Colored Planet Connexion

Janet F. Satterthwaite
Venable LLP
P.O. Box 34385
Washington, DC 20043

Colored Planet has existed since 2005 as a virtual entity in several different forms and it is not as if we woke up last year and decided to smell the coffee. I had pursued this venture with all intentions of doing what is proper and transversely I expected to be treated with reciprocal respect. (See III.1., III.2.)

I filed the trademark application based upon information from my former partner, Trevin Griffin, that "Colored Planet Connexion Inc" was being processed and would be secured at or during the time of the submission of the application to USPTO. I have included correspondence dating back to 2005 between he and I. There are elements missing because we spoke continuously over the phone. There is sufficient correspondence to support my claim. (See I.1., I.2., I.3.) I had relied upon him to create the corporation because he has a son and I have two daughters and in the event something ominous would happen to us then our descendents would be amply protected.

My relationship with Trevin Griffin goes back many years through various business ventures. We had initially started with B2B marketing of corporate travel, eventually lead generation , leisure travel and we were looking forward to doing a Green Travel Event using Yale as a site.(See II.1, II.2.).

We were met with a quandary of misleading information because there were many companies touting their “greenness” but coming up short. Hence I began to investigate how one could create an internet entity which would help companies and non-profits in particular to understand what their stake should and could be in the coming years. Trevin Griffin would focus upon the corporate side(See IV.1., IV.2., IV.3., IV.4.) and I would focus upon the not for profits(See V.1., V.2., V.3., V.4.).

The .Eco Website Consulting is directed to a local audience here in New Haven and I have consistently used it to aid “not for profits” free of charge since November 2008. I did this in order to help those who needed help and did not have the funds to pay someone. I did it also to gain experience dealing with web sites and develop good customer relations. I have included a list of individuals whom you are welcomed to corroborate my statement. (See VI.1.)

Regarding ICANN and what their intentions are when based upon a narrow interpretation when there were only ten to twenty one different gTLDs. Time will tell in the future after all we are all entering territory we have never entertained: .ibm, .coke, .pepsi, .apple, .msn, .google. Just to mention a few.

I hope this illuminates the situation and clarifies any misconceptions which have erupted over time. In the event you have further questions. Please feel free to contact me.

Respectfully

Product InformationCatering & EventsCopy PaperFurniturePromotional ItemsOffice EquipmentOffice SuppliesToner CartridgesAdditional InformationFAQsGlossaryLinksSustainability StatementWhere do I Start?Why Purchase GreenContact UsYale Home

Are you planning a conference? ...bringing an invited guest? ...hosting an art opening? Whatever event it is you are planning, you should consider taking a few extra steps to minimize its environmental impact. More information and a checklist for planning your event is available here.

In response to the increase in "green" events being held at Yale, The Office of Sustainability, Recycling Department, Sustainable Food Project and Yale Catering have partnered to develop sustainable event standards. These standards are meant to be used as a guide for planning and holding events here on the Yale campus. While these standards are still in review, we thought you might still want a hand in making your event a little greener, though it may not be entirely sustainable. The following are some tips and tools for greening your event, and when the Yale University Sustainable Event Standards come out, we will post them here too.

Taking steps to green your event are really quite feasible and easy to do. Lucky for you Yale has a number of approved caterers who are willing to help you green your event.

The one we will give a small shout out to here is Eli's on Whitney, since they have worked so wonderfully with the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies to cater their graduation luncheons for 2006 and 2007 with minimal waste. Also consider having Yale Catering do your event. Staying in-house minimizes energy used during delivery. We also highly recommend inquiring about how to work with the nationally acclaimed Yale Sustainable Food Project. You can arrange a visit to our own organic farm for your event. Just contact Laura Hess, Program Coordinator for the Sustainable Food Project.

Contact Dee Tousey in Purchasing Services for suggestions of other green-friendly Yale-approved caterers.

