Affidavit of Ownership

State of Wisconsin
 Milwaukee County

I Albert Patterson, residing 3840 n Sherman Blvd, Milwaukee WI, 53202, being of legal age, depose and say that:

Description of Property

I am presently the owner of the following:

- Reg. no. 1857015
- Reg. no. 3,051,928
- First use of World Wrestling Association (WWA) 06/19/1978

Ownership

I acquired ownership of the above property in 1978.

Memorandum

I albert Patterson am seeking restitution. The unlawful usage of my marks has gone on for well over 30 years, and I am seeking a recovery of $40 million. This number may seem astronomical, but the defendant has made just as much by using my marks, and with the launch of their network in 2014 they are expected to make more. I will not be privy to them using my mark on their network without compensation.

New Findings

The intangible "things" covered by copyright are simply not scarce, in this sense. An idea or pattern of words, for example, can be copied by others an infinite amount of times, without "taking" the idea from its originator. Unlike tangible property, several persons can use the idea at the same time, independently. If you copy my novel, I still "have" the novel, and you have it, now, too. Ideas are not scarce and are not property. As Thomas Jefferson, himself an inventor and the United States' first Patent Examiner, wrote, "He who receives an idea from me, receives instruction himself without lessening mine; as he who lights his taper at mine, receives light without darkening me." For this reason, copyrightable works should not be viewed as property, and copyrights should not be granted.

See Julio H. Cole, "Patents and Copyrights: Do the Benefits Exceed the Costs?" (forthcoming; jhcole@ufm.edu.gt) for an excellent survey and critique of the cost-benefit justification for patent and copyright. See also Tom G. Palmer, "Are Patents and Copyrights Morally Justified? The Philosophy of Property Rights and Ideal Objects," *Harv. J. Law & Publ.
