MavBall has always been a great way for both students and teachers to take their problems out on each other by throwing balls at each other. Each MavBall team competes for the ever coveted wrench trophy that has been won by teams in years past. Many think MavBall is a great time, but who wouldrt⊡vhen you can; but your even encouraged to throw dodge balls at the teachers and other staff, as well as classmates. On February 18th, students and staff participated in a very anticipated, intense competition, MavBall 2015. All teams fought hard, however, only one came out on top. The team, Make it Rain , certainly made it rain on the competition, as they were the 1st place team, led by Ben Goedert, a sophomore at Milford High School. Goedert explains he led his team to success with his co-coach by using defensive aspects. By lining their players up in a wellthought out, and strategic way, they were able to make it to the top and win. We used other players on our team as a type of shield. Goedert explains. Players decided the team name Make it rain, and not only did the y make it rain in the competition, but they also threw feux currency on their teammates, as well as themselves, once they won. Goedert explains that the best part about being a coach is the ability to build strong relationships with the players. Dort think that this team is done competing now that they won. This is only the beginning. says Goedert. Watchout next year, were taking the same approa ch, and were coming atcha∆ll Balls, No Dodge came in a close second. A player Johnny Sposita says, we came in second, but we had tons of fun. It s too bad it going to be my last year. MavBall is something I will never forget.□

By Jordan Moore on November 12, 2010 11:12 AM | No Comments

5 points of emphasis before we take off for the desert...

1.) Nick Folds

He is not healthy. Foles suffered a knee injury similar to Mark Sanchez's preseason dislocation in 2008. He is fine to sit back in the pocket, but he's lost his mobility. USC's defense has been at its best when they attack this season. If the corners jam receivers at the line of scrimmage, Foles will have to wait for the patterns to develop. In that time, the front four and blitzers need to punish him.

2.) Let It Rip!

I agree with the blog commenter who said Matt Barkley should not obsess over interceptions. The Trojans can't beat a very good Arizona team with their star QB "managing" the offense. He has to outplay his counterpart and lead USC to a tough win. Yes, he needs to make good decisions, but he cannot hold back.

3.) The Pillars

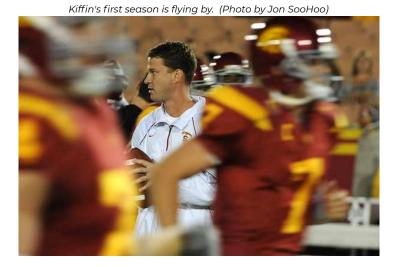

We don't talk much about Tyron Smith and Matt Kalil, which is a good thing when it comes to offensive tackles. Barkley called Arizona's defensive ends the best that USC will see this season, so the QB's bodyguards will be tested. Mike Stoops' defense is dependent on pressure, so if Smith and Kalil can shut their water off, Barkley can make it rain down the field.

4.) The Wright Time

Each week, I ask Shareece Wright about the other team's best wide receiver. Each week, he smiles coyly before giving a respectful answer. In that smile, the corner reveals that he is not intimidated. He would love to lock up with Juron Criner on every snap. Criner "always lines up on the right side," according to Wright, so he'll be easy to find. If he can take away Arizona's top target, the Cats' will lose their teeth.

5.) Signature Win

Lane Kiffin's college head coaching career has been marked by near-misses. His teams' best performances came in narrow losses to Alabama last year and Stanford this season. This is the 2010 Trojans final shot to knock off a ranked opponent. While it may not "shock the world," beating a quality Arizona team in Tuscon would qualify as a signature win for Kiffin in his first year as the head of Troy.

AGA STUDY SHOWS SPORTS BETTING COULD MAKE IT RAIN FOR MAJOR LEAGUES

Posted By Nicholaus Garcia on October 19, 2018 - Last Updated on February 19, 2021

Live in New Jersey and want to have a stake in the game? Check out the DraftKings Sportsbook mobile app!

A new study commissioned by the American Gaming Association (AGA) shows Major League Baseball (MLB) and the National Basketball Association (NBA) could see a combined $1.7 billion from legal sports betting.

The Nielsen Sports Study analyzes several different revenue streams including data rights, sponsorships and advertising dollars that legal sports betting could generate for both professional leagues.

Sara Slane, senior vice president of public relations for the AGA said, collectively all four major sports leagues will earn upwards of $4.2 billion from legalized sports betting.

"Legal sports betting will also create substantial opportunities for state and local economies, generating tax revenue, jobs and supporting small businesses across the country."

BENEFITS FOR PROFESSIONAL SPORTS

Results found that MLB could see $1.1 billion in increased revenue while the NBA stands to gain $585 million.

According to the study, $952 million for MLB and $452 million for the NBA will come by way of increased fan engagement and viewership boosting the two leagues total annual revenue.

REVENUE EXPECTATIONS

- $64 million on MLB advertising by betting operators
- $57 million on NBA advertising by betting operators
- . $62 million for MLB from sponsorship revenues
- $78 million for NBA from sponsorship revenues
- $28 million for MLB earned from data rights
- $25 million for NBA earned from data rights

BIG PICTURE FOR REGULATED US SPORTS BETTING

Following the May 14 ruling by the US Supreme Court which found the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act to be unconstitutional, several states quickly moved to legalize sports betting.

So far, Delaware, New Jersey, Mississippi, and West Virginia, have sportsbooks up and running in their respective states.

Earlier this week, New Mexico became the sixth state with legal sports betting. The Tamaya Nation at the Pueblo of Santa Ana launched a sportsbook at their Santa Ana Star Casino and Hotel outside Albuquerque.

Pennsylvania and Rhode Island are expected to go live later this year. New York is currently developing sports betting regulations for its four commercial casinos.

Other states looking to pass wagering bilk next year include:

- Indiana sports betting
- Illinois sports betting
- · Iowa sports betting
- Kansas
- · Kentucky sports betting
- · Ohio sports betting
- · District of Columbia

All of which, could bolster annual revenue for all major sports leagues substantially.

□ Morking together with the gaming industry will pay dividends for all sports stakeholders, □ Slane said.

Annual Kids Game on Tap for Shockers Monday

12/15/2019 1:00:00 PM

ON THE AIR

Monday's game can be heard online at GoShockers.com/Listen with the voice of Shocker Women's Basketball Steve Strain calling the action. Strain is in his sixth season broadcasting games for the women's program. The game will also be televised locally on COX YurView (HD 2022) and streamed online at YurView.com/Kansas.

Wichita State won its 600th game all time with its 88-83 win over Oklahoma on Nov. 30, 2019. They became the 10th program in the American Athletic Conference with 600 or more victories. UCF (597) is right on the doorstep to 600 as well - needing only five wins to reach the milestone. Tulsa (351) is the only other active member shy of that mark.

LAST TIME OUT

Wichita State fell to Creighton for the third straight time following a 56-46 loss in Omaha on Saturday. Wichita State shot a season-low 23.6 percent from the field and was held without a three-pointer (0-for-13) for the second time this season. The Shockers' 10 turnovers marked a season low, while forcing Creighton into 19 - a season high for the Bluejays. Wichita State was outrebounded by 10 - the second most this season. At the free throw line, Wichita State converted 20-of-23, the second game this season shooting 87.0 percent or better. Mariah McCully registered her third straight game in double figures with a team-high 14 points. McCully also swiped a career-high six steals.

SCOUTING THE LADY LIONS

Arkansas-Pine Bluff is off to an 0-7 start in 2019-20 with all seven contests coming away from home. The Lady Lions have faced a challenging non-conference slate that has included matchups with Coastal Carolina, Milwaukee, Illinois, Tennessee, Iowa State, Washington State and Arkansas State. Following the game at Wichita State, UAPB travels to Texas Tech before its first home game on Dec. 29 vs. Philander Smith College. Kyeonia Harris and Aiya El Hassan average a team-high 9.3 points per game, while Harris also leads Arkansas-Pine Bluff in assists and steals. Harris' 34.72 minutes per game tops all players in the SWAC. The one area Arkansas-Pine Bluff excels at is creating turnovers. The Lady Lions rank 46th nationally in

BIG WEEK LANDS MCCULLY ON HONOR ROLL

Mariah McCully picked up her first career weekly honor after scoring a career-high 25 points vs. Eastern Michigan on Dec. 7. McCully, a Grand Rapids, Mich. native, averaged 19.0 points, 2.0 assists and 1.5 steals on 43.8 percent shooting in Wichita State's two games during the week. She opened the week with a then-career high 13 points against No. 18 Missouri State, and finished in a big way. She poured in a career-best 25 points on 8-of-18 shooting, while adding a career-high three steals in the win over EMU.

MAKE IT RAIN

Wichita State poured in 12 three-pointers in only 22 attempts in its victory over Oklahoma on Saturday, Nov. 30. The 12 made three-pointers are the most in a single game since Dec. 30, 2006, when the Shockers made 12-of-24 against Evansville. The school record for made triples in a single game is 14, which was set in 1999. Wichita State has made 10 or more three-pointers only four times between 2006 and Nov. 30, 2019.

OU LEFTOVERS

Wichita State's win over Oklahoma on Nov. 30 was the program's first win against a Big 12 opponent and Power 5 member since Dec. 12, 2014, when the Shockers defeated in-state rival, Kansas State, 51-48 in Charles Koch Arena. That same season Wichita State also recorded wins against Clemson (ACC) and Ohio State (Big Ten).

OH CAPTAIN, MY CAPTAIN(S)

The votes are in. Wichita State women's basketball will feature three team captains in 2019-20 - senior Ashley Reid and sophomores Seraphine Bastin and Trajata Colbert. Selected by their teammates, the trio will be looked upon to lead the Shocker basketball program for the remainder of the campaign.

THE SERIES VS. ARKANSAS-PINE BLUFF

Wichita State and Arkansas-Pine Bluff have met on the hardwood seven times dating back to the first matchup in 2002. The Shockers are a perfect 7-0 all-time vs. the Lady Lions with all seven contests coming in Wichita. All seven wins have come by double digits.

LAST MEETING

Wichita State and Arkansas-Pine Bluff met in the 2018-19 season opener that saw the Shockers come out with a 76-39 win in Charles Koch Arena. The Shocker defense held UAPB to 27.8 percent shooting, 5-of-19 from long range, 22 turnovers and outrebounding the Lady Lions by 25. Sabrina Lozada-Cabbage scored a career-high 21 points on 9-of-13 shooting, while Jada Peacock knocked down three triples for 11 points. Seraphine Bastin added nine points and six assists.

ABOUT THE LADY LIONS

Located in Pine Bluff, Ark., the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff has an enrollment of 2,821 as a member of the Southwestern Athletic Conference (SWAC). Arkansas-Pine Bluff returns six letterwinners and two starters off last year's squad that finished 5-20 and 2-16 in the SWAC. Arkansas-Pine Bluff was picked to finish 10th in the SWAC Preseason Coaches Poll. Head Coach Dawn Brown is in her first season leading the Lady Lions. Brown, who won the 2014 Southwestern Athletic Conference Tournament Championship while leading Prairie View A&M University and is a former SWAC student-athlete, landed at UAPB after spending the previous season as associate head coach at Jacksonville University of the Atlantic Sun Conference. In 2017-18, Brown was head coach at Division II Shorter University of the Gulf South Conference. Brown spent six seasons at Prairie View A&M (2010-16) as a part of the winningest era in program history. As an assistant coach, the Lady Panthers won SWAC Tournament Championships in 2011, 2012 and 2013, advancing to the NCAA Tournament every year.

UP NEX

Wichita State packs its bags for the tropical paradise of Puerto Rico Where the Shockers will face Montana State (Dec. 20) and Virginia Tech (Dec. 21) in the Puerto Rico Coqui Classic.

Kawhi Leonard widely expected to re-sign with Clippers this offseason

Yet barring a dramatic turn of events in these coming months, it's looking like this Leonard free agency will be decidedly less dramatic. While this league has certainly taught us to expect the unexpected, the truth is that Leonard is still widely, well, expected to re-sign with the Clippers. As it stands, that's the word from Clippers sources and

DeMar DeRozan to take a 'wide open' approach to free agency in terms of landing spots

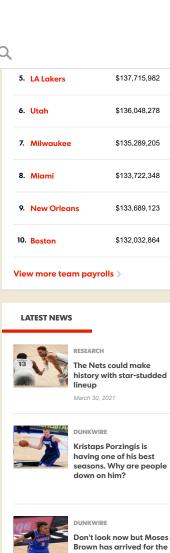

A source with knowledge of DeRozan's outlook said he'll be taking a "wide open" approach to free agency in terms of possible landing spots. Daily Fantasy Football: Week 11 DraftKings Expert Lineup by Mark Hertel (http://www.fantasysmacktalk.com/author/fst_mark/) on November 18, 2016 Brace Hemmelgarn-USA TODAY Sports

The holiday season is approaching. After weeks of sloppy play, the NFL has gifted us with exciting football recently. The high scoring offenses we're used to seeing are hitting their strides and fantasy studs are taking advantage of their plus matchups. Kirk Cousins even gave us a new catchphrase this past week, "Oooooh-Weeee".

Tony Romo got real, letting us all know what it feels like to watch a rookie steal your job and shine while doing so. Romo's received a lot of unwarranted hate over the years. It's inexplicable really. He's always been a top quarterback and class act throughout his career, dating Jessica Simpson in her prime should earn him serious props alone. Let's wish Tony Luck in his future endeavors while we wish ourselves luck as we create our DraftKings lineup this week!

Here is your Week 11 DraftKings expert lineup.

QUARTERBACK

Russell Wilson PHI @ SEA - $6,100

There's something about mid-November that flexes the fantasy muscle in Russell. Maybe he's just a big fan of the holiday season and as it approaches his game reaches a new level, who knows. Whatever the reason, Wilson erupts this time of year. After a similar slow start in 2015, Wilson exploded in Week 10 and finished the rest of the season with only one game under three touchdowns. It looks like Wilson is beginning a similar dominant streak. After three straight weeks of zero touchdowns, he's regained his Bruno Mars-like swagger and has totaled six touchdowns in his last two games. He's too hot, makes a dragon wanna retire man.

The Eagles have a terrific defense when playing at home, but they have been unimpressive when traveling. In their last four away games they've gotten lit up by opposing quarterbacks, most recently being Eli Manning who dropped four touchdown passes on them in Week 9. The Russ bus is heating up his engine; jump aboard while the boarding pass is still cheap.

