The Art of Optimism

By Lili Sarnyai

For those looking to discover their inner artiste, a new public art exhibition right in the heart of the Big Apple guarantees not one, but 300 smiles. European artist Agnes Winter's first US exhibit promises to be a truly magnificent, inspirational and uplifting homage not only to our great city but also to that too-often neglected idea: the joy of living. So if you're feeling somewhat doubtful about the Zen of Manhattan, or if you seem unable to find that elusive "happy place" within yourself, no matter how many '10 Easy Steps to a Happier You' books you read, then don't miss what promises to be one of the highlights of the cultural calendar for those with a fashionable savoir-vivre.

Looking for Love in All the Wrong Places?
Five Cool Places to Meet a Guy
By Simone Carlene Porter

Wishing that someone will throw pebbles at your window in the middle of the night asking for your hand in marriage? Well, sorry to tell you: it ain't gonna happen. In order to find the yin to your yang, the ketchup to your french fries, the cheese in your macaroni, you have to go out and make your presence known. Here are some interesting places to meet a guy.

Revlon's latest faces dazzle at Young Hollywood Awards

Monday, April 23, 2007

(LOS ANGELES) The scene at the Henry Fonda Theater looked a lot like a prom Sunday evening, when Hollywood Life magazine hosted its 9th-annual Young Hollywood Awards—or, as actor Shia LaBeouf, winner of the "Superstar of Tomorrow" award, described them, "The awards for people who haven't really done anything yet, but may possibly do something in the future." Considering that his new film Disturbia just finished a second weekend as number one at the box office, it was a charmingly modest statement.

Dakota Fanning
© Getty Images

Among the other youngsters honored were Dakota Fanning, Bijou Phillips, Vanessa Hudgens, Kristin Cavallari, Beau Garrett, and Haley Bennett. Bennett, in a bejeweled, multi-tiered dress by Chloé, confessed to a case of the jitters. "Jewel is presenting my award, and I've been a huge fan of her music for nine years, so I'm nervous about being around her." Sure enough, the Music & Lyrics starlet became teary-eyed upon getting onstage with her idol.

Most of the attendees were considerably more at ease, like Chris "Ludacris" Bridges, who thanked Garrett "for wearing that dress," or Hostel director Eli Roth, who quipped, "First, I'd like to thank God—that this is almost over, because I'm starving!"

At the afterparty, held on the theater's rooftop bar, V.I.P.s like Jessica Alba, Hilary Duff, Amanda Bynes, Katherine Heigl, Dane Cook, Crispin Glover, Maria Menounos, and Randy Jackson, toured the gift suites, sponsored by Lacoste, Roberto Coin, Jet Blue, Hpnotiq, Onitsuka Tiger, and Archipelago Botanicals.

Holding court by the bar was Garrett, recently named the new face of Revlon, along with her Fantastic Four co-star Alba. "I can't believe my luck," said Garrett, referring not to the plum Revlon gig or her win for "Exciting New Face," but to her snow-white David Meister gown. "No one's spilled anything on it, and I was drinking red wine while getting ready!"

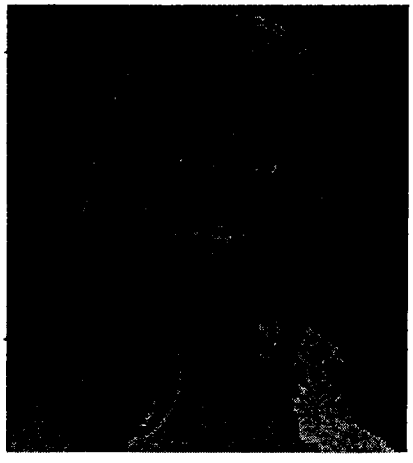
Only the Best (Vodka) for Beyoncé



Is Jay-Z driving Beyonce to drink?...

I'm only asking because the bodacious beauty was dying for some Hpnotiq vodka while giving a concert in Germany on Monday night. She requested that a member of her team find a way – any way – to snag her a bottle.

Here poor rep was scrambling to find a way to score a bottle, but didn't have any luck finding it in Hamburg where Beyonce was staying! ... Hours later, after a few phone calls, the folks at Hpnotiq had a few bottles sent her way immediately... They even agreed to keep her stocked for the rest of the tour so nobody would have to go on a desperate-Vodka-quest again!...

Beyonce's next stop?... France! According to the Hpnotiq reps over there, Beyonce was so sweet and gracious that they went to so much trouble over her!

Bachelorette Party... Celebrity Style

HPNOTIQ took over Vegas this weekend to throw Ugly Betty's Ana Ortiz a bachelorette party-extravaganza for 30 of her closest friends!

The fete kicked off when the soon to be Mrs. was picked up in LA by a decked out party bus fully-equipped with bartenders and bottles. Needless to say, after pounding a few cocktail concoctions, Ana and her friends (including castmate Kevin Sussman above) were ready to go!... They danced the entire five hour ride to Vegas while sipping on HPNOTIQ's signature cocktail Bubbles 'n Blue. (Stay tuned to GlamScene for the celebrity-fave recipe!)

By the time the crew hit the strip and checked into the super swanky Venetian, they were ready to party. (Even more!) Lucky for them, TAO Beach provided them with their very own cabana complete with flat screens, fully-stocked bar, and tons of topless dancers. (Oh, and Ana got a very special strip tease courtesy of her 6-foot-five-inch-300-pound-banana-hammock-wearing friend!)

After spending the rest of the day at the pool, the Ortiz bridal crew freshened up and headed down to titillating TAO for a delectable dinner. They switched to the night's extra special cocktail the HpnOrtiz (made specifically for Ana with Red Bull to keep the party going into the wee hours of the morn!)

After dinner, the ladies were escorted to their VIP room right next to the girls in dancing cages. After a few more drinkies, Ana was ready to get up in the cages with the dancers... but TAO's management stepped in and stopped the petite television star from lingering humiliation.

That minor snafu didn't stop the girls from enjoying the festivities complete with standard bachelorette party favors (i.e. penis straws and streamers). They partied well into the night. A few almost missed the bus home the next morning...

I guess what happens in Vegas... doesn't escape GlamScene.

Cheers!

Drink up!...

As promised... Here are the recipes for the celebrity-approved delicious drinks enjoyed at Ana Ortiz' Vegas bachelorette party... Courtesy of HPNOTIQ vodka! Cheers!

Starry Days and Nights in the Hamptons

STARRY DAYS AND NIGHTS IN THE HAMPTONS

The wonderful weekend weather brought out over four thousand people to the Hamptons Home and Garden Show over at the Elks Fairgrounds in Southampton. From set-up on Thursday through Sunday representatives from over 275 companies were in high spirits and eager to enjoy the Hamptons after a long day at the show. With the help of Hamptons.com many set appointments for massages at Naturopathica, dinner reservations at the Southampton Publick House and Almondito, and got the scoop on the beaches to visit with picnic dinners.

Strolling outside one couldn't help but notice the buzz at the VIP tent. Lorraine Bracco of the Soprano's fame was spotted in there on Saturday pouring some of her delicious wine. Ms. Bracco came out for the day to support The No Place Like Home Foundation. She signed copies of her autobiography, "On The Couch" as well as bottles of wine from Bracco Winery. She also auctioned off a magnum of her best 2005 wine that had been signed by the cast of the Sopranos.

Each visitor had a chance to win one of four gift baskets filled with everything you'd need to enjoy a great weekend in the Hamptons or a night in NYC. Items included round-trip tickets on the Hampton Luxury Liner, Barefoot Wine's Barefoot Bubbly Chardonnay Champagne, The Golden Pear Cookbook, goodies from Hildreth's, personal training sessions fro JT Personal Fitness, a gift card to LF Stores, Hpnotiq Super Premium Vodka, tickets to Les Miserables and Phantom of the Opera on Broadway, the newest perfume from Missoni, and bath products from White's Pharmacy in East Hampton. Congratulations to the winners – Lloyd F. of East Hampton, Mark C. of Kingston, Deborah K. of Montauk, and Dru R. of East Hampton.

HPNOTIQ HOSTS DONOVAN LEITCH'S 40TH BIRTHDAY PARTY
August 16, 2007 – Mulholland Tennis Club

Guests included: Donovan Leitch, Kirsty Hume, Eric Dane, Matthew Perry, Amber Valetta, Shiva Rose McDermott, Balthazar Getty, Pauly Shore, John Taylor of Duran Duran, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Ivana Milicevic, Rusty Anderson of Paul McCartney's band, Josh Charles, Brent Bolthouse, Jenni Kayne

"It" boy Donovan Leitch was 'inducted' into the country club of life – by turning 40 – and celebrated this milestone with friends, family and the chicest Hollywood crowd at the Mulholland Tennis Club. HPNOTIQ provided summer cocktails – ranging from HPNOTIQ Ice Pops as guests entered the party to the Bubbles 'n Blue champagne toast honoring Mr. Leitch himself to "The Dono" - a vodka martini in honor of the birthday boy.

Guests enjoyed a cocktail hour overlooking the club's tennis courts before heading indoors for an elegant seated dinner. The party kicked into high-gear with a HPNOTIQ blue birthday cake, dancing and lounging with a live performance from Dr. Wu and tunes from NY-based DJ Frankie Inglese.

Drink of the week

Why drink it now: Sweet enough for dessert, this red-white-and-blue cocktail is perfect for Independence Day-themed gatherings. It gets its blue component from Hpnotiq liqueur, a blend of cognac, vodka and tropical fruit juices. The liqueur, introduced in the United States just a few years ago, became trendy thanks to its ubiquity at celeb-frequented events like New York's Fashion Week and the Sundance Film Festival. You can buy Hpnotiq at liquor stores like Big Daddy's Fine Wine & Spirits (1451 Eastchase Parkway, Fort Worth); a 750-milliliter bottle sells for about $29.

— Patricia Rodriguez

Hpnotiq Firecracker Margarita

- 1 ounce dark rum
- 1 ounce coconut milk
- 1 ounce fresh lime juice
- 1 ounce pineapple juice
- 1 ounce sweetened strawberry puree
- ½ cup crushed ice
- 1 ounce Hpnotiq liqueur

1. Combine rum, coconut milk, lime juice, pineapple juice, strawberry puree, and ice in blender.
2. Pour Hpnotiq into a margarita glass and layer blended mix on top.
3. Garnish with chopped coconut or use a salt-rimmed glass as a variation.

Pete opens up about Ashlee to In Touch

all Out Boy guitarist Pete Wentz has admitted for the first time that he is head over heels for Ashlee Simpson. "I have never met somebody who makes me feel the way she makes me feel," he tells In Touch exclusively. And even though a family insider says Ashlee's parents are worried she will run away and elope with him, Pete says that isn't going to happen anytime soon.

In Touch caught up with the couple at the Hypnotiq bash at Dune nightclub in Southampton, N.Y., on July 6. "No wedding bells for me in the future," the 28-year-old bassist said.

Just days before, the couple had returned from a romantic getaway in Mexico that had infuriated Ashlee's dad, Joe, according to the insider. "The family was booked to travel together to Austin, Texas, for a family wedding," says the pal. "But she suddenly said she was going away with Pete and would make her own way to Austin."

Howie's wedding plans

Before Backstreet Boy Howie Dorough marries his fiancée, Leigh Boniello, he celebrated his last days as a single man with a weekend in Las Vegas with his guy friends, including bandmate A.J. McLean and former BSB Kevin Richardson. They drove a rented bus from LA on November 16, playing dice games and drinking shots along the way to Sin City. "The bus was the most fun. It was great — there was plenty of Hpnotiq!" Howie, 34, tells In Touch. "And Vegas is the place where bachelor parties should be."

But the future husband, who claims he knew he would marry Leigh, 33, the first time they met, was on his best behavior at hotspots like Tao. The couple will wed in December at the singer's hometown church in Orlando, Fla.

◀"They just look at each other, and everyone else in the room knows that they're together," Backstreet Boy A.J. tells In Touch about the couple.

Eric Dane and Donovan Leitch

The cream of L.A.'s hipsters hit the Mulholland Tennis Club in the Hollywood Hills to celebrate British rocker Donovan Leitch?s 40th birthday party. "The last time I was in a country club was for somebody?s bar mitzvah, so this is taking me back," said pal Eric Dane of the preppy/punk theme of the bash. After party guests sang "Happy Birthday" (twice) the birthday bad boy grabbed his racquet and hit the court for an impromptu game of tennis. "He gets younger every time I see him. If I look half as good as him when I turn forty, I?ll consider myself an incredible success," marveled Dane.

Young Hollywood in the spotlight

By Joel Stratte-McClure

Article Last Updated: 04/24/2007 10:12:19 AM PDT

"You looked great on stage!" Superstar of Tomorrow Shia LaBeouf whispered to Exciting New Vocalist Katharine McPhee when she returned to their table at the ninth annual Young Hollywood Awards on Sunday Night.

McPhee, who'd been introduced by a pitchy Randy Jackson, also picked up a sparkling Atlantis watch for making a "quantum leap" in the performing biz.

"We love the bling," McPhee told an audience at the Music Box at the Fonda that included Legend in Acting James Caan, Exciting New Face Josh Henderson, female Superstar of Tomorrow Katherine Heigl, Scream Queen Bijou Phillips, Today's Superstar Chris "Ludacris" Bridges and Hottest Coolest Young Veteran Dakota Fanning.

Holy kids, it's Shia LaBeouf, Male Superstar of Tomorrow, who's not going too ton today, what with his "I Am "Disturbia" in theaters. Here he is outside, looking superlative, before the Young Hollywood awards. (Kevin Winter/Getty Images)

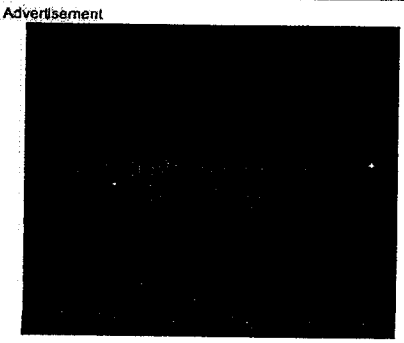
Katharine McPhee proves you don't have to win "American Idol" to be named Exciting New Vocalist at the Young Hollywood Awards. (Kevin Winter/Getty Images)

Then LaBeouf led the applause for Breakthrough Performance award winner Tyrese Gibson, his "Transformers" co-star who walked by the table to give him a big hug.

Emcee Justin Long had an unkind word for almost everyone, even presenters Jessica Alba, Luke Wilson, Hilary Duff, Robin Wright Penn, Amanda Bynes, John Singleton, Jewel, Elt Roth, Maria Menounos and T.R. Knight, who called Heigl "the closest thing to a human being I know."

"Put ear muffs on Dakota before I start!" Long said before he told Hollywood Life publisher Anne Volokh, the evening's older host, that she "smelled like formaldehyde." Long added that Knight "is the man that I call Isaiah Washington's muse" and then claimed "I was conceived when my parents were watching James Caan in 'The Godfather.'"

Advertisement



"I'd like to thank you for a night of 1,001 uncomfortable moments," Menounos told Long.

But don't think that Young Hollywood, who were drinking "Hpnotinis" – cocktails made with Hpnotique vodka – at the awards, doesn't influence the older generation.

"The young people of Hollywood are my most important critics," concluded Caan. "And talented young actors who ask for advice really pump me up."

Birthday boy

Donovan Leitch, attired in a totally preppy outfit at the Mulholland Tennis Club for his 40th birthday bash on Thursday, wasn't upset that younger sister Ione Skye skipped his party to fly to an international festival that his namesake dad, who released "Hurdy Gurdy Man" when the model/actor/rocker was just a year old, was in Ireland.

"They're worried that I'm ready to atone for my sins and become a responsible adult," the Hollywood High grad said as he welcomed 100 guests — including Amber Valetta, Eric Dane, Matthew Perry, Balthazar Getty, mom Enid Karl and members of his Camp Freddy band — to the old school party. Kirsty Hume, accompanied by their daughter Lilac, gave her aging husband a vintage silver Rolex watch.

How will the stylish Leitch afford the good life after 40?

The tab for the Dr. Wu tasting dinner and two-layer birthday cake was picked up by Hpnotiq, the liquor manufacturer who served everyone a blue drink called The Dono.

Now that's how to be a responsible adult!

Moving on

"Criminal Minds" regular A.J. Cook says in the wake of Mandy Patinkin's unexpected departure and ensuing brouhaha, the cast and crew has "rolled with the punches."

"We're not going to lie and say we weren't surprised and disappointed, but we're going to move forward and hope that it all goes fine," says the gorgeous blond actress, who plays FBI Special Agent Jennifer "J.J." Jareau on the CBS drama. "We wish the best to Mandy."

Joe Mantegna has been announced as the replacement for Patinkin's character, Supervisory Special Agent Jason Gideon, and Cook says, "The writers are locked in a room somewhere trying to find out who this new character is and how to bring him on. It'll be interesting to see how that changes the dynamic on the set and on screen."

The writers are also dealing with how to explain Gideon's absence. Cook says she'd be "personally shocked" if they kill off the character. She says Patinkin did eventually contact his former cast mates after leaving sans notice. "We have been kind of playing phone tag, but he has gone out of his way to make sure he reached all of us."

Taking a pass

Kathryn Morris regrets that she's going to have to pass on the latest feature being planned by filmmaker Rod Lurie, for whom she's worked on movies from "The Contender" to this Friday's release "Resurrecting the Champ" with Samuel L. Jackson and Josh Duhamel.

"I've been in all of Rod's films. We have an incredible collaborative spirit together. We talked about another one, but it's not going to work out with my series schedule," explains the actress, who makes a departure from her "Cold Case" homicide detective role in the new movie. She plays the newspaper editor wife of Duhamel's down-on-his-luck sportswriter, whose career could be reignited with the story of Champ (Jackson), a former world-class boxer he finds homeless.

It's 'Magic'

Bruce Springsteen is back with the E Street Band — and a hint of "Magic." The Rock and Roll Hall of Famer returns Oct. 2 with a new album, titled "Magic," his first collaboration with his longtime New Jersey mates since the Sept. 11-inspired "The Rising" in 2002, Springsteen announced through his publicist Thursday.

The album, other than its atmospheric title track, is filled as Springsteen's return to rock 'n' roll after his solo "Devils & Dust" and the folk-inspired "The Seeger Sessions." Fans can expect Clarence Clemons' familiar saxophone, Danny Federici's soaring keyboards and Max Weinberg's pounding drums — along with a lot of guitars.

The 11-song album is Springsteen's first of all-new material since April 2005, when he released the acoustic "Devils & Dust."

For this album, recorded with producer Brendan O'Brien at Atlanta, Springsteen reunited with the full E Street Band to re-create its Garden State wall of sound, which also includes guitarists Steve Van Zandt and Nils Lofgren, bassist Garry Tallent, keyboardist Roy Bittan, violinist Soozie Tyrell and vocalist Patti Scialfa.

Details on a worldwide tour featuring the band were scheduled to follow Springsteen and the E Street Band's set on the Live Earth concert series during a 15-month tour behind "The Rising."

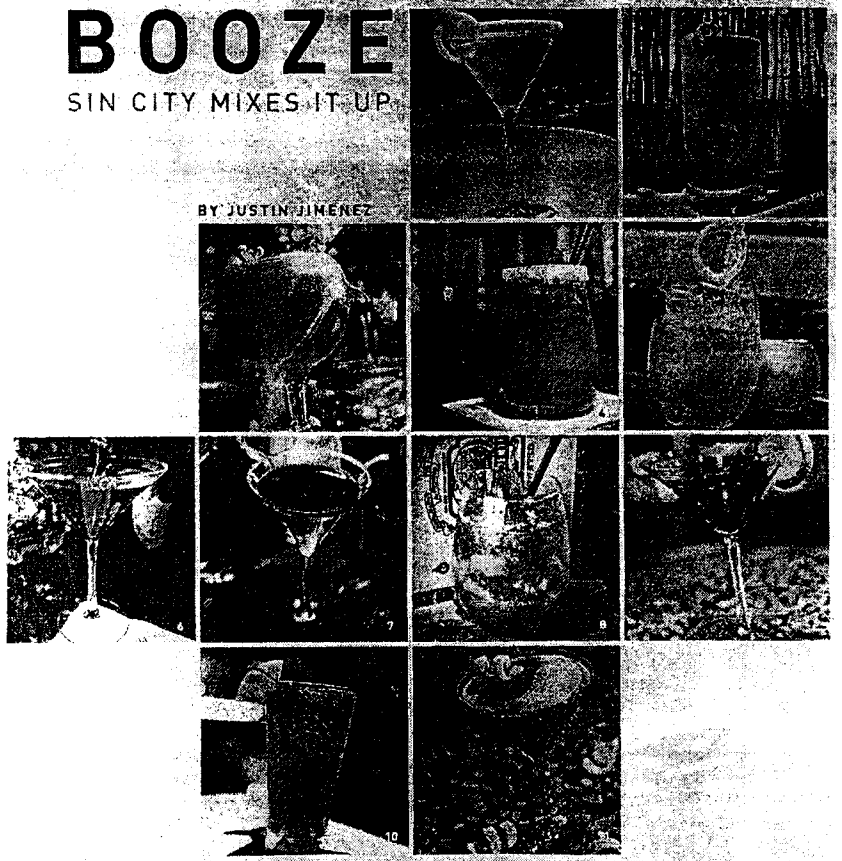
BEAUTIFUL BOOZE

SIN CITY MIXES IT UP

BY JUSTIN JIMENEZ



WE LIKE TO DRINK; it's not a secret. (Hardlong margarita, anyone?) But as The Nightclub & Bar Convention and Trade Show comes to town on March 4–7, and some of the industry's leading entrepreneurs trail in with it, we thought we should take a moment to recognize some of the better libations Sin City has to offer. We have already established ourselves as a wine destination, housing some of the best vino collections this side of the Mississippi, along with one of the largest conglomerations of master sommeliers in the country. However, mixology, an art and science coming together behind the bar, is taking off and Las Vegas is leading the trend. Just like a wine can be paired with a meal, so can a cocktail. Mixologists are redefining how we look at drinking, and going way beyond turning a rum and Coke into a Cuba libre. Shake It Up!—The Battle of the Mixologists happens this week in conjunction with the convention, and more alcohol innovation is sure to be on its way. So we just wanted to encourage you to put down that light beer, punish your liver the right way. Here is a glimpse into the upscale world of cocktailing. Cheers!