Note that Yale is working on providing composting for events wishing to be sustainable. This is not yet underway, but we promise to post the information here when such a service becomes available.

Checklists for Minimal Waste Event Planning at Yale

FOOD/CATERING

- Table Presentation
 - Use cloth tablecloths and napkins if possible. If not, at least use paper ones that are made from recycled paper
 - Use sustainable table centerpieces – such as potted plants, local/pesticide free flowers (check with Yale sustainable food project for some!), cut tree branches, candles, or fruits that guests can take home and reuse.
 - No paper doilies
 - If food is going to be used as part of the food presentation (lettuce on serving plates, etc) all of that should be composted or left for the taking or reused.
 - If flowers will be used in presentation, please have local and pesticide free. We can compost them.

- Stuff to eat on / in
 - Request reusable dishes, cutlery, and glasses/ cups. If this is not possible, use biodegradable dishes, cutlery and glassware. See Yale's Green Purchasing Site for suggestions on vendors. (a little tip, though, biodegradable coffee cups don't always work very well –encourage people to bring their own travel mugs or use ones that are tried and true).
 - If you're having a buffet, consider using smaller than dinner sized plates for the food. This disincentivizes people from taking too much food which would then just go to waste.
 - Where to buy biodegradable dinnerware:
 - BioCorp, Inc. www.biocorpusa.com
 - Earth Shell <http://www.earthshell.com/index.cfm>

- Food

Gmail - Green Event Planning for Yale

- Ask caterers to use locally grown / produced foods and foods that are in season and organic.
 - Use fair trade coffee and teas
 - Serve foods that need not be individually packaged nor require utensils. Like fruits and vegetables or cheese and crackers.
 - If food is provided from local farms, ask that it is noted as such. Suggest small place cards be placed in front of the food indicating what it is, from what farm, and where the farm is located.
 - To save energy, think about serving food that does not require heating (oven) or cooling (freezer or refrigerator).
- Caterers
 - If hiring drop-off caterers, ask that food be packaged in reusable containers that they will come back and pick up after the event. This eliminates the need for individually packaged foods (like saran wrap around each sandwich)
 - If you hire caterers who will be present on site cooking and /or serving food, please ask that the staff comply with our efforts to make it a sustainable event. This means using the appropriate trash/recycling/composting receptacles provided to them.
 - Ask caterers to minimize use of disposable packaging, such as saran wrap and aluminum foil (If foil is clean, it can be recycled with the cans).
 - Ask caterers to stay away from the following:
 - individually wrapped condiments - use bowls and shakers that can be reused and people can serve themselves.
 - sugar/sugar alternative packets
 - salt/pepper packets
 - ketchup, mustard, mayo, etc packets
 - individual creamers (milk and creamer should be in original cartons on ice or in pitcher).
 - individually packaged lunches. These produce an immense amount of waste per person. Ask for platters or trays. This way people can only take what they need.
 - plastic coffee stirrers (use wooden ones which can be composted or silverware)
 - straws
 - toothpicks and
 - packets of plastic flatware

CHECKLIST FOR WASTE

- Get in touch with CJ May, Yale's Recycling Coordinator, and he will have workers set up and take down recycling, trash, and composting stations around the grounds of your event. Contact CJ at Cyril.may@yale.edu or 432-6852.
- Donate whatever excess food you can. To donate it to the Connecticut Food Bank, contact Carolyn Russell, Product Donation Coordinator, at (203) 469-5000, ext. 312, or crussell@ctfoodbank.org.
 - If you cannot donate it, leave it out in a central Yale location, where hungry students will happily come and munch on the leftovers.

Be sure to check with food service officials for guidelines before donating any potentially edible food. Some food should not be given away if it has been sitting out for a period of time. You don't want to make anyone sick from your good intentions.

