I. INTRODUCTION

Opposer Perfect Memorials, LLC (“Perfect Memorials”) brings this motion seeking summary judgment in its favor on Count I of Perfect Memorials’ Notice of Opposition that the term “WEEPING ANGEL” is merely descriptive.

Applicant United Priority Distributors (“UPD”) sells funeral urns incorporating a statute titled “the Angel of Grief.” UPD admits that it uses the applied-for term “WEEPING ANGEL” in connection with its reproduction of “the Angel of Grief.” The Angel of Grief is commonly referred to as the “WEEPING ANGEL.” The Angel of Grief depicts an angel weeping over the grave of a fallen love. Internet searches for the Angel of Grief show that it is frequently referred to as the “WEEPING ANGEL.” E-commerce websites describe statues, posters, pictures, clothing and other products depicting the “Angel of Grief” as “WEEPING ANGEL.” Even when not specifically referring to the “Angel of Grief,” others use the term “weeping angel” to refer to depictions of angels who weep, just like in the “Angel of Grief.” Most tellingly, UPD itself uses the term “WEEPING ANGEL” to describe the “Angel of Grief.” Given the ordinary meaning of the term “WEEPING ANGEL,” how others refer to the “Angel of Grief” as a “WEEPING ANGEL,” and that UPD admits that the “Angel of Grief” is a depiction of a weeping angel, there is no dispute that the term “WEEPING ANGEL” used in connection with funeral urns incorporating the “Angel of Grief” immediately describes a quality or characteristic of the funerary urn. The applied-for “WEEPING ANGEL” mark is therefore merely descriptive.

UPD cannot show that the term “WEEPING ANGEL” has acquired secondary meaning. UPD does not own any prior registrations on the Principal Register of the mark WEEPING ANGEL. UPD has not had substantially exclusive or continuous use of the mark in commerce for five years, since it only adopted the mark in 2010. UPD lacks actual evidence of acquired distinctiveness.

UPD cannot rely on large scale expenditures on advertising as a basis for secondary meaning. First, UPD only uses the marks on its website, and there is no evidence of the extent of traffic that UPD's website gets. Because UPD's WEEPING ANGEL urn is just another item in its catalog, they have not expended sufficient resources into promoting the WEEPING ANGEL mark such that consumers recognize it as a source identifier. Second, UPD has not produced, and has refused to produce, any documents bearing on its advertising expenditures such that it could rely on this evidence to support a claim of secondary meaning.

UPD has no survey evidence that the mark has acquired secondary meaning. It has not conducted any surveys related to the mark whatsoever. Likewise, UPD has not identified any third party who has testified that they recognize WEEPING ANGEL as a source identifier. Simply put, there is no competent evidence that the purchasing public has come to recognize WEEPING ANGEL as a trademark, or anything other than a description of products incorporating the Angel of Grief. Therefore, the term "WEEPING ANGEL" is merely descriptive and lacks secondary meaning, and the Notice of Opposition should be upheld.

UPD may assert its affirmative defenses, which, as a matter of law, are inconsequential. Perfect Memorials and UPD are competitors. Perfect Memorials competes on price and quality with UPD with respect to their funeral urns. By attempting to register a clearly descriptive term as a trademark, UPD is attempting to garner an illegitimate advantage over Perfect Memorials in the marketplace by prohibiting Perfect Memorials from describing its products showing a "Weeping Angel" as "Weeping Angel Urns." This is not what the Trademark Laws are designed to do.

II. STATEMENT OF UNDISPUTED FACTS

1. Perfect Memorials is a limited liability company organized under the laws of Minnesota. [West Decl, ¶ 2].

2. Perfect Memorials has, for several years, sold, distributed and advertised in interstate commerce urns and other memorials used to celebrate and honor the deceased. [West Decl., ¶ 3].

3. Perfect Memorials has widely sold and distributed and advertised an urn incorporating the public domain sculpture of a weeping angel. [West Decl., ¶ 3, Ex. 1].

4. In 1894, Sculptor William Wetmore Story created a work of sculpture known as “The Angel of Grief” (hereinafter “Angel of Grief Sculpture”). [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 1].

5. The Angel of Grief Sculpture depicts a weeping angel as shown below.

[Nikolai Decl., Ex. 2].

6. The specimen submitted by UPD both copies and adapts the Angel of Grief Sculpture into a funeral urn as shown below.

[Nikolai Decl., Ex. 3; Ex. 4 at ¶ 11; Ex. 5 at ¶ 11.]

7. The ordinary meaning of the verb “weep” is to manifest grief. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 6 at p. 3605].

8. The ordinary meaning of “angel” is “a conventional representation of a celestial angel, figured with wings and usually a long robe.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 7 at p. 79].

9. The book “Reminiscences of William Wetmore Story -- The American Sculptor and Author” by Mary Phelps, copyright 1897, describes the Angel of Grief Sculpture as a representation of an angel “bitterly weeping over the dismantled altar of his life.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 8 at p. 287]. Blog articles on the Protestant Cemetery in Rome refer to the Angel of Grief Sculpture as “the Weeping Angel.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 9 at pp. 16-18; Ex. 10 at pp. 1-2].

10. Replicas of the Angel of Grief Sculpture located in the Friendship Cemetery in Columbus, Mississippi [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 11 at ¶¶ 1, 2], Green-Wood Cemetery in Brooklyn, New York [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 1 at p. 41], a cemetery in Union City, Ohio [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 12 at p. 1], the Grovehill Cemetery in Dallas, Texas [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 13 at p. 1] and the Hingham Cemetery in Massachusetts [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 14 at p. 1] have each been referred to as WEeping ANGEL.

11. A Tumblr site dedicated to the Angel of Grief Sculpture labels pictures of the Angel of Grief Sculpture as “the Weeping Angel” and tags photographs of the Angel of Grief Sculpture as “WEEPING ANGEL.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 15].

12. A garden on the campus of Stanford University has been referred to as the “Weeping Angel of Grief Garden”. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 16].

13. The e-commerce site www.redbubble.com sells photographs, stickers, canvas prints, and greeting cards of the Angel of Grief Sculpture using the name “WEEPING ANGEL” to describe the products. [Nikolai Decl., Exs. 17-20].

14. The web store etsy.com sells a photograph of Angel of Grief Sculpture entitled “Weeping Angel.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 21].

15. The e-commerce website www.ebay.com sells a number of products under the descriptive title “Weeping Angel” including statues, earrings, figurines, books, prints, photographs, Halloween costumes, urns, garden memorials, compact discs, post cards, plaques, cuff link sets and picture frames. [Nikolai Decl., Exs. 22-28]

16. The e-commerce website <http://www.google.com/shopping> sells a number of products under the descriptive title “Weeping Angel” including sculptures, urns, statues, Halloween costumes, shower curtains, prints, wall pediments, postcards, metal signs, paintings, coffee mugs, masks, t-shirts and pendant necklaces, among other items. [Nikolai Decl., Exs. 29-36].

17. Amazon.com offers a number of products described as “Weeping Angel” including garden memorials, pinback buttons, vinyl decals, wall decals, t-shirts, garden statues, wall pediments, posters, urns, audio cassettes, statues, canvas prints and oil paintings, among other items. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 37-52].

18. In addition, there are multiple items of merchandise described as “Weeping Angel” related to characters from the science fiction television show “Doctor Who.” [See, e.g. Nikolai Decl., Exs. 22 – 36]

19. UPD owns U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,305,353 for the mark ANGEL OF GRIEF funerary urns in International Class 20. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 53].

20. UPD describes its “ANGEL OF GRIEF[®]” urn as “an incredible depiction of the weeping angel monument sculpture made in 1894 by William Wetmore Story.” [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 54].

21. UPD has not conducted any surveys related to the WEEPING ANGEL mark. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 55 at p. 1; Ex. 57 at p. 1; Ex. 58 at p. 5]

22. UPD has not identified any witnesses to speak to the state of mind of relevant consumers. [Nikolai Decl., Ex. 57; Ex. 55 at pp 5-6; Ex. 56 at pp. 5-6; Ex. 58 at p. 6].

25. Applicant has not produced any information regarding the amount of sales or advertising. [Nikolai Decl., ¶ 32; Ex. 58 at p. 4; Ex. 59 at p. 3; Ex. 60 at p. 4].

III. STANDARD OF REVIEW

Summary judgment “should be rendered if the pleadings, the discovery and disclosure materials on file, and any affidavits show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); Trademark Trial and Appeal Board Manual of Procedure § 528.01, 2d Ed. (Mar. 2004). The movant bears the initial burden of demonstrating that no genuine issue of material fact exists. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). A factual dispute is genuine only if, based upon the evidence in the record, a reasonable fact finder could resolve the matter in favor of the nonmovant. Opryland USA, Inc. v. Great American Music Show Inc., 970 F.2d 847, 850, 23 USPQ2d 1471, 1472 (Fed. Cir. 1992). The Board need not try issues of fact when considering a motion for summary judgment; it need only determine whether there exist any genuine issues of material fact. Dyneer Corp. v. Automotive Prods. PLC, 37 USPQ 1251, 1254 (TTAB 1995). “When the moving party’s motion is supported by evidence sufficient to indicate that there is no genuine issue of material fact, and that the moving party is entitled to judgment, the burden shifts to the nonmoving party to demonstrate the existence of specific genuinely-disputed facts that must be resolved at trial.” Hurley Int’l LLC v. Paul Volta et al., 82 USPQ2d 1339, 1343 (TTAB 2007). “The nonmoving party may not rest on the mere allegations of its pleadings and assertions of counsel, but must designate specific portions of the record or produce additional evidence showing the existence of a genuine issue of material fact for trial.” Id. UPD therefore “must point to an evidentiary conflict created on the record at least by a counterstatement of facts set forth in detail in an affidavit by a knowledgeable affiant.” Octocom Sys. Inc. v. Houston Computer Servs. Inc., 918 F.2d 937, 16 USPQ2d 1783, 1786 (Fed. Cir. 1990). Failure to carry this burden justifies the entry of summary judgment. Celotex Corp. 477 U.S. at 322-24.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. Perfect Memorials Has Standing To Pursue This Opposition.