1. CUCUMBER MARTINI (STACK, THE MIRAGE)
Resident bar manager José Zepeda's original green cocktail has become a house favorite. It may not be as healthy as a salad, but it's still damn good. Made with Skyy Melon, essence of cucumber and fresh lime juice.

2. GREEN TEA LEMONADE (SOCIAL HOUSE, TI)
Starting with a base of Grey Goose and Le Citron, mixed with fresh-brewed iced green tea and Cointreau, it's an ideal way to sip away an afternoon.

3. THE WITCH DOCTOR (VOODOO LOUNGE, RIO)
Let's be real, you want get the party started fast—and sobriety is a dirty word in this town. This is a superb-tasting drink with enough inhibition killers to have you on the dance floor in no time, without being overpowering (which is also what makes it dangerous, as you can't taste the alcohol). Tropical juices are backed by light rum, Bocador 151 Rum, Captain Morgan Spiced Rum, Malibu Rum, peach schnapps and banana liqueur. Wow.

4. CACTUS PEAR MARGARITA
(MESA GRILL, CAESARS PALACE)
Mixed with top-shelf Herradura Silver tequila, cactus pear syrup and fresh lime juice, it delivers a fantastic smoky agave kick against the sweet fruit taste.

5. THE ULTIMATE MARGARITA
(N9NE STEAKHOUSE, PALMS)
What makes a margarita cost $69? Herradura Seleccion Suprema (a rare 10-year-old tequila), Del Maguey Single Village Mezcal, Grand Marnier 150 Year, a dash of pomegranate juice, the juice of one whole lime, and, of course, a sugar stick swizzle in the shape of a 9.

6. THE ARISTOCRAT
(BODY ENGLISH, HARD ROCK HOTEL)
At $2,000, this martini goes way beyond just being top-shelf. Combining Louis XIII Cognac, Grand Marnier 150 Year and Dom Pérignon, the diamond-encrusted swizzle stick is yours to keep, and the bottle of Dom comes to boot.

7. TOP OF THE WORLD MARTINI
(ROMANCE LOUNGE, STRATOSPHERE)
At $100, the tower isn't the only thing that's high. Hennessy Paradis is the ingredient that gives the sky-bound cocktail its flavorful and financial kick, complemented by Grand Marnier and Ultimat Vanilla Vodka.

8. CASA TANGERINE MOJITO
(CASA FUENTE, THE FORUM SHOPS AT CAESARS)
Montecristo rum anchors a mojito that would make Hemingway weep with joy. The standard mashed lime and mint complement the fresh tangerine, and a float of Mandarinie Napoleon tops off the perfect drink.

9. IL TESORO ROSSO (BENAZZI, HARRAH'S)
Gabriele Benazzi takes Malibu Pineapple Rum, Pearl Pomegranate Vodka and a splash of PAMA Pomegranate Liquer to make a fruity Italian delight.

10. 63RD FLOOR (THE HANGAR AT BAT)
With a towering mix of 10 Cane rum and cherry brandy along with some sweetening accoutrements, this one will indeed take your spirits high.

11. TROPICAL HYPNOSIS (I-BAR, RIO)
With a base of sweet and sour, a shot of Souza Tres Generaciones, Blue Curaçao and finished it off with Hpnotiq, you'll be in a trance in no time. LVM

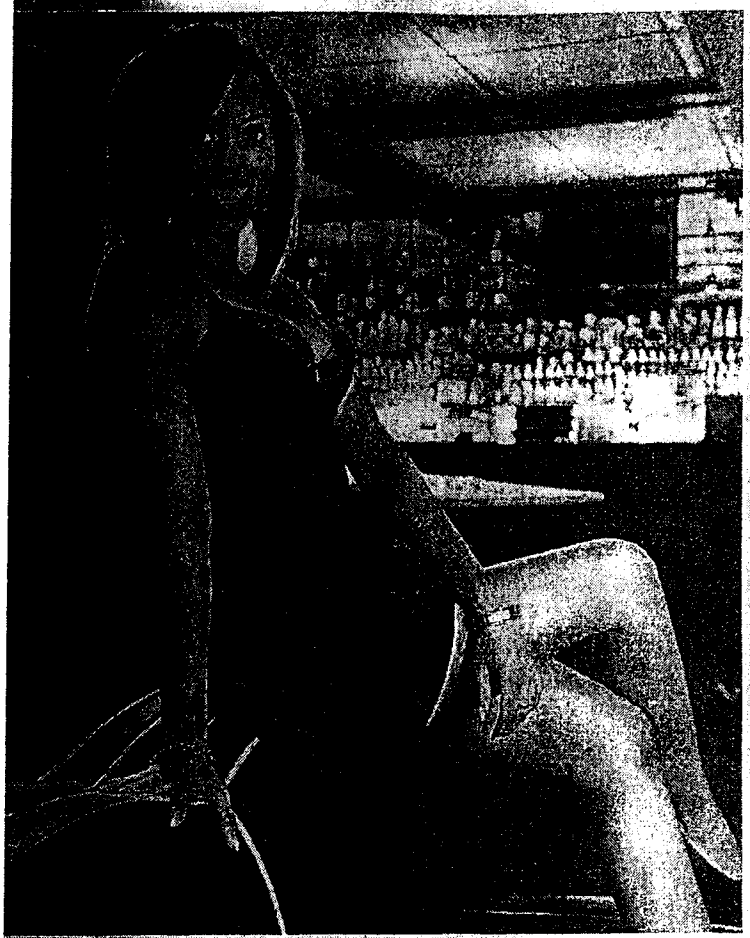
FRIENDS WITH BENEFITS



Erin Cardenas

There are connections many tourists never make on a weekend trip to Las Vegas. For example, many hotels are owned by the same company. There are also companies within those companies that offer the same kind of cross-property relationship.

Take, for example, Mist Lounge in Treasure Island, home to cocktail waitress Erin Cardenas.

"The Light Group is a remarkable family to be a part of," she said. Light Group oversees Mist, as well as marquee nightclubs Light and Jet. "I can take care of my friends at any of the other venues with great treatment."

Mist is one of the busiest cocktail parlors in town. Gong Karaoke on Mondays attracts some of the best-looking, worst singers in the city; Vapor Wednesdays has a hosted bar from 10-11 p.m. (read: free drinks) and the newly added Fusion Fridays puts some of the best DJs on display.

"This is the spot to be," Cardenas said. "This place has some of the best people; I am just lucky to get to meet so many of them." JUSTIN JIMENEZ

LIBATIONS

Sub Zero Martini

This original house creation of Mist is soothing after a heated bout with the karaoke machine. The hint of pineapple gives it a sweet tang complemented by Bacardi Orange Rum. The Malibu Rum adds a coconut aftertaste and the Hpnotiq cools off the color with a nice blue. -JJ

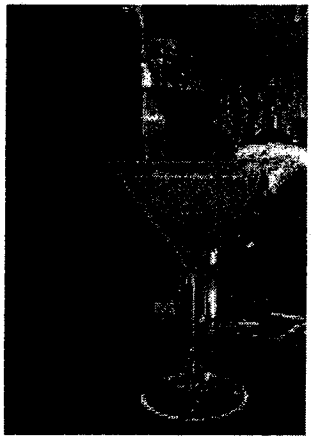
COCKTAIL OF THE WEEK

June 21, 2007

by Justin Jimenez

HPNOTIZED
V Bar, The Venetian, $8



INGREDIENTS:
1 oz. Hpnotiq
1 oz. orange-flavored rum
1/4 oz. Triple Sec
Splash pineapple juice
Garnish with fresh orange wedge

The thing about Hpnotiq is that if you try to do too much with it, you end up with a kitchen sink of flavors that ruins the point of using a blended liqueur—it doesn't need much. However, by itself it can be pervasively sweet. Part of the reason for both is that the French spirit is already blended with its own set of fine ingredients, using vodka, cognac and tropical fruits, so balance is essential. The Hpnotized cocktail has done a fine job of deflecting any cloying, as the citrus-based elements provide just enough acidity for a tasty equilibrium.

BRITNEY CHILD ABUSE INVESTIGATIO

Things have gotten worse for Britney Spears in her battle with Kevin Federline for custody of their sons, Sean, 2, and Jayden, 11 months. A court hearing was held on Aug. 27 in LA in connection with an investigation into possible child abuse by Britney, reports TMZ.com. A follow-up hearing is scheduled for Sept. 4.

While Kevin, 29, seems to be pulling out all the stops to win full custody, he says he won't force Brit's mom, Lynne, or sister, Jamie Lynn, to appear in court. (He may still subpoena Brit's dad, Jamie Spears.) "Lynne begged Kevin not to make her speak against Britney," says an insider. "Kev knows how much it would hurt Lynne and Brit if Lynne were forced to testify," adds a pal. "He doesn't want to live with that."

Instead, on Aug. 23, Linds, 21, was sentenced to jus one day in jail and 10 days of community service. She must also complete an alcohol-reha program. (She has until Jan. 18 to fulfill the sentencing terms.)

T-SHIRTS DON'T LIE: Just how sick is Dr. Gregory House, the drug-addicted and misanthropic diagnostician portrayed by Golden Globe winner Hugh Laurie on the TV medical drama "House"?

Although that the cast held a press conference at the Princeton Plainsboro Teaching Hospital on the 20th Century Fox lot on Monday to assess the situation. Turns out House/Laurie not only has mental, physical and emotional problems but is also in denial.

"House probably could be a lot less saner individual, but he's really not that bad," Laurie told the cynical press in the clinic waiting room. "He's a 7 on a scale of 23."

And that means?

Cast members Lisa Edelstein, Omar Epps, Robert Sean Leonard, Jennifer Morrison and Jesse Spencer came to the defense of the brilliant but crazed infectious-disease specialist.

"I've dated many guys off the set in much worse shape than House," said Edelstein, who joined Laurie in modeling a range of T-shirts with the phrase "Everybody Lies" — one of House's favorite one-liners — to raise awareness and funds for mental-health issues (www.housecharitytees.com).

Admittedly, House has diagnosed many rare conditions without completely losing it.

"However messed up he is, you've got to let it go because he saves lives," said Morrison, who just bought an Elie Saab dress for her upcoming wedding to Spencer.

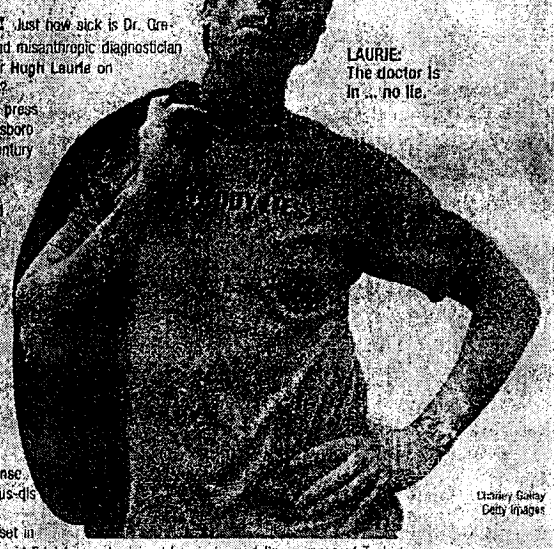
Dr. David Foster, a physician and writer on the show, insists House won't be institutionalized.

"He's got very serious issues," Foster agreed. "But we've just begun to plumb the depths of medical textbooks and can keep him going for several more seasons."

And, after all, it's just acting.

"Actually, I'm a very happy and sunny individual," Laurie insisted.

Everybody lies.



LAURIE: The doctor is in ... no lie.

McPHEE: Lovin' the bling

Kevin Winter/Getty Images

A NIGHT FOR YOUNG HOLLYWOOD: "You looked great on stage!" Superstar of Tomorrow Shia LaBeouf whispered to Exciting New Vocalist Katharine McPhee when she returned to their table at the ninth annual Young Hollywood Awards on Sunday Night.

McPhee, who'd been introduced by a pitchy Randy Jackson, also picked up a sparkling Atlantis watch for making a "quantum leap" in the performing biz.

"We love the bling," McPhee told an audience at the Music Box at the Fonda that included Legend in Acting James Caan, Exciting New Face Josh Henderson, female Superstar of Tomorrow Katherine Heigl, Scream Queen Bijou Phillips, Today's Superstar Chris "Ludacris" Bridges and Hottest Coolest Young Veteran Dakota Fanning.

Then LaBeouf led the applause for Breakthrough Performance award winner Tyrese Gibson, his "Transformers" co-star who walked by the table to give him a big hug.

Emcee Justin Long had an unkind word for almost everyone, even presenters Jessica Alba, Luke Wilson, Hilary Duff, Robin Wright Penn, Amanda Bynes, John Singleton, Jewel, Eli Roth, Maria Menounos and T.R. Knight, who called Heigl "the cleanest thing to a human being I know."

"Put ear muffs on Dakota before I start!" Long said before he told Hollywood Life publisher Anne Volokh, the evening's oldest host, that she "smelled like formaldehyde." Long added that Knight "is the man that I can Isaiah Washington's mouse" and then claimed "I was conceived when my parents were watching James Caan in 'The Godfather.'"

"I'd like to thank you for a night of [NOT uncomfortable] moments," Menounos told Long.

But don't think that Young Hollywood was picking on the older set. Quite the opposite, the older generation.

"The young people of Hollywood are my most important critics," concluded Caan. "And talented young actors who ask for advice really pump me up."

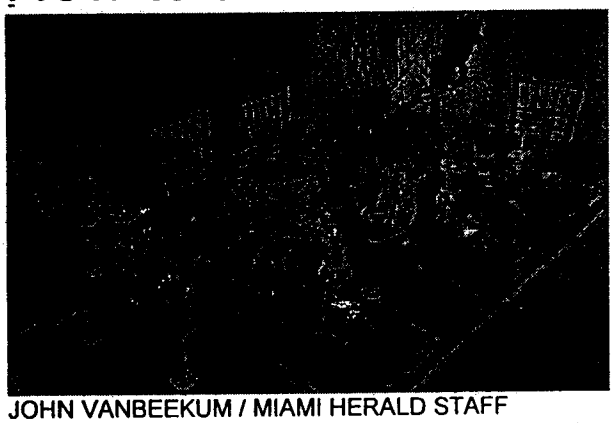
How to trick out a haute Halloween party



JOHN VANBEEKUM / MIAMI HERALD STAFF
Owls, silver goblets and a shimmery centerpiece await guests at this table styled by Jose Zaldivar of Touch Catering. 'You want this kind of fantasy noir feel, but don't want it too heavy and dark,' he advises.

SCARE UP SOME SPIRITS

Don't bother stocking your entire bar; make things easy on yourself by serving one of these creepy cocktails. Also keep sparkling water and a seasonal tea (e.g., cinnamon, apple or cranberry) on hand for teetotalers:

MAD-EYE MARTINI

Pour ½ ounce Hypnotiq liqueur, 1 ounce vodka and 2 ounces lychee juice into a cocktail shaker filled with ice. Cover and shake well.

For the eyeball garnish: Dry out 1 pitted lychee (sold in cans with syrup) and fill the cavity with a teeny bit of blueberry and strawberry preserves. Skewer with a toothpick.

SPIDER'S KISS

Pour 1 ounce Midori and 2 ounces gin in a tall glass, preferably frosted, over ice. Top off with a splash of tonic water and stir. Position near a black light, if possible. Midori folks say this drink glows due to the quinine in the tonic water. For the spider garnish, check out any dollar or novelty store.

PUMPKIN DIVINE

In a cocktail shaker filled with ice, mix one ounce Grey Goose La Vanille, 1 ounce pumpkin butter (buy a jar at gourmet markets or windyhillorchard.com for $5.95 a pint), ½ ounce triple sec, ½ ounce simple syrup. Shake vigorously until the outside of the shaker is beaded with "sweat." Strain into a chilled cocktail glass. Add a pinch of clove, nutmeg, cinnamon and ginger. Garnish with nutmeg and a couple of cranberries.

The heady mix of art, ads -- and alcohol

Posted on Wed, Dec. 05, 2007

In creating his swanky modern art gallery, Isaiah Orlen has the tricky task this week of deciding which pieces pair best with Jagermeister.

The famously pungent liqueur is one of 11 sponsors of Orlen's F.A.M.E. Collective show, where advertising bleeds into the art installations hanging in a rented South Beach loft.

Orlen matched the scarlet hue of Pama Pomegranate with the red theme running through Ben Tour's paintings, and put the Hpnotiq bar in front of a wall of super-hero oil paintings because the fruity liqueur is often used to make an "Incredible Hulk" cocktail. Lights shining on the paintings will also match the liquors' signature colors during a week of parties at the invitation-only gallery.

"We just do very subtle branding," said Orlen, owner of Maximum Impact Associates.

Jagermeister wound up by a mural and couch created by stars of the Miami Ink reality show because the liqueur is popular with the biker and tattoo crowds, Orlen said.

HAUTE HALLOWEEN

One of the leading cocktail holidays is on the doorstep...Trick or Treat!

A number of cocktail creations are creeping into fall beverage menus around the Northwest. Some of them rely on the color of the brew to cast a spell on devilish palettes.

Hpnotiq, a blend of vodka and fruit juices with a touch of cognac, is just one of these spirits that has caught the eye of NorthWest Stir. Following are recipes for Blue Boo, Carmel Appletini and Swamp Thing that will give guests a fright fest to remember.

With Halloween just a few nights away, let loose and create some of the most deliciously enchanting drinks for the spookiest night of the year.

Paris Hilton Does Sundance

A little bit of Paris in Park City.

Last night I had my one night out experiencing the craziness that is Main Street in Park City. The entire slushy street was filled with people -- think Times Square at rush hour -- lining up outside of various parties. As my group approached the after-party sponsored by Hpnotiq for Be Kind Rewind, directed by Michel Gondry and starring Jack Black, a mob scene broke out on the sidewalk a few doors down. Who could it be? Hysteria grew, camera phones flashed. The answer? Ms. Paris Hilton. "I saw your tape, Paris!" one hopeful youngster cried out.

The party for Be Kind Rewind, drew a good-looking, mostly LA-type crowd. We can't help but wonder -- who are these girls that can brave these temperatures with short skirts and no tights? Josh Hartnett showed up (he had the good sense to wear a toasty-looking hat) and Mr. Gondry played the drums. Further down the street at the Queer Lounge celebrating the documentary Derek, about artist Derek Jarman, drag queens mixed with impeccably groomed fellas and The Donnas played to a fully packed house. Elsewhere, apparently, 50 Cent played a set and rumors continue of a secret U2 show.

Liquid Assets | The Brazilian Wax, B&J Sake Margarita...

Featuring Cabana CachaÃ§a, B&J, Hypnotiq, and Old Speckled Hen
Tuesday, July 31, 2007

Knowing what to drink is almost as important as where you're drinking it. And so we present Liquid Assets, the insider's guide to the city's best cocktails.

Dude, you've been drinking a lot this Summer.

Well, don't stop now...

Angels & Kings' The Brazilian Wax

In the spirit of cocktails with naughty names (Sex on the Beach, etc.) comes Cabana Cachaça's signature cocktail, The Brazilian Wax. This sensual cocktail is sweet and fruity.

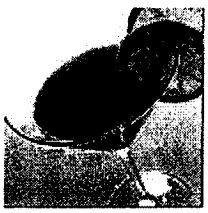
Oh, and this version's painless.

HOW TO MAKE IT
2 oz Cabana Cachaça
Pineapple Juice

Club Soda
½ Teaspoon of Triple Sec

Fill a glass with crushed ice and pour in Cabana. Fill near top with pineapple juice and top with a splash of club soda and triple sec. Stir, add garnish of your choice and serve.

Available at Angels & Kings, 500 East 11th St (Avenue A), (212) 254-4090, angelsandkings.com.



Dune's Bartles & Jaymes Sake Margarita

Summer means trying all sorts of new things: like mixing B&J with sake and tequila for a Bartles & Jaymes Sake Margarita. Soft and approachable at first, this cocktail builds slowly, and then it hits you.

HOW TO MAKE IT
1 oz Bartles & Jaymes Raspberry Pomegranate Wine Cooler
½ oz Sake
1 oz Tequila
½ oz Simple Syrup
½ oz Triple Sec
Splash of Orange Juice

Shake and place in a margarita glass with lemon and lime wedge.

Available at Dune Southampton, 1181 North Sea Road, Southampton, (631) 283-0808, dunesouthampton.com.

Bridgehampton Polo's Bubble's 'n Blue

Mix a little champagne with a little Hpnotiq and voilà, Bubble's 'n Blue. It's elegant and easy, just like weekends in the Hamptons.

HOW TO MAKE IT
2 oz Hpnotiq
2 oz Champagne

Combine and serve in a chilled champagne flute.

Bubble's 'n Blue was served all weekend at the Mercedes-Benz Bridgehampton Polo Challenge.

The Spotted Pig's Old Speckled Hen

It is the balance of rich, malty undertones and fruity notes that make Old Speckled Hen a smooth beer. Then again, it could be that an ice cold OSH on a hot day is a thing of beauty.

Old Speckled Hen is served at The Spotted Pig and available at gastropubs throughout NYC.