PROMOTIONAL MATERIALS

- Use electronic communication for invitations and confirmations. Let this communication point people to programs they can print if they need to do so.
- Consider not providing programs to each attendee, but rather posting a few in central locations
- Provide paper recycling bins in strategic locations for the programs and other paper that you do provide for the guests.
- Make sure whatever you do print is printed on Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) certified recycled paper with soy-based ink if possible. You can contact Yale RIS (432-6560), Tyco Printing (562-COPY) to find out if they can work with you on these requests.
- Make sure the print on both sides all of your materials.

PROMOTIONAL PRODUCTS

- Consider giving away items that attendees can use for the rest of the conference, such as travel mugs or tote bags. Check the GIVEAWAYS page on our Green Purchasing Website for links to great companies providing green promotional items.

BUY LOCAL BEER AND WINE

- Locally brewed beer from Thomas Hooker Brewing Company (Hartford, CT): <http://www.troutbrookbeer.com/index.html>

Gmail - Green Event Planning for Yale

- Locally brewed beer from New England Brewing Company (Woodbridge, CT): (203)387-2222 , <http://www.newenglandbrewing.com/>
- Visit the wineries listing on the Connecticut Wine Train website (<http://www.ctwine.com/wineries.html>) for the most current information from local wineries!

OFFSET YOUR EMISSIONS

- So you want to purchase carbon credits but don't know who to buy from? Here are recommendations from Tufts Climate Initiative and the Stockholm Environmental Institute with explanations - this is a good guide to use. Previous events at Yale have successfully offset their emissions with Native Energy, one of their recommended companies.

Colored Planet Connexion Trade Show

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

I'm writing to invite you to attend the Colored Planet Connexion Trade Show, an extraordinary show dedicated to ecological designed products and services to be held at Yale University Banquet Hall in

New Haven CT.

Over the past few years, a growing number of companies have begun integrating environmental thinking into their products and services. This isn't simply about "saving the earth," though such improvement typically creates significant environmental improvements. It's about creating better products more efficiently that attract the fast-growing demands by both consumers and business buyers for goods that have lower operating costs, few toxic materials, and a better environmental profile.

I hope you'll join me and some of your colleagues and future Green Partner at Colored Planet Connexions. Don't delay. Signing up now not only means you'll ensure your spot at this unique event. The time is short. I encourage you to register today for Colored Planet Connexion Trade Show. I'll look forward to seeing you in Yale University.

Warm Regards,

At Greener by Design, you'll hear from some of the leaders –Clorox, Dupont, Nike, Proctor & Gamble, Xerox, Wal-Mart, and many others – and learn how and why they're succeeding in the growing green economy. You'll also hear from smaller, entrepreneurial companies and leading designers.

But this isn't just a talking-heads event. You'll also receive hands-on training from experts and participate in smaller consultation sessions – something we call Green Gurus at Play (TM). I promise that you'll leave with a stronger understanding of the green marketplace – and how you can prosper in it.

I hope you'll join me and hundreds of your colleagues at Greener by Design. But don't delay. Signing up now not only means you'll ensure your spot at this unique event – you'll also get first pick at the Green Guru of our choice.

Seating is limited – and the time is short. I encourage you to register today for Greener by Design. I'll look forward to seeing you in Alexandria!

Comparison of Business Entities: Sole Proprietorship, Partnership, Corporation, LLC

Comparison of Business Entities: Sole Proprietorship, Partnership, Corporation, LLC

Most companies have a tough time figuring out the right type of business entity for their business. Partnership? Corporation? LLC? Following is a brief overview of the different entity types along with some basic advice. (For those who like to cut to the chase, refer to the "Rules of Thumb" at the bottom of this post.)

Sole Proprietorship

A sole proprietorship is the simplest business entity to form. No paperwork needs to be filed- a sole proprietorship generally comes into being when an individual begins conducting a new business (unless you form another legal entity, such as a corporation or LLC). The business may be conducted under an assumed name, which is commonly referred to as a DBA ("doing business as"). Note: there can be only one owner of a sole proprietorship (any more and you'll need to form a partnership, corporation or LLC).