Where an opposer proves that it is engaged in the sale of goods of which the applied-for mark is descriptive, it has shown it has standing to challenge the registration. See Plyboo America Inc. v. Smith & Fong Co., 51 USPQ2d 1633 (TTAB 1999). Here, Perfect Memorials sells funerary urns, and Perfect Memorials uses the term “weeping angel” to describe the funerary urns it sells which show or incorporate the Angel of Grief Sculpture, commonly referred to as “Weeping Angel.” [West Ex. 1]. Perfect Memorials therefore has established, as a matter of law, its standing to oppose applicant’s mark.

B. The Term “Weeping Angel” Is Descriptive of Funerary Urns Copying the Angel of Grief Sculpture.

A term shall be refused registration as a trademark when it consists of a mark that “when used on or in connection with the goods of the applicant is merely descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them.” 15 U.S.C. § 1052(e)(2). A term is considered to be merely descriptive of goods and/or services if it immediately describes an ingredient, quality, characteristic, function, feature, purpose or use of the relevant goods. See In re Gyulay, 820 F.2d 1216, 3 USPQ2d 1009 (Fed. Cir. 1987); In re Bed & Breakfast Registry, 791 F.2d 157, 229 USPQ 818 (Fed. Cir. 1986); In re MetPath Inc., 223 USPQ 88 (TTAB 1984); and In re Bright-Crest, Ltd., 204 USPQ 591 (TTAB 1979). If so, the term may not be registered on the Principal Register, absent a showing of acquired distinctiveness. 15 U.S.C. §§1052(e)(1), 1052(f). It is not necessary that a term describe all the characteristics or features of the goods in order for it to be considered merely descriptive. It is sufficient if the term describes one significant attribute of the goods. In re Pennzoil Products Co., 20 USPQ2d 1735 (TTAB 1991).

Whether a term is merely descriptive is determined not in the abstract, but in relation to the goods or services for which registration is sought, the context in which it is being used on or in connection with those goods or services, and the possible significance that the term would have to the average purchaser of the goods or services because of the manner of its use. In re Bright-Crest, Ltd., 204 USPQ 591, 593 (TTAB 1979).

1. The Term “Weeping Angel” is Descriptive.

The term “WEEPING ANGEL” describes a funerary urn which looks like the public-domain Angel of Grief Sculpture because the term “WEEPING ANGEL” immediately describes a quality, characteristic, function, feature or purpose of the relevant goods. This is true for four reasons.

First, WEEPING ANGEL describes a funerary urn which looks like the Angel of Grief Sculpture because the ordinary meaning of words “weeping” and “angel” describe the Angel of Grief Sculpture. UPD seeks to register the mark WEEPING ANGEL for funerary urns. The specimen submitted by UPD both copies and adapts the Angel of Grief Sculpture into a funeral urn. Shown below is a side-by-side comparison of the original Angel of Grief Sculpture next to the photo from UPD’s specimen.

The ordinary meaning of “weeping” is to manifest grief. [Nikolai Ex. 6 at p. 3605]. An “angel” is “a conventional representation of a celestial angel, figured with wings and usually a long robe.” [Nikolai Ex. 7 at p. 79]. Thus, a “weeping angel” is an angel manifesting grief. The Angel of Grief Sculpture has been described as a representation of an angel “bitterly weeping over the broken alter of his life.” [Nikolai Ex. 8 at p. 287]. The ordinary meaning of a weeping angel describes the Angel of Grief Sculpture, and any product incorporating the Angel of Grief Sculpture is properly described as a “weeping angel.”

Second, WEEPING ANGEL is descriptive of the Angel of Grief Sculpture because others refer to the Angel of Grief Sculpture colloquially as the “weeping angel.” The original Angel of Grief Sculpture has been described as a “weeping angel” in an article on the Protestant Cemetery in Rome, Italy. [Nikolai Ex. 9 at pp. 16-18]. A replica of the Angel of Grief Sculpture in Friendship Cemetery in Columbus, Mississippi has been described as a “weeping angel.” [Nikolai Ex. 11 at ¶¶ 1 and 2]. A replica in the Grovehill Cemetery in Dallas, Texas is called the “Weeping Angel.” [Nikolai Ex. 13]. A replica of the Angel of Grief Sculpture also appears under the name “Weeping Angel” at the Hingham Cemetery in Massachusetts. [Nikolai Ex. 14]. A book on the cemeteries of New York City refers to a replica of the Angel of Grief Sculpture in Green-Wood Cemetery in Brooklyn, New York as “Weeping Angel.” [Nikolai Ex. 1 at p. 41]. A Tumblr website dedicated to the Angel of Grief Sculpture routinely refers to the Angel of Grief Sculpture as the Weeping Angel. [Nikolai Ex. 15]. There is a “Weeping Angel of Grief” garden on the campus of Stanford University. [Nikolai Ex. 16]. Thus, “Weeping Angel” is a common description of the Angel of Grief Sculpture.

Third, as used in commerce, the term “WEEPING ANGEL” is a common descriptor of products that either incorporate the Angel of Grief Sculpture or depict other images of angels expressing grief. The e-commerce website www.redbubble.com sells photographs, prints, stickers, and greeting cards using “WEEPING ANGEL” to describe each of the products which show either the Angel of Grief Sculpture or images of grieving angels. [Nikolai Exs. 17-20]. The e-commerce site etsy.com also offers a print of the Angel of Grief Sculpture and describes the Angel of Grief Sculpture as a “WEEPING ANGEL” sculpture. [Nikolai Ex. 21]. A search on the e-commerce website www.eBay.com using the term “WEEPING ANGEL” offers a variety of products. [Nikolai Exs. 22-28]. A search on <http://www.google.com/shopping> of the term “weeping angel” results in numerous hits for statues, posters, and the like incorporating images of either the Angel of Grief Sculpture or other designs showing a grieving angel. [Nikolai Exs. 29-36]. Likewise, a search of www.amazon.com also produces numerous weeping angel products. [Nikolai Exs. 37-52]. The popular science-fiction television show “Doctor Who” depicts supernatural characters known as “Weeping Angels” (so-called because they appear to be weeping angels), and has merchandised the characters. [E.g., Nikolai Exs. 22-36]. There is no disputing that “WEEPING ANGEL” is a common term used in commerce to describe products that incorporate either replicas the Angel of Grief Sculpture or other designs that depict a weeping angel.

Fourth, the term “WEEPING ANGEL” is descriptive of the Angel of Grief Sculpture because UPD itself has described the Angel of Grief Sculpture as a “WEEPING ANGEL.” UPD owns U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,305,353 for the mark ANGEL OF GRIEF also for funerary urns. [Nikolai Ex. 53]. On UPD’s website, it advertises the ANGEL OF GRIEF® funeral urns as “an incredible depiction of the weeping angel monument sculpture made in 1894 by William Wetmore Story.” [Nikolai Ex. 54]. UPD admits its “WEEPING ANGEL” urn is a copy of the Angel of Grief Sculpture. [Nikolai Ex. 4 at ¶ 11; Ex. 5 at ¶ 11]. Thus, UPD admits that “Weeping Angel” is a description of the Angel of Grief Sculpture.

2. The Term “WEEPING ANGEL” Has Not Acquired Secondary Meaning.

In addition to being merely descriptive, the mark WEEPING ANGEL is devoid of secondary meaning. “Distinctiveness is acquired by ‘substantially exclusive and continuous use’ of the mark in commerce.” In re Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corporation, 774 F.2d 1116, 227 USPQ 417, 424 n. 11 (Fed. Cir. 1985), citing Levi Strauss & Co. v. Genesco, Inc., 742 F.2d 1401, 222 USPQ 939, 942 (Fed. Cir. 1984). In order to establish acquired distinctiveness, applicant must show that the primary significance of the proposed mark in the minds of consumers is not the goods or services but the source of those goods and services. See In re Steelbuilding.com, 415 F.3d 1293, 75 USPQ2d 1420, 1422 (Fed. Cir. 2005); In re Ennco Display Systems Inc., 56 USPQ2d 1279 (TTAB 2000).

Acquired distinctiveness may be shown by direct or circumstantial evidence. Direct evidence includes testimony, declarations or surveys of consumers as to their state of mind. TMEP § 1206.06(c) and (d). Circumstantial evidence is evidence from which consumer association might be inferred, such as years of use, extensive amounts of sales and advertising, and any similar evidence showing wide exposure of the mark to consumers. TMEP § 1206.06(a) and (b).

There is no fixed rule for the amount of proof necessary to demonstrate acquired distinctiveness; however, the evidence required is in proportion to the degree of non-distinctiveness of the mark at issue. Yamaha Int. Corp. v. Hoshino Gakki Co. Ltd., 840 F.2d 1572, 6 USPQ2d 1001, 1008 (Fed. Cir. 1988). Even long periods of substantially exclusive use may not be sufficient to demonstrate acquired distinctiveness. Moreover, the burden is particularly heavy when that use has not been exclusive. In re Gibson Guitar Corp., 61 USPQ2d 1948, 1952 (TTAB 2001) (66 years of use not sufficient given similarity of configuration to other guitars). See also Flowers Industries Inc. v. Interstate Brands Corp., 5 USPQ2d 1580, 1588-89 (TTAB 1987) (“long and continuous use alone is insufficient to show secondary meaning where the use is not substantially exclusive”).