'The L Word' Spins Off Its Chart

From the first season of Showtime's "The L Word," a chart mapping the relationships of the character Alice has been a cen- motif, growing to take over entire wall. Starting Jan. 7 with the start of the fourth season of the lesbian-themed drama, the Chart is going live, both on the series and in the real world.

Looking for compelling Internet component (like all media executives), "The L Word" creator Ilene Chaiken realized that she could spin off the Chart as an advertiser-supported social networking Web site aimed at lesbians and their friends and families.

Users of OurChart.com will be able to create personal profile pages and then, like Alice, link them into charts of their relationships, whether sexual or otherwise. Three of the show's cast members — Jennifer Beals, Katherine Moennig and Leisha Hailey, who plays Alice — are among the site's founding partners and will contribute original content to the site, as will other invited filmmakers and Ms. Chaiken, who is OurChart.com's chief executive.

The site, a joint venture with owned by CBS, is a way of acknowledging that "audiences own TV shows these days and they want interaction," Ms. Chaiken said.

Eventually, the portion of the new site devoted to "The L Word" will become less important "as the community takes it over" with user-generated content, said Hilary Rosen, a founding partner and the site's president. "Every lesbian has their own L world. We thought it would be really interesting to let go of the show in this environment and bring other people's L worlds into the mix and let them share with each other."

Matthew Blank, chairman and chief executive of Showtime Networks, said the audience for the show "has a tremendous sense of community," which he equated to "analog social networking."

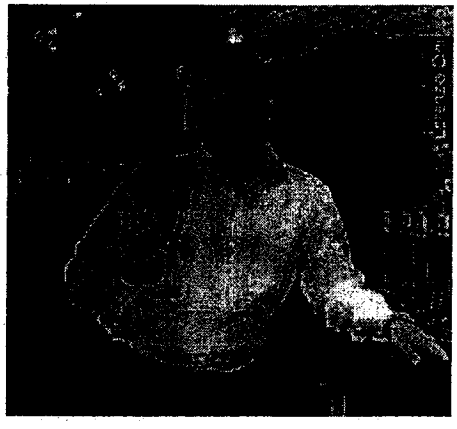
"Everyone I know who watches that show and is gay watches it with their friends," he said. "It makes for a natural extension." But he acknowledged that trying to build such a site from a show has not been done before. "We're not sure what to expect."

DREAM JOB: RAPHAEL YAKOBY

THIS SELF-MADE LIQUEUR ENTREPRENEUR IS IN THE PINK

By WENDY STRAKER May 21, 2007

Text Size | Email This Story | Print | Reprints | Archives



THINK DRINK: Yakoby made millions off the blue-hued club favorite Hpnotiq; this month he's launching a new product.

AT 32, Raphael Yakoby is in good spirits, and why shouldn't he be? Seven years ago, Yakoby, a college dropout with no business experience, had an idea: He'd create the first blue liqueur. Ignoring naysayers who told him nobody would drink a blue beverage, he sold his apartment, moved back into his parents' Long Island home and got to work. A year later Hpnotiq, a blend of vodka, cognac and fruit juices, was a nightclub staple, and he went on to sell the brand for a reported $50 million.

Now Yakoby is back with Nuvo, a pink sparkling vodka liqueur. Aimed at women, it comes in a tapered square bottle that looks more like a vessel for perfume than booze. Meet the man who has everyone from Liv Tyler to Mena Suvari drinking out of his hand.

What gave you the idea for Hpnotiq?

It came from seeing a blue perfume in a beautiful bottle at the counter in Bloomingdale's. I said, "Wouldn't that be great for a liqueur product?" Nuvo was inspired by the fragrance industry, but I wouldn't say any specific fragrance. It was more like, how do I incorporate the beauty of the fragrance industry into a liqueur?

What did your parents think when you moved back home to start your company?

They thought I was crazy. And they weren't the only ones. But listen, you have to do what you have to do. My feeling in life is that I can live with my own mistakes, but I can't live with somebody else's. With Nuvo, I heard the same rhetoric. People would say things like, "It's a very difficult bottle to do. How do you know it's not going to explode?"

Was it easier the second time around?

The first time I had no no experience, so it was hard opening those doors. I literally went door to door selling my product to restaurants. The second time, the doors were much easier to open, but people also expected a lot more from me right away.

I couldn't afford to make those little mistakes I made the first time. Also, with Nuvo, the packaging was much more intricate.

Is that why it took you so long to launch it?

In this business, you have to be so perfection-oriented in not settling for what you don't want. I must have tried at least 175 different blends and seen 75 different packaging concepts before deciding this is the right fit, the right look, the right feel. It takes incredible patience to get a product exactly right.

Have you always had discerning taste buds?

I wouldn't say that, but I know what I like. A lot of this is being able to believe in your own tastes and abilities. If you go by focus groups you get so many different opinions you don't know where to turn.

Now that you've launched, what's a typical day like?

First thing in the morning we're on the phone with all the supply teams, from the glass company to the natural fruit producer. Then we'll have discussions throughout the day with regard to the sales aspect, the promotional aspect. We'll ask ourselves what events we should be part of and what events we should not be a part of. There really are not enough hours in the day.

Do you have any personal rituals during the workday?

Well I shower, which I think is a pretty good ritual; otherwise I'd be one stinky entrepreneur. After that I have a glass of water and my day begins. I don't have time for breakfast and I eat lunch very rarely. You may say, "Well it's amazing you're as stocky as you are," and I have an answer for that. At about 9 o'clock each night, I find an hour to pig out.

LA DIVERTIDA DESPEDIDA DE SOLTERA DE ANA ORTIZ

La actriz de Ugly Betty (ABC) y su novio celebraron sus últimos días célibes en Las Vegas

WIREIMAGE.COM

Ana Ortiz, la actriz que encarna a Hilda Suárez, la hermana de Betty en la popular serie Ugly Betty (ABC), está disfrutando de cada etapa antes de su boda. La futura novia celebró a todo dar su despedida de soltera en Las Vegas.

De acuerdo a fuentes cercanas a Ortiz, de 36 años, la fiesta que estuvo patrocinada por el licor Hpnotiq, comenzó temprano con un divertido viaje en camión de Los Ángeles a Las Vegas, que incluyó música, su bebida favorita Bubbles n' Blue (hecha con champaña y Hpnotiq), y muchas bromas.

Al llegar a Las Vegas fue recibida en un exclusivo hotel donde la actriz disfrutó de un espectáculo junto a 30 de sus amigas más cercanas. Luego de una deliciosa cena la novia y sus amigas fueron escoltadas a un nightclub ubicado en el Hotel Venetian donde bailaron y cantaron en muy buena compañía.

¿Y el novio? De acuerdo a nuestra fuente, el músico Noah Lebenzon, de 36 años años, se fue a un strip club, como todo soltero antes de casarse. Por supuesto, con permiso de la novia.

La actriz de origen puertorriqueño se casará el próximo 9 de junio en la Isla del Encanto. "Estoy fascinada y hasta me duelen las mejillas de tanto reír", señaló la actriz a PEOPLE hace unas semanas. "Él es un chico de California, lo que hace un buen balance con mi locura neoyorquina", agregó.

Caught in the Act! Sundance Swag Suites

Taxes, schmaxes! Sometimes a star needs a $1,200 bottle of Swarovski-encrusted Hpnotiq. Here's what other freebies Sienna, Teri and even Dustin Diamond (Screech!) picked up at the Sundance Film Festival in Park City, Utah:

• Sienna Miller, loading up on brown boots (her favorite color), a snow jacket and a hoodie at the Complex Magazine/DC Shoes Snowboarding Lounge. "I'll wear them everywhere," Miller said. "I didn't bring that many warm clothes." Her light packing wasn't a problem after all: Miller then scored more than $3,000 worth of goodies at the Fred Segal at The Village at the Lift lounge, taking home puffy jackets, cargo pants and T-shirts.

• Teri Hatcher, picking up sexy 2(x)ist brand underwear for boyfriend Stephen Kay at Fred Segal. When told that the trunks protect against UV rays, the Desperate Housewives star joked, "A lot of sun gets down there!" Hatcher didn't go home empty-handed, though: For herself, she scored a pair of Earth boots in olive green, Mr. Men and Little Miss tees for her and her daughter (including "Little Miss Giggles" and "Little Miss Fun" for herself) and AG jeans at the Marquee suite.

• Katherine Heigl and fiancé Josh Kelley, picking up the new white BlackBerry Pearl from the T-Mobile Café at The Village. She says she'll use that just for business but will keep her Sidekick 3 for friends and family.

• Adam Brody, getting technical with a silver iMainGo system by Portable Sound Labs (made especially for Sundance 2007) and a Freitag bag for his MacBook, worth $500. (Brody was overheard telling sponsors at Fred Segal, "I don't want to take stuff I'm not going to use.")

• Dustin Diamond and Gary Coleman getting into a competition on who could score the most swag. Diamond's tally so far? At the Hpnotiq Happy Hour, Diamond picked up $1,500 worth of freebies, including a $100 bathrobe, a spa kit worth $150, a golf umbrella, and a hand-crafted, one of a kind, Swarovski-encrusted $1,200 bottle of *Hpnotiq liqueur.

Zin Zing: Wave Old Glory for zinfandel, America's wine, made from a versatile grape

Thursday, May 10, 2007

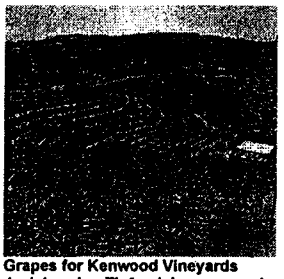
By Elizabeth Downer, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

The weakened state of the U.S. dollar has begun to bring about a shift in Americans' wine-buying habits. As the dollar falls, the prices of imported wines rise. I predict that in the next few years, as we continue to be plagued by our high national debt, wine consumers will become more interested in domestic wines.

And when it comes to domestic, nothing screams "American" more than California zinfandels.

Zinfandel is almost our national grape. There always has been an air of mystery surrounding its origins; only recently has it been solved. The grape hails from an almost extinct variety found in a single vineyard in Croatia, where only nine vines of the mother vine still exist.

Stock from that vine was brought to America in the 1820s and since the Gold Rush has been a staple grape for California winemakers. The same grape made its way to Italy, where it is called primitivo.



Grapes for Kenwood Vineyards Jack London Zinfandel are grown in the Sonoma Valley in California.

To the happy couple

Here's a bridal toast from the makers of Hpnotiq, a French electric-blue blend of vodka, fruit juices and Cognac:

THE SOMETHING BLUE

- 2 ounces Hpnotiq liqueur
- 2 ounces white wine
- 1 ounce ginger ale

Serve in a Champagne flute.

It makes a wine that can range from light and fruity to a strong red with intense fruit and spice flavors. Many winemakers add a tiny percentage of petite syrah grapes to the zinfandel to add a bit more color and structure. The wines are relatively high in alcohol with lots of fruit flavors that develop into a rich spicy stew with age. When grown in cool climates and carefully pruned to keep the yield low, zinfandel produces an impressive wine that ages well.

Good zinfandel is still a bargain. Because the grape does not have the status of cabernet sauvignon or pinot noir, it frequently is overlooked by consumers. There is no doubt that the flood of sweet, white zinfandel has left a stain on the reputation of the grape variety and probably had a negative market impact on good red zinfandels.

If you are looking for quality wine under $20 a bottle and want to keep your wine dollars at home, it's time to get into the zinfandel groove.

Some zins to try

■ Cline Cellars, PLCB#7250, $9.99: Cline Cellars is especially well known for its zinfandels. They bottle a number of single vineyard labels but this wine is a blend of grapes from vineyards from different areas in California. It is full of dark berries and spice aromas with a bit of oak and smooth tannins. This is a well-made wine at a great price.

■ Rosenblum Cuvee, PLCB#8537, $ 10.99: Rosenblum is famous for single vineyard bottlings of zinfandel from California's top growing regions but this bottle is a blend of a number of vineyards and, in fact, even from different vintages. This makes it possible to make a wine with a consistent palate profile year after year. This is an exemplary zinfandel and a great value.

■ Ravenswood Vintner's Blend, PLCB#4068, $10.99: Ravenswood is recognized as a top producer of zinfandel. This bottle is another blend of grapes from different California viticultural regions. The juice is fermented with natural yeasts, left to macerate for several weeks and then aged in small oak barrels to give this wine lots of fruit and spice aromas, soft tannins and a long finish.

■ Kenwood Vineyards, PLCB#5894, $14.49: Kenwood Vineyards makes a zinfandel exclusively from grapes grown in Sonoma County. The wine features aromas of blackberries and figs with notes of black pepper and licorice. Aged in oak, it has smooth tannins and full body.

■ Gallo Family Vineyards Sonoma Reserve, PLCB#8339, $9.99: Many people still associate the Gallo name with inexpensive bulk wines but for a number of years, the Gallo Family Vineyards label has been producing quality wines that they sell at attractive prices. This zin is a good example of a well-made wine, exhibiting blackberries and plums on the nose, medium body and good tannins.

■ Francis Ford Coppola Diamond Series, PLCB#6808, $16.99. This wine that smells of strawberry jam and spice with touches of vanilla is made with grapes grown in Sonoma, Amador and Paso Robles. Some of the vines are 50 years old. Intense fruit, pleasing acidity and good tannins make this an interesting wine.

■ St. Francis Old Vine, PLCB#7232, $16.99: Old vine zinfandel is a special treat and this bottle is from grapes grown on vines 50 to 100 years old! As vines age, they produce fewer grapes but the grapes are highly concentrated in flavor, which results in a more complex wine. To add to the dimension of this bottle, the wine spent 12 to 15 months in small oak barrels and eight months in bottle before being released. I definitely recommend that you try a bottle of old vine zinfandel and compare it with a normal zin.

■ Normal Old Vine, $20.99: You can purchase this wine from Dreadnought Imports (412-391-1709). Robert Parker calls the zinfandels from this small family vineyard in Paso Robles "among the finest zinfandels I have tasted."

■ Ridge Zinfandels: Ridge Vineyards makes what is considered the king of zins. Although our state stores do list Ridge products in their catalog, they are so rare in Allegheny County stores that I am not able to recommend one here. But if you are out of state or in Eastern Pennsylvania, do pick up a single vintage bottle of Ridge and taste for yourself the ultimate pleasure this grape variety can provide.

Introducing Premiere Events' Santa Barbara Calendar

By Matt Kettmann

Thursday, May 31, 2007

Keeping your party schedule in order can prove difficult for even the most organized Santa Barbaran. And don't we all hate that blank spot on the wall that just begs for something to be hung?

Well, Premiere Events□—□a Santa Barbara party-throwing company run by Mary Lynn Harms, Josh Murray, and Ryan Grau□—□is killing those two dilemmas with one stylish stone. Next month, they're releasing a slickly produced, Santa Barbara-centric 18-month calendar featuring our region's most beautiful women modeling in establishments and settings all over town.

The $20 pin-up calendar, which runs from July 2007 through December 2008, is sponsored on a month-by-month basis by a number of restaurants, clubs, and trendsetting companies such as Couchéz, whose month features a pillow fight, and Scavenge, which is taking over October to plug its famous Halloween costume supplies. There are also Q's, Elements, Hot Kiss, Bryan Lee, Salon U, Santa Barbara Bridal, and many more companies behind individual spreads, and every sponsor will also be throwing a release party for their respective month to keep alive the calendar buzz.

Pretty women in stylish, seasonal settings□—□that's what Premiere Events' new calendar is all about.

The more than 20 photographed models, almost all living and/or working in Santa Barbara, range from professionals (one was recently in Playboy) to first-timers who work around town as waitresses and bartenders. Many of the models dance for State Street Ballet, and all of them will be featured in mini-profiles within the calendar. They were styled by Michael Romo of Salon U, creatively envisioned by Premiere Events' owners Murray and Grau, and then shot mostly by Murray's brother Adam, an L.A.-based photographer.

One afternoon a couple weeks ago, the crew was in full swing at EOS, the revamped bar at the corner of Anacapa and Haley streets. As Romo primped the more than one dozen models, EOS owner Jeff Clark poured drinks both real and fake, such as the bright-blue Hypnotiq concoction that one model cradled in her hand as she posed before the lounge's outdoor fountain. (That shot is now the marketing face for Sundaze, Premiere Events' annual weekend party series that's going down this summer at EOS.)

The air smelled of equal parts excitement and determination, as the Premiere Events crew prepared for what was expected to be the calendar's crowning shot: a "Last Supper"-inspired image with a bevy of beauties surrounding Clark, whose chiseled features and long hair make him the perfect Jesus-Christ-as-a-male-model. Despite the backstage chaos, the shoot turned out beautifully, as have almost all the scenes, including the American Beauty-inspired spread of a woman hiding behind popcorn instead of red roses and the sexy champagne toast to coincide with New Year's. There's a definite sense that Premiere Events may be onto something with this project, a product that combines Santa

Barbara's luxurious beauty with the restaurants, bars, stores, salons, and other companies that keep the town alive.

And their vision doesn't stop with the calendar. The Premiere Events owners, who teamed up after working together at the Santa Barbara International Film Festival, hope to make their Web site, pe-sb.com, into a clearinghouse for Santa Barbara's growing nightlife scene. Past attempts by others to rope together our town's loose-knit collective of clubs has proven tedious, if not impossible. But then again, a pin-up calendar's no small task either, and Premiere Events is successfully pulling that off.

Eye Spy With My Lychee Eye

Posted Oct 24, 2007 by Jeff Houck

I get a lot of goofy press releases during the Halloween season. Seriously, you have no idea how much p.r. reps try to cash in on this holiday.

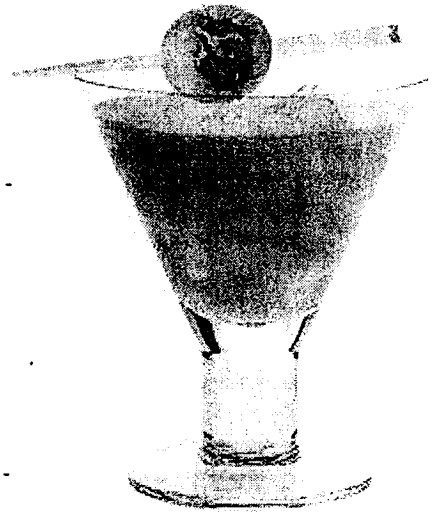
My favorite was this one:

HPNOTIQ'S HOLLYWOOD HALLOWEEN PARTY CELEBRATE HALLOWEEN HAUNTED HILL STYLE WITH AUDRINA PATRIDGE'S HPNOTIQ COCKTAILS

Okay, let's stop here for a second.

I like to think that I'm up on pop culture. I read a lot. I watch too much TV. I'm a podcast freak and a Web scrounger of the worst kind (you know, the kind who pelts friends constantly with marginally entertaining links. Yep, I'm that kind of guy).

Anyway, as much as I think I know about the cultural world around me, I had no idea who AUDRINA PATRIDGE was.



Maybe that's because she was on MTV's series "The Hills." I only watch that when they're making fun of it on E!'s show "The Soup." Like I said, I'm that kind of guy.

But I digress.

Anyway, I didn't know who the hell she was. Nor did I care, but if there's one thing I know, it's that any great Halloween cocktail has to have a certain gore factor for me to pay attention.

Hpnotiq (not sure if they were trying to be ~~hp~~ hip with the name or they just couldn't spell) nailed it perfectly with their Mad Eye Martini.
As the press release explains:

Hpnotiq is reinventing their classic cocktails for a night of costumes and debauchery with reality super star, Adurina Patridge at Hollywood's hottest night club, Les Deux on October 30th. To create your own, see recipes below:

HPNOTIQ'S MAD EYE

½ ounce Hpnotiq
1 ounce super premium vodka
2 ounces lychee juice
Shake with ice, strain into a martini glass.
Garnish with a lychee fruit.

For the Lychee Eyeball:

1 canned grade AA lychee in syrup, drained
¼ teaspoon cherry, strawberry or raspberry preserves
1 blueberry

Dry Lychee and fill with preserves. Place blueberry, blossomed end facing out, into cavity and skewer.

GRAMMY J. BLIGE, CHICKS

Oh, boo, hoo. Along with untold millions in the Pacific time zone, I didn't get to vote for one of three young lovelies who would share the spotlight with Justin Timberlake at the 49th annual Grammy Awards, Thanks, CBS! But there must have been some white knuckles in the control room as the cameras capturing the twosome came perilously close to revealing a danger zone that would have made the Justin-Janet Super Bowl breast flap look like a Disney Channel promo. Yikes, girl, I hope you were wearing your Cosabellas. The crotch-length dress overshadowed any vocal talent on display and made women everywhere cringe. Straight men, maybe not so much.

Best line from the show came from Chris Rock intro-ing the Red Hot Chili Peppers. "They put their jocks in socks long before Justin put his d(bleep) in a box."

In the days leading up to the 3 ∏ hour Dixie Chicks-dominated extravaganza, Ocean Way Studios and InStyle hosted the Grammy Style Studio®, where guests including John Legend, Gnarls Barkley, Katharine McPhee, OK Go, Weird Al Yankovic and Peter Frampton imbibed on Hypnotic Breezes, (a potent mix of the blue vodka/cognac/fruit juice elixir, Malibu Rum and a splash of pineapple) and autographed a Swarovski-encrusted bottle to be auctioned for the Grammy Foundation. Other suite visitors enjoyed expert makeup from Urban Decay VP Eric Jimenez. If you haven't seen it yet, UD has the most rockin' glitter eyeliner, aptly called "Heavy Metal," in shades ranging from crystal to copper to teal, green and purple. Other highlights: L.A.M.B.'s hot new timepieces, including an enamel bracelet with a mother of pearl face framed by Swarovski crystals (at Bloomingdale's), cowboy hat company Stetson, with a hip new line of plaid and corduroy newsboy and driving caps that were quickly snatched up, the new Grammy Brand line of luxury products including leather jackets, evening bags and shades plus FUNimation Entertainment's vivid anime T-shirts—along with a slew of designers like Vivienne Westwood, Moods of Norway, Jenny Packham London, Kyri, Zegna and Ted Baker.

