleries LTD v. Sazerac Co., Inc., 426 F.2d 1406 (CCPA 1970) (finding no likely confusion between spirits using the marks “FRIER JOHN” and “LONG JOHN”); Nestle’s Milk Products, Inc. v. Bake Importing Co., Inc., 182 F.2d 193 (CCPA 1950) (finding the marks “Nescafe” and “Hycafe” dissimilar).

The word “inspiration” is defined as follows: “a divine influence or action on a person believed to qualify him or her to receive and communicate sacred revelation.” Merriam-Webster Online Dictionary, at <http://www.m-w.com/cgi-bin/dictionary?book=Dictionary&va=inspiration>. Given this definition, in the improbable event that Opposer’s mark “INSPIRATION” carries any commercial meaning at all, it would probably be that of some sort of religious items.⁴ On the other hand, the T.I.P.S. Mark conveys commercial meaning on its face: “TEACHER INSPIRED

⁴ See TBMB § 704.12, and the cases cited therein, for instruction concerning judicial notice of dictionary definitions.

PRACTICAL STUFF.” Clearly, “[t]he differences in sound, appearance and commercial impression of the two marks are obvious and one is no way suggestive of the other.” Long John Distilleries LTD v. Sazerac Co., Inc., 426 F.2d 1406, 1407 (CCPA 1970).

CONCLUSION

Inspiration asserts, without any basis whatsoever, that the T.I.P.S. Mark is confusingly similar to its “INSPIRATION.” As this Motion conclusively demonstrates, however, confusion of the two marks is impossible as a matter of law. Inspiration has thus failed to satisfy its burden to allege facts sufficient to deny the registration sought by TIPS of the T.I.P.S. Mark. Accordingly, the Notice should be dismissed.

For the foregoing reasons, TIPS respectfully requests that Notice be dismissed pursuant to 37 C.F.R. §§ 2.127 and 2.116(a) and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), and that all proceedings not germane to this Motion be suspended pursuant to 37 C.F.R. § 2.127 (d) and TBMP § 528.03.