UPD has not produced any direct evidence of secondary meaning. UPD has not conducted any surveys related to the mark. [Nikolai Ex. 55 at p. 1]. UPD has not identified any witnesses in either its Initial Disclosures or in responses to Perfect Memorials’ Interrogatories of any witness who will speak to the state of mind of relevant consumers. [Nikolai Ex. 57; Ex. 58 at pp. 5-6]. Applicant has refused to produce information regarding the amount of sales or advertising, and the only advertising it has disclosed is its website. [Nikolai Ex. 58 at p. 4; Ex. 59 at p. 3; Ex. 60 at p. 4]. Given the extensive use of the term “WEEPING ANGEL” by others (i.e., those on the e-commerce sites redbubble.com, etsy.com, eBay.com and amazon.com) there is no question that UPD’s advertising is insufficient to show that the primary significance of the term “WEEPING ANGEL” in the minds of consumers is the source of the goods rather than describing funerary urns incorporating the Angel of Grief Sculpture.

C. Applicant’s Affirmative Defenses Must Fail as A Matter of Law.

UPD’s answer includes affirmative defenses of passing off, trademark infringement and unclean hands. First, to the extent that applicant is asserting as a defense that Perfect Memorials is guilty of unfair competition, the Board is not authorized to determine that issue. Person’s Co. v. Christman, 900 F.2d 1565, 14 USPQ2d 1477, 1481 (Fed. Cir. 1990) (Board cannot adjudicate unfair competition issues); Ross v. Analytical Technology Inc., 51 USPQ2d 1269, 1270 n.2 (TTAB 1999) (no jurisdiction over unfair competition claims); Hershey Foods Corp. v. Cerreta, 195 USPQ 246, 252 (TTAB 1977) (determination of whether opposer is guilty of unfair business practices is not within the province of the Board).

Second, the defense of unclean hands must be related to the opposer's claim or else it is not a viable defense. See Tony Lama Company, Inc. v. Anthony DiSefano, 206 U.S.P.Q. 176 (TTAB 1980). Misconduct unrelated to the claim in which it is asserted as a defense does not constitute unclean hands. VIP Foods, Inc. v. VIP Food Products, Inc., 200 USPQ 105 (TTAB 1978). Here there is no relation between Perfect Memorials' claim that the term WEEPING ANGEL is descriptive and that Perfect Memorials competes with UPD. In any event, to the extent that the phrase "WEEPING ANGEL" is descriptive of UPD's goods, and that UPD has not established that the mark has acquired secondary meaning, Perfect Memorials is competing fairly by selling its own WEEPING ANGEL funerary urns.

V. CONCLUSION

There is no question that the mark “WEEPING ANGEL” describes a funeral urn showing the image of a weeping angel. There is no evidence that the term “Weeping Angel” has acquired secondary meaning. None of UPD’s counterclaims relate to the issue of descriptiveness, nor can they be adjudicated by the Board. Therefore, Perfect Memorials respectfully requests that the Board grant summary judgment in Perfect Memorials’ favor, sustain the Opposition, and deny registration of the mark WEEPING ANGEL for funerary urns.

Perfect Memorials, LLC Opposer, v. United Priority Distributors Applicant	Opposition No.: 91209028 Serial No. 85/722,100
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------

Applicant’s Combined Opposition and Cross Motion for Summary Judgment

INTRODUCTION

Applicant United Priority Distributors brings this Combined Opposition and Cross Motion for Summary Judgment on the question of whether the trademark WEEPING ANGEL is merely descriptive of funerary urns. Opposer has not demonstrated that the phrase “weeping angel” has any specific significance in connection with funerary urns or that the consuming public would immediately understand the qualities or features of urns offered under the mark. Opposer has however attempted to direct Applicant’s consumers to its own website by selling nearly identical urns under an identical name and using misleading or fabricated consumer reviews to do so. Opposer can not demonstrate that it is using or needs to use WEEPING ANGEL in a truly descriptive manner.

FACTS

Applicant Susan Fraser has been in the business of selling memorial urns for 12 years and has created a number of original products. (Fraser Decl. ¶1). She has created and hosts podcast shows for aimed at funeral directors such as the “Funeral Radio” network and “Funeral Directors Chat.” (Fraser Decl. ¶ 2). Ms. Fraser began using the trademark WEEPING ANGEL on a new line of urns on July 25, 2010 and has sold urns under that trademark continuously since. The WEEPING ANGEL trademark was selected because at the time there were no other urns being sold under that name or anything similar. (Fraser Decl. ¶4). One of the urns sold under the WEEPING ANGEL trademark is shaped like an original interpretation of the “Angel of Grief” sculpture.

At the time Applicant began selling urns under the WEEPING ANGEL trademark, there were no commercially available urns modeled after the “Angel of Grief” sculpture. (Fraser Decl. ¶8). In addition to having never been used in connection with urns, the phrase “weeping angel” has no specific meaning or significance within Applicant’s business or trade. (Fraser Decl. ¶6). “Weeping Angel” does not describe any function, feature, or characteristic of urns. (Fraser Decl. ¶7). Even as to Applicant’s urns modeled after the “Angel of Grief” sculpture, a consumer would not immediately assume that WEEPING ANGEL describes the products sold by Applicant.

Approximately one year after Applicant began selling its WEEPING ANGEL brand urns, Opposer announced that it was releasing a “Weeping Angel” urn and that consumers could save “up to 71%” suggesting that identical goods were already offered elsewhere, presumably by applicant. (Godfread Decl. Ex. A). It appears that today, only uses of “Weeping Angel” in connection with urns relate to either Applicant or Opposer and that Opposer is also now advertising savings of 80% on urns. (Godfread Decl. Ex. B). Shortly after Opposer first offered its own WEEPING ANGEL brand urns, it already had a large number of reviews available on its website, many of which are dated May or June of 2011, thus predating the “unveiling” date of July 2011, suggesting that they are not legitimate consumer reviews. (Godfread Decl. Ex. C, compare unveiling in Ex. A). Some of Opposer’s urns offered under WEEPING ANGEL name also have an unusually large number of reviews, some as many as 1,011 compared to 22 for related similar products offered by Applicant, suggesting again that Opposer is gaming search results to obtain sales of its own products. (Godfread Decl. Ex. B). Opposer appears to be offering its goods in a way that is deliberately confusing to consumers and has in fact caused consumer confusion in at least one case where a consumer has mistaken Opposer’s goods for that of Applicant. (Fraser Decl. ¶11). Opposer admits that it intends to compete not only on price, but on “quality” suggesting that its goods may not be identical in quality to those sold by Applicant. (Opposer’s Motion at 2).

Applicant filed its application for WEEPING ANGEL in connection with funerary urns on September 6, 2012 and the examining attorney did not raise any grounds for refusal under Section 2(e).

Other than as described above, Applicant concedes the facts not in dispute as described by Opposer in its motion on pages 3-6, except that at ¶ 16 on page 5, Opposer suggests that urns are sold in a descriptive sense through Google, whereas that sole reference to urns in fact relates to Opposer's own use, not any third party use. Applicant is unaware of any use of "Weeping Angel" in connection with urns prior to its own adoption of the WEEPING ANGEL trademark in 2010.

ARGUMENT

I. Legal Standard for Summary Judgment

Summary judgment is an appropriate method of disposing of cases only where there are no genuine disputes as to material facts, thus leaving the case to be resolved as a matter of law. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). In deciding motions for summary judgment, the Board must follow the well-established principles that, in considering the propriety of summary judgment, all evidence must be viewed in a light favorable to the non-movant, and all justifiable inferences are to be drawn in the nonmovant's favor. The Board may not resolve disputes of material fact; it may only ascertain whether such disputes are present. See Lloyd's Food Products Inc. v. Eli's Inc., 987 F.2d 766, 25 USPQ2d 2027 (Fed. Cir. 1993); Opryland USA Inc. v. Great American Music Show Inc., 970 F.2d 847, 23 USPQ2d 1471 (Fed. Cir. 1992); Olde Tyme Foods Inc. v. Roundy's Inc., 961 F.2d 200, 22 USPQ2d 1542 (Fed. Cir. 1992).

A motion for summary judgment should be granted when "the pleadings, the discovery and disclosure materials on file, and any affidavits show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P.

56(c)). The party moving for summary judgment "bears the burden of demonstrating absence of all genuine issues of material fact." SRI Intern. v. Matsushita Elec. Corp. of America, 775 F.2d 1107, 1116, 227 U.S.P.Q. 557 (Fed. Cir. 1985). The moving party may meet this burden by demonstrating "that there is an absence of evidence to support the nonmoving party's case." Celotex, 477 U.S. at 325.

II. Legal Standard For Finding A Mark To Be Merely Descriptive

A descriptive mark is one that "forthwith conveys an immediate idea of the ingredients, qualities or characteristics of the goods." Abercrombie & Fitch Co. v. Hunting World, Inc., 189 U.S.P.Q. 769, 537 F.2d 4, 189 U.S.P.Q. 769 (2nd Cir. 1976). A term is suggestive "if it requires imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the nature of goods." Id. The category of "suggestive" marks was spawned by the felt need to accord protection to marks that were neither exactly descriptive on the one hand nor truly fanciful on the other. Id. The Trademark Board has adopted a three part test to determine whether a mark is descriptive: degree of imagination; competitors' use; and competitors' need. No Nonsense Fashions, Inc. v. Consolidated Foods Corp., 226 U.S.P.Q. 502 (TTAB 1985).