Our space: Net gain for 'L Word'

Showtime plans social networking site tied to lesbian-themed show

By Gail Schiller

NEW YORK — Showtime Networks and Ilene Chaiken, the creator and executive producer of "The L Word," have formed a joint venture to launch a social networking site for lesbians inspired by the pay cabler's series.

The site, OurChart.com, will feature content from the series and will launch next month along with Season 4 of "The L Word." With a title drawn from one of the series' central story lines, OurChart is believed to be the first U.S.-based social networking site launched around an entertainment property. It also is the first ad-supported venture for the premium cable channel, which does not accept paid advertising on its network.

"The launch of OurChart.com speaks to the many opportunities that exist now to expand the presence of a show beyond the traditional viewing experience," said Matthew Blank, chairman and CEO of Showtime Networks, a division of CBS Corp. "It will bring the world of 'The L Word' to a whole new audience of fans."

Blank said that while the site naturally will help promote "L Word," it was created to be a totally separate stand-alone business and is in no way a "promotional stunt" for the program. "The show and OurChart will feed one another, but this is a new business that we hope will be very successful," he said. "We're hoping to create a valuable asset that produces financial results for us."

The site will be an online social networking space built to connect and engage the lesbian community as well as their friends and families and will feature original and user-generated content in addition to exclusive content from the show, Showtime said.

"L Word" cast members Jennifer Beals, Katherine Moennig and Leisha Hailey will serve as OurChart founding partners and develop content for their fans that reflects their personal interests. As founding partners, the actresses also will share in the revenue.

"This is an exciting project for us, and a great extension of what our show is about," Beals said. "For me, Kate and Leisha, it is a chance to broaden a conversation that we all have felt privileged to be a part of — about identity and community and the importance of representation."

Chaiken, Beals, Moennig and Hailey will have personal pages on the site. There also will be celebrity guest bloggers, interactive contests related to the show and podcasts featured on OurChart. About 75% of the content will be user-generated, and the rest will be "L Word"-related material, said Chaiken, who will serve as CEO of OurChart.

"This will be the first site of its kind," she said. "It will be the first site to marry the rich, beautiful content of an established media site with interactive user-generated content, but we think it's going to be the ultimate online destination for this vibrant and engaged community. This is a place where I will make myself available to our audience in a way that I never have before."

The name of the social networking site, OurChart, is based on "L Word" character Alice's wall-sized, handwritten white-board chart that is designed to keep track of her lesbian friends' various hookups and heartbreaks. In the upcoming season, Alice puts her chart on the Internet, and it spontaneously becomes a hugely popular social networking site. Chaiken said she came up with the idea for the real-life site during a meeting with Showtime marketing executives about how to promote the show.

A "hookup" chart on Showtime's "The L Word" inspired its new Web site.

"This is life imitates art," she said. "We decided to tell this story truly not thinking that we're going to tell this story so we can create a Web site. After we put together the script, I had a meeting with the marketing people at Showtime, and I said, 'We're telling this story about Alice's chart becoming a social networking site; why don't we build a site of our own?' This space doesn't exist for lesbians. It hasn't been claimed yet.'"

OurChart won't have the gay-targeted social networking category to itself; there are existing ventures including OutEverywhere.com and the upcoming QueensSpeech, which launches in beta next month. MTV Networks, which Showtime used to be paired with under the Viacom umbrella before the CBS Corp. split, has a growing online media presence targeting gay consumers including the brands Logo and Gay365.com.

The site also will be promoted on Showtime during behind-the-scenes interstitials about the making of OurChart.

Blank and Chaiken said they were not concerned that the association with Showtime and official "L Word" content would turn away potential social networkers looking for a user-generated environment free of corporate involvement or marketing messages.

Hilary Rosen, former chairman and CEO of the RIAA, will serve as president of OurChart. Rosen, who worked for the RIAA for 17 years until retiring in 2003, also is an activist on gay and lesbian issues and has worked with the Human Rights Campaign on political and legislative initiatives.

"This site will be fun and interesting for users and will also present marketers with a great opportunity to reach a consumer market that is targeted, financially independent and loyal," Rosen said.

Beth Callaghan — who has served as senior director of network programming, senior director of portal operations and editor in chief of PlanetOut Inc., the largest gay and lesbian site on the Web — will be chief operating officer of the new company, Showtime said.

TMZ spotted John Legend in Las Vegas over the weekend -- and let's just say he is a true ladies man.

TMZ.com

Legend had everyone's full attention during a performance at Lake Las Vegas, and was even more excited to throw an after-party at Light Nightclub in the Bellagio afterwards. A source at the club tells TMZ, "John Legend and entourage were whisked to his VIP table in the corner of the club and literally hundreds of screaming women were fighting to squeeze into his section."

One onlooker describes it as a "mob," and his security had to fend off fans all night. Our source added, "I have never seen so many women flock to one man."

The soul singer sipped on Hpnotiq and Grey Goose, and partied hard in the club until 2:00 AM.

Brothers & Sisters

As far as celebrity turnouts go for Hamptons affairs, no event this season quite rivaled the Saturday night Cinema Society screening of "The Good Night," the debut film from Jake Paltrow. Starring his sister Gwyneth, the movie is a meditation on the difference between fantasy and reality, and leaves the audience wondering whether they're dreaming their life or living in a dream. Given the sheer number of famous and beautiful people at the film and after party, many of the guests felt as if they were indeed doing the latter.

Among those who popped over to the East Hampton UA theater and then to Ron Perelman's Wainscott estate were Ed Burns and Christy Turlington Burns, Stella McCartney, Christie Brinkley, Kate Capshaw, Rashida Jones, Lauren Bush and David Lauren, Barbara Walters, Donna Karan and David Geffen. Mariah Carey even sauntered into the after party, as did Brooke Shields.

But for Blythe Danner and Gwyneth Paltrow, the evening's real star was Jake, who seemed to be headed for the director's chair when he was barely out of diapers. "He would go to the set with Bruce [Paltrow]," Danner said. "And he'd say, 'I think that take was better than the last one.'" And Gwyneth claimed her brother needed no advice from her on how to make the movie. "This was all him," she said proudly.

The day before, Dolce & Gabbana drew a well-heeled group of socials to Nello in Southampton for a runway show and quick shop. Samantha Rosen, Serena Boardman, Stephanie Seymour Brant, Fabiola Beracasa and Jennifer Creel fueled up on chicken paillard and chilled sorbet before diving into the racks of wool jackets, wide-legged pants and slim-fitting frocks.

The scene at Donovan Leitch's birthday party in Los Angeles Thursday night was just as civilized, which proved just how much the former party boy has grown up. Then again, "I feel like it's my 40th bar mitzvah!" Leitch joked to the crowd gathered at the Mulholland Tennis Club, which included his mom Enid, wife Kirsty Hume, and their tow-headed three-year-old Violet.

Leitch said he was "touched" to see so many old friends, including Amber Valletta, whom he met on a DKNY shoot 14 years ago, Camp Freddy band mate Billy Morrison, Balthazar Getty, Tatiana von Furstenberg, Eric Dane and Matthew Perry, who chatted up Natasha Gregson Wagner on the patio, where guests sipped Hypnotiq drinks to help her hubby reminisce. Hume gifted him with a photo album.

Other presents included flowers and a card from Valletta. The model said of the baby-faced Leitch: "He looks better with age. It's not fair!" His fountain-of-youth secret? "It's all the tennis up here at the club," he joked. "I kind of have an obsession with the Mulholland Tennis Club. It's like this part of L.A. that is untouched, like this place is exactly what it was like in the Seventies, so turning 40 reminded me of my childhood, which was the Seventies in Hollywood." To that end, a Steely Dan cover band played hits like "Rikki Don't Lose That Number."

Meanwhile, Jenni Kayne dished on her husband's vintage Ffia Borg and Tacchini collection. "He has, like, full outfits like I've never seen. He wears the headbands. He's dressed up as Björn Borg for Halloween a couple times."

To end the evening, Leitch's uncle Petey sang his rendition of "Oh Dono Boy," to the tune of Celtic folk song, "Oh Danny Boy." Leitch reflected, "Life begins at 40 — the good life, the country club life."

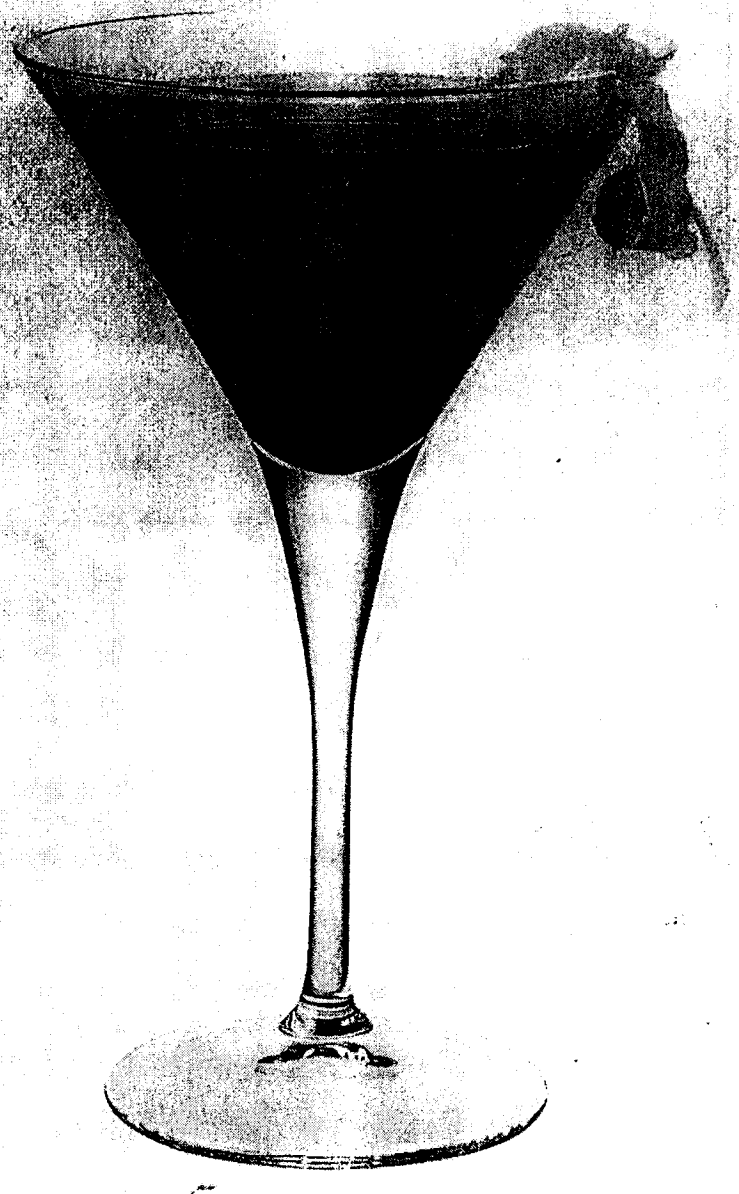
I guess women must not be kidding when they say they just want a man with a sense of humor - I mean, stealing kisses from Heather Locklear and Pam Anderson in one twelve-month window?!

Sophia Bush may have been the one turning 25 in style courtesy of Hypnotiq generously sponsoring her big birthday blowout, but from the looks of things, David Spade ended up leaving with the best present - a kiss from Pam Anderson! Looks like David can chalk another one up to the ol' 'Let me stuff my ears with cotton so you've gotta lean in close for me to hear you' trick - hey, can't knock the classics!



The Drink

Blue Violet Martini

Written by Brandy Button

Pool parties running rampant, the smell of fresh barbecue in the air, crackling fireworks lighting up the sky — it must be that time of year again. There's no better way to sport patriotism this 4th of July than to splash around Whiskey Beach at Green Valley Ranch Resort, Spa and Casino with a festive Blue Violet Martini firmly in grip. The red, white, and blue cocktail is a seasonal Whiskey Bar feature that pairs tropical fruit and berry mixers with the fruity flavors of Hpnotiq.

Bottled in France, Hpnotiq is a delicious blend of premium vodka, natural fruit juices and a dash of Cognac, with an unmistakable electric blue visage. The light, revitalizing liquor has left its footprint around the globe, from the Sundance Film Festival to New York Fashion Week and, of course, Las Vegas party spots. Particularly, the Blue Violet Martini was featured at the Warren Moon Sports Dream Charity Foundation's celebrity and NFL star-studded bowling tournament, and has been replicated all over town for various events and promotions.

"It's a palate-friendly cocktail and a refreshing summer drink," says Hpnotiq's Las Vegas brand builder Kimberly Michelle. "The Chambord and pineapple juice enhance the tropical flavors of Hpnotiq and the Absolut Raspberri intensifies Hpnotiq's vodka base." Get your lips on this exclusive, mouthwatering concoction at Whiskey Beach before the summer sun sets. Who knows when this baby is coming back out for more play?

BLUE VIOLET MARTINI — $12

1 OZ. HPNOTIQ
1/2 OZ. CHAMBORD
1 OZ. ABSOLUT RASPBERRI

Add a patriotic spirit to your Thanksgiving celebration

Reported by: Tory Garcia

Thanksgiving is a time to reflect on memories and celebrate our patriotism. Hpnotiq liqueur has some fantastic cocktails that celebrate America this holiday season, complete with Red, White & Blue swirls. Here's how:

HPNOTIQ's Patriotic Margarita

1 oz. HPNOTIQ
1 oz. super premium dark rum
1 oz. coconut milk
1 oz. fresh lime juice
1 oz. pineapple juice
1 oz. sweetened strawberry puree
1/2 cup crushed ice
Combine rum, coconut milk, lime juice, pineapple juice, and ice in blender.

Pour HPNOTIQ into a margarita glass. Layer 2/3 of the blended mix over

HPNOTIQ. Blend remaining mix with strawberry puree, layer on top. Garnish with coconut or use salt-rimmed glass as a variation.

This variation of the Patriotic Margarita involves a traditional frozen margarita with a Hpnotiq floater with a Hpnotiq floater on top garnished with red rock salt and a watermelon star.

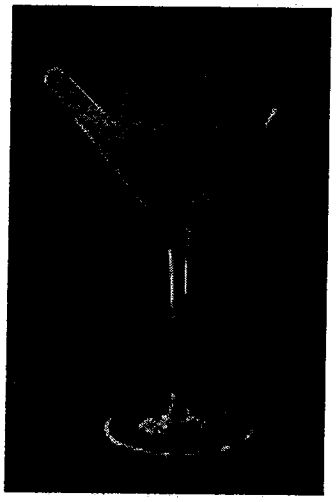
The Halloween Hpnotist



Halloween Hpnotist

The Halloween Hpnotist is another great drink with a spooky, yet beautiful, look that features Hpnotiq liqueur. The drink itself is quite simple - the beautiful blue, fruit liqueur, vodka and lemon juice - but it is the unique garnish that really sets this one apart and it's not an edible garnish. What you need to do is find a bunch of 3-4 inch, blue glow sticks, crack them after you pour the drink and lay them inside the glass. The result can be seen in the photograph and the effect is dramatic and perfect for any Halloween bash.

Ingredients:

- 2 oz Hpnotiq
- 1 oz super premium vodka
- splash of lemon juice
- glow stick for garnish

Preparation:

1. Pour the ingredients into a cocktail shaker filled with ice.
2. Shake well.
3. Strain into a chilled cocktail glass.
4. Garnish with a lit glowstick.

COCKTAILS

Red, white and booze: A trio of patriotic potables

Fourth of July celebrations are enlivened by libations with decidedly patriotic hues. Here are three cocktails that sport red, white and blue for your Independence Day toasts.

— Susan Felt

Impetuoso

Heaven Hill Distillery

1½ ounces Brazilian rum (cachaca)
½ ounces pomegranate liqueur
Splash of cranberry juice
Splash of sweet and sour mix

Pour ingredients into a cocktail shaker filled with ice and shake. Strain into a martini glass. Garnish as desired.

Makes 1 drink.

Caipirinha

Heaven Hill Distillery

2 ounces simple syrup (mix 1 part sugar and 1 part water, heat in a pan until the sugar dissolves)
1 lime, cut in quarters
2 ounces Brazilian rum (cachaca)
Lime slice, for garnish

Muddle simple syrup and lime sections in a cocktail shaker. Shake thoroughly. Add cachaca and ice and shake. Pour into a glass and garnish with a slice of lime.

Makes 1 drink.

Hpnotiq Mojito

Heaven Hill Distillery

2 lime wedges
1 mint leaf
1 ounce simple syrup (mix 1 part sugar and 1 part water, heat in a pan until the sugar dissolves)

Welcome to Libationland

How'd you like to sip into something a little more comfortable this summer? Check out these seven local favorites

BY EMILY BURNHAM
OF THE NEWS STAFF

How to make a great bar: Take one part devoted clientele, one part friendly bartender, and one part comfortable, cool-looking digs. Shake well. Add liberal dash of local flavor. Pour into glass; garnish with good food, good music and maybe a pool table or two. Enjoy.

It seems as simple as the syrup, and yet, a great watering hole is a concoction that's not always easy to make. But we've made it easy for you: After weeks of exhaustive research (toughest assignment ever!), we've narrowed down eastern Maine's pubs, taverns, bars and lounges to a select seven. The best of the best – where you don't even necessarily have to have a drink in your hand to have fun, because it's such a great place to hang out.

This summer, give one of these fine establishments a whirl. Sometimes you want to go where everybody knows your name. And sometimes they don't have to know your name – but they're still glad you came.

Details about the drinks – and why you just might have another – appear inside. PAGE C7

the oh-so-British libation of gin with spicy homemade ginger lemonade. Think of it as a nod to both Castine's Colonial heritage and to the Victorian-era Explorers Club aesthetic in the pub.

Why you'll be having another: Stepping into this cozy bar makes you feel like some intrepid adventurer, fresh off a jaunt through the Great Rift Valley, or the wilds of Borneo. You're surrounded by loads of travel memorabilia, amassed by owners Jack Burke and Julie van de Graaf during their journeys around the globe. Queen Victoria presides over one corner, while a 3-foot oil painting of Vladimir Lenin looks on as you quaff your cocktail, sitting in the Malaysian rattan chairs. Who knew that a bar straight out of Indiana Jones was in Castine, Maine?

CAIPAIRINHA

Where: Rupununi, Main Street, Bar Harbor

What'll it be? A cocktail of Cachaca, lime, sugar and soda water

What's so special about it? Cuba has the mojito. Mexico, the margarita. And Brazil has the caipairinha – a cocktail as iconic to the South American nation as Carnival and the rain forest. The caipairinha has just recently become popular stateside, as cachaca, the rumlike sugar cane-based spirit that is the mainstay of the drink, has been available here for only a short time. It's got the sweet-and-sour thing going on and, since cachaca is 45 percent alcohol, it's pretty darn strong.

Why you'll be having another: From mid-June until early September, Bar Harbor is one of the wildest towns on the East Coast. Rupununi exists in the epicenter of it all – right next to the Village Green, with the patio facing the crowd on Main Street. The food and drink are fresh, local and often organic, with a South American twist, thanks to owner Michael Boland's yearly pilgrimage to Brazil. You could spend hours there, watching the parade of tourists, locals and summer workers, or just enjoying live jazz on Sunday afternoons. A caipairinha, a plate of crab cakes, and the knowledge that you're on one of the most beautiful islands in the world – now that's a potent concoction.

THE FISHBOWL

Where: The Main Street Tavern, Main Street, Bangor

What'll it be? A concoction of vodka, rum, tequila, gin, blue curacao, sour mix, Sprite and Swedish Fish

What's so special about it? The Fishbowl, a concoction imported to the Tavern by longtime area bartender (and total sweetheart) Debbie Tozier, is essentially a Long Island Iced Tea, minus the triple sec and Pepsi, with blue curacao, Sprite and sour mix instead. It's served in a small candle jar that looks like a little fishbowl (Tozier picked up a bunch of them at Marden's), with a handful of Swedish fish thrown in for added effect. It's supersweet, superpotent and superfun.

Why you'll be having another: The Main Street Tavern opened in 1949, making it Bangor's oldest bar. It has a fantastic jukebox, a huge air hockey table and a sweet back deck. The beer is cheap, the pool's free on Sundays and, like Moe's on "The Simpsons," there's a jar of pickled eggs sitting on the bar. Fancy-schmancy is all well and good, but if you want the real deal, go to the Tavern. It's Bangor's best-kept secret.

THE MOJITO

Where: Woodman's Bar and Grill, Main Street, Orono

What'll it be? A cocktail that combines light rum, lime, mint, sugar and club soda

What's so special about it? Woodman's owner Abe Furth doesn't mess around when it comes to drinks. His martinis are shaken to perfection, his draught beers change constantly, and he has gotten the sweet art of the mojito down to a science. The mint is muddled, not massacred, the simple syrup is simply delicious, and the resulting cocktail is quite possibly one of the most refreshing you'll have here in Maine.

Why you'll be having another: Being that it's a bar in a college town, Woodman's attracts everyone from newly minted 21-year-old undergraduates to faculty members, as well as year-round residents of Orono. Regardless of age or background, people flock to the bar because it's laid-back, it's friendly and everything about it is just plain satisfying – from the burgers to the beer.