RUNNING BACKS

David Johnson ARI @ MIN - $7,900

Let's get our Tim Duncan on and pivot away from the competition. Most DraftKings managers will be paying up for Le'Veon Bell this week, but David Johnson could easily outscore him. Johnson is playing a decent Vikings defense in Week 11, but "decent" is far below the "dominant" status they had a month ago. The Vikings allowed Redskins running back Robert Kelly to run for 97 yards on them last week, and Bears running back Jordan Howard shredded them for 153 yards on the ground three weeks ago. Watching Carson Palmer right now, we get a sense of what it might look like if Brett Favre was still playing. His arm has very little left to offer and the Cardinals will feed their electrifying running back as much as possible. Johnson has not scored below 15 fantasy points all season, he offers a tremendous floor with the highest of ceilings.

LeSean McCoy BUF @ CIN - $6,900

Entering Week 11 fresh off a bye week, it's safe to say McCoy's hammy troubles are behind him and he'll return to his role as the focal point of Buffalo's offense. Excluding the Week 8 game when he got injured, McCoy has scored below 16 fantasy points just once; and he's done so against the league's toughest run defenses. Cincinnati still has the reputation of a good defense, but they have taken a major step back this year; allowing 116.8 rushing yards per game after allowing just 92 yards on the ground last year. The Bengals even made Giants running back Rashad Jennings look like a viable starting fantasy option last week, bulldozing his way to 87 yards on 15 carries. McCoy should beat up on this defense like it owes him money this week.

WIDE RECEIVERS

Jordy Nelson GB @ WAS - $7,800

The Jordy Nelson/Aaron Rodgers connection has never been more in sync than it is right now. Only Key & Peele have shown better chemistry in recent memory. Packers' fans don't find it comical how often the Packers are losing in 2016, but Jordy Nelson's fantasy production has not resembled any type of offensive struggle. He's scored a touchdown in every game but two this year, in his last three matchups he's found the end zone in each and didn't finish with less than 94 yards. He'll face a respectable pass defense in the Redskins this week and could see a lot of stud cornerback Josh Norman; however, No. 1 receivers have found great success against Washington this year. Most recently, it was Vikings wide receiver Stefon Diggs who went off on them for 164 yards last week. Dig Jordy this week.

Golden Tate JAX @ DET - $5,300

Don't hate Tate the Great. After a turtle paced start to the season, Tate has leap-frogged Marvin Jones as Stafford's favorite receiver. Tate has out-targeted Marvin Jones 43 to 23 over the past four games, and will be used all over the field to take advantage of Jacksonville's stingy pass defense. The Jaguars have allowed the fewest passing plays of 20 yards or more in the league. Expect Stafford and Tate to continue working their short passing routes, Golden is one of the best tackle breaking receivers in the league and should pile up receptions. Golden is PPR gold.

Tyreek Hill TB @ KC - $4,500

Kansas City's passing attack has been about as exciting as going to the dentist, but scoring points through the air is no longer like pulling teeth for Andy Reid's offense. Due to a Jeremy Maclin groin injury, the Chiefs have found a badly needed playmaker in Tyreek Hill. The former track star has some serious scoots, clocking in a 4.25 40-yard dash time in 2012 when he won "Track and Field News High School Athlete of the Year" award. He's certainly looked like the best athlete on the field lately, catching 10 of 13 targets last week against the Panthers. Jeremy Maclin looks doubtful to play against Tampa Bay's 25th ranked pass defense this week. If Maclin is indeed a no-go, Hill should be in line for a big fantasy day.

TIGHT END

Julius Thomas JAX @ DET - $3,500

Julius and the Jaguars defense has been more unreliable than a weatherman this year, but tight ends make it rain every week against the Lions defense. They've allowed at least one touchdown to tight ends in every game but one this year. The matchup is good timing for Julius Thomas as he's beginning to heat up. He has scored a touchdown in three out of his last four games, and was thrown to 10 times last week against the Texans. Detroit is like the Jelly of the Month Club for tight ends, they're the gift that keeps on giving all year round.

FLEX

Theo Riddick JAX @ DET - $5,100

Riddick doesn't appear to have the pedigree of a typical workhorse back, but that's what he's become in Detroit due to a serious lack of options. Riddick's dominance of the Lions backfield and involvement in the passing game almost makes him matchup proof, he's scored over 25 fantasy points in three matchups including difficult ones against the Texans and Eagles. Theo is a shifty, elusive runner with arguably the best hands out of any running back in the league. The Chronicles of Riddick should add another successful chapter in Week 11.

Defense/Special Teams

Miami Dolphins MIA @ LA - $2,900

As the great Will Smith once said, "Welcome to Miami, bienvenido a Miami." An underrated song that represents an underrated defense. Even after losing stud safety Reshad jones, the Dolphins have hit their stride and are swimming past opposing offenses. They've allowed just one quarterback to pass for over 200 yards in their past five games and have finished with at least three sacks in each of their last three games. They'll travel to L.A. in Week 11 to meet a Rams offense finally debuting their No. 1 draft pick, quarterback Jared Goff. The Rams have treated Goff like an unwanted houseguest. They want him off their couch and to find a job. They finally named him their starting quarterback, but have expressed everything but confidence in him. The red-hot Dolphins should finish with another successful fantasy week.

Ducks Make It Rain To Beat No. 5 Arizona
Oregon made a Matthew Knight Arena record 16 three-pointers on its first 21 attempts Saturday to blow out the Wildcats, 85-58.
Rob Moseley
Men's Basketball

EUCENE, Ore. — The Oregon men's basketball team regained the driver's seat in the race for the Pac-12 championship and made an emphatic statement to the nation Saturday afternoon, an 85-58 victory for the No. 13 Ducks over No. 5 Arizona before a sellout crowd of 12,364 fans in Matthew Knight Arena. The victory was Oregon's 40th in a row at home, the longest active streak in the nation after Kansas lost earlier Saturday, ending the Jayhawks' streak at 51.

How it Happened: The Ducks (21-3, 10-1 Pac-12) blew open the game early in the first half with a brilliant display of three-point shooting, electrifying the home crowd. Tyler Dorsey made three three-pointers in four possessions for an early 19-6 lead, and later Dorsey made the last of five three-pointers in five straight UO possessions—three by Casey Benson—to push the lead to 36-11. By that point the Ducks had 10 made three-pointers, while the Wildcats (21-3, 10-1) had 11 total points.

Dorsey added two free throws to cap what ended up being a 19-0 first-half run by the Ducks, who forced Arizona to miss 11 straight field-goal attempts during the run. The Wildcats ended up scoring the final seven points before halftime to get within 38-18, but their point total and .259 shooting in the half were easily season-lows.

Early in the second half, Arizona continued its scoring run, making the first two baskets of the half. But Dorsey and Dillon Brooks responded with two more threes — making the Ducks 12-of-16 at that point behind the arc. After the Wildcats scored again to get within 44-26, Oregon mounted another extended run, a 20-1 stretch capped by an alley oop dunk by Chris Boucher from Jordan Bell. At one point during the run, Arizona called its fourth and final timeout of the game — with 12:59 still to play, an illustration of how early and often UA coach Sean Miller tried to slow the Ducks' momentum.

Oregon led 64-27 at that point, its largest of the game. The lead was still as much as 36 at 74-38, before the Wildcats mounted a late surge to make the final score more respectable

Who Stood Out: Dorsey finished with 23 points on 7-of-9 shooting, including all six three-point attempts. Brooks added 18 points on 7-of-10 shooting, and added five rebounds with three assists and three steals. Benson made 3-of-5 three-pointers for 13 points, and Boucher added 12 points. Bell had six points, six rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots.

What It Means: Oregon pulled into a tie for first in the Pac-12 with Arizona at 10-1, and the Ducks secured the tiebreaker by winning the only regular-season matchup between the two this season.

Quotable:

Dana Altman, head coach

On the electric home atmosphere "Our energy level was really good because the shots were falling. And the crowd was great today. ... With every three the crowd got louder. It was just a really good atmosphere."

"That's the best game I ever played in three years here. Guys were focused and guys were confident in their shots."

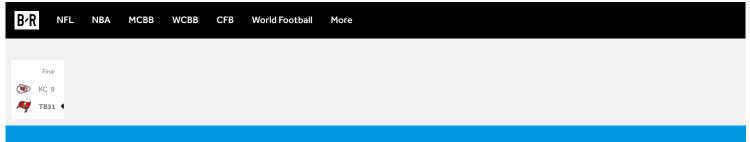

On the rarity of finding the zone as a team "It was getting ridiculous. But guys feed off each other. One guy's hot, another guy gets hot. In this game it was like five, six, seven guys that got hot."

On playing so well against the Wildcats
"We look up to Arizona. We want to be just as good as them, a prestigious NCAA basketball team. They've got a great coach in Sean Miller, and great players. We're going to see them again."

Tyler Dorsey, sophomore guard
On moving on to Thursday's game at UCLA
"We control our own destiny now. We know we have to go on the road and it's going to be tough. We just have to battle and take one game at a time. UCLA in L.A., they're going to want to beat us. So we've got to be ready."

Notable: As a team the Ducks finished 16-oF-25 from three-point range (.640), setting an arena record. Oregon was 30-oF-46 overall (.652), with 26 assists on the 30 field goals ... The 27-point margin of victory was Oregon's largest ever against a top-10 team; the previous was 13 versus No. 1 UCLA (78-65) on Feb. 21, 1970... Brooks passed Jim Bannett (1,325/1963-66) for 17th in UO career scoring, finishing the game with 1,335 points.... The UO student section celebrated the first Oregon basket by throwing powder into the air, a la LeBron James, though the gesture did lead to a delay while crews cleaned up the floor... Freshman wing Keith Smith was again not in uniform, nor was his classmate M.J. Carge... Former UO head coach Don Monson sat courtside with former UO athletic director Pat Kilkenny.... The sellout was the fifth of the season in Matthew Knight Arena, and the third in the last five home games.

Fantasy Football Team Names: 20 Names That'll Have Opponents Laughing and Losing

SEE OFFERS

TriHonda

The time is now to seriously start thinking about fantasy football.

But before you make any sort of decisions, coming up with a good name for your team is essential. A team with the guy's name or his favorite team is incredibly lame and unoriginal. There may not be an award for it, but the guy with the best team name is always well respected amongst the rest of the league.

So what makes a good name?

Involving current players with rhymes or dirty jokes are the gold standard. Using guys that aren't in the NFL anymore is not going to cut it. The more creative the better. But don't use yesterday's news. That means any Charlie Sheen joke is off-limits—that was so four months ago.

It's not an easy task, and the criteria for evaluating a good name are up for debate. But through the above factors kept in mind, here are 20 of the best names for your 2011 fantasy football team.

(A portion of the list was influenced by this and this.)

HONDA

20. Corn on the Schaub

1 OF 20

The Houston Texans quarterback has been fantasy gold for the last two seasons. In fact, he is a better fantasy QB than real one in many ways. The fantasy version doesn't wilt in the fourth quarter and come up small in big games.

This name combines a fantasy staple with food and rhymes.

19. Dezzie Does Dallas

2 OF 20

It's an old school movie reference that may predate younger guys in the league, but anytime you can tie in a '70s porno title in with a top fantasy threat in wide receiver Dez Bryant, it's a win.

18. Drankin Forte's

3 OF 20

Matt Forte may not be happy with the Chicago Bears, but he has to love this fantasy league name.

Drinking 40 oz. malt beverages may not be in Forte's everyday diet, but you can bet fans in the Windy City and fantasy owners everywhere have consumed plenty of them trying to figure out why he is so inconsistent.

17. Wilfork for Food

4 OF 20

When you are 6'2" and 325 pounds...you like to eat.

When your name has the word fork in it...you have yourself a solid fantasy team name.

16. The Arian Brotherhood

5 OF 20

Arian Foster broke out onto the scene in 2010 and became the top fantasy back by the end of the season.

Expect him to be one of the top three backs taken off the board in your draft. But don't expect those teams to have this gem as their team name.

15. Make It Dwayne on Them Bowes

6 OF 20

Now this name does break the rule that the joke isn't brand new.

Making it rain is a phrase that was used ad nauseam during the second half of the 2000s, but finally it's died down a bit. The double rainbow guy on YouTube had a magical run, but that 15 minutes of fame is long gone.

But the name makes the list because it combines two jokes into one with a top-notch fantasy receiver in Dwayne Bowe.

14. Boldin the Beautiful

7 OF 20

Anquan Boldin didn't have the incredible season everyone was expecting when he finally had the opportunity to become the No. 1 receiver on the Baltimore Ravens.

But that doesn't change the fact that his name has a vague resemblance to a soap opera that has been airing for longer than fantasy football has ever existed.

13. Pimpin' Ain't Breesy

8 OF 20

Drew Brees is one of the smoothest QBs in the league and makes the incredibly difficult look like a picnic.

Sure, Brees may not be on Bourbon St. with a cane and flamboyant fur coat, but he still makes his job look easy.

12. Favre Dollar Footlong

9 OF 20

Nobody knows for sure if Brett Favre will be back under center in 2011, but that doesn't mean you can't take advantage of the vast number of terrific fantasy league names available.

The ol' gunslinger gave us plenty of ideas after sending text messages to former employees. You could also poke fun at the constant "will he or won't he" comeback drama or just the fact he is a 41-year-old gray-bearded dude still trying to play a game with players half his age.

In other words, Favre gives fantasy players plenty of ammo for a good team name.

11. Henne-Nut Cheerios

10 OF 20

When you get booed by your home crowd in training camp, odds are your 2011 season is not going to end well.

At least Chad Henne has a cool fantasy name involving a breakfast cereal that is both tasty and full of nutrients needed to set your day off on the right foot.

10. Resisting Burresst

11 OF 20

 $\mbox{\sc Had}$ to get the obligatory $\mbox{\sc Plaxico}$ $\mbox{\sc Burress}$ going to jail reference in.

Runner-up: Burressted Development.

Who knows, he may actually be a viable fantasy option. Somebody has to make catches aside from Santonio Holmes.

9. New England Reform School

12 OF 20

With the additions of Chad Ochocinco and Albert Haynesworth, the Patriots think they can take even the biggest class clown or bully and turn him into a productive honor roll student.

Throw in the three-year program for rookie QB Ryan Mallett, and maybe we should start calling him Professor Bill Belichick.

8. Bros Before Shiancoes

13 OF 20

Combining a popular phrase used among all men with a productive fantasy tight end equals a great team name.

7. Revis and Butt-Head

14 OF 20

The best cornerback in the league may be fantasy kryptonite for your top fantasy receiver, but he's certainly worthy of a fantasy team name.