"The word 'merely' in the Act apparently means that if the mark clearly does not tell the potential customer only what the goods are, their function, characteristics, use or ingredients, then the mark is not 'merely descriptive.'" 2 J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition, §11.51 at 11-123 (4th ed. 2008). There is nothing about the phrase "weeping angel" that would immediately communicate to a consumer anything about an urn, what urns are made of, or any of the functions of urns. Even where applied to an urn shaped as Applicant's specimen, a consumer would not immediately know anything about the product, without the aid of imagination. Under the three part test, Applicant's mark is not merely descriptive.

a. Degree of Imagination

A mark is registerable on the Principal Register without a showing of acquired distinctiveness, if imagination, thought or perception is required to reach a conclusion on the nature of the goods or services. See In re Gyulay, 3 U.S.P.Q.2d 1009, 1009, 820 F.2d 1216 (Fed. Cir. 1987). Moreover, in order to be descriptive, the mark must immediately convey information as to the ingredients, qualities or characteristics of the goods with a "degree of particularity." Plus Products v. Medical Modalities Associates, Inc., 211 U.S.P.Q. 1199 (TTAB 1981). Upon seeing or hearing the mark, WEEPING ANGEL, an ordinary consumer would not immediately understand that it was referring to an urn. Even upon seeing the mark in connection with the goods, a consumer would have no reason to conclude anything about the products sold under that mark. A consumer who encounters Applicant's mark in connection with Applicant's goods may, with some imagination conclude that a weeping angel is being depicted, but because some degree of imagination is required, it is not merely descriptive.

In support of its motion, Opposer offers Internet evidence that a sculpture has been known as the "Angel of Grief" can also described as a "weeping angel." However, there would be no reason to conclude that an average consumer would be aware of the references found by Opposer on the Internet. It is quite possible to find just about anything on the Internet, but obscure references should not be given serious consideration as evidence of what consumers would understand. See In re Country Music Association Inc., 100 USPQ2d 1824, 1830 (TTAB 2011). “It is indeed remarkable to see the thoroughness with which NEXIS can regurgitate a placename casually mentioned in the news.” In re Societe Generale des Eaux Minerales de Vittel S.A., 824 F.2d 957, 3 USPQ2d 1450, 1451 (Fed. Cir. 1987).

Additionally, none of the example evidence in the numerous exhibits provided by Opposer use of the phrase “weeping angel” is in reference to the cited goods, namely “urns.” Of the hundreds of pages of screenshots offered as exhibits to Opposer’s complaint and motion, none have any reference to urns, outside of those showing either Applicant’s or Opposer’s products. As such, they carry no weight to demonstrate whether “weeping angel” can be said to be merely descriptive of urns. In fact, the absence of urns despite what appears to be a very thorough search indicates that WEEPING ANGEL is inherently distinctive when applied to urns, even those modeled after the Angel of Grief sculpture. Opposer has failed to demonstrate that any consumers would know or understand that “weeping angel” describes urns generally or Applicant’s urns specifically and therefore has failed to establish that the mark is not inherently distinctive.

The third party usage offered as evidence by Opposer does demonstrate that consumers would describe products like those offered by Applicant as a weeping angel.

b. Competitor’s Use

Applicant’s mark is not merely descriptive in part because at the time it adopted the mark, no other competitors had used any similar name. Where a word is frequently used in relation to products within an industry “the inference is warranted that it is not purely arbitrary; that it would be likely to be understood by purchasers as identifying or describing the merchandise itself, rather than the source thereof, and hence as having little or no trademark significance.” Shoe Corp. of America v. Juvenile Shoe Corp., 121 U.S.P.Q. 510, 512-513, 266 F.2d 793, (C.C.P.A 1959). Here, the opposite inference is warranted. No other businesses in the funerary industry were using the name “weeping angel” nor anything similar in connection with urns at the time applicant adopted the mark. (Fraser Decl. ¶ 4,5). Opposer itself only adopted the use of the name “Weeping Angel” one year after applicant. Opposer’s use and advertising suggested that it intended to use the name “Weeping Angel” as a trademark for itself, capitalizing the name. (Godfread Decl. Ex. A, B, C). Additionally, Opposer’s advertising makes direct reference to pricing by Applicant, deceptively suggesting to consumers that they could obtain Applicant’s goods at reduced prices. Opposer’s use does not suggest descriptive use, but rather infringing use. Because the name had no use by competition prior to Applicant’s adoption of the mark, the mark should be considered arbitrary, not merely descriptive. Opposer’s own attempts at palming off its goods as those of Applicant do not suggest that there was any use of the mark in the industry before it was adopted by Applicant.

c. Competitor’s Need

Opposer has not demonstrated any need to use the trademark to describe urns and therefore has not demonstrated any basis for a finding of mere descriptiveness under the third test. “The imagination test enquiry naturally leads into the competitors' need test:

‘The more imagination that is required to associate a mark with the product, the less likely the words used will be needed by competitors to describe their products.’” 2 J. Thomas McCarthy, McCarthy on Trademarks and Unfair Competition, § 11.68 at 11-150 (4th ed. 2008) quoting Union Carbide Corp. v. Ever-Ready, Inc., 188 U.S.P.Q. 623, 531 F.2d 366, (7th Cir. 1976). Opposer cannot demonstrate a need to use the name WEEPING ANGEL to describe funerary urns and in fact, there is sufficient evidence to conclude the name was chosen precisely because it was identical to Applicant’s trademark.

III. Sculpted Angel Design Would Itself Be Registerable As A Trademark

Though Applicant’s WEEPING ANGEL is a standard character mark, to the extent Opposer is arguing it describes features of Applicant’s products, those features that Opposer identifies could themselves be used to identify source. The product in question has a unique and easily recognizable shape that was unlike anything offered previously. While it is more difficult to establish trademark rights in a product design, product designs, including the shape of a product can be used as source indicators. In re The Procter & Gamble Co., 105 USPQ2d 1119 (TTAB 2012); In re Honeywell, Inc., 328 F.2d 925 (CCPA 1974). Because the urn itself is shaped like an angel, the shape offers no functional purpose it could in fact be used to identify source. This particular shape was not used by any others in the industry prior to applicant’s use and may be inherently distinctive, or at least distinctive upon continued use by applicant.

That one trademark is a “description” of another, does not address the legal issue in section 2(e). It is quite common for a logo and a name to be similar in meaning or for one to describe the other. See e.g. Reg. No. 4,037,333 (BIG GREEN EGG for use on “barbeque smoker and grill” those grills being shaped like a “big green egg.”) Here, applicant’s mark in no way describes any of the features of urns and consumers would not immediately sense what the characteristics of the product are upon seeing or hearing applicant’s trademark.

IV. Opposer’s Misconduct Is Directly Related to The Opposition Proceeding

Opposer alleges in its motion that Applicant’s unclean hands defense is unavailable because it does not relate to the opposition proceeding. This is patently untrue or at best an attempt to avoid the underlying competitive issue. Unclean hands is a viable defense where, as here, it directly relates to the opposer’s claims. See Tony Lama Company, Inc. v. Anthony DiSefano, 206 U.S.P.Q. 176 (TTAB 1980). Both Applicant and Opposer have sold urns and related products. It is not in dispute that Opposer began selling what is essentially a replica of Applicant’s product under the exact same name shortly after Applicant adopted the trademark WEEPING ANGEL. (Fraser Decl. ¶ 9). That Opposer is seeking freedom to impersonate Applicant is not an issue of free market competition. Opposer is in essence seeking to deceive consumers without restraint. Opposer has in fact succeeded in confusing some customers as to the source of WEEPING ANGEL urns. (Fraser Decl. ¶ 11). Additionally, the only descriptive uses of “weeping angel” in reference to urns that Opposer has found on the Internet seem to be uses by Opposer itself. Opposer has unclean hands because it intends to deliberately confuse consumers, rather than have the freedom to describe its own products.

CONCLUSION

The WEEPING ANGEL trademark is inherently distinctive when used in connection with urns. Opposer's reliance upon a lack of evidence of secondary meaning is misplaced as the WEEPING ANGEL trademark is inherently distinctive. United Priority Distributor's unclean hands affirmative defense should not be dismissed, except if dismissed as moot upon granting Applicant's cross motion.

Therefore, Applicant United Priority Distributors respectfully requests that the Board deny Opposer's motion for summary judgment and grant Applicant's cross motion as the undisputed facts lead only to the conclusion that WEEPING ANGEL is not merely descriptive of funerary urns.

Cassard Angel

40° 39' 09.18" N 73° 59' 45.61" W

Directly across Oak Avenue from Horace Greeley is the Cassard angel, which mourns over fallen members of the Cassard family. It's a copy of the Story angel in the Protestant Cemetery in Rome. The Story angel, known variously as the Angel of Grief and the Weeping Angel, was carved by expatriate American sculptor, poet, and art critic William Wetmore Story as a monument to his wife Emelyn Story, who died on January 7, 1895. The Story's home in Rome was a gathering place for American and English artists, musicians, and writers. The Angel of Grief was Story's final sculpture. He died in October 7, 1895, at age 78. Various incarnations of the Story angel dot cemeteries worldwide. The first Cassard to be laid to rest in the Cassard plot at Green-Wood was Aurelia Cassard, who died in December 1908. Presumably the angel was placed on the plot around the same time.

Henry Chadwick

Even though he never played on an organized team, Henry Chadwick is known as "The Father of Baseball." He was born in Exeter, England, to journalist James Chadwick and his wife, Theresa. As a youth, Henry played cricket and rounders. After the family moved to the United States in 1837 and settled in Brooklyn, he resumed his childhood activities, which included playing cricket. He was soon introduced to an American game that was similar to rounders and cricket, that game became known as base ball.

In 1844, Chadwick got a job as a reporter for the Long Island Star, thus began a long career in journalism. In the 1850s, he became a sports reporter for the New York Times, often covering cricket matches. At the time, baseball was in its infancy, but Chadwick was fascinated by it and began aggressively covering games and promoting baseball as an American sport. He wrote that as a reporter, he had the power to make baseball "a powerful lever... by which our people could be lifted into a position of more devotion to physical exercise and healthful out-door recreation than they had hitherto, as a people, been noted for."