THE PICKLER

Where: 3 Tides, 2 Pinchy Lane, Belfast

What'll it be? A martini concocted from vodka and pickle brine

What's so special about it? Two words: pickle martini. Seriously. After concocting plenty of regular dirty martinis, it occurred to owner David Carlson that pickles, rather than olives, might pack an equally salty punch. He switched out the gin for vodka and, voila, the Pickler was born. If you like pickles, you'll love it. If you don't, you should probably skip it – or hope that Carlson might have some cucumbers lying around, and could make you a martini with pureed cukes and sea salt.

Why you'll be having another: The gorgeous deck overlooking Belfast Harbor. The bocce court. The roaring fires built after sunset in the metal fireplace, recently installed on the waterfront. The on-site brewery and lobster pound. The always engaging and intelligent locals. The utterly charming interior, which combines rustic wood and aluminum with funky accessories and atmospheric lighting. We could go on, but suffice it to say – 3 Tides is a must-visit.

TEQUILA MOCKINGBIRD

Where: The Red Martini, 10 Broad St., Bangor

What'll it be? A cocktail that combines Patron tequila, cilantro, lime juice, prickly pear nectar, simple syrup and a dash of Tabasco sauce

What's so special about it? Reading over The Red Martini's extensive drink menu, you notice the Tequila Mockingbird, with its combination of tequila, cilantro and Tabasco sauce, and think "Huh?" Then, feeling adventurous, you decide to order one. The sweetness of the prickly pear, mixed with the spiciness of the hot sauce and the savory, green taste of the cilantro is just peculiar enough to keep you coming back for more. Along with the top-shelf tequila. Mmm.

Why you'll be having another: Because you're sitting in the hip, swanky cocktail bar, looking out over West Market Square in downtown Bangor. You're watching the crowds walk by, you're grooving to the DJ who's spinning over in the corner, and you're enjoying the vibe. You're kind of amazed that Bangor has turned out to be a pretty cool place to be. But then again, those who live in the Queen City knew that already.

VICTORIA'S SECRET

Where: Natalie's at the Camden Harbor Inn, Bayview Street, Camden

What'll it be? A cocktail that combines Hpnotiq, Stoli Ohranj, rose petals and a secret ingredient

What's so special about it? The story goes that Camden Harbor Inn co-owner Raymond Brunyanzski so loved fruity liqueur Hpnotiq that he asked Thomas Laslavic, the "master mixologist" at Natalie's, to make him something really special with it. The result? A cocktail too pretty to drink, and yet too tasty not to. Laslavic keeps the recipe private, and when he needed to give the drink a name he called on his co-workers to come up with something. They went with the "Victoria's Secret," named after his fellow bartender Victoria Lasbury. It's such a secret, in fact, that it's not even on the menu. You have to ask for it at the bar. Ooh la la.

Why you'll be having another: Natalie's is equal parts grand old Maine hotel, Parisian salon and New Orleans brothel. Red is the dominant color, with fringed lampshades dangling over your head as you sit at the opulent mahogany bar. Outside, tiny twinkling lights dot the veranda, and the smell of the ocean wafts up from the harbor. There are tapas on Thursday nights. It's Euro-chic, mixed with New England style. In other words: fancy, but not too fancy.

TRENDSPOTTING: "BEERTAILS"

Today's top mixologists are taking a fresh approach to traditional beer-based libations, creating original "beertails" that incorporate some of today's hottest and trendiest spirits.

It is not surprising that beertails are gaining notoriety. A recent study conducted by The U.S. National Restaurant Association found that culinary professionals ranked beer as number six on its "What's Hot" list for 2008.

Beer making and serving has become an art form with the emergence of beer sommeliers and specialty beers created for niche markets. There are several well-known restaurants that have introduced beertails to their clientele. For example, the Bier Market on the Esplanade in Toronto currently lists six beer cocktails on their menu. Cafe d'Alsace, a modern French style eatery in New York, is known for its signature beertail, "Oriotle et Citron", which was created by Avram Turgeman, New York City's first beer sommelier.

Hpnotiq, a spirit made with triple distilled vodka, fine cognac and proprietary tropical fruit juices, has come out with the "Hpno-Beertail", which is made using Corona or Hoegaarden as a mixer. Below are some points of interest about beertails and recipe for Hpnotiq's signature "Hpno-Beertail" for your story consideration.

Beertailing 101

- There are two types of beertails: those made by combining two types of beer (think "Black and Tan") and those made by combing beer with a spirit such as vodka or gin.
  Source: Oregonlive.com (oregonlive.com)

- "Shandy" is the most well-known beer cocktail that dates back to 17th Century England. Many European countries have created their own versions. Germany calls its version the "Radler" while Spain calls it the "Clara". In France, Shady has been transformed into the "Panaché", which is made with beer and lemonade, a lemon-flavored soda.

Hpno-Beertail

½ oz. (Corona or Hoegaarden) beer

Instructions: Add Hpnotiq to beer and serve. Garnish with lemon.

Tip: For spirit beertails like the Hpno-Beertail, use a light-to medium-bodied beer.

Hpnotiq is available in 375ml and 750ml bottles at LBCO stores across Ontario.
The 750ml bottle retails for $40.15.

Open up this treasure chest and put your wedding woes to rest: The 5th Annual Wedding Salon:

Anthony Todd Table

For all the lucky ladies preparing for that long-awaited walk down the aisle, the months leading up to the fairytale ending can be stressful, confusing and tiring – adjectives that a bride-to-be should not even have to hear, let alone apply to herself. No wonder then that amongst the endless fittings, hundreds of consultations, seemingly pointless diets and breathless gym sessions (that dress has got to fit!), not to mention the chaotic agenda consisting of meetings with florists, caterers, event planners, stationary designers, jewelers, dressmakers, wedding cake artistes (referring to them as bakers is the gravest faux pas), leaves the soon to be blushing bride struggling to stay afloat in the flood of wedding preparation. Sadly, many are simply overwhelmed into an acceptance of settling for something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue to start them on the way to happy matrimony.

So for all the ladies who believe that the future holds a gorgeous three, four or even five-tier cake with hand-piped marzipan icing and real, sugar-dipped roses in the softest pastel colors, whose stars predict freely flowing Veuve Clicquot against a backdrop of the soft tones of a string quartet, who are unwavering in the conviction that the day can, despite all odds, be flawless from start to finish, The 5th Annual Wedding Salon was just the ticket. Held in April at Gotham Hall, this bridal event showcased the crème de la crème of everything wedding-related under one beautifully elegant roof. As many of the future brides remarked upon passing through the velvet rope and being ushered into the hallowed interior by polished types in full evening dress, it certainly was worth the wait (the line snaked out the door and around the block at any given time, much to the amusement of curious tourists expecting only the usual Broadway scene).

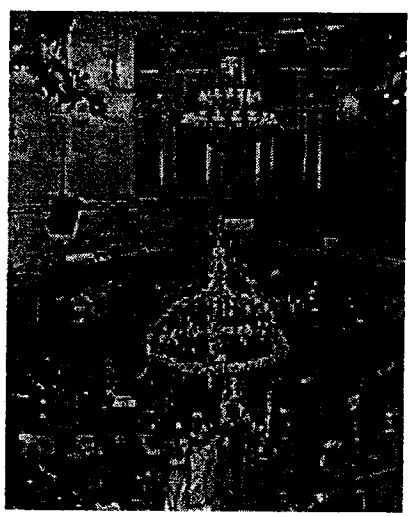
Inside the hall, attendees were free to stroll around the many exhibitors; future brides were greeted at each stand with effusive politeness, invaluable advice and in most cases, a sampling of the products offered – a delicate rose from a leading florist, a CD from a dance school, a satin bag of custom M&Ms, and even an adorable wooden spatula for those sporadic Martha Stewart moments. From event designer to the stars David Tutera, to Fabulous Florals by Michael George (favored by Calvin Klein and Vera Wang), from Mona Lisa Bakery and Cakes by Jay to Pacific Holidays, The Resort at Pelican Hill and The Cayman Islands, not to mention the unique and perennially chic Bernard Maisner Calligraphy & Fine Stationary and the refreshingly vintage-inspired Willow Designs, everyone who is anyone in the industry was there, offering visitors the chance to experience and choose from amongst the epitomes of nuptial elegance and perfection. As Mary-Ellen, a flawlessly attired bride-to-be remarked, visiting the bridal salon was a necessity for developing ideas and aesthetic concepts for her own ceremony next May. Like many others, she too wants a wedding that is unique and memorable, but one that upholds certain traditional values and customs; everyone wants individuality in a recognizable, stylish package – nothing too shocking, but just innovate enough to dominate the whisperings on the social scene in the weeks following the wedding.



As if such an abundance of wedding aid was not enough, guests at The Wedding Salon had the chance to literally visualize their receptions. Arranged in an enclosed 'island' in the center of the hall, modish round tables proudly displayed the craftsmanship and overall style of several event planners, florists and caterers, with beautifully realized dinner placements and settings vying for attention. Also in the middle of the room, a techno dance floor added a touch of the carefree and wild, balancing the refinement of the adjacent Hpnotiq "Bubbles & Blue" cocktail bar serving intriguingly blue Martini and champagne creations.

For those looking for their fashion fix, the dazzling white, $100,000 wedding gown being modeled in the mock ceremony area was enough to inspire hours of jewel-encrusted reveries – not to mention feverish mental calculations of which other family heirloom could possibly be sold to finance this newest nuptial must-have. Indeed, financial considerations became but a distant memory, as guests perused the tantalizingly glimmering wedding jewelry on offer from famed jewelers H. Stern and Hollywood favorites Million Dollar Wedding Band and Celebrity Wedding Jewelry. If merely looking at the various options for self-adornment were not enough, brides-to-be were given complimentary beauty treatments, professional insider make-up and hair tips, and of course the all-important gift bag – a hefty parcel valued at $500, and containing everything from gift certificates to Hollywood Tape, from nifty strapless g-strings to luxurious items from Essie, Vincent Longo, Bloomingdale's and Zensation Beaute, just to name a few.

After experiencing the all-inclusive, polished excess of The Wedding Salon, some may feel that such an abundance of luxury and perfection is somewhat superficial - a magnificent yet rather hollow display. Yet The Wedding Salon is more than your average celebration of all that sparkles and shines; this event helped benefit Brides Against Breast Cancer, an affiliate of Making Memories whose campaign aims to raise money by endowing wedding gowns with a more profound purpose. And so after an excitement-fuelled, altruistic and inspirational afternoon spent exploring the endless possibilities of a truly exclusive wedding, brides-to-be (and a few rather harassed looking, dashing young suitors struggling with overflowing gift bags) could rest assured that with a little help from the industry's best, a fairytale ending is possible after all.

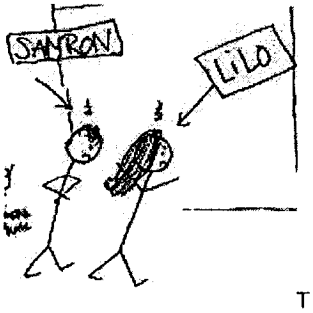
LiLo and SamRon Draw Attention to Themselves

By Holly GoNightly

September 08, 2008



T

The rain had everyone windswept and weary on Friday night upon our arrival to Charlotte Ronson's after-party at Country Club. Halfway through the night, everyone suddenly got their second wind as Lindsay Lohan and Samantha Ronson stormed into the party -- a stampede of paparazzi and camera phones surrounding the pair as they made a mad dash to Charlotte's table. "Oh, Lindsay is here," someone from our table said without looking up. We didn't bother to snap shots either (our sixth glass of Hpnotiq was on the way), and we're thankful for it, as rumors surfaced that Nicole Richie (who we did not see at all) was wandering around making people erase their pics. Embarrassing! Later on though, suitably tipsy, we did manage to "record" the vibrant scene. Click the jump to witness in full.

Where's the Party?

Celeb bachelorettes are having a blast! Ana Ortiz and about 40 friends headed from L.A. to Las Vegas via a party bus; on the trip guests enjoyed signature cocktails made with Hpnotiq liqueur. Afterward, everyone mingled in a private cabana at TAO Beach (a bar-lounge that's frequented by A-listers) before having a lavish dinner at TAO Restaurant. Kate Walsh also held her bachelorette party at the Vegas hot spot. She and her pals dined there and then moved to the nightclub for some late-night partying. Christina Aguilera took a more laid-back approach. For her escape, she and 10 friends went to Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, and stayed at the One&Only Palmilla. Their trip included lunch at Agua, the resort's restaurant-bar, a night of dancing at the Cabo Wabo Cantina in town and a beachside dinner featuring a mariachi band (guests received cute bamboo flip-flops as gifts).

This April, the Sundance Channel's eco-series "Big Ideas for a Small Planet" is featuring the wedding of artists Thryn and Gabe Albin. The couple married in Augusta, Georgia, in September 2007—and did the planet a special favor at the same time. "If you care about the environment, why not carry your good habits through to your big celebration?" says Thryn. The bride and groom thought of everything, from screen-printing their invitations in a chemical-free process on plantable seed paper to giving guests organic, fair trade Endangered Species Chocolate as favors. They also incorporated various origami flowers, using them throughout the wedding for ceremony and reception décor, bouquets and boutonnieres and cake decoration. After exchanging vows with Gabe, Thryn changed from a floor-length silk gown, hand-sewn by her mother, to a shorter vintage lace gown borrowed from a friend. Ah, the beauty of recycling!

Where's the Party?

Celeb bachelorettes are having a blast! Ana Ortiz and about 40 friends headed from L.A. to Las Vegas via a party bus; on the trip guests enjoyed signature cocktails made with Hpnotiq liqueur. Afterward, everyone mingled in a private cabana at TAO Beach (a bar-lounge that's frequented by A-listers) before having a lavish dinner at TAO Restaurant. Kate Walsh also held her bachelorette party at the Vegas hot spot. She and her pals dined there and then moved to the nightclub for some late-night partying. Christina Aguilera took a more laid-back approach. For her escape, she and 10 friends went to Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, and stayed at the One&Only Palmilla. Their trip included lunch at Agua, the resort's restaurant-bar, a night of dancing at the Cabo Wabo Cantina in town and a beachside dinner featuring a mariachi band (guests received cute bamboo flip-flops as gifts).

A "blue" wedding toast

Something old. Something new. Something borrowed. Something blue. Add that extra twist to the traditional champagne wedding toast by incorporating "something blue" into the cocktail. Here's a simple recipe.

Hpnotiq's "Bubbles n' Blue"

2 oz. Hpnotiq
2 oz. champagne

Pour chilled Hpnotiq and champagne into a champagne flute.

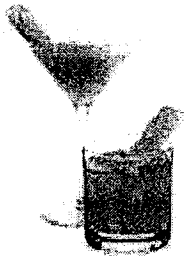
Hot summer cocktails



OK, so it's a grey, cool, windy miserable day today. But hey, a girl can dream, can't she? My thoughts have turned to summer. And on a sunny, hot summer day, there's nothing like a nice cold cocktail. Here are a couple of recipes to try — courtesy of the folks at Hpnotiq. These cocktails which will be featured at the hottest Hamptons' event — Bridgehampton Polo — and the newest Hamptons hotspot — The Surf Lodge in Montauk.

HPNOTIQ'S ROQ CANDY
(Served at Bridgehampton Polo)
2 oz Hpnotiq
1 oz vodka
Add a splash of pineapple juice
Garnish with blue rock candy
Serve in a chilled martini glass or over ice in a rocks glass.

HPNOTIQ'S HEATWAVE
(Served at the Surf Lodge)
1 oz Hpnotiq
1 oz lillet
Splash of orange juice
Splash of pineapple juice
Serve in a chilled martini glass.

In case you're not familiar with it, Hpnotiq is a blend of vodka, natural tropical fruit juices, and a touch of cognac, which combine to produce its signature electric blue color. The liqueur is bottled in France.

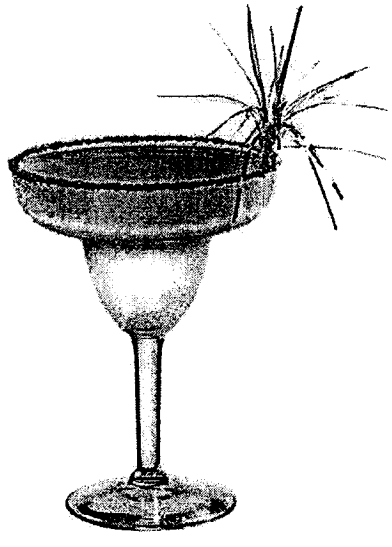
A July 4 drink with fireworks

Wednesday, June 25, 2008
BY Jennifer Mastrolanni

It's easy to find patriotic food recipes, but what about celebratory cocktails for the Fourth of July?



Hpnotiq has the answer. Bottled in France, Hpnotiq is a blend of premium vodka and natural tropical fruit juices with a touch of cognac, which combine to produce its signature electric blue color.

The Fourth of July Sparkler combines Hpnotiq with natural fruit juices, swirled with margarita flavors. We found the product at The Irishman Liquor & More at 3808 Tuscarawas St. W, (330) 477-2615.

FOURTH OF JULY SPARKLER

1 ounce Hpnotiq

2 ounce super premium tequila

1 ounce Grand Marnier

1 ounce fresh lime juice

Splash of sour mix

1/2 cup crushed ice

Rim a margarita glass with red (food coloring) salt. Blend tequila, Grand Marnier, sour mix and lime juice.

Pour mixture into margarita glass. Top with 1 ounce of Hpnotiq, Garnish with homemade or store-bought sparkler.

Dalai Lama: Girls rule!

SEATTLE — In his first public appearance since arriving for a five-day conference on compassion, the Dalai Lama sidestepped a question about the turmoil in his native Tibet, instead focusing on dialogue. "The only way to transform our enemy to become our friend is dialogue, respect," the exiled Tibetan spiritual leader said.

He expressed hope that the world will see more compassion with more female leaders.

"Generally, females are more sensitive. There's a greater potential to develop compassion," he said.

This past Saturday "Gossip Girl" star Chace Crawford threw out the first ball to officially kick off the first match of the 2008 Mercedes-Benz Polo Challenge at the Bridgehampton Polo Club to benefit the South Fork Breast Health Coalition. Crawford hesitated and just flashed those baby blues at me when I held up a polo mallet and asked if he knew what it was called. "A polo stick?" Crawford replied. Then he admitted, "I've never even seen a polo event televised. I'm from Texas, so you know, it's kind of interesting for me to come out and see the culture, a big part of New York and the Hamptons."

Under the tents hundreds of VIPs schmoozed and sipped exotic Hpnotiq drinks, including Victoria Cooper, Lauren Sivan, Rick Leventhal, AJ Calloway, power attorney Marc Simon, Laura Scott, Caridee English, Samantha Cole, Nicole Brewer, Vanessa Leggard, Edward Tricomi, Greg Bello, Eric Villency, Todd Shapiro, Steve Carl, Ed Callaghan, John Wegorzewski and Jamison Ernst. GET IN THE SPIRIT OF THE FOURTH WITH THESE PARTY DRINKS

By The Lounge Lizards
(Alexis Larsen and Craig Schmiucke)

Patriotic parties, relaxed picnics, smokin' barbecues, explosive fireworks and all-American parties are synonymous with the Fourth of July.

With the holiday falling on a Friday this year, creating the perfect three-day weekend, there's extra incentive to do it up right. We're here to help.

The party theme is a no-brainer — red, white and blue. The scrumptious, mostly grilled menu and fantastic guest list can probably be planned with one eye closed. But this year, why not go the extra mile and extend it to the drinks?

Give a shout out to Old Glory and wow your guests with these red, white and blue recipes that sizzle with exotic flavors.

It may not seem like honoring the country, but stop and think about this one: On July 4, 1778 — the second anniversary of the country's independence — a guy by the name of George Washington ordered a double ration of rum for troops wishing to celebrate the nation's freedom. Still not convinced? On July 4, 1777, an elaborate celebration was staged. Music, dinner, a parade and fireworks were accompanied by many toasts — one for each state of the union at the time. The Virginia Gazette wrote in its July 18 edition: "After dinner a number of toasts were drank, all breaking independence, and a generous love of liberty, and commemorating the memories of those brave and worthy patriots who gallantly exposed their lives, and fell gloriously in defense of freedom and the righteous cause of their country."

Our founding fathers toasted then, and we toast now.

To celebrate 232 years, we've pulled together some recipes to help you and your friends celebrate America's birthday in style.

Be safe, be good and may the Fourth be with you.

Chit chat with the Lounge Lizards about your favorite recipes, places to go in town or anything else on your mind at www.DaytonDailyNews.com/loungelizards.

red

You could always go with a simple strawberry daiquiri or margarita for your red theme. If you have drinkers and nondrinkers at the party, a simple vodka cranberry cocktail or mocktail might fit the bill. Here are a couple recipes you may not have thought about.

The Lounge Lizards American-o

The War for Independence was a bitter fight, and the Americano — first served in the 1860s in Gaspare Campari's bar in Italy — is a bitter, bitter creation. Termed the Americano after Italians saw a surge in American tourists who enjoyed the drink, the Lizards had to tone things down with this new spin on an old favorite (not our favorite, but apparently enough folks from the United States liked it that the cocktail was re-named in their honor).

½ ounce Campari
½ ounce sweet Vermouth
1 ounce Cointreau
1 ounce Clementine juice
Splash of club soda
Splash of grenadine

Directions: Pour Campari, sweet Vermouth, Cointreau, Clementine (or orange) juice over ice in a rocks or highball glass. Add a splash of club soda and grenadine for deeper red color. Garnish with an orange twist.

Lounge Lizards spin on the cherry patriot recipe from SKYY vodka

1 ounce vodka
½ ounce cherry juice
1 ounce freshly squeezed lemon juice
½ ounce Clementine juice
½ ounce Cointreau
½ ounce sweet vermouth
¾ ounce rye whiskey
Four maraschino cherries

Directions: Muddle cherries at the bottom of glass. Mix ingredients in a cocktail shaker and strain into a rocks or Collins glass, and garnish with lemon zest and cherry.

white

A standard martini or classic gin and tonic would work if you're in a hurry. So would a pina colada or mintless mojito if you have a little more time (although the color would be a little off and a mojito just isn't a mojito without mint). Here are several drinks that guests probably won't be expecting.