The popular MTV show in the '90s may sound dated, but Beavis and Butthead's show is being resurrected, so the joke is relevant once again!

6. Scam Newton

15 OF 20

There are multiple ways to look at this name:

If you are living in SEC territory, then it's a reference to his college career at Auburn.

If you think the Carolina Panthers just wasted the No. 1 pick in the draft on Newton...it's another option.

If you think drafting Newton is the worst fantasy idea of all time, it also works.

This team name has plenty of versatility.

5. The Rex Ryan DeFEET

16 OF 20

While seemingly everyone has some sort of Rex Ryan foot joke up their sleeve for the new season...this one takes the cake.

4. Forgetting Brandon Marshall

17 OF 20

While the movie Forgetting Sarah Marshall is four years old, people didn't start forgetting about Brandon until he arrived in Miami.

After having loads of success in Denver, Marshall caught a grand total of three TDs in his inaugural season with the 'Fins.

What was his name again?

3. What Would Jones-Drew?

18 OF 20

Maurice Jones-Drew is one of the best fantasy players in the game, and his double last name lets you get creative. The self-proclaimed fantasy guru may have just found his team name for the upcoming season.

2. Texas Chainsaw Massaquoi

19 OF 20

He may not be a big-time fantasy contributor, but you can't deny the brilliance of the team name and the movie that goes with it.

It has the tough guy sound that you need to make your fantasy team sound like it means business.

1. Rock Out with Your Lockout

20 OF 20

The biggest story of the offseason will not soon be forgotten.

What better way to remember the crap fans had to put up with for the last six months then to roll out a team name like that?

It rhymes, is relevant and will make your buddy laugh.

That's the trifecta for a fantasy name.

Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Vince Young is being sued by a Dallas strip club manager he allegedly punched in the face last year.

NEXT STORY

Creiton Kinchen claims in a lawsuit filed in a Dallas court Tuesday that the 28-year-old Houston native and former University of Texas star hit him "suddenly and without provocation" at the club.

Kinchen, a manager at Club Onyx in Dallas, says he refused to convert $8,000 off Young's credit card into single dollar bills for tip money.

Kinchen says Young was drunk at the time of the June 12, 2010, scuffle. Young was cited for misdemeanor assault. He has said that he was provoked and "made a mistake even being there."

Tom Condon, Young's agent, could not immediately be reached Wednesday for comment.

MAKE IT RAIN MONEY WHEN YOU PLAY THIS NEW NJ ONLINE SLOT AT GOLDEN NUGGET

Posted By Susan Brady on August 10, 2018

It's the second week of August, and there are two new slots to be played on NJ online casinos. You'll be able to look to the skies for cash on the first one and try to cast some magic spells to increase your bank account on the second.

Let's take a look:

MONEY RAIN

IT'S RAINING... CASH

Money may not grow on trees in the real world, but it sure does on this new online slot. Money Rain provides almost an unlimited number of ways to win. There are eight symbols represented by currency, ranging from $1 to $500, as well as a Free Spins symbol and a dollar sign. Get a minimum of four matching symbols, anywhere on the reels, for a win.

Another way to win is for a dollar sign to show up. During regular play, this will be green. It will awaken the Money Reel to the right of the reels. The Money Reel will spin and land on a symbol. All dollar signs are replaced with this currency to help you make a match. (During Free Spins play, this dollar sign is blue.)

There's also a unique Good, Better, Best feature that you can opt for during regular play. You can change your bet amount by selecting this feature. It will increase the number of free spins that may be triggered during Free Spin play. Good = 4 more spins, Better = 6 more spins and Best = 8 more spins. Each level will cost you – of course.

Panthers Rally Back to Knock Off Sharks

Selden, NY | BMCC Men's Basketball pushed their win streak to 3-in-a-row with a 96-89 victory over the Suffolk Sharks. After a 5-0 run to start the game, the Panthers ended up trailing by 13 early on in the first half, but they would rally back with a 3 point lead entering the second half. A key to their success was Kenneth Coar returning to his All-American form, the team captain erupted for 22 points and 14 rebounds, while keeping the Sharks out of the paint with 3 blocks.

Following his NJCAA Player of the Week performance, Brandon Williams started this week off on the right foot, putting up 19 points and dishing out 3 assists. Already one of the top 5 three-point shooters in the nation, Jamel Harris continued to make it rain as he went 4-5 from behind the arc on his way to 16 points. Matthew Boyd was a facilitator on offense tonight, giving out a team-high 6 assists while scoring 17 points of his own. The Panthers bench came up big tonight, with Neil Veira and Moello Williams combining for 20 points in limited minutes.

The men's team will look to make it 4-in-a-row this Saturday when they travel to the Bronx to take on the Hostos Caimans. Print Friendly Version

Make it Rain... for Student-Athletes

At Colorado State, our athletics donor club is called Ram Club. Like most schools around the country the name process goes as follows: insert mascot and add club.

Simple.

What's not so simple is engaging donors on social media, especially seeing it turn in those desired dollars (insert money emoji). Our Ram Club social media peeps, Jamie Hall and Tanya Ocana, came up with a social media strategy that engages those already on social and get them to contribute to Ram Club. What came out of their campaign, "50 States in 50 Days" was nothing short of miraculous. Here are some of the highlights:

50 States in 50 Days

- Goals
 - Attain a total of 25 or more Athletics donors in states without a Ram Club donor (9)
 - Raise at least $3,500 in donations
 - · Raise national awareness
 - Use low-risk, low-cost "call-to-action" marketing through social
- Methods
 - Weekly social posts based on specific states, asking fans to tag/encourage people they know to donate

· Supplement with emails to those states

COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY® (Hepas/#ahiosovithseateleasisi/) th#rosiusodithpahiplassovian.denosteak-cuiven/plictity/tan//marchites///www.linkedin.com/schaol/colorado- the campaign through visuals on social

(https://colostate.edu)

- Total of $38,966 in donations accepted (goal of $3,500)
- 178 out-of-state donations during the time period to 19 different athletic funds
- · Plan of success for future campaigns

Have you had a successful stint on social with getting donations, or monetizing social like this? If so, share! We'd love to see what others have done to see success in this facet of social!

Make It Rain: The Love of Money

Make It Rain: The Love of Money is a 2014 incremental mobile game published by American indie studio Space Inch LLC. In the first week after its launch on the Apple OS, it was with 2 million downloads the most downloaded game in the iTunes Store. Inside the game, virtual money can be earned with insider trading, subprime mortgages and the bribing of political figures. According to the creators, the game is a satire on the obsession with wealth. The game is available for Apple iOS, Android and Windows Phone operating systems. The idea for the game was originally inspired from a previously released game called Make Money Rain. [4]

Gameplay and themes

As an incremental game, there is no end goal in Make it Rain, but rather the endless goal of acquiring more currency, which ties into the game's themes of greed and corruption. This can be done through in-game means, or through in-app purchases. Space Inch's Chairman Josh Segall, who is a criminal lawyer, indicated that he found it disturbing that the option to bribe the FBI is the most popular paid purchase within the game. 5

Development

According to Josh Segall, the company spent $10,000 on development and $1,000 on marketing of the game and returns a daily profit of $50,000 with advertisements and purchases within the game. Space Inch also published the games Inch Disco Bees and Say The Same Thing. Andy Ross, vocalist of the band OK Go is lead developer at Space Inch, LLC.

Make it rain: UCLA unveils augmented reality teaching sandbox

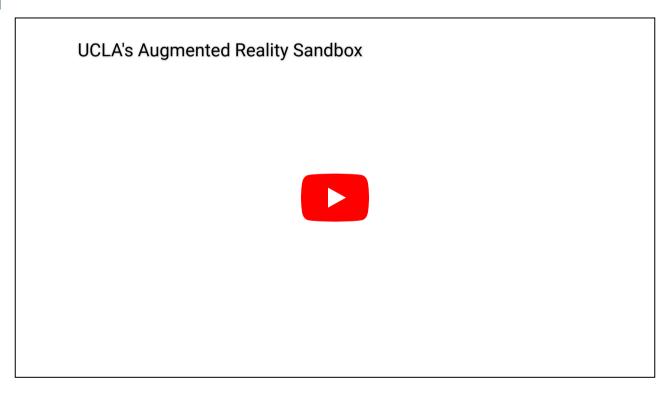

UCLA Broadcast Studio

Christelle Snow | July 21, 2015

ary Glesener, director of UCLA's Modeling and Educational Demonstrations Laboratory, gives us a tour of the lab's Augmented Reality Sandbox. The video was produced by Sebastian Hernandez of the UCLA Broadcast Studio.

Developed by researchers at UC Davis, the Augmented Reality Sandbox lets users sculpt mountains, canyons and rivers, then fill them with water or even create erupting volcanoes. The UCLA device was built by Glesener and others at the Modeling and Educational Demonstrations Laboratory in the Department of Earth, Planetary, and Space Sciences, using off-the-shelf parts and regular playground sand. Any shape made in the sandbox is detected by an Xbox Kinect sensor and processed with open source software, then projected as a color-coded contour map. Liquids flow over the surface with realistic motion.

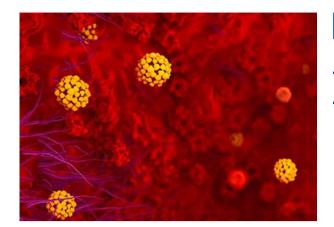

The Augmented Reality Sandbox is mobile and can be set up in any classroom, allowing students and researchers to see their creations come to life in color and in real time.

UCLA's AR sandbox is part of a larger effort by the Modeling and Educational Demonstrations Laboratory to provide high-quality physical models and demonstrations for undergraduate science courses. Fabrication was made possible by an Instructional Improvement Grant from UCLA's Office of Instructional Development.

NOTICED

Not Pennies and Not Quite From Heaven

By Alex Williams

Feb. 4, 2011

THE forecast is in for Super Bowl weekend, and once again, it looks like rain. At least that's the word from Dallas, where news reports surfaced this week that Hines Ward and other members of the Pittsburgh Steelers huddled at the Dallas Gentlemen's Club one night, with some of them indulging in a strip-club ritual known as "making it rain," i.e., showering dancers with fistfuls of cash.

"At one point near midnight, the Steelers, including huge linemen, appeared on the main stage," wrote Gromer Jeffers Jr., a reporter for The Dallas Morning News, in that newspaper's Super Bowl blog. "There they posed and danced with an assortment of strippers. It was 'Make It Rain Monday' at the club. And some of the players made it rain with their dollar bills." (Mr. Ward later denied the story sort of to reporters. "None of your business," he added, with a laugh).

Soon, the phrase was ricocheting around the Internet, and popping up on "Morning Joe," where Willie Geist had to patiently explain to his fellow hosts, Mika Brzezinski and Joe Scarborough, what it meant.

Anyone with a few gigs of hip-hop in their iTunes knows the term, which can have multiple meanings. It has become a staple in strip-club anthems like "Make It Rain," by Fat Joe, featuring Lil Wayne ("Gotta handful of stacks, better grab an umbrella").

Lil' Wayne on the set of the "Make It Rain" video Shoot, Chris Gordon/Getty Images

In clubs, the ritual reached a new pop-culture apex (or nadir) a few years ago, when Adam Jones, then a safety for the Tennessee Titans and previously known as Pacman, climbed onstage at a Las Vegas strip club alongside the rapper Nelly and unleashed plumes from a Louis Vuitton backpack filled with $40,000 in $1 bills. A scuffle soon broke out, followed by gunfire outside, wounding three. Mr. Jones later accepted a plea bargain for conspiracy to commit disorderly conduct, a misdemeanor.

But these days, club managers said, the practice is no longer limited to Super Bowl-bound athletes and entourage-leading rappers. "It's anybody, it's average Joes," said Tara Christine, a manager for Scores New York in West Chelsea. Customers can buy the club's prepackaged stacks of 100 singles, edge up to the stage and let loose. "It pumps up the atmosphere," Ms. Christian said.

Even before the term started popping up in rap videos, or ESPN segments, this form of precipitation was not unknown, particularly in smaller clubs outside the city.

"It's kind of a Jersey strip club thing that they would promote in order to generate more money," said Michael Wright, the chief operating officer for Sapphire, an upscale 10,000-square-foot club near the Queensboro Bridge. A club manager "would take 50 to 100 dollars out of their own kitty to rain on the dancers, to incite other customers to loosen up their wallets."

Of course, one can imagine what the feminist author Andrea Dworkin would have said about women being treated like tarpaulins at Yankee Stadium. Even the dancers themselves seem divided, Mr. Wright said.

"The upscale entertainer looks at it like a little bit of an insult: 'Don't throw money at me,' "he said. Everyone else? "They'll take the money."

Sports Bet Calculator

When we were younger, in schools, no one can explain better to us the significance of calculators and how well calculators play the role of Savior just right for Mathematics classes. The simple truth is that in to make the best scores out of your bet, be it NBA, MLB, NFL, NHL, football, or soccer bets, you need to figure out and successfully get past the simple and complex, sometimes annoying, calculations that are involved in the betting types and systems available from your sportsbook. There is no shortcut. Well, there actually is. This is where sports bet calculator comes in.

If we are to start listing out all the examples of sports bet calculators we have, well, it's going to be a rather long list. Nevertheless, it is important to know this. For every single betting type or betting system, there is almost a given sports bet calculator to calculate the workings of how bettors can make money using that given betting type using the specified odds and amount that bettors are willing to play their bet with.

There are simple sports bet calculators and there are complex sports bet calculators. It all depends on the betting type or system you choose to play with. Sports Bet Calculator is simply a piece of software that helps bettor figure out the profit (or loss) they stand to make playing with specified bet odds, amount, and betting type.

Handy Android and iOS Apps and tools for Sports Betting

This is straightforward. It matters relatively less how good the strategy you've put in place for bet picks, standings, and how often you utilize online sports bet calculator. As an experienced bettor and one set out to make some cool money from his betting endeavor, there are some mobile applications and software that must be present on your mobile device. It doesn't really matter whether you are using Android or iOS. The makers of these apps made them so well that they accommodate Android and iOS users and drive home big win and scores in their NFL, MLB, WNBA, NCAAB, NCAA, NCAAF, CFL, NBA, MLS, NHL, and EPL bets.