Mr. Story never wrote a poem, an essay, or a dramatic piece without submitting it to his wife, and even if he did not agree with her opinion he yet knew that he could make no mistake in following it. As in literature, so in art, Mrs. Story's critical taste was a thing to be relied on. "My wife is my best critic," was Story's frequent remark. Intimate friends coming upon them unexpectedly, often found the sculptor writing or working away with his chisel, with his wife enthusiastically watching by his side. So much was Mrs. Story absorbed in her husband's various labors that when her physical powers failed—thus limiting her bodily efforts, though not her intellect—she grieved and became silent.

Mr. Story's last work in marble was a monument to his wife. It was begun the spring after her death, which occurred January 7, 1893, and at the suggestion of his family and friends, who saw in it the only means of rescuing him from the despair of his grief. It was a labor of love and inspiration. It represents the Angel of Grief bitterly weeping over the dismantled altar of his life.

Madame M—— of Philadelphia said, not long ago: "He and my sister lived the two happiest lives I know; he could not live without her, and that they are together now is my great comfort."

Coping with loss: Tips for yourself and others

August 31, 2012 | Category: Grief & Loss | Solutions Magazine

Angel of Grief / Weeping Angel by elycefeliz

Loss is an inevitable part of life and coping with it is always a painful. At times, it can be an excruciating experience. However, with the help of ourselves, family and friends, we can learn to cope more effectively.

Towards healing: Grief and mourning

Grief is how we express our response to loss. It is the personal emotional, physical and spiritual process we go through to heal pain. The causes of grief differ and may include from the loss of a spouse through divorce or the loss of a physical or intellectual ability.

The most profound grief of all is caused by the death of a loved one. This event leads to many different emotions that are both common and healthy: shock, disbelief, denial, anger, relief, hurt, despair, guilt, sadness, yearning, humiliation and confusion. It doesn't matter if the loss is expected or unexpected; it takes a toll on our physical, emotional and spiritual health. As Elizabeth Kubler-Ross and David Kessler state in their book On Grief and Grieving, "Grief always works." It is when we don't allow ourselves to grieve that we experience ill effects.

It may seem difficult to understand how allowing ourselves to experience the intense and unpleasant feelings of loss will ever help us heal. However, unless we allow ourselves and those around us to feel and experience the emotions, we may never fully complete the healing process. Successful grieving is what helps us re-establish our life. We never "get over" the loss of a loved one, but we can learn how to live with it and move forward with our lives.

Learning and understanding

Knowing what to do and how to react is not a natural ability. We need to learn the process just as we needed to learn to walk. Thinking back on your first experiences with loss as a child—whether it was a pet that died or perhaps a relative—you may gain some insight as to what you were taught about coping. Perhaps their passing was kept a "secret," or you were told to "be strong" or that "life goes on." The intent may have been to protect you from pain, but what you actually learned was how to avoid the whole subject. Although avoidance may work in the short-term, it never helps us to cope in the long run.

Strategies for coping

Coping with loss is not a simple process. As we grieve we also are missing the person and the void left in our life. Perhaps it is also the loss of a lifetime of shared memories and the hope for a future together. A bereavement can often lead to the resurfacing of old issues. While this may feel overwhelming, it is very common and provides another opportunity for us to find new ways to heal ourselves and complete the grieving process.

Helping you cope with loss

It can be difficult to think about how to help yourself at times like this. However, the following strategies are suggested by experts:

Know you will survive

Knowing that you will get past the overwhelming and excruciating pain of this situation is the first step. Once you begin to believe that you will manage, you will then be moving yourself forward.

Acknowledgement

The idea of simply recognizing that you need time and space to effectively grieve sounds like an easy step. In order to succeed with this strategy, however, you must first accept the need for the mourning process. Start by giving yourself permission to feel what you are feeling. If you feel sad and teary-eyed, allow yourself to cry. If you feel angry, let yourself shout out your anger. Experiencing and expressing your emotions are the first steps.

Put yourself first

It is important that you put your own needs first. Those around you may try to help by inviting you to social events because they think you shouldn't be alone. What you are going through takes energy, and if attending a social event would deplete your energy then you need to feel good about politely declining.

Write in a journal

Writing in a journal is an excellent way to help externalize and release your thoughts and feelings in a private place. You have control over both what and when you write. Your entries may be as short as one word that describes a thought or feeling. You may decide that you want to write a letter to your loved one or write something about all the wonderful memories you shared. The act of writing can provide a source of comfort.

Create memories

Consider making a collage of favourite photographs and displaying souvenirs collected over your lifetime. Placing different photos of your loved one around your home can help foster positive memories.

Honour your loved one

Honouring your loved one can take many forms. Consider naming charities or children after the deceased individual. You can also honour your loved one personally every day by choosing to emulate one of his or her attributes that you most admired. If your loved one was especially outgoing and you admired that quality, you may choose to honour him or her by pushing yourself to attend social activities that you would have otherwise declined. This not only keeps your memories alive but also contributes to the lives of those around you.

Permission to move on

Over time, you will be ready to resume old pastimes and engage in new interests. You will need to give yourself permission to move on with your life and begin to explore new interests and relationships. Moving on doesn't mean forgetting your loved one—it simply represents another stage in the healing process.

Helping others cope with a loss

It is often very difficult and painful to watch a good friend or family member suffering. You may feel utterly helpless about knowing what to do and how to help. Here are some suggestions for helping those around you.

Be available

Letting the bereaved individual know you are there for them is one of the greatest gifts you can offer. You can communicate your sincerity by calling and offering to help, especially in those first few days when they may be too overwhelmed to call you.

Ask how you can help

Taking the initiative and asking how you can help opens the door. It is easier to respond to the direct question “What do you need right now?” than to the more general question “Is there anything I can do for you?” Asking on a regular basis gives your loved one a chance to reconsider if they’ve already refused.

Practical assistance

Offering to do simple things such as grocery shopping, running errands, helping out with funeral arrangements and answering the telephone in the first few days can be a great help. In the weeks that follow, if you cannot be available to assist then you might offer to arrange for a personal support worker from a homecare service agency to help out with household tasks and provide some companionship for a few hours a week.

Listen

Assuring the individual that healing takes time and will happen provides much needed comfort, especially in the first few days and weeks. Listen with care and compassion. Sometimes just having a candid conversation and demonstrating that you are comfortable discussing the deceased individual can encourage someone to talk about their feelings and memories.

Be patient

It is difficult to sit by and watch anyone you care about experience the pain of a loss, but pushing them through the process really won’t help in the long run. Your patience should provide the space the bereaved individual needs to support him or her through the grieving process.

Avoid unsolicited advice

Offering unsolicited advice as to how an individual can feel better or get through the grieving process more quickly may be perceived as a lack of understanding by the individual. It is natural to want to try to remove the pain of loss, but the death of a loved one is not something that can be easily or quickly fixed—it takes patience, caring and time.

Watch for warning signs

It is common for individuals to feel depressed and confused in the first few weeks after a significant loss. However, if over the next couple of months there isn’t progress or if your loved one becomes more withdrawn, begins to neglect his or her personal hygiene or isn’t sleeping at night, it may be a sign of something more serious. In situations like these, you can help by encouraging the person to seek professional support.

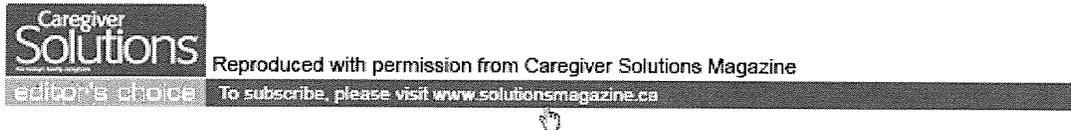

A learning process

Successfully coping with loss is a learning process. We all experience grief in our own personal way, but for the most part the process remains the same. Everyone needs the time, space and support to experience and express their own thoughts and feelings about the loss. It is the process of externalizing our thoughts and feelings that frees us from the pain of the loss and opens the door to a new life ahead.

Product Description

Bronze Grave Markers and Plaques

This absolutely stunning slant style headstone features a intricately detailed angel holding a bouquet of flowers and weeping over the front of the memorial. The three dimensional angel is carved on the front as well as the back of the monument. This lovely headstone can be ordered in any size, but is shown here measuring thirty inches left to right, eighteen inches from the top of the wing to the bottom. The bottom part of the slant measures 10 inches thick and where the angel is connected it measures 18 inches thick. The slant face measures approx 14 inches.

Home > All Categories > Society & Culture > Religion & Spirituality > Resolved Question

I want a weeping angel headstone for my brother, is this acceptable?

Everything has gone wrong with funeral arrangements for my brother. The cost of a funeral is so expensive, and my family did not have much money. The state is taking over the burial and they decide what will happen.

Now that the papers are signed officially here is how it will go:

No ceremony, no funeral, no flowers, and VERY SHORT notice. I am so disappointed about it all. I had high hopes for something honoring and beautiful.

Because the state is taking over, the money that was has been saved so far is going to go to his headstone. I asked our dad if he would pay for one and he said he would. I love the weeping angel headstones, I think they are so pretty, but when I told my dad what I wanted he said that weeping angles are usually for children who have passed away.

When I walk through a cemetery I always see lambs on children's graves. So is it true that weeping angels are for children?

He was 26 btw.

Well, what message are you trying to send? That your brother is in hell and the angels are weeping?

I would suggest a more comforting motif for your funerary angel. You know, nurturing, compassionate angel, as though about to take him to heaven?

If that is what you want, go for it.

Although it is a bit unusual, it is not disrespectful.

