Applicant Answer

Serial #: 88551168

Mark: RORN

Name: Dtize Studios Inc

Correspondence: DTIZE STUDIOS INC

Applicant, a Nevada Corporation, believes the mark is a completely different word and design mark and does not damage the opposer's business.

1. The word BORN meaning: past participle of bear¹ (sense 4). – adjective: existing as a result of birth. The definition of RORN is made up and still undefined. The closes definition is in Urban Dictionary (www.urbandictionary.com) › define › term = Rorn is simply “the sound when a hostile human defends its food, territory etc . The Man was angry so he Rorned the enemy away.” This is clearly a difference in meaning just as much as other four letter words similar to BORN for example: TORN (which comes up more often when searching RORN), WORN, HORN, LORN, CORN, SORN. All having different meaning than BORN but end in “ORN.” (See Exhibit A)

2. The comparison of the Applicant’s mark and the Opposer’s mark are differently designed mark that doesn’t cause confuse. The Opposer’s design is a crown and the Applicant’s design is an abstract “R” looking like a star shape. With the focus around the R. (See Exhibit B)
3. Opposer’s (BORN) product brand is footwear (Reference Opposer’s documents “IC/Goods 025: footwear). Searching the opposer’s product shows up as casual sandals (<https://www.bornshoes.com/>). Further researching “BORN clothes” shows up as baby clothes of many other companies. Searching “BORN Logo Apparel” also show up as many other companies using the word born in their logo which have a much more like hood to cause confusion compared to the word RORN. (See Exhibit C)
4. Applicant’s (RORN) mark is athletic wear (<https://projectrorn.com/>). When researching “RORN clothes” it shows up as torn clothing. (See Exhibit D)

Applicant believes there is a prominent amount of evidence showing no confusion in the brand marks and should continue with the registration of trademark with no changes. Applicant is also willing to delete FOOTWEAR if needed to separate the Opposer’s and Applicant’s marks even more, so that both companies can continue with their marks moving forward.

I hereby certify that a true and complete copy of the foregoing RORN trademark has been served on Columbia Insurance Company by:

Respectfully,