Here are the top five that we found very prominent among these sports betting tools that bettors have on their mobile devices:

- 1. Bet Tracker App: This is in fact very accommodating. It takes care of iOS users, Android users, and BlackBerry users.
- 2. Live Odds: With this free app downloaded on your mobile, you are a finger-tap away from game bet odds including NFL, MLB, WNBA, NCAAB, NCAAF, CFL, NBA, MLS, NHL, and EPL.
- 3. BetBud: You need to see this mobile app as basically your sports betting bank statement for your NFL, MLB, WNBA, NCAAB, NCAA, NCAA, CFL, NBA, MLS, NHL, and EPL bet, etc.
- 4. TimeForm Horse Racing: This mobile app takes extremely good care of horse race betting enthusiasts; and last but definitely not least
- 5. Sports Bet Calculator: We've said enough about it already.

Betting Bots

The idea behind betting bots is pretty simple and straightforward. The underlying principle of operation here is that collections of computer

When the season started he was among the big names to be snagged fantas wise. I am not the tope of person to stat his Spring training numbers, because quite frankli it is a waste of time, and Cano had more news surrounding his contract numbers as opposed to his performance numbers.

Fast forward to April 1, 2014. Robinson Cano®s Mariners® debut. The $240 million man singled in the fourth inning, drew and intentional walk in the seventh, and doubled in a six-run ninth.

As of this moment, Cano$ has accumulated a .298 batting average with 18 RBI$s and 37 hits. So is he all he is cracked up to be?

Not ever@one is a Pete Rose (http://www.baseball-reference.com/player_search.cgi?

The fans should give him that. But Robbie should see that the average fan, who loves his or her team feels slighted.

Money game 'Make It Rain' hits jackpot on mobile

Brett Molina news

Published 9:02 a.m. ET May 11, 2014

The latest buzzworthy mobile game has nothing to do with birds or tiles. It's all about getting rich.

Make It Rain: For The Love of Money is a free title for Apple iOS and Google Android that shot up the iTunes charts, thanks to simple gameplay where users swipe their screen to pile up millions of dollars.

Players start with a stack of cash in a money clip, swiping to "make it rain" by sending dollars flying. As players continue to swipe the touchscreen and amass more money -- featured through a rolling counter -- they can buy piggy banks or stocks to store their cash, and earn power-ups to boost moneymaking.

Ventures start out innocently, with options to invest in venture capital or buy a business, but adds shadier jobs such as money laundering or paying off judges.

"Obviously, it's an exaggeration," says Josh Segall, co-founder of studio Space Inch. "The concept of the game is you can't get really rich unless you do things that are illegal and corrupt."

Segall, who works as a criminal lawyer, started Space Inch in 2010 with college friends Ari Kardasis and Andy Ross, the guitarist for OK Go.

Segall says Make It Rain started as a plan to drive more users toward the earlier release Disco Bees, a hexagonal puzzle game that topped 2 million installs. "We hoped it might be the sort of thing people liked and we could urge those people to try Disco Bees as well," he says.

To Segall's surprise, Make It Rain surged to the top of the iTunes free apps charts this week, holding the top spot until Friday, overtaken by puzzle game 100 Balls (Make It Rain holds the No. 2 spot among free apps). Segall thinks word of mouth may have played a part in Make It Rain's sudden surge.

The game also boasts a message about the power of money and greed. When players first launch the app, they're greeted with quotes about the perils of money. The app also links to a New York Times opinion piece about the dangers of greed.

Having twice run for U.S. Congress in Alabama in 2008 and 2010, Segall says his political career helped influence the message of Make It Rain.

"We want it to be fun," says Segall. "But there's a political message about having unchecked financial power and that being the sort of thing that gets abused within the political system."

Shamong, NJ (Youth1) NM The 12U Mt. Laurel Storm gave their mothers an extra reason to smile on MotherNMS Day as they took home the Nrst place trophy at the Mothers Day Classic.

Despite the wind gusts of over 40 mph and whipping sand, the Storm put on a power display that left opposing pitchers helpless as they scored double digit runs in all but one game, and outscored their opponents by a combined total of 65-13 over the two day period.

With the (5-0) tournament sweep, the Storm improved their tournament record to 13-2 on the season and will be heading to Orlando in July for the USSSA World Series, where Cailyn Chow, Samantha Clemens, Angelina Dunphy, Kendall Geis, Natalie Hardiman, Devon Horner, Serena Lam, Marisa Ludlow, Brianna Morello, Liani Ortil, Mikaela Power, Taylor Sirolli, Alexa Toner, Marissa Topolski, Taylor Warrick and the rest of the 12U Storm program will take on the nation

Oregon to Host 'Make It Rain' Night in February

January 31, 2019 - Opportunity 34 Foundation (https://opportunity34.org/author/chatman/)

Oregon High School and the Opportunity 34 Foundation are partnering to raise money for scholarships with a special "Make it Rain" event at the upcoming Oregon vs. Stoughton boys basketball game on Friday, February 15, 2019, at 7:15pm.

The Oregon "Make It Rain" event will take place during their Youth Night. Scholarships will go to Oregon High School seniors (boy or girl) who have played at least one year of basketball and have financial need. Fifty-percent of ticket sales and all donations at the game will go toward student scholarships. The Opportunity 34 Foundation will match all donations up to $3,400.

At different points during the game, fundraising activities will include:

- Commemorative Warmups participating players receive special t-shirts to wear as warmups.
- Make It Rain Miracle Minute students pass buckets during a first-half timeout to collect donations.
- Three-Point Contest during halftime for a $1 donation per shot, with an additional matching donation for every made 3-pointer.
- Performance T-shirts emblazoned with Opportunity 34's "Make It Rain" logo will be available for sale.

All donations will go toward the Opportunity 34 Scholarship Fund. Thank you so much for your continued support. Your donations are making an amazing difference, with more than $64,000 in scholarships awarded in just over a year since the creation of the Foundation!

Opportunity 34 would like to thank to the OHS Athletic Department and the Oregon basketball program for your generosity and efforts to raise awareness of the Opportunity 34 Foundation.

Burlingame junior Gabe Hyman scored a season-high two goals in Friday's 2-1 over Carlmont at Burlingame's Umland Stadium Friday afternoon.

Don't call it an upset, at least not so far as the Burlingame boys' soccer team is concerned.

Hosting red-hot Carlmont was no easy task. The Scots entered play Friday riding a five-game winning streak and sitting atop the Peninsula Athletic League Bay Division s

But with home-field advantage and a whole lot of pouring rain on its side, Burlingame went on to deal Carlmont its first league loss of the season 2-1 Friday afternoon at Umland Stadium.

"We took the fight to them," Burlingame head coach Jakob Kirschenbaum said. "We didn't want to wait around. The boys brought a lot of fight. We played hard and we got it done."

The Scots (3-1 in PAL Bay, 6-2-2 overall) haven't played from behind very much this season, but Burlingame (2-1, 3-3) put them in a 2-0 hole midway through the second half courtesy of Gabe Hyman's second goal of the day.

While Hyman is new to the Burlingame varsity ranks, he instead brings plenty of worldly experience. The junior played abroad last year as an international student at International School of Amsterdam in the Netherlands. While there, he scored many a multi-goal performance. But Friday's two-goal output was a new season-high for the gutsy forward.

A native of Burlingame, Hyman has plenty of experience with not only his Panthers teammates, but many on the Carlmont roster as well. Upwards of eight players, four on each roster, played San Mateo County FC club soccer growing up, with several of them breaking off to play with the adjunct Star Academy last summer.

"This is a huge win," Hyman said. "We were talking about it all through club season. So this is a big deal for us."

Before heavy rains started hammering the field, Burlingame struck first with the only goal of the opening half. The Panthers were having trouble pushing attacks through the top tier during the opening 20 minutes, but in the 22nd minute junior Kelly Wakasa took a speedy dribble up the sideline to send in a deep cross in for Hyman. A Carlmont defender was actually positioned between Wakasa and the assist pass, but whiffed on the deflection, with the ball skipping right to the foot of Hyman, who stilled it and struck pay dirt with a clean goal to give the Panthers a 1-0 lead.

With heavy rains pounding the field for the rest of the half and early in the second, Burlingame found a way to ignite its offensive attacks, with two huge chances to open the second half, but on both tries the Burlingame forwards couldn't get enough traction to outrun Carlmont's defensive pursuers, seeing both tries end in disappointment.

But after Carlmont freshman Milan Rosic just missed a sharp shot in the 48th minute, having the open look from just inside the hash slice just wide of the upright, Burlingame added a critical insurance goal.

In the 58th minute, Burlingame sophomore Kai Galia scrapped for possession amid a logjam of defenders halfway down the end line. Instead of bringing the ball out, Galia threaded the needle down the end line and into yet more traffic, but Hyman was laying in wait behind the pack. With the slick playing surface, the ball rattled off a defender and right to Hyman, who took it off the chest and put it to the floor to exact a close-range score, giving Burlingame the key 2-0 advantage.

"I saw [Galia] was down the line and knew he didn't have a great angle," Hyman said. "But he is a great player, so I knew he was going to get it in."

With their backs to the wall, however, the Scots turned up the intensity. Burlingame managed just one more shot on goal throughout, with Carlmont pushing most of the action.

In the 61st minute, the Scots missed a golden opportunity when a Burlingame foul deep in the penalty box resulted in a Carlmont penalty kick. But the Scots' leading scorer, senior Brett Fitzpatrick, sent the penalty kick sailing over the crossbar.

Then, in the 69th minute, the miss loomed even larger when Fitzpatrick converted his team-best 11th goal of the season. The Scots worked the ball nicely into Fitzpatrick, with senior Alexander Chernikov passing to junior Antonio Barba, who threaded the assist pass into Fitzpatrick to cut the lead to 2-1.

Fitzpatrick wasted no time celebrating, instead scooping the ball up and sprinting to midfield to provoke the ensuing kickoff with 10 minutes still remaining in regulation. The senior team captain said it was an odd feeling, playing from behind.

"It was definitely something new because usually we're the first team to score," Fitzpatrick said. "But we have to get used to it that not every game is going to go like that, and we have to get used to playing when we're down."

But Burlingame's defense was on task, with junior goalkeeper Evan Glatt tabbing his last of seven saves on the day in the closing 10 minutes to preserve the upset.

The win marks the second league victory of the season for Burlingame. With the loss, Carlmont falls into a first-place tie with Menlo-Atherton, as the Bears walloped South City 6-1 Friday.

SAGANING EAGLES LANDING CASINO & HOTEL

Saganing Eagles Landing Casino & Hotel is one of the nearly two dozen tribal casinos in Michigan. It is owned and operated by the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe of Michigan.

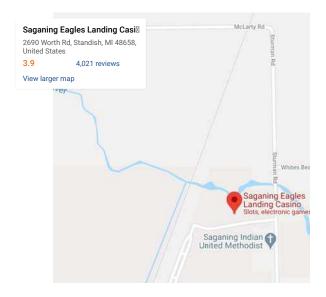

The casino hosts more than 800 slot machines. However, thanks to a 2019 expansion, the property now has enough space to install up to 400 more games onsite.

The property also features a 148-room five-story hotel, a hospitality suite, and three restaurants. With the recent expansion and the news that sports betting is in the plan for the casino, it's safe to say that things are looking up for Saganing Eagles Landing. Here's a guide for those who are thinking about a journey to Standish.

Casino players have to be 18 and over at Saganing Eagles.

SAGANING EAGLES LANDING ONLINE PARTNERSHIPS

Michigan jumped into online gambling with both feet when it legalized online casinos, online poker, and both retail and online sports betting in late 2019. Some of Michigan's casinos have been more forthcoming about their plans than others, but we do know that some manner of online presence is in the works for Saganing Eagles Landing.

So far, casino officials have indicated that they are planning to place 20 sports betting kiosks at the Standish location for in-person wagering. The report also mentioned that legal sports betting online would be part of the plans for those unable to travel to the physical property.

An announcement from sister property Soaring Eagle Casino Resort in Mount Pleasant indicated that retail sports betting would open their in mid-January. There's also a sports betting operation planned for Saganing Eagles Landing with sports betting kiosks in the Creekside Lounge.

The Soaring Eagle announcement also said a sports betting operation and online casino partnership would be detailed soon.

The Michigan launch of online gambling is expected soon, perhaps by December 2020.

SAGANING EAGLES LANDING CASINO & HOTEL

The expansion also included a nign-limit gaming area and a VIP lounge. So, there is a wider selection of limits and options from which players can choose.

Within the slot machines, there are standard slot titles from many different developers. There are also video poker opportunities and some limited virtual table games offering the chance to play blacklack and roulette games in Michigan.

Each week, Saganing Eagles Landing has several promotions running as a way to reward patrons for their loyalty. Most of them offer the promise of earning $100 in Premium Play for either frequent or lucky players. However, at least one promotion at Saganing Eagles bears the possibility of a six-digit win. Here are the promotions:

- Pearl Drop: On Fridays and Saturdays, two players each hour will receive a chance to win $100,000 in cash. The promotion will be in effect from 6 to 11 p.m. on the days listed.
- Hump Day Free Play: Grinding on Wednesdays can be worth big bucks. You can earn up to $25 for your play on "hump day" according to the following schedule:
 - o 300 points = $5 in premium play
 - 800 points = $10 in premium play
 - 1600 points = $25 in premium play
 - In addition to the monies earned, players can also take part in the Hot Seat Drawing each hour between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. The selected player will receive a stuffed camel with a voucher for up to $100 in Premium Play.
- Make It Rain Mondays: The Hot Seat promotion will also be in effect on the first day of the week. One lucky patron will win $100 in Premium Play every hour between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.
- Weekend Winnings: Each Sunday, 25 randomly chosen players will receive Premium Play prizes between $5 and $100 in value.
- Payout Party: If you've already won a jackpot at Saganing Eagles Landing or any other casino in the last 30 days, you can add to your winnings by bringing your tax form to SELC. Anyone who brings a W-2C with a jackpot win in the last month can enter a special drawing for an extra cash prize.
- Bonus Play Payday: On select days, qualifying members of the Access Loyalty Club can receive Premium Play between 8 a.m. and 11:59 p.m. The bonus is only good for that day, though, so make sure to use it well.
- Last But Not Least Thursday: On one selected day, visit promotional kiosks every time you earn 100 points from your play. Each visit is worth an entry into a drawing for a $750 cash prize.

ACCESS LOYALTY CLUB

The Access Loyalty Club is the loyalty program operated by the Saginaw Chippewa to reward loyal customers at their two casino locations and their waterpark. Customers can earn points for their time spent at Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort, the Saganing Eagles Landing Casino & Hotel, and Soaring Eagle Waterpark & Hotel. The card also extends to the Waabooz Run Golf Course and Hideaway RV Park that is part of the waterpark venue.

