A.J. BOGGS & COMPANY

v.

INTRADO, INC.

Frances S. Wolfson, Interlocutory Attorney:

Petitioner's main trial brief, filed August 8, 2003, was not associated with the file for this case before August 29, 2003, the date the Board issued an order granting respondent's motions to quash four testimonial depositions; allowing respondent time to serve interrogatories; and resetting trial dates.¹

Inasmuch as petitioner's brief was filed prematurely, during the time allowed for filing briefs under the current schedule, petitioner should indicate whether it wishes the Board to consider this brief (in which case petitioner does not need to file another brief), or file a new brief that will serve as its main trial brief (in which case the brief filed on August 8, 2003 will not be considered).

Respondent's attorney has advised the Board that he did not receive copies of the Board's August 29, 2003 order or of the August 13, 2003 suspension order. The Board has determined that respondent's address was incorrectly recorded in the database. Accordingly, copies of these two Board orders are hereby sent to respondent's attorney at his correct address.

Trial dates, and the time respondent is allowed to serve interrogatories in compliance with the August 29, 2003 order, remain as set.