Product Description

Size: 18-inch x 14-inch

WallMonkeys uses premium materials & state-of-the-art production technologies. Our wall graphics apply in minutes and won't damage your paint or leave any residue behind. PLEASE double check the size of the image you are ordering prior to clicking the 'ADD TO CART' button. Our graphics are offered in a variety of sizes and prices.

- WallMonkeys are intended for indoor use only.
- Please do not wash or get the surface of your Wallmonkeys decal wet.
- We suggest at least two people to help apply decals 48 inches or larger.
- Your order will ship within 3 business days, often sooner. Some orders require the full 3 days to allow dark colors and inks to fully dry prior to shipping. Quality is worth waiting an extra day for!
- Our huge selection of decals are perfect for virtually any use: school projects, trade shows, teachers classrooms, colleges, nurseries, college dorms, event planners, and corporations of all size.

trickyruby's Portfolio

I hear the angels weeping.
I see their heads bowed low.
Their wings surround
Those broken-hearted,
So wounded by this FOE!

I see the angels huddled
Near a mother, in such pain,
Because the child
She searches for
May ne'er be found again.

I hear the brush of angel's wings,
So near they are to you.
GOD sent them there
To minister for these Trials you're going through.

▼PLEASE NOTE▼

Digital downloads are sent without watermarks and with improved image quality. These images are created in 300DPI (dots per inch) for the best quality printing.

Please note these are digital files NOT actual print outs - these are not items that will be shipped to you physically. The digital collage sheets will arrive in the format listed in description attached to an email or via a third party transfer site. I will send the sheets to the email address you provided to Etsy, unless you provide an alternative email address in the note box when buying.

All sheets will be sent within 48 hours, usually much sooner.

Purchase of these collage sheets entitles the buyer to personal use of these images, including use for crafts and artwork for resale. Purchase of this collage sheet does NOT entitle the buyer to:

1. Sell, give away, or distribute in any manner the raw images in either print or digital form. Examples include but are not limited to: Collage sheets, printed and pre-cut images, image downloads, image CDs, digital compilations, jewelry making kits, and scrapbooking kits.

2. Use the images in mass production. Each sheet you purchase may be used to make up to a total of 100 items to sell otherwise you need a license.

3. You may not use them to make stickers or new premade backgrounds to sell.

4. These are not to be uploaded to third party print sites for sale like Zazzle or Cafepress. I still retain copyright for all my materials, these are tools to create finished works of art.

Contact me with any questions and concerns before buying. Please read the descriptions of the item you are buying as it has important information concerning your purchase. Including how the file is delivered to you. If a file is zipped up I can not send the files individually. It is not possible due to size limitations in email and time.

By making this purchase you agree that you have read and understand the entire listing description and agree that you have read, understand, and will abide by the full Terms of Use/License Information and Agreement.

I love my weeping Angel. It is very pretty and a nice addition to my family memorial garden I created in my back yard. Found some really neat memorial rocks that you can personally engrave from Gifts For You and was able to create the perfect memorial garden. The only thing I wasn't expecting to buy is batteries since the Angel is suppose to be solar. Other than that I would recommend this product to others who want a nice piece in their memorial gardens.

★★★★☆ The wife and I feel in love with item

By Lance Lewis on June 1, 2013

Amazon Verified Purchase

Buyer beware the angel only lit for 2 days and that was that DEAD. I put a different battery in it to no avail, HOWEVER! I will say that Collections Etc is a Amazonian company I would definitely buy from again. I emailed them about the problem and they responded the next day. I received a replacement item in 3 days. Now that is service and the replacement is still going strong. Collections Etc gets a five star rating in my book and I would purchase from them again if for no other reason they stand behind the products they sell (WOW is that a novel concept in this day and age or what!)

By Shannon S. Mccollum on May 3, 2013

I purchased when my younger sister passed away from melenoma cancer in early April. As hard as it was, I put the angel in my memory garden and each night when it lights up, I feel like she's letting me know she's ok...it was perfect for my memory garden and I am certain it will be perfect for yours!

★★★★★ Wonderful memorial!

By Kevin Mac on October 23, 2013

Amazon Verified Purchase

Our little Pomeranian that we'd had for only 4 months went running away like she knew where she was going and before we could catch her she got run over by someone who didn't even slow down! I had to let my dear wife know. She was BROKEN! I told her she could buy anything to mark the grave. She found this beautiful angel! It's solar and really hit the spot!

Product Description

You'll receive one button measuring 2.25 inches. Each button comes exactly as pictured. All buttons are designed, printed and pressed at the Geek Details shop. Each button is hand pressed using a Tecre button maker. This means that there are no bumpy edges or bits of mylar sticking out around the edges. Made with water resistant and fade resistant ink. Put them on your bag, t-shirt, jacket, guitar strap, or anywhere else you can think of! Buttons are great party favors for your next gathering and also make great prizes/giveaways. They are wonderful gifts for everyone!

The Angel of Grief® Art Urn is an incredible depiction of the weeping angel monument sculpture made in 1894 by William Wetmore Story, an American poet and sculpture for his wife Evelyn. The inscription reads: "The bud was spread to show the rose our Savior smiled the bud was closed. Anon". His beautiful monument was placed in the Protestant Cemetery, in Rome.

This beautiful mourning angel leans on the urn, mourning the loss of the loved one within. The angel sculpture is made of resin and the urn is hand made in the USA of fine rich walnut.

This bottom loading urn is 200 cubic inches, large enough for an adult. It measures 6 1/2" across by 13 1/2" tall by 6 1/2" deep. An elegant choice for home display. We can laser engrave into the wood urn with four lines of engraving. Here is an example of what we can do:

UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE
TRADEMARK TRIAL AND APPEAL BOARD

Perfect Memorials, LLC Opposer, v. United Priority Distributors Applicant	Opposition No.: 91209028 Serial No. 85/722,100
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------

APPLICANT'S AMENDED ANSWERS TO OPPOSER'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Interrogatory No.1: If you or anyone on your behalf has conducted any survey or poll concerning matter relating to or impacting on any matter related to this opposition, then identify all people involved with conducting and documents related to said surveyor poll.

Answer No. 1: No surveys or polls were conducted by any third party. Susan Fraser and Rick Fraser for Applicant conducted online searches and determined that the WEEPING ANGEL trademark was not used in connection with funerary urns prior to Applicant's use. No documents were kept relating to any searched conducted by Susan Fraser or Rick Fraser.

Interrogatory No.2: List all products manufactured, distributed, advertised, offered for sale, or sold by Applicant under the WEEPING ANGEL trademark.

Answer No. 2: See online product catalog pages included in responses to document requests as well as product catalogs available online at: <unitedpriority.com>

Interrogatory No.3: For each product listed in response to the previous interrogatory, identify all intellectual property rights you contend you hold in each of said products.

Objection: Interrogatory No. 3 is not reasonably calculated to lead to discoverable evidence.

Answer No. 3: Without waiving any objections, in addition to the trademark at issue in this proceeding, the urn is an adaptation of a statute, the first to be done in Lucite, and the first done as an urn. Applicant as the author of the adaptations retains any copyrights in the adaptations.

Interrogatory No.4: For each of the intellectual property rights identified in response to the previous interrogatory, state all facts that support your contention that you hold such intellectual property rights.

Objection: Interrogatory No. 4 is not reasonably calculated to lead to discoverable evidence, is vague, and requests answers outside of the scope of discovery.

Answer No. 4: Without waving any objections, all works were created by United Priority Distributors or are works for hire. The designs for the Weeping Angel brand urns are based on the 1894 “Angel of Grief” sculpture, but are original adaptations. To that extent, United Priority Distributors retains any copyright that may exist in the particular works, though no applications are pending before the U.S. Copyright Office nor have any registrations been issued. The WEEPING ANGEL has been in use since July, 2010 and continues to be in use by United Priority Distributors. United Priority Distributors has been selling urns using the WEEPING ANGEL trademark nationwide as well as in Canada. See online product catalog pages included in responses to document requests. The WEEPING ANGEL trademark was not used by others when first used by United Priority Distributors. The WEEPING ANGEL trademark does not identify any quality, characteristic, function, feature, purpose, or use of funerary urns. Prior to United Priority Distributor's use, "weeping angel" was not used or rarely used in connection with cremation urns.

Interrogatory No.5: State all facts and identify each statement or document that you claim supports, or that refutes, the allegation that Opposer is attempting to profit from Applicant's success or is attempting to confuse the public. In answering this interrogatory, provide the name, address, and telephone number of all persons who you claim have been confused, deceived, or mistaken into believing that Opposer's product is affiliated connected,and/or associated with Applicant.

Answer No. 5: Perfect Memorials began making a series of products, some nearly identical to the WEEPING ANGEL brand urns sold by United Priority Distributors. A press release was issued by Perfect Memorial in August 2011, stating that it was unveiling its new "Weeping Angel" urns. "Weeping Angel" was capitalized throughout the press release as if the name were being used as a trademark. The press release also said that "Loved Ones Can Now Save up to 71% on Historic Replica Cremation Urns," indicating that "Weeping Angel" brand urns could be had at considerable savings. United Priority Distributors does not know the names or addresses of any people who may have been actually confused.

Perfect Memorials has also frequently employed the use of fake reviews both on its own website and on other websites such as Google and Amazon. Perfect Memorial's "Weeping Angel" urns were not sold until sometime after August 2011, but a review of the Perfect Memorial website shows reviews predating the release of the product which would appear to be written by a customer who had already purchased a product that was not yet available. See enclosed screen shot of an archived image of the Perfect Memorials website obtained through the Wayback Machine at <archive.org>.

Interrogatory No.6: State all facts and identify each statement or document that you claim supports, or that refutes, the allegation in Paragraph 4 of your Affirmative Defenses that Opposer has a long history of creating products that appear similar to that of Applicant that are similar or identical to those of Applicant in an attempt to palm off its own products as those of Applicant.