Points are awarded based upon the dollar amount that each customer spends and the activity upon which they spend their money. For every dollar that a customer spends, he or she will earn points according to the following schedule:

- Bingo 20 points
- Hotel room or RV space 10 points
- Slot machine 2 points
- Video poker 1 point
- All other activities 4 points

For every 1,000 points that the player acquires, they can convert into a single rewards dollar. This cash is usable on slots, casino table games, and bingo. However, table game conversions must occur in $5 increments.

For every 500 points, the player can convert into a Rewards dollar for use on other activities. Possible uses for these Rewards dollars include dining, shows, concert tickets, hotel stays, and the spa.

SAGANING EAGLES SPORTSBOOK

First and foremost, the casino does not have a sportsbook on property yet. We will update this section as things become clearer, but we want to make that clear so that nobody goes out of their way or gets lost looking for it onsite.

However, sports betting is certainly coming to the property in Standish. Mike Bean, CEO of sister property Soaring Eagle Casino, has publicly revealed that both properties will be outfitted with 20 betting kiosks for sports betting. Soaring Eagle announced that its sportsbook would open in Ascend in mid-January 2021.

Also, the multi-million dollar expansion that SELC completed in 2019 included a sports bar as one of the new amenities. Creekside Lounge will be the spot for sports betting in Standish.

In addition, Bean said sports betting plans for the casino also include an online option. At the time of the interview announcement in October 2020, Bean expected that the two properties would debut their sports betting operations in a matter of months.

SAGANING EAGLES HOTEL AMENITIES

Saganing Eagles Landing took the final step into becoming a true destination resort in 2019. The property added several key features and amenities to fill out the experience for visitors to Standish.

HOTEL

The hotel itself is five stories tall and features 148 guest rooms. The rooms come in two varieties: standard and king suite.

Standard rooms come equipped with either a king-sized bed or two queen-sized beds. Each room features a 55" flat screen television, a drawer safe, a coffee maker, iron, and hairdryer. While the room does not come with a bathtub, there is a luxury shower available.

The king suites are a more luxurious affair and come with several key additions on top of the common amenities in the standard rooms. They also come with an additional half bathroom, living space, sleeper sofa, and mini-fridge.

One of the biggest improvements to the property in 2019 came in the form of a full-service restaurant. Up until the debut of The Landing, most of the selections onsite were self-service or continental-style.

However, The Landing is now available for service during breakfast, lunch, and dinner. The diverse menu hits all the traditional favorites, from chicken and waffles in the morning to a center-cut sirloin for dinner. Between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m., you should be able to eat comfortably in this stylish new venue.

The Landing is not the only place to grab a bite to eat at SELC, though. The two other food service options are still very much on the table.

The first place to go is Aerie Cafe. This restaurant is designed to cater to anyone and everyone at all hours of the day.

Along with the burgers and fried chicken that you may expect, there is an entire section of the Aerie's menu dedicated to Koegel Dogs. Although the brand's hot dogs are no surprise, it's nice to know where to find Polish sausage and bratwurst after a hard session on the machines.

Finally, if you're primarily feeling thirsty, you can try the fare at the Creekside Lounge. This bar with food service offers daily happy hour deals and pub food that can hit the spot. Creekside also has several in-bar video poker machines to help you pass the time or, just maybe, pay for your drinks.

SAGANING EAGLES LANDING CASINO HISTORY

Saganing Eagles Landing Casino has been content to fly mostly under the radar for its entire history. Even its debut in 2008 was understated and came without lights, explosions, or anything outside of the new chorus of slot machine sounds.

To be clear, SELC errs far more on the side of functionality than it does glamour. The location debuted with roughly 700 slot machines, no table games, and has kept things simple ever since.

However, simplicity does not equate to a lack of popularity, and SELC has experienced anything but quiet since its launch. By 2 p.m. on opening day, the entire property was filled to the brim, and personnel was having to limit each player to a single machine.

Amazingly, contemporary reports suggest that the novelty has never really died down at the Standish location. Trip reports consistently show that spaces in the parking lot are at a premium and the interior is always busy.

What's even more impressive is the fact that the casino spent its first nine years of life without an attached hotel or full-service restaurant. Both amenities are considered staples of most successful casinos, so SELC's success without either feature underlies how popular the location is.

However, the venue has always been meant for bigger things, and the undying activity is likely what inspired casino management to undertake a two-year renovation project in 2017. The multimillion-dollar project pledged to add 138,000 more square feet to the existing operation.

The new areas would be used to add 400 more machines to the gaming floor and a lounge with seating for 100 guests. More importantly, SELC would finally have its dedicated hotel property and full-service restaurant.

Renovations completed in mid-2019 and the 148-room hotel opened for business. So, too, did The Landing, which serves classic American fare for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

With sports betting soon to land at Saganing Eagles Landing Casino, the next decade is sure to be an interesting one at the little casino by the bay.

NBA Tuesday same game parlay: Philadelphia 76ers vs Boston Celtics (+1142)

≥ NBA NBA

See Bio chevron-down

The fine people at TNT are bringing us two NBA games back to back tonight so the least we can do is get down on them. The first one will be at 7:30pm ET when the Philadelphia 76ers take on the Boston Celtics (+3) in Boston. That is where we will look for our same game parlay tonight. There are edges to be found if you just look hard enough and we may have one here. At +940, it's hard not to at least take a stab.

Let's take a look at the best options for this showdown and don't forget to check out our full game preview for picks on the cide and total

Danny Green to record 3+ made threes (+122)

Parlay odds: +1142

Jayson Tatum to record 3+ made threes (+110)

It seems crazy to take this many Celtics to make three-pointers but is it? Over past 10 games, no team in the NBA has attempted more three-pointers than Boston. They are full-on chuck and duck so why not take advantage. Jayson Tatum has taken at least seven and as many as 12 threes in his last six games. He's drained a minimum of three of those attempts in five out of six of those games. He's a great place to start tonight.

Kemba Walker to record 2+ made threes (-330)

Next up is Kemba Walker. The price tag on this one is a little hefty, but it's for good reason. He's taken at least six three-pointers in each of his last ten games. Even better, he's made at least two of them in all ten games. The Celtics are averaging 16.8 made threes per game over their last ten games. If they get to that number tonight, it is a very safe bet that Kemba Walker has at least two of this makes.

games. He averaging time attempts per game over that span which is the type of volume we want to see from a per like this. Philadelphia does a decent job of covering the perimeter as they are middle of the pack in the association in three-point defense. They can be had though, as they just allowed the Grizzlies to drill 42% of their threes last game. If the Celtics are just average, Jaylen Brown should make at least three.

Danny Green to record 3+ made threes (+122)

The Celtics are not the only ones making it rain lately as Danny Green is too. In his lat 10 games, Green has attempted 78 three-pointers. He has hit at least three in eight of those ten games. There is concern that with Joel Embiid back, Green won't get as many shots but just the other night against the Timberwolves, Green was able to reach this number in only 27 minutes. He is the 76ers undisputed three-point specialist and they should need him tonight.

Durham, N.C. – For just the second time in its program history the Saint Francis men's basketball team will take on the top ranked team in the AP Poll when it faces Duke on Tuesday night at the famed Cameron Indoor Stadium. The game will be televised on ESPNU at 9 p.m. ET.

Scouting Duke

The top-ranked Blue Devils are led by freshman phenom Marvin Bagley who is averaging 22.0 ppg and 11.2 rpg. Bagley teams up with Wendell Carter Jr. to form one of the top front courts in the country. As a team, Duke is fifth in the country in offensive rebounding (16.11 per game). Bagley and Carter combined to average 20.1 total rebounds per game. Senior Grayson Allen is second on the team in scoring at 17.4 ppg. He is shooting 45.6% from three-point range. The Blue Devils average 90.7 points per game, 12th in the country.

Series History

Red Flash vs. Top-Ranked Opponent

Saint Francis will face the No. 1 ranked team in the AP Coaches' Poll for just the second time in school history. The only other time it happened was on Jan. 24, 1974, 78-58 defeat to Notre Dame. NBA Hall of Famer Adrian Dantley scored a game-high 22 points. Rick Hockenos led the Red Flash with 14 points.

MAKE IT RAIN

While junior guard Andre Wolford (Willowick, Ohio/Saint Ignatius) stole the show on Saturday night with eight three-pointers on 11 attempts, one shy of the single-game school record, the rest of the team also shot lights out from three-point range. As a team, Saint Francis went 15-of-24 from behind the arc (62.5%), its most three-point field goals vs. a Division I opponent in a decade. A season-high seven different players knocked down at least one three. The Red Flash have made 35 three-pointers in its last three games (11.7 per game).

PROTECT THE RIM

A big key for this Saint Francis team is its ability to rebound and defend the rim. Saint Francis is 0-3 when outrebounded and 0-3 when outscored in the paint. Protecting the rim was a critical part of SFU's demise on Saturday night as Stony Brook scored 50 points in the paint and shot 65.7% from the field in the second half.

TURNOVER TROUBLE

A strength of this Red Flash team is its guard play and ability to take care of the basketball. The Red Flash will be looking to get back to its basics at Duke on Tuesday as it has committed at least 18 turnovers in each of its last three contests after averaging just 10.5 per game through the first four games of the season. Turnovers sparked the Seawolves' comeback on Saturday as the Red Flash yielded a

Syracuse Goes from +9000 National Championship Odds to +5000 Entering Sweet 16

- The Syracuse Orange were not even a lock to make the NCAA Tournament and now they are in the Sweet 16
- The Orange are showing that anything can happen in March
- Read on to find out if the Boeheim & Son can continue its run in the Big Dance

In the days leading up to the Selection Sunday, there was debate as to whether or not the Syracuse Orange would even be in the field of 2021 NCAA Tournament. The Orange finished the regular season with an 18-9 mark but only eighth in the ACC. They squeaked in as an 11-seed and weren't given much of a chance to win as their average odds to win the tournament (Inttps://www.sportsbettingdime.com/college-basketball/tournament-champion-odds/) were +13333 before it started.

After their first-round win over San Diego State, their odds improved to +9000 as the field was cut in half. After their latest win over West Virginia their odds have shrunk to +2900. At some point, bettors have to start asking themselves, "can Syracuse win the whole thing"?

The table below shows the movement in the national championship odds from March 19th to $^{\circ}$

2021 NCAA Tournament Championship Odds

Team	Current Odds	March 19th Odds
Gonzaga	+180	+205
Baylor	+370	+533
Houston	+850	+1667
Michigan	+1000	+917
Loyola Chicago	+1250	+4600
Arkansas	+1600	+3367
Iowa	+1650	+1767
Alabama	+2233	+1800
Villanova	+2300	+5600
Syracuse	+2900	+9000

Oregon	+8000	+9000

Oklahoma	+10000	+12000
Abilene Christian	+19000	+25000
Ohio	+19000	+25000

Odds represent the average at online sportsbooks as of March 22, 2021.

Syracuse Can Score the Basketball

The Orange can score with anyone in the country. They have the 15th-most-efficient offense in the country (adjusted for opponent) according KenPom. Led by Buddy Boeheim, they are one of the more dangerous teams in the county shooting the ball. They can get hot at any moment and when they do, watch out, because they can hit from anywhere.

On the season, they averaged 75.9 points per game which was good for 54th in the nation. What's most impressive is the fact that they don't play very fast, ranking 147th in pace. They don't waste opportunities on the free-throw line either as they are 16th best in the nation from the charity stripe. Teams are simply tasked with outscoring the Orange as they are basically unstoppable on offense.

Making It Rain

So far the strategy for the Orange in the tournament has been to shoot the lights out from behind the three-point line. In their round one win over San Diego State, the Aztecs could do nothing but watch helplessly as the Orange drained three after three right in their faces. When the smoke finally cleared, Syracuse had gone 15-27 from distance. In their next game against West Virginia, they went right back to the well.

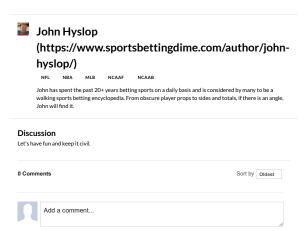

Although the game against the Mountaineers was much closer, than their round one win, the Orange still had their way behind the three-point line. They went 14-31 from distance in round two bringing their running total for the tournament to a ridiculous 29-58 (50%). They will be a tough out for anyone if they continue to shoot like that.

How Far Can They Go?

At first they were a cute story but as some point bettors will have to start taking the Orange seriously. Although the road to the national title will only get harder from here, it's not impossible. Their next game is against Houston which could be the end of the road for Syracuse.

Only 11 teams in the country did a better job defending the three than Houston this season which could be a problem for the Orange. They only allowed opponents to connect on 29.3% of long range attempts on the season. All hope isn't lost though as they just allowed Rutgers to hit 43.8% in their last game

If the Orange get past Houston it will mean a date with either Loyola Chicago or Oregon State. If they survive that, Baylor could be waiting. At this point, Syracuse does not seem like a great bet value wise to win this thing at +5000 since they will likely have to beat Baylor and Gonzaga. Still, they are firmly in play up until those matchups given how they are shooting from deep.

TRAIL BLAZERS TOP 100

Blazers Top 100: The Man Who Changed Everything

A look at the 100 players and personnel who have influenced the Trail Blazers' 50-year history.

The Trail Blazers' 50-year anniversary season is temporarily on pause as the NBA goes on hiatus to slow the spread of COVID-19. During that break, Blazer's Edge is counting down the top 100 Blazers: players, executives, and other influencers who made the franchise what it is today.

No. 9 | Paul Allen

Owner, 1988-2018

Place in History:

For the first 48 years of their existence between 1970-2018, the Portland Trail Blazers operated under two ownership regimes.

The first, captained by co-founder Larry Weinberg (initially with fellow investors Herman Sarkowsky and Robert Schmertz) carried Portland through the 1977 World Championship and most of the 1980's. By 1988, Weinberg had tired of the game. Its evolution, stylistically and financially, was more than he bargained for in the early years of expansion. By his own admission, he had received frequent offers to buy the Blazers in the past. Now Weinberg was ready to pass on the franchise to a qualified buyer. "Qualified" in this case meant, "Would keep the team in Portland" and of course, "Had enough money to buy it."

The man who fit both criteria was a 35-year-old ex-Microsoft executive named Paul Allen.