General Partnership

A partnership is a business with two or more owners that has not formed another type of entity (i.e. corporation or LLC). No paperwork needs to be filed to create a partnership, although drafting a partnership agreement at the outset is recommended. There are two types of partnerships: general partnerships and limited partnerships. Typically speaking, general partnerships are relatively simple to set up and run. Income and expenses pass through to partners and all partners are treated equally. The main drawback of partnerships is that the partners bear personal liability for the debts and obligations of the partnership. As a result, partnerships are not suitable for businesses that engage in inherently risky activities (construction, machinery, food service, environmental risks, etc.).

Limited partnership

Limited partnerships are more complex to create and maintain than general partnerships. There are two types of partners in a limited partnership: the general partner (who controls day-to-day operations and is liable for business debts) and limited partners (who are not responsible for business debts or claims). The most common example of a limited partnership is a real estate partnership in which one individual (the general partner) solicits investments from other individuals (the limited partners) in order to purchase property. The general partner then manages the business while the limited partners serve as passive investors. Limited partnerships generally involve the preparation of a written partnership agreement, which can be complex because some partners may be treated differently than others. In particular, limited partnerships provide the ability to allocate income/gains/losses/etc. differently among different partners (called "special allocations").

C Corporation

A corporation is a business entity that carries its own legal status, separate and distinct from its owners. As a result, the primary advantage of corporations provide owners with limited liability against business claims (often referred to as the "corporate shield"). There are two types of corporations: C corporations (often called "regular" corporations) and S corporations. The primary disadvantage of C corporations is what's known as double taxation: profits are taxed first at corporate tax rates (around 35% for federal and 9% for California) and then again at the individual level (i.e. when owners receive profits from the corporation in the form of dividends, that income is fully taxable on their personal tax return- hence, double taxation). C corporations are formed by filing articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State.

S Corporation

An S corporation is a regular corporation that has special tax status (under Subchapter S of the IRS code- hence the name). The main advantage of S corporations is that they do not pay federal income tax. Instead, income and/or losses from S corporations pass through to shareholders in the same manner as partnerships (that's why partnerships and S corporations are both referred to as "pass-through entities."). In other words, S corporations avoid double taxation. Note: S corporations have certain restrictions that do not apply to C corporations (i.e. maximum of 100 shareholders, all shareholders must be U.S. citizens, and only one class of stock is allowed). S corporations are formed the same way as C corporations- by filing articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State. Important note: to elect S corporation status, you must file Form 2553 with the IRS within approximately two months of your incorporation date- check with your lawyer or CPA for the details.

LLC (Limited Liability Company)

Over the past few years, LLCs have replaced S corporations as the most popular form of business organization for new companies. The reason? LLCs combine the best attributes of corporations and partnerships: limited liability, pass-through taxation, and flexibility in allocating profits and losses. Furthermore, LLCs aren't subject to many of the same restrictions as S corporations. The biggest drawback of LLCs is that their legal treatment varies by state, making them a questionable choice for businesses that operate (or plan to operate) in multiple states. Much like limited partnerships, LLCs are formed by filing Articles of Organization with the state and governed by an operating agreement that looks a lot like a partnership agreement.

LLP (Limited Liability Partnership)

LLPs are a special type of partnership designed to provide individual partners with protection against malpractice by other partners in the business. LLPs are primarily designed for professions such as doctors, lawyers and accountants. As a result, they're not really applicable to anybody else.