Yankee Doodle

1½ ounce grape vodka
1 teaspoon raw sugar
4 slices of freshly peeled ginger
5 large green grapes
Top with soda

Directions: Muddle grapes, ginger and sugar in pint glass. Add ice and vodka. Shake vigorously and strain into cocktail glass over fresh ice. Top with soda and garnish with raspberries and blueberries.

– Recipe from SKYY vodka

Rosemary lemon fizz

1½ ounces citrus vodka
½ organic rosemary sprig
½ ounce meyer lemon juice
½ ounce lemongrass simple syrup
Dash of soda

Directions: Muddle rosemary with lemon juice and simple syrup. Add ice and vodka, and shake. Strain over fresh ice in a rocks glass and top with soda. Garnish with a fresh rosemary sprig.

Lemongrass simple syrup: 9 stalks of lemongrass (chopped), zest of 1 lemon, 2 cups white sugar and 2 cups water. Instructions: Stirring contents so they don't burn, bring water, lemongrass, sugar, lemon to a boil. Reduce heat to low and simmer 10 minutes or until sugar completely dissolves into the boiling water. Refrigerate 2 hours. Strain. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use.

– Recipe from SKYY vodka, simple syrup recipe from http://cookingresources.suite101.com

A Blue Hawaiian or Blue Lemonade would work in a pinch, but the All-American or Blue Mojito is the way to go if you can find the time. A great garnish idea, if you can find it in the store, is a star fruit cut up into ¼ inch slices and floated at the top of the drink.

All-American blue with Lounge Lizards twist

2 ounces vodka
1 ounce Blue Curacao
1 ounce Cointreau
2 ounces white grape juice
Splash of soda

Directions: Pour all ingredients except soda in a shaker and shake hard. Pour into a highball glass with the ice and garnish with a lime or green apple slice.

– Modified recipe from SKYY vodka

Blue mojito

2 ounces rum
2 ounces Hpnotiq
1 ounce simple syrup
2 lime wedges
12 mint leaves
Soda water

Directions: Muddle mint leaves, lime wedge and simple syrup. Add ice, rum and Hpnotiq; shake. Pour into Collins glass. Top with soda water. Garnish with lime wedge. Shake over ice, strain into martini glass.

– Recipe from Hpnotiq

A red, white and blue cocktail

The Superman

1¼ ounces citrus vodka
½ ounce lemonade
½ ounce blue Curacao
½ to ¼ ounce of grenadine

Directions: Mix the Curacao with 1 shake, then strain into the glass. Mix the vodka and lemonade the same way, and layer on top, pouring mixture over the bottom of a spoon so it doesn't splash and mix layers together. Slide grenadine into the bottom of the glass. It will layer in bands and will be the star of the show ... until the fireworks get under way, at least.

– Recipe from Indianapolis bar Nicky Blaine's

Another option for the Fourth

The snow-cone cocktail

Dede Wilson, contributing editor for Bon Appetit, writes, "It's frozen, it's fun, it's the party drink of the season. Think granita with a kick. And there's no need to dust off the Snoopy snow-cone machine for these fun summer party aperitifs." That was enough to sell us on the idea. Here's what you need for two snow-cone concoctions:

Creamsicle crush

4 cups of ice
½ cup thawed orange juice concentrate
½ cup Grand Marnier
3 tablespoons vanilla vodka

Blueberry thrill

4 cups of ice
1 cup vodka
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup frozen blueberries

Directions: For 4 snow-cone cocktails, simply shave 4 cups of ice with the grater blade of a food processor. Using an ice cream scoop, pack approximately 1 cup of shaved ice into a paper snow-cone cup (or cocktail glass), then drizzle with our concoctions here. Serve immediately.

Creamsicle crush: In a small pitcher, mix ½ cup thawed orange juice concentrate, ½ cup Grand Marnier, 3 tablespoons vanilla vodka. Stir to combine.

Blueberry thrill: In a medium bowl, mix 1 cup vodka and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add 1 cup frozen blueberries. Let sit for 15 minutes. Strain through a fine mesh strainer into a small pitcher.

Colin Farrell Is F--king Hot!

We'll get to the f--king business in a minute, but first: Who knew Colin Farrell and Mary-Kate Olsen were pals?

Olsen showed up at the Lift last night in Park City for the opening-night party celebrating the premiere of Farrell's new comedy In Bruges. "I just got here," she told a friend while braving the 10-degree weather to smoke a cigarette. "I'm gonna stay, so I can say hello to Colin."

That was about all she stayed for. She and Farrell chatted for a few minutes before Olsen made her way home. "I don't think there's much more going on tonight," she was overheard saying. "We should save it for tomorrow night."

Farrell looked superhot with long hair. And I loved the way he was dressed, 'cause, well, it's the same way I usually dress: V-neck sweater, shirt, tie and jeans!

In homage to the movie's curse-filled dialogue, waiters and bartenders wore T-shirts that read "My best friend went to f--king Bruges and all I got was this f--king shirt." Drink coasters read "Where the f--k is the city of Bruges?"

Cocktails were from Hpnotiq, and alcohol-free drinks were from SmartWater.

Joel Madden took the whole family with him to the desert this weekend for Coachella, where he was deejaying at the BPM Hpnotiq House.

"We're all here," Joel told E!, revealing his weekend plans with Nicole Richie and baby Harlow. "We have a nice little house. We're just sitting by the pool. It's really relaxing. We are going to stay the whole weekend."

While Nicole was on hand to support her man as he spun, they wisely left little Harlow back in their rented pad. Joel was overheard telling fellow party guest Taryn Manning that Nic is a super mom and he's proud to be with her. All together now...awww!

Brooke Burke Gets Ready for Baby

March, 2008

http://extratv.warnerbros.com/2008/02/brooke_burke_gets_ready_for_ba_1.php

Brooke Burke is getting ready for baby number four!

Only "Extra" was inside her stride rite baby shower at The Treehouse Social Club for her new little boy, where Brooke revealed how she plans to use her own line of belly wraps to get back into bikini-ready shape.

"It supports all that baggy baby skin, creates compression and really makes a big difference as far as getting back in shape," said Brooke.

The mom-to-be and her fiancé David Charvet treated guests to gift bags from Mom•Logic and a Vanilla Bake Shop cupcake tower. Guests sipped on Hpnotiq Bubbles n' Blue cocktails and mingled around flowers from The Hidden Garden.

As for Brooke and David's favorite gifts? The Euro Tote, the Valco Boy Meets Girl special edition stroller and the stride rite shoe cake featuring nine pairs of shoes.

Cool cocktails take heat off

Partnering with the liquor industry's PR machine is working overtime, and our friends at Hpnotiq have sent us more recipes. Here's one, served at the Surf Lodge in Montauk, N.Y.:

HPNOTIQ'S HEATWAVE

1 ounce Hpnotiq

1 ounce Lillet Blanc

Splash of orange juice

Splash of pineapple juice

Serve in a chilled martini glass.

That's it for the fancy instructions. As long as it's cold you're good to go. For extra points, it's a pretty blue color.

Why Bridgehampton Polo Is A Match Made In Gossip Heaven

This Saturday July 19th marked opening day of the 2008 Summer Season of the Mercedez-Benz Polo Challenge, a day not dared to be missed by Polo fanatics OR social scions. Probably one of the most quintessential things to do on summer Saturdays in the Hamptons is to attend the polo matches at the Bridgehampton Polo Club on Hayground Road.

By "attending Polo", I'm not talking about pulling up to the field with a basket full of cold cuts and some wine coolers to enjoy while watching the games from the bleachers. I'm talking about attending Polo on the other side – the side behind the white picket fence (literally) that has that big white tent with the un-missable Mercedez-Benz emblem on it. That is known as the VIP tent, and that is where "Polo" really happens.

The Polo celebration in the VIP tent area was hosted by Gossip Girl hottie Chace Crawford and attended by other notables such as Nicky Hilton, Penn Badgley, Dabney Mercer, Bethenny Frankel, Blake Lively, Nacho Figueras, Eric Villency, Kimberly Guilfoyle, Joe Francis and Brett Ratner. The showdown on the field was between Team White Burch and Team Jumeirah Culu Culu, if you happened to be watching Polo at all.

The invite only, well healed crowd of good looking and well dressed power players under the tents is REALLY why most people go to Polo. There is arguably more action under the tents than on the field itself; in my opinion the guests are more fun to watch than the games. (Especially after a few Perrier-Jouet mini champagne bottles or several signature summer 2008 Roc Candy or Bubbles 'n Blue cocktails from Hpnotiq.)

After observing the mixing and mingling from the sidelines, I ran into Alexa Greenstadt and her brother Kyle Heller, to whom I admitted I wasn't even watching the matches. They asked, "Who was?" I told them that I think 80% of the people aren't even watching polo (which IS a sign of a GOOD party) and Kyle said I was being generous with my estimation. He thinks 92% are NOT watching Polo. Clearly Polo is a very social sport.

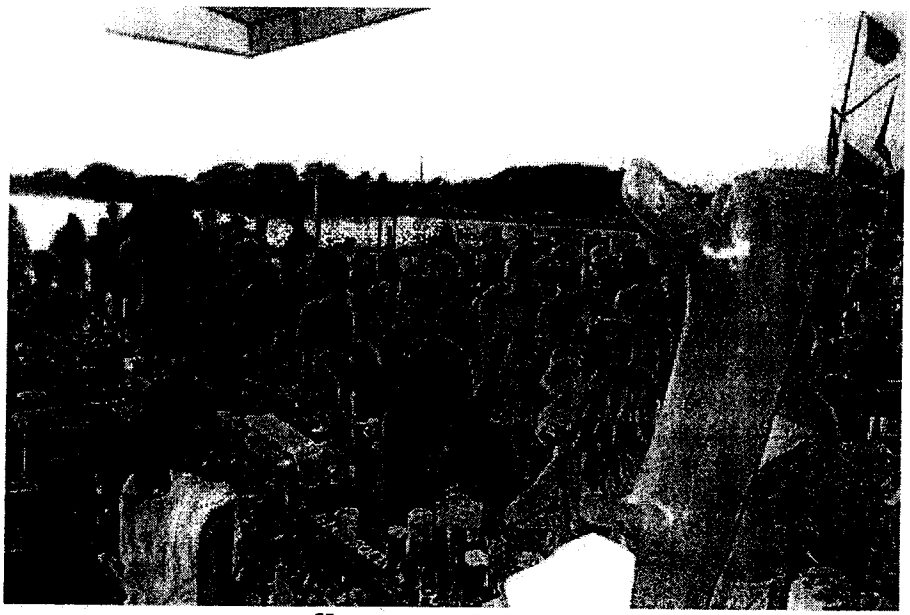
Rodriguez Rocks The Surf Lodge



[Images via Rob Rich]

The Surf Lodge saw its usual crowd of hipsters, socialites, locals, and families turn out in droves for this past sunday's Rodriguez concert. The elusive rock/folk stalwart (he's been playing since the mid sixties), sounds like a trippier, often very political version of Bob Dylan with dashes of José Feliciano: the words are bitter, the delivery and melodies sweet. Sunday, he and his band played to the setting sun, a dozing dog, and the dancing feet of their Hpnotiq-fueled, sun kissed audience, one of whom was inexplicably sporting a tiara.

Kid'ing around at Bridgehampton Polo

Normally the last place you would EVER think to bring a toddler or a youngster is to the VIP tent at the Mercedes-Benz Bridgehampton Polo Challenge. (Unless the VIPs themselves were the kids.) History was made this past weekend on the Blue Star Jets field as Stride Rite sponsored the FIRST EVER "Kids Day" at Bridgehampton Polo Club. What did this entail? Kristin Cavallari hosted the festivities with Games from Space Odyssey USA- Family Entertainment Center, Balloons in the shapes of animals and FREE shoes! That's right, Collections by Stride Rite had a table for kids to design their own pair of Stide Rites under the tent as adults downed mini bottles of Perrier-Jouët or Hpnotiq Bubbles n' Blue cocktails. Clearly, treats for everyone as we watched Team Pony Express face off with Team Black Watch.

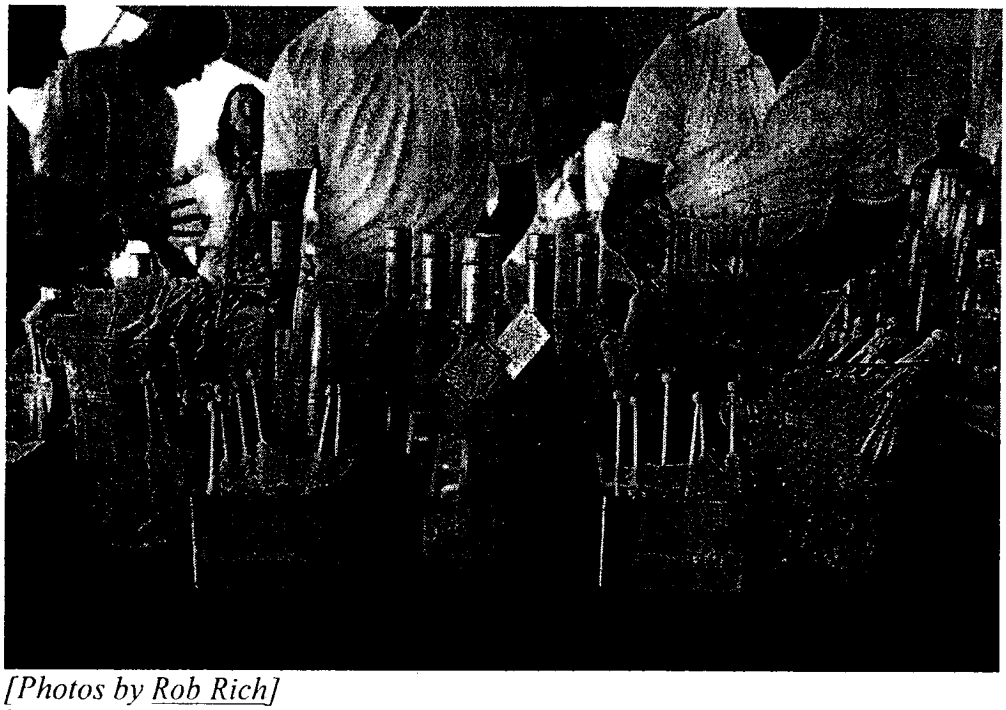
Hpnotiq Pulls Out All The Strings



[Photos by Rob Rich]

Claire learned early on about the prevalence of sponsors out here:

"Nearly every event and venue I've been to out here has been heavily sponsored, with the only variation being the degree to which the product/brand is referenced in the event and venue's title. I suppose it doesn't make sense to foot the bill yourself if a company will do it for you, but I can't help feeling that what you've saved financially you've lost in class." [Claire]

"Welcome to the PR world." is all I could answer with. I actually understand the need for sponsors on both ends, and am completely supportive of companies that are trying to promote and sell a product (this is America after all). However, the stunts that Hpnotiq has been pulling this summer are border line overkill. Check out the latest event they sponsored: The Bridgehampton Polo match last Saturday. Was this event about the polo (or even the fashion?) nope, it seemed it was about the alcohol.

Gotta love the Hpnotiq flavored candy sugar sticks though. Genius move. Also, their good old fashioned work ethic. Hpnotiq was all over Surf Lodge the night before!

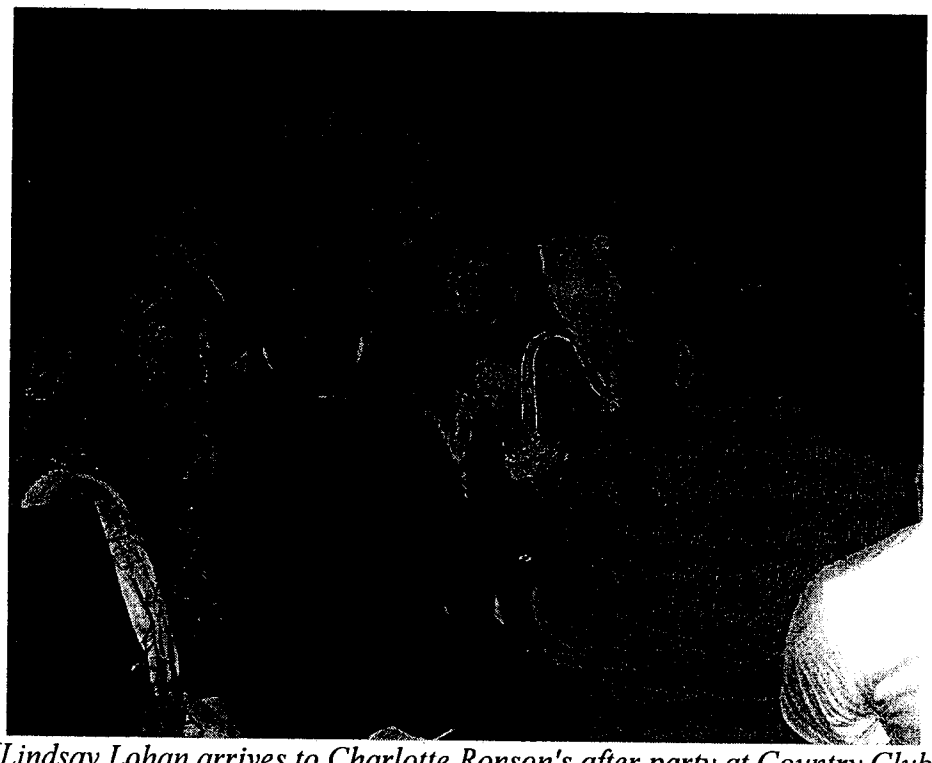
The Ronsons Throw A Country Club Bash

September 9, 2008



[Lindsay Lohan arrives to Charlotte Ronson's after party at Country Club.

Photos by Rob Rich]

Celebrities and fashionistas descended on 14th Street lounge Country Club on Saturday night to celebrate with designer of the moment, Charlotte Ronson, who had her first show in the Bryant Park tents that morning. The torrential downpour couldn't keep the crowd away from this party, with music by Charlotte's brother, Grammy-winning producer Mark Ronson, and an assortment of specialty cocktails by Hpnotiq.

More photos and story from this event below:

Despite the rain, the press and paparazzi were out in full force, as so many of the Ronson/Dexter-Jones clan came together under one roof. Annabelle Dexter-Jones, who walked in her sister's show, the family's matriarch Anne Dexter-Jones, Alexander Dexter-Jones, who took over the turntables after Mark, and Opium Group's Roman Jones came out to party with siblings Charlotte, Mark and Samantha Ronson. Samantha arrived with gal pal Lindsay Lohan and huddled in a corner VIP booth with friends Nicole Richie and husband Joel Madden, Blue & Cream owner Jeff Goldstein, Paper Magazine columnist Mickey Boardman, SKY Group NY honcho Alan Philips and Sophomore designer Crissy Miller.

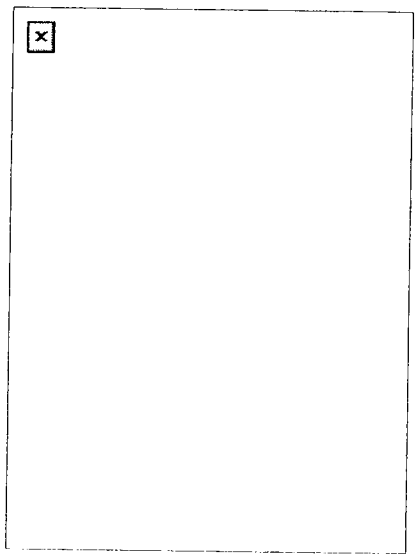
A July 4 drink with fireworks

Wednesday, June 25, 2008
BY Jennifer Mastrolanni

It's easy to find patriotic food recipes, but what about celebratory cocktails for the Fourth of July?



Hpnotiq has the answer. Bottled in France, Hpnotiq is a blend of premium vodka and natural tropical fruit juices with a touch of cognac, which combine to produce its signature electric blue color.

The Fourth of July Sparkler combines Hpnotiq with natural fruit juices, swirled with margarita flavors. We found the product at The Irishman Liquor & More at 3808 Tuscarawas St. W, (330) 477-2615.

FOURTH OF JULY SPARKLER

1 ounce Hpnotiq

2 ounce super premium tequila

1 ounce Grand Marnier

1 ounce fresh lime juice

Splash of sour mix

1/2 cup crushed ice

Rim a margarita glass with red (food coloring) salt. Blend tequila, Grand Marnier, sour mix and lime juice.

Pour mixture into margarita glass. Top with 1 ounce of Hpnotiq, Garnish with homemade or store-bought sparkler.

2008 BMI CHRISTIAN MUSIC AWARDS

BMI saluted the writers and publishers of the past year's most-performed songs on Christian radio and TV during the annual Christian Music Awards, held April 19 at the company's Music Row offices in Nashville. BMI named Ed Cash the 2008 Christian songwriter of the year, while his composition "Made to Worship" garnered song of the year honors. Prior to the presentation of awards, perennial Christian music titan Jars of Clay, rising star Aaron Shust and Latin gospel artist Isaiah Thomas set the evening's warm tone with soulful renditions of their award-winning songs.

"It's going to be nuts," Slightly Stoopid's Miles Doughty says. Along with Pepper, reggae duo Sly & Robbie will join the tour as support. "It's going to be a good little tailgate party," Doughty predicts. The summer trek will be Slightly Stoopid's first time headlining sheds. The San Diego-based act will be touring behind full-length "Slightly Not Stoned Enough to Eat Breakfast Yet Stoopid," a remixed set of the band's 2005 EP. The set, which drops July 22, features new songs, outtakes and other rarities, according to Doughty.