Microsoft and Money

Many computer industry pioneers during the technology boom of the 1980's found themselves with more money than they knew what to do with. Allen was near the tippy-top of that pyramid. He had worked alongside Bill Gates as co-founder of the company that had developed the most ubiquitous piece of computer software known to mankind. Unless you had an Apple product—comparatively few in the 80's did—you were running Windows and putting money in the pockets of Gates and Allen. Office suites and other productivity apps followed; Microsoft pretty much took over the world.

Internal conflict and a diagnosis of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma—a rare form of cancer—would bring Allen's in-the-trenches tenure at Microsoft to a close in 1983. He retained a position on the board of directors and, more importantly, a semi-truck full of stock. When Microsoft went public in 1986, Wall Street couldn't keep up with the demand for their shares. The rapid inflation in price left Allen a billionaire.

Most of us would consider $100,000 a pretty good salary. A million dollars has long been the standard for identifying as "rich". More than that and the figures start to blur. We toss hundred thousand, million, and billion into congruent sentences assuming they're the same thing, just in slightly different scale. They're not.

A million is ten times a hundred thousand.

A billion is a thousand times a million.

Put another way, a billion dollars equals the $100,000 salary that would make you comfortably well off, paid to you each year for the next 100 centuries.

Allen and Gates didn't stop at a billion dollars either. They had tens of billions. At the time Allen purchased the Blazers, superstar shooting guard Clyde Drexler was making $1.2 million per year. Conservatively, the new owner could have paid Drexler for the next 4167 years. If he invested wisely, Allen still would have ended up on the Forbes Top 100 Richest People list at the end of it.

Playing in the NBA

Today, ultra-rich folks owning NBA teams is taken for granted. In 2020, the Memphis Grizzlies occupied the lowest spot on Forbes' ranking of NBA franchise values. They're valued at $1.3 billion. You practically have to be a billionaire to buy in.

This was not true back in 1988. Whether owners made their bones in real estate or big business, sports franchises were supposed to be an investment. They generated money through profit, tax write-off, or resale at an inflated price...hopefully all three. The NBA was a business. Even though they were technically in competition, owners watched out for each other, making sure that nobody did anything that could endanger the league's competitiveness, or worse, profitability.

Allen's enormous wealth threatened to upset the balance. He didn't need his team to make money in order to prosper. His net worth matched the GDP of several nations already. A few millions, or even tens of millions, wasn't going to matter either way. He wasn't from any old guard elite class either. He was not a classic businessman or sports promoter. He wasn't old enough to be "old guard" anything. All of this was new for the insular sports league. Portland's owner was a wild card.

Have you ever seen people playing Warhammer in game stores or shopping mall space, in churches or libraries? It's the game with all the miniature space-soldier robot figures spread out on huge tabletop battlefields, around which people in weirdly-inscribed t-shirts scuttle with rulebooks and dice. Unless you're part of the group, it seems weird and arcane.

Even from a distance, you can tell how much time and effort these gamers have spent on their collections of miniatures, carefully laid out and lovingly painted. You can feel the number of paychecks and hours poured into the hobby. Tenure, dedication, and resources become identity markers, barriers separating insiders from outsiders.

Imagine for a moment being in one of those Warhammer groups. You know the lingo and own the rulebooks. You lovingly spend dollars and weekends getting just the right figures for your collection. You know where you stack up in the group hierarchy with playing ability and collection size. Other people might not understand your passion—we're looking at you, mom and dad—but it's your delicate, complex little environment.

So you and your buddies are playing one Saturday night when New Guy walks into the mall. He comes right up to the table. "Warhammer!" he says. "I've loved this game forever, but only from afar. Mind if I join and play?"

"Sure!" you reply, ready to initiate the new guy into the hobby. "This is my favorite figure. I have a standard version but I painted this one as an alternate. I'm 15-6 when I use it."

"Oh yeah, I have one of those!" says your new friend. Then he snaps his fingers as six dudes in suits bring in steamer trunks full of every figure that's ever existed, most of them meticulously painted by the Picassos of the industry, a few of them solid gold with gemstone accents.

"I figure I needed a few to start out with. Hope that's enough."

After you pick up your jaw off the floor you gasp, "I thought you said you didn't play?!?"

"No, seriously, I don't. I just had these shipped in this week."

If you can empathize with normal hobbyist when New Fantastically Rich Guy shows up, you'll also understand how Allen threatened the balance and culture of the NBA.

Nevertheless, money was money, and Allen did promise to keep the team in place. He had been a part of the Blazers tradition, growing up and living in the Pacific Northwest, including across the river in Vancouver, Washington. He understood what the NBA Championship and Blazermania meant to the community. He also had a deep passion for basketball. In most ways, he was an ideal candidate to own the team.

In 1988, Allen signed on the dotted line. Then everybody sat back and waited to see what the rich new guy would do.

The Initial Moves

At first, the answer was, "Not much, overtly."

Allen inherited a team on the rise. Drexler had long been in the fold. He was now one of the premier players in all the league. The Blazers had already drafted Jerome Kersey and Terry Porter. They'd traded for Kevin Duckworth. Their first significant deals under Allen were trading oft-injured center Sam Bowie for veteran power forward Buck Williams and drafting Connecticut forward Clifford Robinson in the second round. Both turned out solid gold.

Allen spent his first five years as owner enjoying two NBA Finals trips with a 63-win season in between. His most noticeable public contribution during this time was to make the Blazers one of the first NBA teams with their own chartered plane, top of the line. Players and coaches approved.

As it turned out, Allen's first big move didn't come on the court. It literally was the court.

Since their inception in 1970, the Blazers had played in Veteran's Memorial Coliseum. Its seating capacity of 12,888 gave rise to the fabled 814-game home sellout streak which had formed franchise identity over multiple generations. The Coliseum was old, though, and had none of the modern amenities teams depended on to enhance revenue.

When most professional owners need an arena, they pressure the city to build one for them, threatening to move or sell the franchise if demands aren't met. A decade later, this issue would eventually doom the relationship between the city of Seattle and their beloved Supersonics. But Allen wasn't "most owners".

The Blazers negotiated with the city over a new building; it wouldn't be prudent or possible not to. Things went pretty smoothly when Allen said, "Give me the ground underneath the arena, I'll build the building out of my own pocket. You keep the surrounding area and we'll both draw revenue." Envisioning a new, bustling district, the city said yes.

Construction on the "Rose Garden" (now Moda Center) was started in 1993. The building opened in 1995 with a seating capacity of over 21,000, later dropped to just below 20,000.

The move showed a couple things about Allen's style. First of all: Need an arena? Buy an arena! No big deal. Second, there was little doubt that adding 60% to seating capacity was going to bring an end to the sellout streak. The Blazers were fine with that. Given the choice between holding onto the past and jumping into the future, Allen would choose the latter.

Fingerprints on the Franchise

Allen scored a coup in the Summer of 1994 when he hired away Bob Whitsitt from the Seattle Supersonics to become the new General Manager in Portland. Whitsitt had just won the NBA Executive of the Year Award. This was the owner's first real "flex" move. Even if he wasn't getting along with Sonics management, there was no reason Whitsitt—the hottest executive in the league—should look at the Trail Blazers, by then a team in decline. Allen's creative license and dollars brought him into the fold anyway.

With Drexler aging and succumbing to injury, Whitsitt and Allen faced a franchise-changing moment. Clyde meant everything to the Blazers. He also wanted to win rings while he still had productive years left. The problem would have been solved had the Blazers been able to draft University of Houston teammate Hakeem Olajuwon back in 1984 instead of Bowie, but that ship had sailed. "The Dream" wasn't coming to Portland, so "The Glide" wanted to move to Houston. Reportedly Allen would have preferred Clyde to stay. It wasn't going to work.

The ensuing trade—Drexler for Otis Thorpe, who would be gone in a year—created an overwhelming, "Now what?" feeling around the franchise. They were at a serious crossroads. The players around Drexler had brought unparalleled success, but they weren't getting any younger themselves and they weren't capable of making a title run without him. The Blazers could have ridden out a wave of nostalgia, fielding players who engendered goodwill in place of victories. Instead, within a two-year period, Whitsitt dumped them all.

The shock of having so many familiar faces depart at once would have been show-stopping had the Blazers given anyone time to consider it. Reflection got drowned out in the new wave of players Whitsitt acquired for his team using his owner's open pocketbook.

Allen's answer to, "Now what?" was, "Make it rain."

During this period from 1995-2003, Whitsitt earned the moniker "Trader Bob". His propensity to make deals every season became legendary. He moved players like trading cards, trying to increase value and production. Players on the rise, high draft picks that weren't in the right place, established veteran stars who needed a new home...Whitsitt grabbed them all. He wouldn't have been able to do so without the green light from Allen, who was always willing to pay for it.

Whitsitt and Allen scooped up Rasheed Wallace, Damon Stoudamire, Scottie Pippen, Steve Smith and at least a dozen other players casual fans would recognize instantly. Center Chris Dudley, at that time in reasonable demand, signed a deal with the Blazers that paid him a pittance compared to his true value. People scratched their heads until they noticed it had an opt-out after the first year. Once Dudley exercised the opt-out, Allen was going to make him a rich man. This was typical of the Paul-Bob duo. Everything that would squeeze under salary cap rules (or fly through loopholes) the Blazers would try.

To underline the point, take a look at Portland's 1999-2000 roster:

Rasheed Wallace, Damon Stoudamire, Scottie Pippen, Steve Smith, Greg Anthony, Stacey Augmon, Brian Grant, Arvydas Sabonis, Jermaine O'Neal, Detlef Schrempf, Bonzi Wells, Antonio Harvey, Gary Grant, Joe Kleine

It was during this era that the "Best owner in Pro Sports" phrase came into common use when executives described Allen. Roughly translated it meant, "Willing to try anything, packing a nearly-unlimited pool of resources to pull it off."

The Quiet Years

As trite interview candidates have told us for ages, every strength can become a weakness. As the millennium flipped, so did Portland's fortunes. The instinct to acquire talent apart from culture considerations, tradition, or identity spun out of control. Like addicts, the Blazers were always seeking their next high, but getting progressively less results from it. They moved center-in-waiting Jermaine O'Neal for Dale Davis. Franchise icon Brian Grant became franchise pariah Shawn Kemp.

Opposing GM's were increasingly reluctant to trade huge value for the players Portland had to offer. Aging stars acquired in prior years became all but untradable, riding out enormous contracts while giving a fraction of their former peak production. New stars like Zach Randolph and Bonzi Wells seemed to lack a cultural compass outside of "score the points, get the money". This seemed wholly apropos for the era.

As the mid-2000's approached, the Blazers entered the darkest days of their history. As bankable stars and wins disappeared, fans deserted in droves. The team began to hemorrhage money. Having ridden their billionaire owner so long, Trail Blazers staffers were deeply enmeshed in the "SPAM" ethos. The acronym stood for "Spending Paul Allen's Money".

When everything was shiny, with wins and praise coming in equal measure, spending big passed muster. Win totals in the 20's, accompanied by newspaper headlines excoriating the team and its management, gave the phrase a dark, ironic tinge. The losses on the arena became so heavy that putting it into bankruptcy began to make sense. At that point, irony turned to anger.

By this time, Whitsitt had been fired. His Wild West trading style was replaced by the suit-and-tie, old sports business model of John Nash and Steve Patterson. That duo would spend the next three years cleaning house, dumping contracts, taking the blame as unpopular hatchet men. Austerity was the new byword. Allen's franchise was resetting to square one, with profitability as part of the package.

The most notable thing about the owner during this time was his public absence. Notoriously publicity-averse in the first place, Allen appeared in front of cameras about as often as a February groundhog. Legend claimed if Paul Allen emerged and saw his own shadow, the Blazers must be getting a new point guard.

During the dark years of the franchise, Allen all but disappeared, leaving his management team to take the hits. Nash and Patterson got incinerated by local media. Arena bankruptcy proceedings made headlines everywhere. Silence reigned from above.

It didn't take long before rumors started swirling that Allen was waiting for the franchise to fail, the better to move it to his now-vacant hometown of Seattle, where he now owned the much-better-performing Seahawks. Others said that the new focus on profitability would make the franchise more attractive to potential buyers.

The Rose Garden remained in bankruptcy between 2004 and 2007. Every time a breeze puffed sideways, Blazers fans debated whether they were losing their team. Given the state of things, they occasionally debated whether they should care.

Fans need not have worried. A Renaissance was on the way for the team and its owner.

The Renaissance

It started with the 2006 NBA Draft, wherein the Blazers secured the rights to Brandon Roy and LaMarcus Aldridge, two players who would turn around the team's fortunes. Things got even better a year later when Portland won the first overall pick in the 2007 NBA Draft. The debate over whether they should select Texas forward Kevin Durant or Ohio State center Greg Oden made national headlines and re-energized the entire community.

Also in 2007, Allen came to terms with creditors, re-purchasing the Rose Garden and making a public proclamation that the Blazers were staying in Portland, period. Everyone exhaled, high-fived, and prepared for a decade of cheering Roy, Oden, and Aldridge as championship contenders.

At this time, Allen replaced Patterson with a fresh young executive named Kevin Pritchard. The new GM was an echo of Whitsitt back in 1993, just a lot nicer and more folksy. He had innovative ideas. He was willing to make moves. The rebirth was complete. The once-absentee owner was seen back in his familiar courtside seats once more, alongside his new General Manager.

Sadly, Pritchard's reign would crumble along with Greg Oden's legs and Brandon Roy's knees. Allen fired his new Golden Boy on draft night, 2010. Famously, the owner allowed Pritchard to make Portland's draft picks on the way out the door.

This began a two-year period in which Allen went through three lead executives: Pritchard, Rich Cho, and interim Chad Buchanan. The owner seemed restless. None of them sufficed.

In 2012, with his back against the wall and people once again questioning his acumen, Allen hired Neil Olshey from the Los Angeles Clippers. At that point, Olshey had to work. If Allen fired one more executive, he was going to be accused of being a General Manager philanderer.

Fortunately, Olshey did. Drafting Damian Lillard in 2012 would begin the newest era of the franchise...from a public relations standpoint, one of its best. It would be the fifth restart under Allen's ownership, also sadly the last.

Passing Onward

Throughout all his decades as owner, Allen had been battling cancer. His health would pop up in the news intermittently, usually to be overwhelmed by the latest trade rumor, the success of the Seahawks, or Allen's ventures into space exploration and science fiction. After a while, non-Hodgkin's lymphoma became part of the background story, always there, seldom thought about.

The disease became noticeable as Allen aged and changed in front of Portland fans. His appearance visibly altered. He covered his bald head with a cap. He began to resemble a frail and aging grandfather more than the lumberjack-bearded computer nerd he had first appeared as.

