Opposition No. 91192547

Couch/Braunsdorf Affinity,
Inc.

v.

Perkstreet Financial Inc.

George C. Pologeorgis, Interlocutory Attorney:

Opposer's consented motion (filed April 30, 2012) to extend trial dates by thirty days so that the parties may continue with their settlement efforts is noted.

As background, on February 13, 2012, opposer filed a consented motion to extend trial dates noting that the only remaining issue regarding settlement was formulating an acceptable amendment to applicant's identification of services.

By order dated February 15, 2012, the Board granted opposer's consented motion to extend filed on February 13, 2012. By the same order, the Board advised the parties that the Board would not grant any further requests to extend or suspend for settlement absent a showing of extraordinary circumstances, especially since the only remaining issue which would resolve this dispute was drafting an acceptable amendment to applicant's identification of services and inasmuch as the extension granted provided the parties ample time to formulate such an amendment for the Board's consideration.

Opposer's consented motion to extend filed on April 30, 2012, however, does not demonstrate the requisite extraordinary circumstances to justify the requested extension. Failure to finalize terms of settlement does not constitute extraordinary circumstances.

Accordingly, opposer's consented motion to extend filed on April 30, 2012 is denied.

Trial dates remain as reset by Board order dated February 15, 2012.
