It has been two and half years since the District Court issued its Judgment dated October 8, 2010, ordering the Trademark Office to cancel the subject registrations owned by Edge Games. (See Certified Copy of Judgment at Docket No. 85) And it has been more than a year since the Board stated that in the absence of a District Court Order setting aside that Judgment, the Board would cancel the subject registrations as originally ordered. (See Docket No. 67). Edge Games was allowed 20 days to seek and obtain such an Order. Id. Edge Games has not only been unsuccessful in obtaining such an Order (See Certified Copy of Order Granting Motion to Strike at Docket No. 85), it has filed numerous meritless documents with the Board attempting to rehash its rejected arguments regarding the alleged invalidity of the District Court Judgment. These filings are burdensome on the Board, costly to Respondents, and have caused unnecessary delay. Edge Games' latest filings, at Docket Nos 86-90, are yet another example of Edge Games' effort to distract and burden the Board with irrelevant, meritless submissions. Respondents EA Digital Illusions CE AB, Electronic Arts Inc, and Future Publishing Ltd. respectfully request the Board to bring closure to these proceedings, and promptly issue the cancellations as ordered. (See Docket No. 84)

Respectfully submitted,