As Allen declined, fans began to accept, then revere him. Criticisms from the Jail Blazers years were forgotten. Now the Portland faithful remembered fist pumps during playoffs victories, plus all the dollars and years poured into the franchise. Whenever the Moda Center arena crew put Allen's face on the jumbotron screen, crowds erupted in warm cheers. Paul hadn't won a championship. Many experts still claimed that, given his opportunities and assets, the franchise could have done better than they did. Somehow, that just made him more Portland-like.

Paul Allen passed away on October 15th, 2018. It's worth noting that the shock of that announcement hit harder than any news I can recall in the history of the franchise. No other loss has come close, not because Allen was inherently more important as a person, but because of his deep, pervasive impact on the team and its development. No matter what else changed between 1989 and 2018, Allen was there making sure the bills were paid and that the Blazers would find their next step forward. When he passed, he not only stepped into the Great Unknown, he left great unknowns behind him. What would the Blazers do now? What would the future look like? Answers were indiscernible in a way they hadn't been for three decades. In many ways, they still aren't. His sister Jody now owns the team, but nobody can guess what it'll look like. A three-decade relationship isn't easy to replace.

Legacy

The day Allen died I wrote a remembrance of him and his tenure as Trail Blazers owner. It concluded thus:

Was Paul Allen a great owner? That's neither the real question nor his strength. Paul Allen was the owner that any of us would have been if we were allowed to take that seat. This is the guy who bought and played Jimi Hendrix's guitar; who collected props and costumes from the original Star Trek, then devoted a museum to them; who pioneered private space shots before every billionaire on the block was doing them. Who among us would not keep a hotline to our GM's? Who could resist buying up extra second-round draft picks to speculate on, just for fun? Given the chance, we would ALL link up satellites so we could watch our team play across the globe, hire the most interesting minds we could find to manage the process, then show up courtside to see it first-hand.

One of the most touching moments of Allen's tenure with the Blazers came after he battled non-Hodgkins lymphoma for the first time. One night he returned to his familiar arena seat, his ball cap covering a form that looked more frail than usual. As the crowd saw the vacancy filled after the long absence, a buzz began to build, which then erupted into applause and cries of, "Paul!" The nervous public figure smiled wryly, despite himself.

The ovation wasn't because of Allen's personal charisma, brilliant moves, or any great pronouncement. The crowd responded with love because, deep down inside, despite the barriers of money and introversion, he was one of them: mortal, but persevering, a guy just glad to be there to see his team play. In the end, it didn't matter that the "his" in "his team" was far more grandiose than a normal fan could claim. Any guy who would call a friend up at three in the morning to discuss trading for Eric Maynor...any guy who would get on his feet as Kenny Anderson lobbed the ball to Rasheed Wallace for the slam...any guy who would back up that passion year after year with millions of dollars to follow the dream, whether or not it paid off, well...that guy's alright with us.

After all the years, the billionaire and Blazers fans found each other. One suspects Allen's ownership evolved the views and expectations of Blazers fans as much as they changed him. Either way, it all ended up in a good place.

For changes bedrock and surface...for helping to redefine ownership itself...for all the decisions that guided or shook the Blazers franchise for 30 years, we slide Paul Allen into the 9th spot in our Top 100 List of Trail Blazers players and influencers.

Depending on how you look at it, he could have been #1.

Share your memories of Paul Allen below and stick with us as we continue onward to the Top 8 slots.

Video proof Chad Morris has the power to make it rain

I've always maintained that SMU head coach Chad Morris and Biblical figure Moses have a lot in common, and this is yet another example.

Much like Moses, Morris has dominion over forces of nature. Moses called on God to part the Red Sea so the Israelites could complete their exodus from Egyptian slavery, and Morris asked DFO Randy Ross to get a fire truck so his Mustangs could simulate what it's like to play in the rain.

Making It Rain – which premiered on Sky Sports in 2019 – shines a light on the untold stories of Scottish basketball.

The roots of the game run deeper in Scotland than you might think.

Alton Byrd and Bobby Kinzer look back on the fierce rivalry between Edinburgh and Falkirk that helped spark a golden era for the sport in the 1980s. Olympian, Kieron Achara, recounts the success of the national team at the 2018 Commonwealth Games.

And we hear about Robert Archibald's journey against the odds to become the first Scottish player in NBA history.

Archibald died, aged 39, on January 25. The Paisley-born GB international was drafted by the Memphis Grizzlies in 2002 before going on to play for the Phoenix Suns, Orlando Magic and Toronto Raptors.

Robert Archibald played in the NBA for the Memphis Grizzlies, Phoenix Suns, Orlando Magic and Toronto Raptors

Basketball Scotland's chief executive Kevin Pringle said of Archibald: "He was a wonderful man and a great friend, as well as being a trailblazer and an inspiration to others. Throughout his extraordinary career, he always played with pride and determination, and was always a credit to his country, whether representing Scotland or GB at home or abroad.

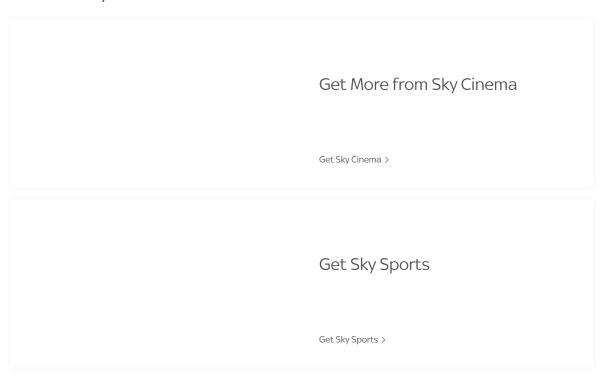

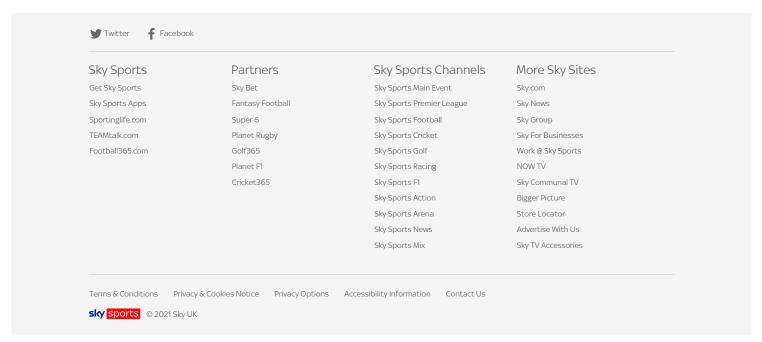

"The basketball community has lost a great role model and a true friend, and the thoughts of the whole community are with his family at this difficult time. We will miss him."

Archibald played 44 NBA games at center or power forward and later enjoyed a successful career in Europe with the likes of Valencia and Joventut Badalona as well as representing Great Britain in the 2012 London Olympics.

Learn more about Archibald's life and career, as well as the history of Scottish basketball, by watching Making It Rain: A Scottish Basketball Story.

Wooden Award Odds: Week 11

(L) Apr 7, 2021 4:08 PM ET | By: matan

It is tough to decide who is worthy of recognition in college basketball as being the most valuable player. But that is what the John R. Wooden Award tries to do every year. Somehow voters sift through the hundreds of players that compete for the 353 Division I schools so that they can recognize just one as the best.

When you consider the enormity of the task, it is hard not to wonder if it is truly the best player that is recognized every year or the most marketable? Do voters select candidates based on their own observations and research?

Or do they lean on highlights and stories they see in the media and online? Handing out such awards can often be a tricky proposition for just that reason. But it is also something that will always be done because we like to recognize excellence.

This season, there are undoubtedly many excellent players taking the court in the NCAA. But who's the best?

Best Sportsbook 2020

[table id=284/]

Wooden Award Odds: Who's Going To Make a Move On Cassius Winston?

With roughly two and a half months of the regular season done and over with, it is safe to say that some players have distinguished themselves as elite players. From those elite players, we will eventually crown one the Wooden Award winner as the most valuable player in college basketball.

Right now, there is a clear favorite (according to DraftKings Wooden Award odds)—Michigan State's Cassius Winston (sr.).

When you are the best player on the team many (well, most) deem the best in the country when the season starts, you are going to be considered for awards such as the Wooden. At the start of the season, many books had his odds of winning as short as +130.

Fast forward to Week 11, and the Spartans are 13-4 and ranked No. 15 in the country (AP). Winston is still the favorite to win the Wooden (+450), but the competition is hot on his tail:

Jordan Nwora (jr.), Louisville (+650): He had a stinker against Kentucky but has otherwise been one of the better offensive players in the country. To win, it would help if his defense could be better down the stretch. An offensive tear may do the trick as well, but playing better defense can't hurt.

Obi Toppin (soph.), Dayton (+650): Casual college basketball fans probably haven't heard of him. But the big forward is averaging a solid 19.5 points a game and is looking poised and ready to lead the Dayton Flyers on a deep run in the tournament this year.

Markus Howard (sr.), Marquette (+700): In a day and time where production is all that matters to some, the nation's leading scorer (26.8 points/game) is going to get MVP-type consideration. Along with making it rain from three-point range (44 percent), he is hitting 86 percent of his foul shots.

But what could hold him back are his struggles inside the arc.

Vernon Carey (fresh.), Duke (+750): When you can star on one of Coach K's teams, then you must be doing something right—and Carey is. However, what could sink him is Coach K's reliance on Carey to carry the team. Because of that, if the Blue Devils falter, he could be blamed.

These aren't the only players worth watching, of course. Payton Pritchard (+1500) is having a great year, as is Devon Dotson, Jared Butler, and Luka Garza (+1800). Other names that bear watching include Udoka Azubuike (+5000), Precious Achiuwa, Anthony Cowan Jr. (+3000), Anthony Edwards (+4000), Malachi Flynn (+2500), Kaleb Wesson (+2500), and Isaiah Stewart (+4000), to name a few.

So—who's going to win? For now, it is too soon to tell. There is a lot of basketball left to be played, plenty of time for someone's star to rise or fall. But one thing to keep in mind before putting your hard-earned money down is this.

Before Zion Williamson winning it last year, the previous five winners had all been upperclassmen (one junior and four seniors). Cassius Winston and Markus Howard are seniors.

LATEST NEWS NBA FREE AGENCY 2016 FREE AGENCY

Zach Lowe: Teams fear Brooklyn Nets will jump the market

By Net Income | Jun 29, 2016, 11:45pm EDT

Noah K. Murray-USA TODAY Sports

In his annual free agency preview, Zach Lowe suggests some names the Nets might pursue -- Kent Bazemore and Jared Dudley (!), but also hints Brooklyn's strategy, overpaying for unrestricted free agents has other teams worried.

Teams are worried Brooklyn will jump the market on unrestricted free agents with ties to new coach Kenny Atkinson (Jeremy Lin, Kent Bazemore), and some under-the-radar young guys.

Lowe didn't name any prospects said that the Nets and 76ers are likely to raise the price tag on "young-ish" free agents.

Philadelphia and Brooklyn will be bad, but early indications are that both will go hard after young-ish free agents with untapped upside. They have enough cap space to make it rain with offer sheets, and at worst, they will drive up both prices and the pace of business in restricted free agency -- bad news for a team like the Warriors, who might need to wait out Durant before making a choice on Harrison Barnes.

The 76ers have been recently linked to Barnes, the Nets not so much. Lowe also names a couple of players the Nets are likely to be interested -- Bazemore, who he says the Nets, Bucks and Grizzlies, in particular, and Jared Dudley of the Wizards. "Brooklyn has strong interest in adding some character veterans, including Jared Dudley, sources say."

Bazemore, 6'5", and Dudley, 6'7", are both swingmen, of which the Nets have a surplus.

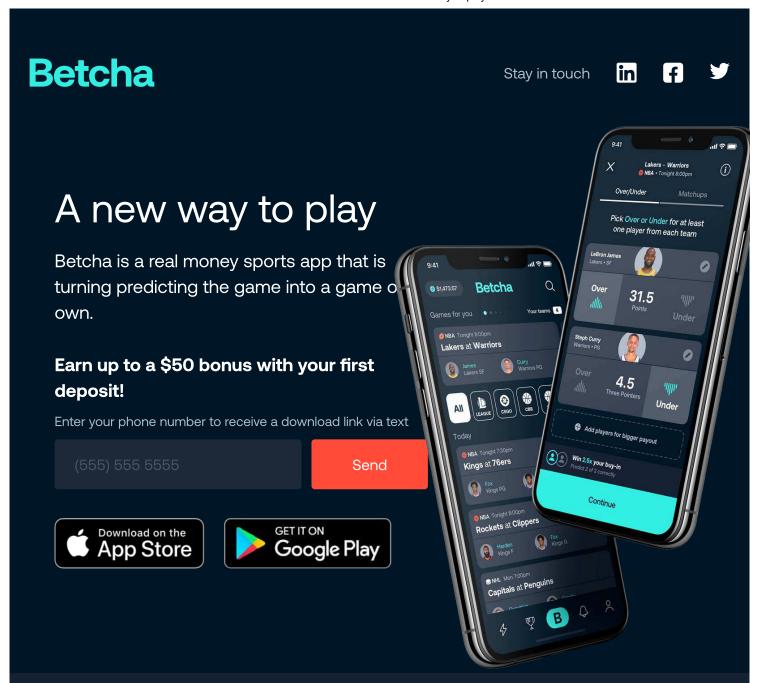

Two players who have been mentioned as potential targets got special attention, with Lowe offering big caveats.

Teams are terrified about [Chandler] Parsons' knees and crow they will hold firm at a number below his max. But Parsons is eligible only for the lowest-tier max deal, starting at about $22 million, and a GM on thin ice with chambered cash might bite that bullet ...

The Kings purchased six months of stat-hoggery from Rajon Rondo, and can now either let him walk or overpay him based on inflated numbers. It's like choosing between cauliflower and lima beans.

Stay tuned.

DRAFTKINGS 100-1 ON ANY TEAM WEEK 3 NFL PROMO

DraftKings is running it back on one of its popular promotions this week.

The sportsbook is handing out 100-1 odds on any Week 3 NFL game.

In other words, bet $1 and you'll win $100. That's an insane value, although it's only available to new users right now.

Since the odds are off the charts, there's only a max $1 bet for the promo.

Sign up for DraftKings to take advantage of the promotion.

Once you do, you'll have to make a deposit of at least $5 into your account.