Answer No. 6: In addition to the Answer given to Interrogatory No. 5, Applicant believes that Perfect Memorials has used the names of United Priority Distributors products as Google Ad Words or other triggers for online advertising instead of generic or descriptive words for Perfect Memorials' competing products.

Interrogatory No.7: State all facts and identify each statement or document that you claim supports, or that refutes, that Applicant has goodwill in goods Applicant sells under the WEEPING ANGEL trademark.

Answer No. 7: See Answer No. 4, Application serial number 85/722,100, and current advertising at <https://unitedpriority.com/> and <http://www.inthelightturns.com/>. Furthermore, United Priority Distributors has been selling urns for over 10 years and makes significant effort to maintain relationships with customers, distributors, and funeral homes.

Interrogatory No.8: State all facts and identify each statement or document that you claims supports, or that refutes, that Opposer has made a false representation to the public to have the public believe that Opposer's goods are that of Applicant's. Specifically identify any statement to Opposer or its employees or agents that you allege misrepresented either its Weeping Angel urn, or your weeping angel urn.

Answer No. 8: Perfect Memorials uses the name "Weeping Angel" as product name though its product is best described as a replica of the Angel of Grief. There are any number of other ways to describe products offered by Pefect Memorials, but those products are frequently sold under names and descriptions to competing products sold, and offered first, by United Priority Distributors. The selection of the name "Weeping Angel" and the advertising described in Answer No. 5, demonstrate that Perfect Memorials intended to create the impression that it was selling goods identical to those sold by United Priority Distributors, when in fact its goods were of a significantly inferior quality.

Interrogatory No.9: State all facts and identify each statement or document that you claim support, or refutes, that there has been damage to the goodwill that Applicant has in the goods Applicant sells under the WEEPING ANGEL trademark, including loss or diversion of trade, or dilution of goodwill.

Answer No. 9: The very existence of sales of a competing product with an identical name or trademark is evidence of Discovery is ongoing and Applicant reserves the right to amend and supplement this answer. Opposer has advertised comparing its products and prices with Applicant's products. Opposer has used advertising keywords. See also previous answers. In addition, a review of Better Business Bureau complaints indicates that Perfect Memorials sells products that are seen as unsatisfactory in quality in the opinion of its customers. Frequent complaints appear to be that the quality of Perfect Memorial's products is less than advertised.

Interrogatory No. 10: State the name, address and occupation of the person or persons providing information used in answering these Interrogatories.

A Glimpse of the Protestant Cemetery in Rome

Posted on June 11, 2013 by inpursuitofadventureblog

The Protestant Cemetery is an out of the way spot in Rome located in the neighborhood of Testaccio. It is a really serene place to spend a few hours exploring. The cemetery holds the graves of several well known expats and it's located just within the Aurelian Walls, which allows you to get up close to ancient Roman walls and the pyramid tomb of Gaius Cestius. So here is just a little peak into the Protestant Cemetery in Rome.

So there is a little glimpse into the Protestant Cemetery in Rome. The Cemetery is very easy to get to as it's located just around the corner from the Testaccio Metro Stop and the neighborhood of Testaccio has great food as well so it's worth staying around the area!

More Angels and Demons in Glorious Rome

June 5, 2009 by Debi Lander

Part 9- The Finale

Although Mimi's virtual Angels & Demons blog tour is complete, I must add one more post. Here are some photos showing a few more angels and demons in Rome, and some of the city's other wondrous sights.

Storey grave in the Protestant Cemetery of Rome

Pyramid of Cestius in Rome

This weeping angel hugs a grave in the Protestant Cemetery of Rome . John Keats and Percy Bysshe Shelley are also buried there. The cemetery's main attraction is the pyramid of Caius Cestius. Cestius was a wealthy and eccentric magistrate, inspired by Egyptian relics. In 12 BC, he commissioned himself a tomb. According to the inscription, it was built in just 330 days using brick and marble.

Bocca della Verita, the Mouth of Truth

Bocca della Verita, the Mouth of Truth

This grotesque face is actually a medieval drain cover set into the portico of Santa Maria in Cosmedin, a beautiful 6th century church. Legend says the mouth will snap shut on the hands of liars. The two little boys waiting in line ahead of me were very nervous. They asked, "Does it take just a few fingers or your whole hand?"

Statue of Cardinal Rodriquez

Scala Santa, the Holy Staircase

The tomb of Cardinal Rodriquez in Santa Maria Maggiore, dates from 1299. The church is famous for superb mosaics and a gorgeous marble floor. Below, is the www.bylandersea.com/2009/06/more-angels-and-demons-in-glorious-rome/Scala Santa or Holy Staircase that Christ is said to have climbed to his trial. It was dismantled and brought to Rome by St Helena in the 4th century. The faithful climb to the top on bended knees.

Ruins at Largo Argentina

The remains of four temples, dated among the oldest in Rome, were discovered in the 1920's at the center of Largo Argentina. The site is now a cat sanctuary where scores of furry friends make their home.

Piazza del Campidoglio

Rooftop view of Rome & the Vatican

City Lights of Rome

Sunrise and sunset are spectacular times to shoot photos. The city comes alive at night (above) yielding a new perspective on ancient classics. Below is a view of the Tiber River before dawn.

Mist on the Tiber River before dawn, Rome

Roman Soldier at Colosseum

Exterior of Rome's Colosseum at dusk

For a fee you can have your photo taken with this Roman soldier at the Colosseum.

Rome's Trevi Fountain

The Trevi Fountain, made popular by Aubrey Hepburn in the movie Roman Holiday, draws a mob of tourists. They come and throw three coins, supposedly assuring their return. I'm just superstitious enough to believe it, so I always visit and toss my coins into the foaming fountain. Arrivederci Roma.

In Search of Weeping Angels

By goinhome on October 22nd, 2006

Cemeteries and graveyards can speak volumes about the history and traditions contained within a community. Memorials and gravestones can reveal much about a single person and his family as well. But, some markers and memorials simply represent stunning artworks to the objective observer. I'm often distracted by these sculptures as I wander through cemeteries in search for related ancestors. Some memorials, such as the Weeping Angel, can take my breath away.

The Weeping Angel, also known as the Angel of Grief, is an elusive and rare sculptural specimen. Tradition states that sculptor and poet William Wetmore Story created the first Angel seen above, which serves as the gravestone for the artist and his wife at the Protestant Cemetery in Rome. The Stanford Mausoleum at Stanford University contains a replica created in 1906. This copy supposedly replaces another replica created in 1901 that was destroyed in the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

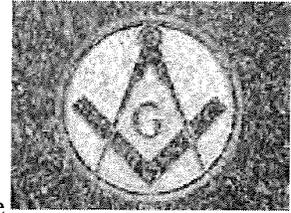

Other Weeping Angels have appeared in Brooklyn, New York, New Orleans, Indiana, Massachusetts, California, and St. Louis, Missouri. The angel is so exotic that recording artists Evanescence and Nightwish included her on their CD cover art (See notes at the end of this entry). Variations on the main theme have been seen as well. Einar Einarsson Kvaran captured the one shown here in York, Pennsylvania in 2006.

In my online search for the Weeping Angel and its variations, I came across several blogs written and maintained by genealogist and amateur photographer, Joe Beine. Beine's genealogical methodology speaks for itself in his Genealogy Roots Blog, but I challenge his status as an amateur photographer. The photographs that he uses to illustrate his photoblogs about cemetery symbols and the Eyes Wide Open Exhibit in Denver show great empathy as well as a keen eye for depth of field. His images supply great detail and clarity, attributes that would enhance any study on cemetery symbology.

Although the majority of Beine's research contained in his Cemeteries and Cemetery Research site is limited to the Denver, Colorado area, the symbols that he focuses upon represent national reach. For instance, the most common symbol for the Freemasons (or Masons) shows a compass and a square with a letter “G” that stands either for “geometry” or for “God.” This symbol can be found on gravestones from Maine to California. Additionally, Beine’s avocation as a genealogist helps to steer his photographic eye to include details such as the tradition of leaving a pebble or stone on the top of a tombstone. The pebble serves as a signal that someone has honored the deceased with a visit to the graveside.

Beine’s site, Fields of Peace, details his visit to the 2006 Eyes Wide Open exhibit in Denver. The significance behind these photos is that this “cemetery” is a temporary memorial to the soldiers and civilians who have died in the ongoing Iraq War. Like the AIDS Memorial Quilt, Eyes Wide Open grows with time and as it travels from city to city. But, unlike the rows of white stones that can numb the mind and blind the eye at Virginia’s Arlington National Cemetery, the variety of shoes and boots that are laid out in rows at the Eyes Wide Open exhibit are meant to startle the viewer into sober revelation.

The American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization, created the Eyes Wide Open memorial exhibit in 2004, and the temporary cemetery has traveled to over fifteen states since that time. Each pair of boots honors one U.S. military casualty, and a field of shoes and a Wall of Remembrance memorializes the Iraqis killed in the conflict. A multimedia display explores the history, cost and consequences of the war as well.

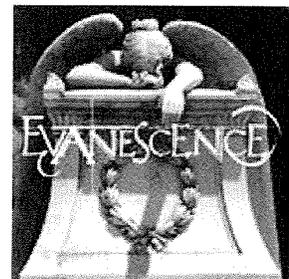

Although the Angel of Grief’s rarity and beauty seems to mitigate the tragedy that she embodies, the online search for her image that led to my discovery of the Iraqi War memorial seems ironic – or, at least poignant. On the other hand, since cemeteries and graveyards can speak volumes about the history and traditions contained within a community, the Eyes Wide Open exhibit merely mirrors one perspective on current world affairs. Most importantly, I’m grateful that the Weeping Angel led me to discover Joe Beine’s vibrant and living testaments about how Americans honor, remember, and memorialize their dead.