LAS VEGAS RESTAURANTS

Las Vegas hot spots for diners on a budget

For small spenders who want to eat well, the choices include cocktails at Mix Lounge, gumbo at Fish Camp and small plates at Guy Savoy's Bubble Lounge.

By S. Irene Virbila, Los Angeles Times Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS -- No doubt about it. The top of the Vegas food chain is the domain of high rollers. But here's a secret: You don't have to spend big to eat big in this town. You can sample Guy Savoy's legendary artichoke truffle soup for just a few dollars, or take in the million-dollar view at Mix for the price of a cocktail. Stray off the Strip and head to the places the famous chefs hit when they're off duty -- including one of the country's best Thai restaurants. Here's a weekend's worth of fine dining for the every roller:

In a nondescript mall just east of the Strip, Lotus of Siam serves up the best northern Thai food on the West Coast and probably in the country. For the price of a bowl of soup at some of the Strip's top restaurants, you can feast on Thai dishes from the tremendously talented chef and owner, Saipin Chutima. Go straight to her a la carte menu and don't miss the northern-style sausage with basil, green papaya salad or steamed catfish in lotus leaf. The wine list is remarkable too: heavy on Austrian Rieslings and German Gewürztraminers, and put together by the sommeliers in town who love this place.

Lotus of Siam, 953 E. Sahara Ave., Las Vegas; (702) 735-3033; www.saipinchutima.com. Open for lunch 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through to Friday; for dinner 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 5:30 to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Main dishes, $8.95 to $22.95; most less than $15.

For a cup of espresso made short and strong, with a proper crema, head to the new Espressamente Illy coffee bar, the first of many to come in the U.S. from premier Italian coffee roaster Illy. The vibe is smart and urban (that's why so many vacationing Europeans make this their morning coffee spot). The morning pastries could be better, but if you require the jump-start of a truly ferocious latte, an extra shot of espresso is just a buck.

Espressamente Illy, Palazzo Resort Hotel Casino, 3325 Las Vegas Blvd. S., Las Vegas; (702) 869-2233. Open 6 a.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday and 6 a.m. to 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Espresso drinks, $3.50 to $5.50.

For just $16, you can savor a cocktail and the million-dollar view of the Strip from the 64th-floor balcony of Mix Lounge. At Mix Restaurant next door, gourmands are paying big bucks for a lesser view and, OK, Michelin-starred French chef Alain Ducasse's worldly menu. Every night at the Lounge, a different DJ stirs up a musical mix. The cocktail of the moment? Violet, a mix of Absolut raspberry vodka, Hpnotiq, Chambord and pineapple juice.

Mix Lounge, Mandalay Bay, 3950 Las Vegas Blvd. S., Las Vegas; (702) 632-9500; mandalaypla.aspx. Open 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through%ce.com/dining/mixlounge Thursday, 5 p.m. to 4 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Cocktails, $16. No cover before 10 p.m.; after 10 p.m., it's $10 Sunday through Tuesday, $12 Wednesday and Thursday, $20 Friday and Saturday.

Next door to the more formal Louis's Las Vegas is South Carolina chef Louis Osteen's rowdy and fun Fish Camp, where you can get a bowl of his low-country shrimp and okra gumbo along with a New Orleans oyster po' boy, a shrimp burger with jalapeño tartar sauce or a sirloin burger with Benton's fine bacon and extra sharp white cheddar. I wouldn't say no, either, to some hush puppies or sweet potato fries with a glass of bourbon from Zelda's Bourbon Bar, which stocks more than 48. Live music on the weekends.

Nevermind Prince — here come the Smurfs!

April 14, 2008 2:59pm

The Purple Prancer, as I heard Prince recently called, is all fine and good — but what about little blue creatures who only want Smilax berries and peaceful working villages?

That's right, the Smurfs are coming to Coachella and you can party with them until you're blue in the face. Or, more likely, blue on the tongue. Hpnotiq, the turquoise-hued liquor, is one of the sponsors of the Smurf Village, a weekend-long event that will celebrate all things Smurf at an undisclosed residence close to the Polo Fields. (Read: You can't get in unless you're on the guest list. Or, maybe a desperate dip in blue body paint will get you in. Talk to your neighborhood Blue Man for that.)

A few of the highlights of the event, according to co-producer BPM Magazine's Matt Colon: Papa Smurf and Smurfette will be making the rounds in classic costumes (let's hope those get-ups are air-conditioned) and celebs, our village's version of Vanity Smurf (some named Hilton, some not), will be on hand to get gift bags and be photographed, much to the glee of your favorite nasty-tempered blog. Oh, and on the decks: Steve Aoki, Joel Madden of Good Charlotte, Tommie Sunshine, Junior Sanchez and other special guests. There's also a Gargamel potion bar.

Why Smurfs in the desert? For one, the demographic is just right: We people in our late 20s and early 30s have a seemingly endless reservoir for nostalgia, especially when alcohol is supplied.

BPM and the Smurfs are also priming us for Paramount's re-release of the vintage cartoons on DVD in about six months, along with T-shirts, mugs and the like, to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Belgian creation.

So, yes, this is a giant advertisement and, at first glance, little blue friendlies in the desert may seem an odd fit, but lest you forget, the desert is a trippy place. "I just got a shipment of plush mushroom seats, and a fold-up mushroom house," Colon said. "The irony isn't lost on anyone."

Smurf Pool Party

To get to the Hpnotiq-sponsored Smurf's Village, partygoers had to hop on a shuttle at a local shopping center. When they arrive at the party site – a large Spanish-style stucco desert home – they are greeted with a private lake for paddle boats and these Smurfed-out mushrooms.

Crystal Blue Persuasion

Friday's BPM pool party was chill, but not as fantastical as we'd hoped, what with its planned Smurf theme scrapped. Turned out the company that now owns the cartoon characters didn't think associating themselves with a liquored-up soiree was such a good idea after all (Hpnotiq's blue hue was so Smurfect too)! At least the gathering still had Smurfy DJs (and Joel & Benji Madden) and eats supplied by Kitchen 24 (from the Cinespace peeps, set to open soon on Cahuenga), including burgers and blue potato salad.

Tips for getting your political party

With the election only four days away, there's just enough time to plan how to spend the evening — after you've voted, of course — as you wait for the votes to be tallied. Putting together a party for friends and family can be easy and make the nail-biting experience of awaiting as each state is called a little more entertaining.

Here are some tips for hosting an election party:

■ Send out invitations with a patriotic theme via e-mail. Be sure to invite friends regardless of their political leanings.

Hpnotiq's Patriotic Margarita

Ingredients:

1 ounce Hpnotiq, a fruit liqueur
1 ounce super premium dark rum
1 ounce coconut milk
1 ounce fresh lime juice
1 ounce pineapple juice
1 ounce sweetened strawberry puree
1/2 cup crushed ice

Combine rum, coconut milk, lime juice, pineapple juice, and ice in blender. Pour Hpnotiq into a margarita glass. Layer 2/3 of the blended mix over Hpnotiq. Blend remaining mix with strawberry puree and layer on top. Garnish with coconut or use salt-rimmed glass as a variation.

MIXOLOGY 101

Placed beside a bloody mary and a gin and tonic, this light blue cocktail will make for a spirited and patriotic Fourth of July display atop your mini bar. If you look closely at its ingredients, though, you'll see that it's about as American as jai alai or brie.

Cachaça is a Brazilian variation of rum, and Hpnotiq is a French liqueur blended from vodka, cognac and tropical fruits. Meanwhile, its name comes from a popular Cuban drink.

Sundance Night Owl | Parties, Round One

http://themoment.blogs.nytimes.com/2008/01/18/sundance-night-owl-first-night-out/#more-231

By Kelly Will

(WireImage)

The Sundance Film Festival in Park City, Utah, a state where it's still illegal not to drink milk but where birds have the right of way on all highways, is upon us.

The festival began as Robert Redford's brainchild tribute to young developing artists and their independent films and lasts for 10 days on Main Street in picturesque Park City. While you may initially feel like you are on a sleepy mountainside movie set, you quickly realize you are actually in for an exhausting marathon of cinema by day and nonstop parties by night.

Even the first night, usually a quiet affair as everyone excitedly anticipates the arrival of the big movie stars the following morning, seemed busier than usual. We managed to avoid the insanely desperate crowd vying for a spot in Harry O's/Tao on Main Street and still have a drink with Colin Farrell and Mary-Kate Olsen at the event of the night: the Hpnotiq liquor sponsored after-party at the Lift on Main Street.

Farrell is in town to flog his latest flick, "In Bruges," an action comedy caper (March '08 release), which also stars Ralph Fiennes. "I play something of a hit man in the movie — at least he thinks he is," said the now-sober Farrell, drinking a Red Bull. "He's a guy who falls into a bit of a mess and suddenly the police and press get involved and he goes into hiding in Bruges, Belgium. I loved the script and had to do the movie."

Farrell, who looks the part of a clean cut killer in the movie but in person resembles his messy-haired rebellious media image, headed across the Main Street bridge an hour later for the Stereo nightclub pre-party. Soon after, Mary-Kate slipped into the Lift in a surprisingly casual ensemble of sensibly flat black boots, black pants and a sweater. Olsen looked healthy and happy with two girlfriends but did of course find the nearest smoking exit immediately upon arrival and made frequent solo trips for a puff.

Olsen is in town to host a dinner on the second night, which we will dutifully report on tomorrow, along with plenty of celebrity sightings, gift lounging misadventures and movie news. Till then, keep chugging that milk.

DINING | WHITE PLAINS

SEPTEMBER 19, 2008

Italian, Busy, Pricey

Alan Zale for The New York Times

MILAN IN SUBURBIA Via Quadronno is fun and the food can hit the high notes, but it will cost you.

By ALICE GABRIEL

CAN White Plains really support another high-end restaurant? Judging from the packed sidewalk tables on a recent Friday night at Via Quadronno — a neo-Milanese caffe with poodle-trimmed topiaries and a shiny red Vespa propped up out front — the answer would seem to be yes.

SEEING RED The menu calls the signature ingredient of the dish at top, "angry lobster." Below,Australian lamb chops drizzled with sweet red wine.

The party extended indoors, where nearly every seat was taken; men in short sleeves and women in pretty dresses spun tagliolini al limone on forks and sipped $22 brunello by the glass, while an Italian tenor's recorded voice soared above the general merriment.

Via Quadronno is fun — and the food can hit the high notes — but it will cost you (entrees start at $36).

The L-shaped restaurant, the newest outpost for VQ Global (the brand is already familiar in New York, Miami, Tokyo and Hong Kong), gets the decor right — with azure tiles, terrazzo floors, vintage Italian posters, brocade banquettes and a rain forest's worth of orchids. Waiters wear white shirts and aprons and black bow ties, just as they do in Milan.

The Via Quadronno in Manhattan is known for its espresso-fueled breakfast scene and lunchtime paninis, but I visited the White Plains location at night, finding a dinner menu that is at once traditional and current. A dish of piccatine di vitello al porcini — delicate scallops of veal tenderloin emboldened with porcini mushroom sauce — relied on a standard pairing, but the presentation had an appealing delicacy, with its neatly lapped veal slices, dollhouse vegetables and, yes, decorative pink orchid.

Other than the veal piccata, the second courses I sampled were disappointing. Grilled wild Canadian salmon had the dense flesh of a fish that had swum freely, but coarse black pepper distracted from the salmon's mild flavor. (I did like the beautiful small vegetables, sautéed in a little butter, that came with it.) Dainty pan-roasted chicken with rosemary sauce made a pretty presentation, but fell short of being memorable.

As courses arrive, diners might find themselves asking a perfectly reasonable question: Does the food I'm eating justify the stiff tariff? I ordered the insalata primavera, which despite its hackneyed reference to spring, promised "seasonal greens with seasonal vegetables." It proved a delightful, wholesome show of tiny mixed greens; slim, snappy green beans; fresh-shucked corn; tart green apples; nutty Pecorino cheese; and mellow vinaigrette. Fifteen dollars? Worth every cent.

And those silken folds of San Daniele prosciutto ornamented with sugar-sweet ribbons of cantaloupe made to look like a perfect damask rose? Twenty-two dollars? Who's counting? But this muddy-tasting branzino with its sticky, over-rich mustard cream sauce — $36? Call my lawyer!

In all fairness, there are a few things I'd go back for, especially if someone else pays. To start, I'd order the beautiful, milky mozzarella and organic tomato wedges drizzled with fruity olive oil. Or I'd choose the full-flavored breasola, served with wisps of arugula and generous shavings of parmigiano. I might also opt for the earthy black-eyed beans tossed with shrimp and brightened with lemon. And a side of crispy roasted new potatoes would definitely be in order.

Pastas are the most attractively priced offerings on the menu. Potato gnocchi the size of minimarshmallows were a little tough, but tossed with peppery arugula and crunchy shrimp, they made an honest dish. The "signature" lasagna was simple and satisfying. But where was the lemon in the tagliolini al limone? All but devoid of its namesake ingredient, the dish was mostly about heavy cream. Risotto with radicchio and green peas — a special — was all about pungent, overripe gorgonzola.

Pacing was a problem. Antipasti came in a hurry, but pastas lagged behind. After a long hiatus, a side dish arrived and sat alone on the table for a full five minutes before second courses materialized, by which time we'd drunk the glasses of wine we'd hoped to pair with them.

The wine list, with its broad selection of wines by the glass, covers Italy from the Sud Tirol to Sicily. By the glass, I liked the 2006 Lagrein rosé from Alois Lageder, with its strawberry and rhubarb notes ($11); the steely 2004 Greco di Tufo "Cutizzi" from Feudi di San Gregorio ($15); and the ripe plum flavors of the 2003 Chianti Classico Riserva from Vigna Vecchia ($11).

Desserts — a roll of the dice — included an achingly sweet lemon meringue tart and a lychee semifreddo frozen hard as a rock. Others drew raves: the deep, dark, warm-chocolate soufflé with preserved cherries tucked inside; a warm pear glazed with honey and grappa, served with dreamy hazelnut gelato; buttery peach tart; and tiramisù — a huge, square portion — light-textured and brazenly rich.

GOOD

THE SPACE Milan comes to White Plains, with terrazzo floors, vintage Italian posters, brocade banquettes and a rain forest's worth of orchids. Most of the tables are well spaced; a few are far too close.

THE CROWD Spirited, well dressed and presumably well heeled. Service was mostly friendly and professional; one waitress showed impatience with a diner's indecisiveness but was also on top of the details.

THE BAR Specialty cocktails ($12 to $14) include a particularly good blue mojito made with Bacardi rum, Hpnotiq liqueur, lime juice, brown sugar and strong mint. The bar menu features assorted cheeses and cured meats.

THE BILL Antipasti, $13.50 to $22. Pasta, $16 to $25. Entrees, $36 to $42. Desserts, $7.50 to $16.

WHAT I LIKED Salad primavera, buffalo mozzarella and organic tomatoes, bresaola with arugula and parmigiano, prosciutto with melon, lasagna, veal piccata, roasted new potatoes, tiramisù, glazed pear with hazelnut gelato, chocolate souffle, fresh peach tart.

A little bit of Paris in Park City.

Last night I had my one night out experiencing the craziness that is Main Street in Park City. The entire slushy street was filled with people -- think Times Square at rush hour -- lining up outside of various parties. As my group approached the after-party sponsored by Hpnotiq for Be Kind Rewind, directed by Michel Gondry and starring Jack Black, a mob scene broke out on the sidewalk a few doors down. Who could it be? Hysteria grew, camera phones flashed. The answer? Ms. Paris Hilton. "I saw your tape, Paris!" one hopeful youngster cried out.

The party for Be Kind Rewind, drew a good-looking, mostly LA-type crowd. We can't help but wonder -- who are these girls that can brave these temperatures with short skirts and no tights? Josh Hartnett showed up (he had the good sense to wear a toasty-looking hat) and Mr. Gondry played the drums. Further down the street at the Queer Lounge celebrating the documentary Derek, about artist Derek Jarman, drag queens mixed with impeccably groomed fellas and The Donnas played to a fully packed house. Elsewhere, apparently, 50 Cent played a set and rumors continue of a secret U2 show.

Madonna's not the only one turning 50 this year. It's come to my attention that another source of my childhood entertainment - who I watched while I dressed in flourescent ribbons and cut-off shirts like Madge circa 1983 - The Smurfs, are also turning the big 5-0 this year. I've also learned that they will be celebrating later this month at Coachella with the likes of Jack Johnson, Kate Nash and more. They're even having a lounge of their own to throw back blue drinks. Sounds smurftastic to me!

Joel Madden Surprises Nicole Richie with Getaway

By Jessica Herndon and Marisa Laudadio

Joel Madden whisked girlfriend Nicole Richie and their three-and-a-half-month-old daughter Harlow to the California desert this weekend for a surprise family vacation, the Good Charlotte singer tells PEOPLE.

The Richie-Madden clan headed to the Palm Springs area for the Coachella Valley Music & Arts Festival, a three-day event headlined by performers including Prince, Jack Johnson and Roger Waters.

"[Nicole] hasn't been able to do a whole lot over the year, so we're having a little family trip," Madden told PEOPLE at the BPM Hpnotiq Smurf House, where he DJ'd a festival pre-party Saturday afternoon.

"I [rented] a house and surprised Nicole with a weekend trip because she likes Coachella. She was like, 'I really want to go!' So I surprised her. We brought the baby."

And their activity? "Hanging by the pool."

While Madden, 29, spun music for party guests including Dave Annable and Taryn Manning, a smiling, relaxed Richie, 26, chatted with friends about her daughter, who was being looked after at their nearby rental home.

4/27/08, 6:30 pm EST

Thanks to its proximity to L.A., Coachella is known not only for top-notch headliners and broiling temperatures, but for its celeb-packed VIP area and plentiful parties. Junkie XL got the ball rolling early on Thursday by performing an hour-long set on the Coachella Express, the Amtrak train that took concert goers from Union Station in downtown Los Angeles to Indio. "It was a great experience," he said. "I'm from Holland and it reminded me of how they do things there. Public transportation is big and they always try to make it comfy and fun. So, I thought of that and how they do it when I decided to do this. And, it's very green and a great initiative that Coachella took." Junkie XL's train set included some of his remixes and original material done in what he said was "super amateurish but really fun. People were dancing the aisles." We didn't mean to be rude, but we just had to ask how (er, why) he was wearing a brown leather jacket in the midday desert sun. "Leather is a statement," he laughed. "If I don't wear it, I burn like a lobster." Fair enough.

Over at the BPM Hpnotiq Smurf House, at a private residence in Rancho Mirage on Saturday, Good Charlotte's Joel Madden spun records in the afternoon while his girlfriend Nicole Richie watched on, snapped photos and boogied. Madden showed his presidential choice by sporting an Obama T-shirt and giving the candidate a shout-out during his set.

Blue Pig Martini

RICK RADUNS shakes up a tropical treat.

We discovered Hpnotiq while looking for something that could add the color blue to the signature cocktail at our restaurant, the Blue Pig Tavern. The liqueur—a blend of vodka, cognac, and tropical fruit juices—has a light and slightly grapefruit-like flavor but without the sour taste. I use a splash of pineapple juice to add just the right amount of sweetness and a subtle tropical note to the drink. That, combined with the color and the starfruit hanging on the rim, makes you feel just a little closer to the beach outside our door. Rick Raduns is the assistant food and beverage director at Congress Hall Hotel in Cape May, New Jersey. congresshall.com

NICOLE RICHIE turned her life around when she learned she was pregnant. She gave up drugs and put some healthy pounds on her once emaciated frame. But since giving birth to her daughter Harlow on Jan. 11, the reformed party girl has been feeling the tug of her former fast-lane life!

"Nicole is torn between being a mommy and being a party girl," says a source. "She wants to go out and have fun, but when she does, she's like, 'Uh-oh, Harlow needs me.'"

Nicole did manage to steal some grown-up time with her boyfriend and baby daddy Good Charlotte rocker Joel Madden at the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival in Indio, Calif., on April 26.

"She looked very thin and frail," says an eyewitness, who saw Nicole at the April 23 opening of Japanese clothing shop Bapestore in L.A. And after chatting with pals for a while, guilt set in that she'd left her 4-month-old at home. "Nicole looked sad when she pulled out her phone and showed off pictures of Harlow."

New cocktails for the holiday season

New wave of drinks contains less alcohol and more ingredients such as fruit juices and herbs

BY JANE MILZA
STATEN ISLAND ADVANCE

In years past, wine was the beverage most often paired with food. When 2008 got underway, beer fans took the theory in their direction — matching artisan beers with food flavors.

Extending into 2009, bartenders are using their talents as culinary artists. Experimenting with different tastes and textures much like a chef would do, they now are bringing classic cocktails to the dining room table.

The new wave of cocktails often contain less alcoholic spirits and more secondary ingredients, such as fruit juices and herbs. This makes them lighter and more compatible with food. As a result, the new wave cocktails can be sipped throughout a meal or with a medley of hors d'oeuvres.

HOLIDAY LIBATIONS

Here are two new cocktails for the 2008 holiday season developed by the makers of Hpnotiq. Bottled in France, Hpnotiq is a blend of premium vodka and natural tropical fruit juices with a touch of Cognac added.

Jack Frost Martini

Not only do the cocktails' names reflect the season, but their flavors are exotic sounding as well. The Tinsel Bellini and the Jack Frost Martini are throwbacks to traditional cocktails, but here, they are given contemporary twists.

With barometers and mercury falling day by day, the warmth of a cocktail while sitting by the fireplace at a holiday party seems like a chic alternative to a traditional Christmas or New Year's Champagne toast.