Rules of Thumb

- 1) Legal protection. No doubt about it- the need for limited liability is the single most important factor in choosing a business entity for most companies. Rule of thumb: businesses that engage in risky activities should be conducted through a limited liability entity- a corporation, LLC or (to a much lesser extent) limited partnership.
- 2) Tax issues. When it comes to taxes, sole proprietorships, partnerships and LLCs come out about even (they're all pass-through entities). As far as corporations are concerned, S corporations have a distinct advantage over C corporations because they avoid double taxation. Rule of thumb: S corporations are the preferred choice for most smaller companies (in particular, start-ups that expect to lose money for the first few years- because the losses can then be passed through to shareholders' personal tax returns).
- 3) Cost and administration. Sole proprietorships and partnerships are the easiest to form and least expensive to maintain. Corporations and LLCs are almost always more expensive to create and difficult to maintain. Rule of thumb: if your business does not need limited liability protection and you want to "keep it simple," consider sticking with a sole proprietorship or partnership.
- 4) If you're considering forming an S corporation: take a look at an LLC instead (for all of the advantages mentioned above).
- 5) When to choose an S corporation over an LLC: if your company plans to issue stock or stock options, or if your company plans to operate in multiple states.
- 6) When to choose a C corporation over an S corporation: if the corporation has more than 100 shareholders, has shareholders who are not U.S. citizens, or intends to file a public offering in the future.
- 7) Be wary of changing from one entity type to another. A lot of people think they can simply convert to a different entity in the future. While it is possible to do so, it's never easy and can cause considerable headaches. In particular, trying to convert a C corporation or S corporation to an LLC can trigger some very unpleasant tax consequences.
- 8) Last but not least: never put appreciating assets (such as real estate or liquid investments) into a C corporation. When you sell them, you'll pay double taxes. Go with a partnership instead.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF SERVICES RENDERED

Ad: Trevin Griffin

In 2008 we had an agreement that I would take responsibility for the trademark for .eco and you would take responsibility for incorporation of Colored Planet Connexion Inc.

I had repeatedly asked you on the development of the incorporation process as I kept you informed on what was transpiring with the .eco and USPTO on my side.

I was continually met with the prognosis that any day now that the paperwork should be forthcoming. I finally asked for the contact information so that I could contact the firm itself and then you made it sound as if it was a bogus outfit. You made it quite plain to me that you would attempt to get incorporation papers through another firm. That also never materialized.

.ECO meanwhile was constantly progressing.

Once I procured the .eco trademark and proceeded to take legal action against other entities using the .eco trademark and they responded. I asked you for the correspondence between you and the firms you had contacted to incorporate. Twice in November I asked for those correspondence and I was met with; The correspondence would be forthcoming. I am still waiting to no avail.

Acknowledgement of Services rendered in the incorporation of Colored Planet Connexion.

I wish to thank you for all of your assistance in making this a reality. It is with deep regret that I no longer need your services and wish you all of the best in your future endeavors.

Letter of Intent

between

- forthwith also referred to as KS

represented by its duly appointed officer
Alexander Siffrin, CEO

and

Mr. Moses Boone
Colored Planet

40 Stimson Rd
New Haven, Ct 06511
United States

- forthwith also referred to as MB

- both parties together also referred to as:
„parties“, „both parties“ or „the parties“ agree to the following:

§ 1 Preliminary remarks and goals of this agreement

KS is in the business of registering gTLD and ccTLD domain names for customers and resellers around the world. KS has developed a blank label registry system that allows the management of all technical aspects of operating a TLD and has previously operated the .CD ccTLD successfully. KS is currently in negotiations with various parties that want to use the system provided by KS to set up their own registry system. MB holds the USPTO Reg. No. 3,716,170 trademark for .eco in Int. cl. 42, registered Nov. 24, 2009 and intends to apply for the delegation of the .eco domain name once ICANN allows applications for new TLDs in the upcoming nGTLT application process. MB intends to employ KS as technical operator of the TLD for the delegation period.

In the following paragraphs both parties will agree upon the start of negotiations between the parties. Both parties agree upon the need for quick negotiations in order to be able to apply for management of the .eco TLD upon the official announcement of the opening of the application process by ICANN.