NOTES

Evanescence EP is the first EP from the rock band Evanescence. It was released by Amy Lee and Ben Moody at a concert in 1998 as an unmarked CD-R. Like their Sound Asleep EP, it is very rare, as only 100 copies were ever made. Now, that information is ironic if the reader considers that the angel on the cover is just as elusive. Evanescence is a rock/alternative/pop band that hails from Little Rock, Arkansas, USA.

Once is the fifth album by Nightwish, released June 7, 2004 by Nuclear Blast Records. During the first week of its release, Once entered the German, Finnish, Norwegian and Greek charts as number one, selling over 80,000 copies in Germany alone. In May, "Nemo" was the first single to be released from this album, followed by "Wish I Had an Angel" in September. Nightwish is a Finnish symphonic metal band.

Cemeteries of Dancing Rabbit Creek

Tracing Family History Through the Study of Cemeteries and Grave Stones

"The Angel of Grief" - Friendship Cemetery, Columbus, Mississippi

"A century later, Friendship's weeping angel still inspires," writes Jan Swoope in an article published in the Columbus (MS) Dispatch on May 19, 2009. A reprint of Ms. Swoope's article can be read here:

"She is one of the most photographed ladies in Columbus, her image gracing magazines, brochures and gallery walls. She captures imaginations and inspires artists. And, even after 118 years, the weeping angel of Friendship Cemetery still keeps a silent and poignant vigil over the grave of the Rev. Thomas Cox Teasdale, the ninth pastor of First Baptist Church in Columbus, who died in 1891, at the age of 83.

Photograph by Natalie Maynor

"The Angel of Grief," as the statuary is also known, epitomizes the beauty of the weathered, hand-carved monuments found in the cemetery. This marble creation came from the firm of J.L. Miller, in Quincy, Maine, a gift of the beloved pastor's congregation conveying, "When he died, even the angels wept."

Sharon Foster, of Columbus, and Carolyn Wright, a former Columbian now living in Macon, are among artists inspired by the city's resident angel. They join others, like Rene Sheridan and Robert "Uncle Bunky" Williams, who have found a muse in the celestial figure.

"It's all my mother's fault," smiles Foster, sorting through dozens of greeting cards she has made using images of her whimsical paintings as well as photographs she took of the angel. "She was the one who got me started; she loves cards and wanted me to make some."

Foster became intrigued with the Teasdale marker, taking over 300 photographs with a 35 mm camera over several months, capturing the lovely figure at different times of the day and in varying light.

"The way her body is placed displays so much emotion," the artist said. "You can know without words what she's feeling."

Using computer software, Foster has produced a series of quality greeting cards available at The Hitching Lot Farmers' Market and Table of Plenty. The images have become popular, especially as sympathy cards, and not only locally.

"I'm able to sell my cards online on several sites. It's been really interesting; I've met people from all over the world," she enthused.

Foster, who designed the 2008 Farmers' Market poster, also has an array of cards featuring whimsical animals and colorful flowers. Several benefit animal welfare groups, including the Columbus-Lowndes Humane Society. More of her greeting card art can be found at www.sharonfosterart.etsy.com.

Angel in clay

Carolyn Wright is skilled at painting portraits and still life, but the Macon woman doesn't mind getting her hands dirty either. Wright began working with polymer clay, natural woods and stone about eight years ago. Several of her pieces are on display at the Craftsmen's Guild of Mississippi sales gallery in Ridgeland.

Wright's first interpretation of the fabled angel grew out of personal loss. When her own brother passed away several years ago, she crafted a version of the grieving figure around an 8-inch-by-10-inch frame holding his photograph to give to her mother.

"That one was all white, and I put a red rose in her hand," recalled Wright. "My mother loved it."

The original article, complete with photos of Sharon Foster and Carolyn Wright, can be viewed here.

What a beautiful angel and monument! Janice, you have such a great eye and feel for a story. It's so good to have you share these things with us. The ladies doing the art are very good. I enjoyed looking at their links.

The Angel of Grief

In the 1890s, noted American sculptor, William Wetmore Story, created the Angel of Grief monument for the future grave site of he and his wife in Rome's Protestant Cemetery. A number of replicas of the Angel of Grief -- also referred to as the Weeping Angel -- can be seen around the country in various cemeteries. The above photo is of one such replica. This early 20th Century version commemorates the Cassard family and can be seen in Brooklyn's Green-Wood Cemetery. A black & white photo appears on page 73 of my Green-Wood book.

ABOUT ME

Alexandra Kathryn Mosca

I am the author of Green-Wood Cemetery (Arcadia Publishing, 2008) and Grave Undertakings (New Horizon Press, 2003). For the 14 years, I have been a regular contributor to American Cemetery & American Funeral Director Magazines. In that time, I have profiled a number of noted cemeteries, including Green-Wood, Oakland, Gate of Heaven, Salem Fields and Ferncliff. My interest in cemeteries began as an offshoot of my career as a funeral director. Having spent time in many cemeteries in that capacity, made me see that graveyards are so much more than a place to bury the dead. Given my dual career as a funeral director and writer --writing mostly about funeral and cemetery related subjects --it should come as no surprise that death permeates so much of my life. To that end, I will share cemetery photos from my collection, and others taken at Green-Wood Cemetery, which do not appear in my Green-Wood Cemetery book. In addition to the photographs, I will be posting my vast collection of links to articles dealing with death, funerals and cemeteries. My hope is that you will follow along with me as together we explore numerous aspects of this great unknown.

Angel of Grief

Perhaps you have seen a weeping angel—sometimes a nearly life-sized sculpture—on an earthly gravestone. It is most likely based on the sculpture “Angel of Grief” by William Wetmore Story (b. 1819, d. 1895), an American sculptor and poet. The original marks the graves of Story and his wife Emelyn at the Protestant cemetery in Rome, Italy.

I was surprised to come upon a full-sized weeping angel while searching for another grave at small country cemetery in Union County, Ohio. This angel weeps at the grave of Nancy K. Faulk (b. 1946, d. 2002). Nancy’s angel still holds the rose that Story’s angel has dropped.

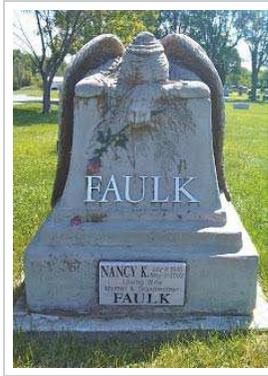

*Forgive, blest shade, the tributary tear,
That mourns thy exit from a world like this,
Forgive the wish that would have kept thee here,
And stayed thy progress to the seats of bliss.*

HISTORY

The Weeping Angel monument in the Hingham (Massachusetts) Cemetery was placed in 1896 by my great, great grandfather, John Sewall Hooper, for his beloved wife, Maria, a few years after her death. My grandfather, grandmother and several other Hooper ancestors are also resting nearby.

During my own times of personal difficulty I visit our Angel to meditate and ask for guidance. The thoughts and words that come to me each time I visit her strengthen my faith, inspire my spiritual growth and encourage me to share her with as many people as I can. As I started to share my story, I found that many other people had spent time with "Our Angel" and found her to be comforting in times of need.

I also became fascinated by the history of her sculptor, William Wetmore Story. Born in Salem, MA, in 1819, Story graduated from Harvard College and Harvard Law School and practiced law in Boston before listening to his own angel and turning to his true calling as an artist, sculptor, writer and poet.

Story was the son of the prominent Boston lawyer and Associate US Supreme Court Justice, Joseph Story, who is perhaps best remembered for presiding over the Amistad slave ship trial. William originally followed his father's path into law practice, but upon his father's death in 1845, William was asked by The Trustees of the Mount Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge, MA to create a memorial sculpture of his famous father. When he resisted due to his lack of formal training, they granted him time and money to take his young family to Italy where he could learn how to become a master sculptor. It would turn out to be a trip that would change his life dramatically. In Rome, he discovered his passion for sculpture and the fine arts and abandoned his law practice and Boston residence forever.

Perhaps best known for his marble sculpture of Cleopatra, on display in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, Story captured the ill-fated Egyptian queen despondent, fidgety and disheveled in the moment she came to grips with the fall of her empire. This was a radical departure for fine art sculpture which had always been more romantic and ideal, but it made him world famous for his use of emotion and psychological drama in sculpture and earned him praise as "the Michelangelo of his time."

Other William Wetmore Story works of note include memorial sculptures of Francis Scott Key in San Francisco, US Supreme Court Justice John Marshall in the US Supreme Court, Science Professor Joseph Henry outside the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, DC, Edward Everett on the Boston Common, philanthropist George Peabody in London, England and many others.

Upon the death of his dearly beloved wife, Emelyn, in 1895, he created the original weeping angel monument which he called, "The Angel of Grief Weeping at the Dismantled Altar of Life." It sits where she was laid to rest in the "Artist and Poets" cemetery in Rome. William Wetmore Story died later that same year. Our weeping angel monument is the final work of one of America's greatest sculptors.

Since then many other replicas have been created. most notably the weeping angel at Stanford

10/29/13

Our Weeping Angel Foundation - History

University in California which was commissioned by the founder's wife, Jane Stanford upon the death of her brother. She is more commonly known as "the Earthquake Angel" since she was severely damaged and subsequently rebuilt after the Great Quake of 1906 in San Francisco.

I refer to her as "Our Weeping Angel" because I want to share this beautiful image and the powerful healing, comfort and compassion she offers with everyone.

Please feel free to call or email me for more information, to share your angel stories or to discuss any of the artwork, poetry and imagery I have created. I also hope you will read about our healing work and consider becoming one of our Earth Angels.