HPNOTIQ TINSEL BELLINI

- 2 ounces Hpnotiq
- 1 ounce Limoncello
- 1 ounce Champagne
- Splash of lime juice

Rim the Champagne flute with a light coat of sugar. Pour chilled Hpnotiq, Limoncello and Champagne into the flute. Add a splash of lime juice.

JACK FROST MARTINI
(Serves 1)

- 2 ounces Hpnotiq
- 2 ounces super premium vodka
- Splash of orange liqueur, such as Cointreau
- Splash of lime juice

In a shaker, shake with ice the Hpnotiq, vodka, orange liqueur and lime juice. Strain into a martini glass.

Grammy Nominees -Top Picks

February 1st, 2008

Canadian songstress Feist holds rank with Alicia Keys and Brad Paisley, whom are multiple nominees. Feist has four nominations: Best New Artist, Best Pop Vocal Album (The Reminder), Best Female Pop Vocal Performance and Best Short Form Music Video (both for "1234").

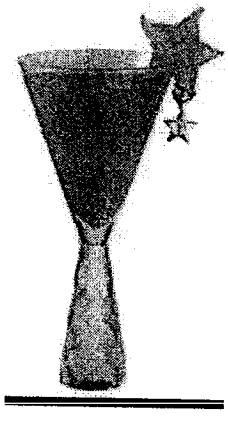
While you are settling in to watch the Grammy's on Sunday, I will be serving up a few cocktails at my "Grammy Get-together" and I can hardly wait! Check out this great recipe from Hypnotiq!

Hpnotiq Counts Down the Most Outrageous Grammy® moments with its signature Grammy® cocktail

HYPNO ROCK LEGEND
2 oz. Hypnotiq
1 oz Iceberg Vodka
1 oz. Red Bull

Shake well with ice and garnish with a little starfruit.



The Grammy's® are notorious for wild and unexpected "rock star" moments. To honour the award show's 50th anniversary, Hpnotiq has the two most outrageous Grammy® moments.

1. Soy Bomb Crashes Bob Dylan's performance.
Legen Bob Dylan maintains composure while a shirtless man jumps on stage with "Soy Bomb" written across his chest at an 1998 awards show.

2. 50 cent joins Best New Artists on stage.
50 cent may have been the best-selling artist in 2004, but he failed to win in the Best New Artist category. That didn't stop him from joining the winners Evanescence on stage anyway.

Of course there are others like Sinead O'Connor's refusal to accept her Grammy Award and Jennifer Lopez's wardrobe malfunction waiting-to-happen dress, so Hpnotiq wants your readers to look out for this year's unforgettable and outrageous moments while sipping its signature cocktail – "Hpno-Rock Legend". Check back with Sugarcain on Monday for the recap and highlights of the 50th Annual Grammy's.

A haunted potion

Planning a Halloween party?

Cider is for grade school kids. Pumpkin beer, good, but not gruesome enough. Impress your favorite group of ghouls with the mad-eye martini or Halloween Hpnotist on All Hallows Eve.

Both cocktails are made with HPNOTIQ, a vodka/cognac blend infused with tropical fruit juice. Garnished with bobbing fruits and berries, the mad eye's signature lychee eyeball is the only accessory you need on Oct. 31.

To make the Halloween Hpnotist combine 2 oz. HPNOTIQ, 1 oz. vodka, a splash of lemon juice and or the extra spooky effect add a glow stick garnish.

The mad-eye martini is 2 .oz HPNOTIQ , 1 oz. vodka, 2 ounces of lychee juice. Shake with ice, strain into a martini glass. Garnish with a lychee eyeball that's one canned grade AA lychee in syrup, drained, a teaspoon cherry, strawberry or raspberry preserves, one blueberry. Dry Lychee and fill with raspberry preserves. Place blueberry, blossomed end facing out, into cavity and skewer.

Now say trick or treat?

For more scary sips visit www.hpnotiq.com.

These drinks will add a patriotic touch to your party

Kathryn Rem
GateHouse News Service

Red, white and blue food lends a dramatic touch to a July 4 buffet or party table.

Think strawberries, blueberries, raspberries, white cake, whipped cream, blue candies, vanilla or strawberry ice cream ... you get the picture.

The flag colors also can be displayed through beverages. When concocting a drink, consider cranberry or pomegranate juice, 7-Up or white wine, blue-raspberry juice drinks or blue-hued liqueurs.

For adults, here is a trio of cocktails — one red, one white and one blue — that will provide some visual flair to an Independence Day soiree.

Impetuoso

1.5 ounces light rum
1.5 ounces pomegranate liqueur
Splash cranberry juice
Splash sweet and sour mix (see note)

Shake ingredients over ice. Strain into martini glass. Note: Sweet and sour mix, also called sour mix or bar mix, is a mixer made of lemon or lime juice and sugar syrup. To make your own, mix one part heavy sugar syrup (3 parts sugar, 2 parts water) with one part lemon juice. Makes 1.

Caipirnha

2 ounces simple syrup (see note)
One lime, cut in quarters
2 ounces light rum
Ice

Muddle simple syrup and lime wedges. Shake thoroughly. Add rum and ice; shake. Garnish with lime wedge. Note: Simple syrup is a solution of sugar and water that is cooked over low heat until clear, then boiled for a minute or two. The ratio is usually either 2 parts water to 1 part sugar or equal parts water and sugar. Makes 1.

Blue Mojito

12 mint leaves
2 lime wedges
1 ounce simple syrup
Ice
2 ounces light rum
2 ounces blue liqueur (such as Hpnotiq)
Soda water

Muddle mint leaves, lime wedges and simple syrup. Add ice, rum and blue liqueur; shake. Pour into a Collins glass. Top with soda water. Garnish with mint leaves. Makes 1.

Spooky goodies: It's not hard to make gross party food on purpose

By Arlene Burnett
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Most of these Halloween recipes are geared for children—a little gross and scary—but could be fun for an adult party, too. It's not hard to make gross food on purpose—and it can be lots of fun this time of year. (Some of these recipes are for adults only!)

PECAN CARAMEL SPIDERS

The original recipe includes homemade caramel. I shortened the recipe and prep time by using Kraft Caramel Bits.

1-1/2 cups toasted pecans
11-ounce package Caramel Bits
5 ounces thin black licorice strands, cut into 2-inch pieces
6 ounces semisweet chocolate, chopped
4 ounces milk chocolate, chopped
Chocolate curls or jimmies, optional

Line 2 baking sheets with waxed paper and lightly spray with nonstick spray. Mound 30 small clusters of pecans (about 3 or 4 pecans) each spaced a couple inches apart on the pan.

Ladle a couple tablespoons of warm caramel over some of the nut clusters, to make the spider bodies. Then press 6 pieces of licorice into the warm caramel to make the legs. Repeat with the remaining caramel and licorice. (It's helpful to have an extra hand here, since the caramel can set quickly. If caramel hardens, warm over very low heat.) Let spiders cool 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, put the chocolates in a medium heatproof bowl. Bring a saucepan filled with 1 inch or so of water to a very slow simmer; set the bowl over, but not touching, the water. Stir the chocolate occasionally until melted and smooth. Or put the chocolate in a medium microwave-safe bowl. Melt at 50 percent power in the microwave until soft, about 1 minute. Stir, and continue to heat until completely melted, 2 to 3 minutes more.

Spoon about 1 tablespoon of melted chocolate on top of each spider. Sprinkle with jimmies or chocolate curls, if desired. Let cool until firm.

Makes 30 spiders.

MUMMY BREAD

I make pepperoni bread for my family. It's easy when you use frozen bread dough. I found a lot of recipes for mummy bread online, which inspired this idea.

1 loaf frozen bread dough, thawed
3 to 4 ounces sliced pepperoni
4 ounces shredded mozzarella cheese
1 egg white

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Roll dough into a 13-inch-wide-by-16-inch-long rectangle. Place the pepperoni slices down the middle of the dough, lengthwise. Sprinkle cheese over the pepperoni.

Slice 1/2- to 1-inch strips about 5-1/2 inches long on each side of the dough. This will become the mummy's body. Fold the strips of dough alternately over the filling, tucking the ends of the strips underneath the bread.

Form a head at one end of the dough. Use pieces of pepperoni or small slices of green olives with pimentos for eyes.

Brush with egg white and bake for about 25 minutes or until bread turns light brown.

Serve hot or at room temperature.

GIVE-'EM-THE-EYEBALL CANDIES

These eyeballs are just scary enough, and they're good. Consider placing two chocolate wafers on a plate, then placing the eyeballs over those and use red licorice to make a mouth and black licorice for eyebrows.

1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
3 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut

Patriotic potables in color

Try something new on Independence Day

BY CRAIG SCHROLUCKE AND ALEXIS LARSEN
Cox News Service

Patriotic parties, relaxed picnics, smokin' barbecues, explosive fireworks and all-American parties are synonymous with the Fourth of July. The party theme is a no-brainer — red, white and blue. Go the extra mile and extend it to the drinks.

Red

You could always go with a simple strawberry daiquiri or margarita for your red theme. If you have non-drinkers at the party, a simple cranberry mocktail might fit the bill.

The Lounge Lizards American-o

1/2 oz. Campari
1/2 oz. sweet Vermouth
1 oz. Cointreau
1 oz. orange juice
Splash of club soda
Splash of grenadine

Directions: Pour Campari, sweet Vermouth, Cointreau, orange juice over ice in a rocks or highball glass. Add a splash of club soda and grenadine for deeper red color. Garnish with an orange twist.

Cherry Margarita

1/2 cup cherries, pitted and mashed, or 2 oz. fresh cherry puree
1 oz. simple syrup
1 oz Fresh lime juice
3/4 oz. cointreau
1½ oz tequila
Lime wedge for garnish

Combine all ingredients into an ice filled mixing tin. Shake and strain into a chilled glass. Garnish with a lime wedge.

Combine the zest of one lime with several teaspoons of rock salt.

Rub a lime wedge around the rim of the glass. Dip into the zest salt mixture. Fill the glass with ice.

In a cocktail shaker mash the cherries with the simple syrup and lime juice. Add the other ingredients and shake to combine. If using the puree shake to combine.

Pour into prepared glass and and garnish with a lime wedge.

Sundance: The Celebrity Mood Map

Posted January 25, 2008 | 01:46 AM (EST)

After a whirlwind week of (mostly) film-related activity and ubiquitous bold-faced names, things are finally starting to slow down at Sundance. Now is a good time to pause and take stock, so here's an impressionistic write-up of the week--a rundown of who was feeling what, when. Most conclusions are based on what they told me when I quite simply got all up in their business and asked them.

Peevish: A slightly surly (and huge-headed) Alan Rickman ordered himself two drinks before sitting down for a chat at the Delta 360 Lounge. He quickly regretted it. I kept asking why British people--especially him--are so good at playing crazy villain-types. Next question!

Sick: After performing with his band at the Hpnotiq Lounge, Lukas Haas felt a sore throat coming on. What, that tightly-knotted scarf wasn't some kind of Euro fashion statement?

Too Cool for School: Josh Hartnett, smoking a cigarette and not into talking with a random journalist outside the "Be Kind Rewind" party at the Hpnotiq Lounge Sunday night. It's cool, though. He was pretty awesome in August, in which he reprises the old cock-of-the-walk role that put him on the map in The Virgin Suicides.

Blond: Mischa Barton. "I'm back to being a dumb blond," she reportedly told hair stylists in the ConAir Hairdressing Salon as she prepped for a photo shoot. Guess being a smart blond didn't really work out for her?

No, it's not another recap of Dancing with the Stars, but a live impromptu performance from our favorite amateur waltzer, Rocco DiSpirito, at the NYC Food and Wine Fest this afternoon. Overheard, girl in the pink dress to the Roccster: "You are so strong!" Slick Rocco to the girl, "You just gotta let go." You tell her, Rocco. It's that ethos that the many happy munchers brought with them today to the Grand Tasting, the Food Fest feeding frenzy at Pier 54. Despite the A+ organization of the thing (first you get your wrist band, then your wine glass...), hordes were pushing through Pier 54 for Hpnotiq cocktails with rock-candy swizzle sticks, hand-made bratwurst from Cookshop, and hundreds more edibles and potables. Photos coming soon...gotta run to the next sold out event of the day, the Ferran Adria/Anthony Bourdain Times Talk. Stay tuned.

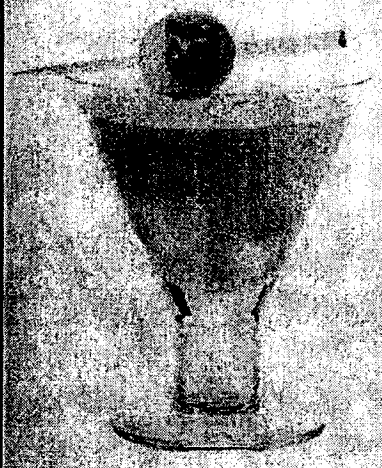
Drink To Me Only With Thine Eye



This Halloween delight and disgust your guests with a creepy cocktail perfect for the holiday. Even the most discerning witches and ghouls will appreciate your creativity in creating a drink so appropriate for the occasion. While not for the faint, the edible eyeball garnish will surely be the talk of the party.

The Mad Eye Martini

½ oz. Hpnotiq
1 oz. premium vodka
2 oz. lychee juice

Lychee Eyeball

1 canned grade AA lychee in syrup, drained
½ teaspoon cherry, strawberry or raspberry preserves
1 blueberry

Create the eyeball by drying the lychee and filling with the preserves. Place blueberry, blossomed end facing out, into cavity and skewer. Combine the rest of the ingredients and shake with ice. Strain into a martini glass. Garnish with the skewered lychee eyeball.

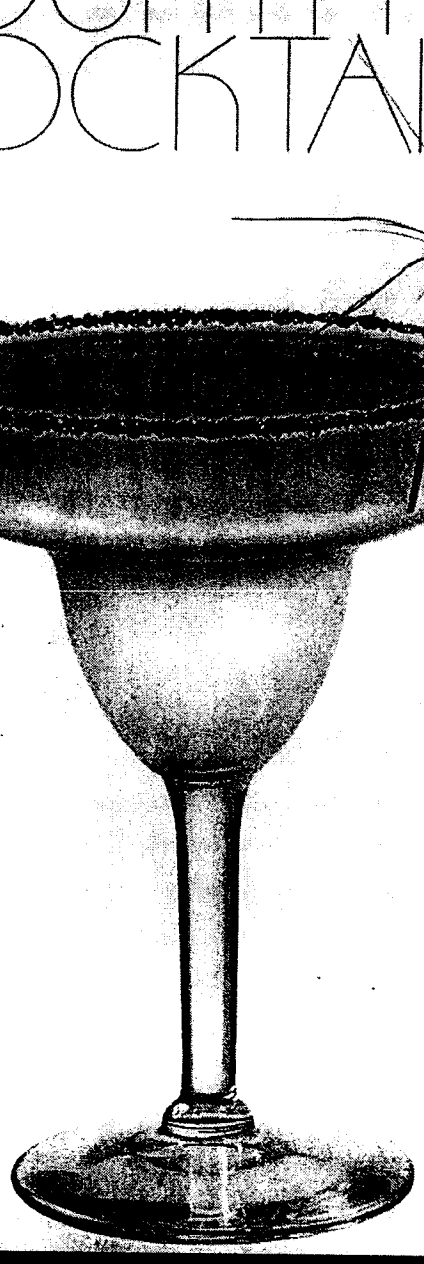
CELEBRATE WITH A SIZZLING FOURTH OF JULY COCKTAIL SPARKLER



Fireworks, firecrackers, pyrotechnics, bottle rockers, sparklers, fountains and candles all enhance Fourth of July festivities, but the one thing missing is the sizzle of flavor.

This year, spice up America's favorite holiday with a signature Fourth of July cocktail... The ultimate libation for a celebratory Fourth of July from the Statue of Liberty to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Not only does Hpnotiq's margarita look patriotic with the red, white, and blue swirls, but the flavor of this festive cocktail is sure to have your guests calling it The Drink of the Summer. Indulge with your guests as you enjoy the refreshingly delicious combination of premium vodka combined with natural fruit juices swirled with a touch of cognac and the luscious margarita flavors to produce its signature electric blue color. Its light refreshing taste and limitless mixability make it one of the most versatile and unique liquors on the market today. From the Sundance Film Festival to Las Vegas nightlife to New York Fashion Week, it is seen and tasted at the hottest spots across the nation.

Fourth of July Sparkler
1 oz. Hpnotiq
2 oz. super premium tequila
1 oz. Gran Marnier
1 oz. fresh lime juice
Splash of sour mix
1/2 cup crushed ice

Rim a margarita glass with red (food coloring) salt
Blend tequila, Gran Marnier, sour mix and lime juice
Pour margarita into margarita glass
Top the margarita with 1 oz. of Hpnotiq
Garnish with homemade or store-bought sparkler

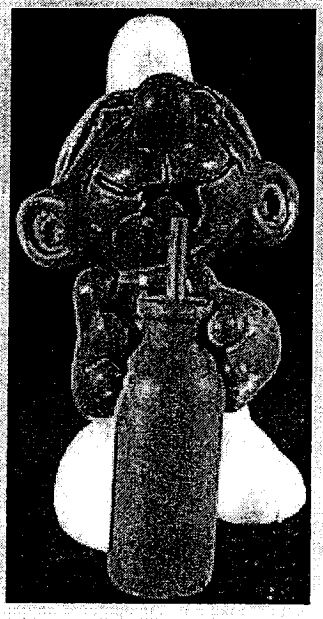
Smurfin' party



Apparently some southern California types are holding a big, invite-only, VIP, Smurf-themed party. It is part of the celebration in conjunction to the 50th anniversary of the Smurfs.

One of the event sponsors is Hpnotiq, a Smurf-colored liquor. Hpnotiq is a French-made cognac-vodka-fruit juice concoction. Apparently it's been really trendy among Gen X and Gen Y kids, as well as Hollywood types. I guess I'm a little out of the loop. I'm not a Hollywood type, but I am on the Gen X-Gen Y dividing line.

Since Smurfs like all things smurfy, I would expect Smurfs to drink Smurf-colored liquor. Do you think Smurfs are happy or angry drunks?

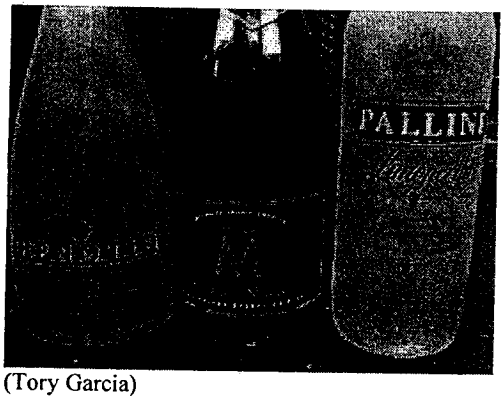
2 new cocktails for the holiday season



(Tory Garcia)

Click the play button on the video window to the right to see the story

As the first snowflakes fall in parts of Arizona and you warm up by the fireplace with family, you might consider trying a new holiday cocktail for any holiday soiree.

Whether you're celebrating New Years with the friends or toasting to the holidays with coworkers, the Tinsel Bellini and the Jack Frost Martini could help make gatherings a bit more special.

The Tinsel Bellini, a chic alternative to the New Year's champagne toast, and the Jack Frost Martini, a refreshing mix of citrus, lime juice and Hpnotiq's tropical flavors, are just two Hpnotiq cocktails perfect for keeping away the holiday blues and toasting to holiday, health and happiness all season long.

HPNOTIQ Tinsel Bellini
2 oz. HPNOTIQ
1 oz. Limoncello
1 oz. Champagne
Splash of lime juice
Rim the Champagne Flute with a light coat of sugar.
Pour chilled HPNOTIQ, Limoncello and Champagne into the champagne flute.

Add a splash of lime juice.

Jack Frost Martini
2 oz. HPNOTIQ
2 oz. super premium vodka
Splash of Cointreau
Splash of lime juice
Shake with ice, strain into a martini glass.

Time for 'change,' inaugural cocktail style

January 5, 2009 at 2:53 pm by William Dowd

The upcoming January 20 inauguration of President-elect Barack Obama and Vice President-elect Joseph Biden will usher in a new period in American governance.

What better time to come up with ways to comemmorate the event? Obama won the election while calling for change. In the drinks world, any event calls for change in the form of new concoctions, of course. After all, business is business.

So, here are a pair of drinks whipped up just for the occasion. They were created for the inaugural ball scheduled for the Mandarin Oriental hotel in Washington, DC, for the Hawaii delegation by Bridget Albert, mixologist and author.

"When I got the call from PAMA Pomegranate Liqueur to create an official cocktail for this monumental event, I was truly inspired," said Albert, the master mixologist at Southern Wine and Spirits and director of the Academy of Spirits and Fine Service in Illinois. "I want each Inaugural ball guest, and revelers around the globe, to experience the energy of the evening."

There is, by the way, no coincidence that the main ingredients in these drinks come from Heaven Hill Distilleries. They're paying the freight for the research and promotion.

THE AMERICAN DREAM

1 ounce PAMA Pomegranate Liqueur
1 ounce black cherry rum
1 ounce POM WONDERFUL pomegranate cherry juice
½ ounce fresh sour
Garnish: white fondant stars and blueberries on a cocktail pick

Cut mini stars out of white fondant. Using water, gently wet the back of each star and press into the inside of the cocktail glass. Let sit for 5 minutes. Fill mixing glass with all ingredients add ice to tin. Shake well and strain into star studded cocktail glass. Garnish with blueberries on a pick.

AIR FORCE ONE

2 ounces Hpnotiq
1 ounce citrus vodka
Juice from a lemon wedge
Lemon lime soda
Garnish: lemon spiral

Fill tall glass with all ingredients and add ice. Stir we
