In re Pike Brands LLC

Ex Parte Appeal No. 90319740

Ellen Yowell, Lead Paralegal Specialist:

On September 20, 2022, Appellant filed a request to remand the application to the Trademark Examining Attorney. Appellant seeks remand because they wish to arrange for an interview with the Examining Attorney. In the request, Appellant states that they have been unsuccessful in reaching the Examining Attorney.

As set forth in Trademark Trial and Appeal Board Manual of Procedure (TBMP) § 1209.04:

Requests for remand are generally filed by applicants because they wish to make additional evidence of record, or because they wish to amend the application. Applicants may also request remand so that the examining attorney can consider a refusal in light of a recently decided case or amended Trademark Rule.... No matter what the purpose, the request for remand must include a showing of good cause.

Based on the circumstances, Appellant has not shown good cause for remand, and the request for remand is denied.

Appellant is allowed until November 21, 2022 in which to file its brief.