§ 2 Relation to third parties :

The parties mutually affirm that any statements made by the parties in this Letter of Intent are to be considered to be non-binding in relation to such obligations and contractual relationships with third parties, as are in full effect at the time of the signing of this agreement. Both parties will disclose a list of such obligations and contractual relationship and hereby reaffirm that there are no other obligations preventing them from reaching the goals of this Letter of Intent. The parties declare that they have not filed for bankruptcy in the past 5 years. The parties shall not be considered to be bound to come to an agreement as projected by this Letter of Intent.

§ 3 Good-Will:

Both parties declare that they are in mutual good faith and that they are willing and able, to the best of their knowledge and ability, to perform all necessary and reasonable actions that are needed to reach the goals set by this Letter of Intent. This specifically includes, but is not limited to, the exchange of documents and information that may be considered proprietary or confidential.

§ 4 Term:

This Letter of Agreement is to be considered effective immediately upon signature by both parties. The parties agree that this Letter of Intent shall eventually be superseded by proper contracts and agreements between the parties, as soon as possible, at the latest by December 31, 2010. Should no proper agreement for the technical management of the .eco TLD be reached by December 31, 2010, both parties shall consult on how to proceed with the goal of providing technical management of .eco TLD.

§ 5 General Provision:

This Letter of Intent supersedes all previous oral and written agreements between the parties with regards to goals and subjects to which it pertains. All alterations or additions to this Letter of Intent require the express and written agreement from both parties.

The parties agree that the previously signed Non-Disclosure Agreement shall remain effective and in full force and that no details about this and subsequent agreements shall be communicated without the other parties approval.

Should any one or more provisions set forth in this Letter of Intent prove to be void, non-binding or inapplicable by law or decision of a competent court, the remainder of the provisions in this Letter of Agreement shall remain in full force and binding to either party. The parties agree to immediately replace such provision or provisions by a valid clause that will most closely resemble the original intent of the parties. The same holds true for such omissions as can be considered unintended by the parties at the time of signing.

§ 6 Publicity:

Both parties agree that the announcement of their business cooperation for .ECO will generate interest by third parties in both parties and their products. Both parties therefore commit to make no announcements to the press or other third parties without the other parties explicit written approval. The parties agree that they will coordinate the timing and content of the initial and subsequent press releases. Both parties shall have the right to review all written statements prior to publication.

§ 7 Business Relationship:

The ownership in the .eco TLD registry shall be vested in MB and his potential business partners. KS shall take the position of an independent contractor, offering the service of the technical operation of the registry to industry standards.

§ 8 Compensation:

The fees charged by KS to MB will depend on the requested registry setup and additional setup costs. The final costs are to be negotiated in the subsequent agreement.

§ 9 Exclusivity:

Both parties agree to keep their business relations exclusive. KS shall not offer registry services to other applicants for the TLD string .eco. MB shall not conduct separate negotiations with other registry service providers, unless both parties declare their negotiations to come to an agreement as failed. This clause is considered binding by both parties.

§ 10 General Division of Tasks:

Day to day management of the registry, accreditation of registrars and customer support shall be the responsibility MB. KS shall provide technical assistance and support to MB. KS is looking forward to working with MB in determining these specific needs.

§ 11 Further tasks:

Both parties are willing to enact any preliminary actions necessary to come to an agreement. They will supply all necessary information to the parties.

Upon signature of this Letter of Intent, MB will use all commercially viable efforts to apply for the delegation for the .ECO gTLD by ICANN. These required efforts will be detailed in the final applicants guidebook to be published by ICANN. KS will support MB in the application process by supplying the necessary technical documentation. Through a number of distinguished and experienced partners, KS is able to support MB in all other aspects of the application process, including the preparation of the final application.

Upon delegation of the registry function. KS will work with MB to implement registry policies into the existing system. If permitted by ICANN, KS will also offer .eco domains to its customers and vast reseller network as direct registrar (pending contractual agreement with Colored Planet Connexion).

§ 12 Arbitration:

All disputes arising from this Letter of Intent between the parties shall be settled out of court by the a third party arbitrator agreeable to both parties.