After that, just find the deal in the "Rewards" section of DraftKings and click "BOOST THIS GAME."

Since it's only for new gamblers, this promo is a great way to build up your new account's balance.

You can use the promo on any NFL game, so placing your 100-1 odds bet on a heavy favorite could be an easy way to lock up a win.

DraftKings' other NFL promotion is a profit boost for Week 3 games.

You can snag a 20% profit boost for every game this Sunday.

With a full slate of NFL action this weekend, that's a lot of opportunities for extra winnings.

BETMGM NFL SUNDAY

The openedect to choing too I dade on the control of the former decide.

However, unlike DraftKings, where the team you pick needs to win for you to get your $100, BetMGM is handling things differently.

With BetMGM, your bet will hit if either team scores a touchdown at any point during that game.

Since that's pretty much guaranteed to happen, this promo is perfect for anyone that doesn't have a BetMGM account yet. The $100 in winnings will be paid out in free bets.

Just click on the link below to get in on the action.

FANDUEL ANYTIME CATCH BONUS

FanDuel's promotion this week is for the Green Bay Packers at New Orleans Saints game on Sunday.

the promotion.

The extra money will be paid out in site credit.

If you feel strongly about a certain player scoring a touchdown in the game, then this is the promo for you.

FanDuel also has a Monday Night Football offer out there for Week 3.

It's only available to Hoosiers, and can only be used from within the FanDuel app.

The promotion gives new users 15-1 odds for Monday night's' Ravens-Chiefs bout.

There's a max bet of $10 for the deal, but that's still a great opportunity to turn a Hamilton into $150.

The promo will appear in the FanDuel app after you've signed up and made your first deposit.

POINTSBET MAKE IT RAIN

PointsBet's "Make It Rain" promotion is back for this week's slate of games.

Make It Rain is available every week, but only on select games.

This week, the promo is giving out free bets for every touchdown in the Miami-Jacksonville game or the Kansas City-Baltimore game.

If you place a bet worth at least $25 on any of the teams in either game, you'll win an extra $6 for every touchdown your team scores.

Make a PointsBet account if you don't have one already.

Next, head over to the sportsbook's "Promos" page to find the deal.

Make It Rain is available for both new and existing users, so everyone can get in on the action.

BETAMERICA NFL TOUCHDOWN SPECIAL

Even BetAmerica is getting in on the NFL fun.

If you place a bet worth $50 or more on any NFL game, BetAmerica will give you a $5 bonus for every passing touchdown your team scores.

Since the sportsbook tends to shy away from promos, now's a good time to give BetAmerica a chance if you're looking for something different.

Everyone wants to be Steph Curry these days, and you definitely will have to cheer for NBA players to make it rain from long range because Nitrogen Sports has come up with another exciting basketball promotion to keep you on the edge of your seat from start to finish.

Introducing, the NitroProp: 12K Tre s for 1 BTC

Nitrogen Sports will give away 1 BTC if the ten (10) pre-selected NBA teams combine for at least 12,000 three-pointers in the 2020-21 NBA regular season. Here are the teams we will monitor for this contest:

Team	3-Pointers Made*
Dallas Mavericks	994
Milwaukee Bucks	1038
Portland Trail Blazers	1132
Miami Heat	932
Brooklyn Nets	1020
Los Angeles Clippers	1027
Phoenix Suns	940
Los Angeles Lakers	796
Golden State Warriors	1048
Atlanta Hawks	895

^{*}Table accurate as of May 17, 2021

If the teams fail to hit the NitroProp (should the total be 11,999 or below), Nitrogen Sports will give away a prize pool equal to the number of three-pointers made by those teams multiplied by 0.00005 BTC (or roughly $1).

For example, if the total was at 11,500 three-pointers made, then the prize pool will be 0.00005 x 11,500 or a prize pool total of 0.575 BTC (Roughly $13,000).

The duration of this exciting NBA NitroProp is from December 21, 2020 to April 21, 2021.

How to Join

- Open to all active players of Nitrogen Sports.
- You must be logged in to your Nitrogen Sports account before you can submit betslips for entries in this promo.
- Fill up the form above by placing your Betslip ID and submit an entry.

Book Review: "Dallio"

SHARE THIS: 00 June 19, 2021

This just in. The Chicago White Sox have passed the New York Yankees as the betting favorite to win the American League pennant. Probably has something to do with the fact that New York has lost seven of its last nine while scoring the second fewest runs in the American League.

If you're already thinking Super Bowl. The Chiefs and Buccaneers are favored to make a return. Buffalo sits third at about 13-1 against. Like longshots? Take the Texans. You can get 300-1.

Wilson Furr is my preferred longshot at the US Golf Open this week at a cool 2500-1 against winning. He was an alternate at qualifying and only got to play when four players withdrew. A dollar and a dream.

Heckler makes it rain dollar bills on Sepp Blatter during press conference

Sepp Blatter did not like this joke.

By Rodger Sherman | Jul 20, 2015, 9:32am EDT

Philipp Schmidli/Getty Images

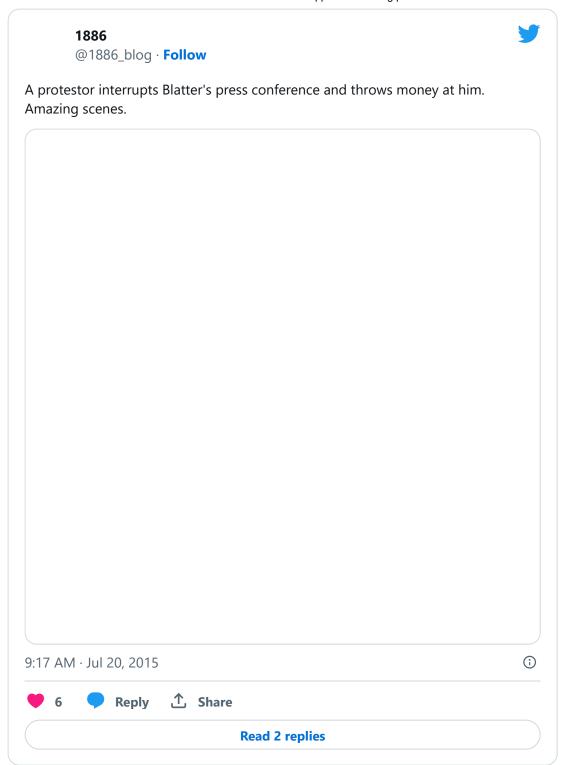

British comedian Simon Brodkin ran on stage as Sepp Blatter was about to give a press conference, tossing a handful of dollar bills at the soon-to-resign FIFA president and claiming to represent the "North Korea 2026" World Cup bid:

The disgraced FIFA president, whose reign will come to an end over a massive corruption scandal, was offput, recoiling as the money came down and leaving the conference until the area was clean.

Brodkin has made a name for himself crashing events where he isn't wanted. The comic, who often plays a character named Lee Nelson, ran onto the pitch to practice with Manchester City in 2013 and recently attempted to perform alongside Kanye West at Glastonbury.

Somewhere, an official in North Korea just reali ed if they did throw enough money at FIFA, they probably could host the 2026 World Cup.

Robbers make it rain cash on a Chilean highway during police chase

By Matthew Sedacca

October 22, 2022 | 1:50pm | Updated

A gambling hall robbery near Chile s capital of Satiago ended with the thieves throwing a bag of money out onto the highway, showering the roadway with cash.

Surveillance video shows the suspects tossing a dark bag from a blue Chevrolet Sail barreling down the highway as they were tailed by cops in hot pursuit following the robbery in a gambling hall in the city of Pudahuel.

One of the police vehicles can be seen running over the bag in the heat of the chase, ripping it open and blanketing the lanes with Chilean pesos.

The thieves stole the equivalent of $10,300 TVN/Reuters/CBS Newspath

Robbery suspects threw a bag of cash out of their window during a police chase after robbing a gambling hall in Pudahuel, Chile. TVN/Reuters/CBS Newspath

Officers in cop cars from further back in the chase then stop stopped traffic on the three-lane thoroughfare, and scamper to collect as much money as they could, but some of the money was blown away or picked up by bystanders.

Police later arrested six suspects.

What do you think? Post a comment.

The thieves reportedly swiped nearly 10 million Chilean pesos, or $10,300, according to local media.

BY B. GEORGE YOUNG
PUBLISHED DEC 14, 2015

By now almost everyone has heard the phrase making it rain, which involves tossing money up in the air to make it look like it s raining down on someone (most often a stripper). Showering dancers with fistfuls of cash is a luxury that many of us cannot afford, but those who can enjoy taking advantage of it. The phrase became popular sometime around 2011 and has been credited to rapper Young Jee y.

Jee y explained to Rolling Stone maga ine that he saw himself like Robin Hood, making money so that the hood could eat. A part of the hood was the strip club When you on that next level, you gotta take care of the city, the streets. All of that consists of going to the strip clubs and throwing up money.

Although this hobby is more prevalent in strip clubs across America, it can also happen anywhere at any time, even when the forecast calls for clear skies. If you happen to be in the right place at the right time, you may just get lucky and start scrambling for as many one dollar bills as you can possibly get your hands on. Here are 10 celebrities who love to make it rain.

Floyd Mayweather

9 / 10

Kendall Jenner

50 Cent

Even though famed rapper 50 Cent filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy, he doesn't seem to be taking it very seriously. 50 has posed for many photos with loads of cash since going bankrupt, and has spent tons of money at strip clubs. He has been seen at the Ace of Diamonds strip club in West Hollywood making it rain on his favorite dancers. He showed up to an After Dark pool party with a big wad of cash and left with none of it. The rapper filed bankruptcy the same day he made it rain because he had two huge judgments against him: a $5 million lawsuit that he owed to Rick Ross, and $17.2 million that he owed to the headphone company Sleek Audio.

Donald Trump

Long before Donald Trump s presidential aspirations took over the country, The Donald was a bit more of a lighthearted and fun loving guy who was involved in professional wrestling from time to time. Trump battled WWE owner Vince McMahon at WrestleMania 23, although the two did not actually wrestle each other, but had wrestlers representing them. Trump s guy Bobby Lashley won the match, and Donald shaved Vince s head. Leading up to that match, Trump appeared on Monday Night RAW where he gave away what was claimed to be McMahon s money by dropping several $10, $50, and $100 bills from the rafters, which was confirmed to be real money.

Drake

We all know that Drake is a baller who seems to turn anything he touches into money. He walked into the Cameo Nightclub in Charlotte, North Carolina with a cardboard box, which caught the attention of the club's strippers and patrons. Drake started pulling out bricks of money which added up for $50 thousand. He then proceeded to throw the money all over the club, causing a huge rain storm. Drake s buddy chipped in for another $25 grand and some of the club s dancers certainly went home happy. Drake has also been seen making it rain at H-town gentleman s club with Rihanna, and at King of Diamonds in Miami with Lil Wayne, where they donated $250 thousand in singles.

O.T. Genasis

Rapper O.T. Genasis may not be very well known, but he made sure to make himself known at the Ace of Diamonds strip club in Los Angeles when he showed up to make it rain with his Cash Cannon money gun. According to the product s official website, the Cash Cannon can be used to distribute paper items in an exciting but controlled motion. Genasis loaded up the gun, which can hold 1,000 bills, and reportedly did so five times, spending a total of $5 thousand. O.T. Genasis released his debut mixtape Black Belt on G-Unit records in 2012 and is best known for his single CoCo .

Amber Rose

Daz Dillinger

Rapper and producer Da Dillinger decided to make it rain in the streets, showering homeless people with dollar bills. While this was certainly a good deed, the way he went about it resulted in a somewhat ridiculous display that seemed a bit insulting to the people he made it rain on. Dillinger was giving away the money as part of a publicity stunt for a website, and for all we know it may not have even been his own cash he was giving out. Da is best known as one half of the hip hop duo Tha Dogg Pound along with Kurupt. His latest album Weed Money was released in 2014, and Dillinger has worked as a producer for Death Row Records. It is not known exactly how much money he made it rain with, but Da Dillinger has a net worth of $1.5 million.

Trey Songz

Usually strippers like when rappers make it rain on them, because that means they get to collect lots and lots of cash to take home. That was not the case when rapper $\underline{\text{Trey Song}}$ hosted the official released party for his album $Chapter\ V$ at a gentleman s club called Club Perfection in Queens, New York. Song threw money at a woman, who pressed charges against him because the money struck her left eye and caused her substantial pain . It is unsure if the woman was actually a stripper at the club. Trey must have done something right, because $Chapter\ V$ went on to reach #1 on both the Billboard 200 and $Top\ R\&B/Hip-Hop\ Albums\ charts$.

Fetty Wap

Instead of making it rain at a strip club, rapper Fetty Wap decided to make it rain during the daytime at the Garden State Pla a Mall in Paramus, New Jersey. Fetty is a native of Paterson, NJ, and was shopping with his daughter. He decided to spread some love and throw $2,000 from the mall s balcony to anyone who happened to be there at the time. Fetty Wap later tweeted Never (k)no(w) who needed it . The rapper has had a big year, dropping his selftitled debut studio album, which reached #1 in the United States and contains the hit singles Trap Queen, 679, and My Way. Fetty Wap can easily afford to make it rain $2 thousand with his net worth of $2 million.

"Make It Rain" is a definite game changer for anyone interested in developing their brand while using the media to strengthen it. Ms Areva Martin, the author, ties these areas together so eloquently and causes the reader to realize their limitless potential. Ms. Martin just doesn't give the reader information to process for themselves, she helps the reader overcome their doubts and she speaks with passion as though she wants ALL readers to be as successful as humanly possible. She tells you her story, breaks down her "successes and challenges" then, she shows you step-by-step how to "Make It Rain." This book is an ABSOLUTE must have course in media branding.

I became familiar with Ms Areva Martin while watching the Dr Drew Show on HLN. Her passion for the topics literally jumped right out of the TV. As I watched her on various shows I immediately became aware of her legal knowledge and research on every subject.

Regardless of the topic or its sensitivity, Ms Martin's talking points were always well researched and presented as a "oh, by the way.....and here is why.." moment which I'm sure

Imagine taking everything you have learned and perfected over the last decade of your career, documenting it, adding examples in the form personal stories and then completely and unselfishly sharing it with others. That is exactly what Areva Martin has done. Every chapter has so much information, it's incredible. As I read through the chapters, I kept writing more notes and expanding my strategy and To-do list. Areva has poured her years of research and success strategies into this book, all that's left is for us to take action and Make It RAin. The book is a testament to Areva's altruistic and caring nature. She wants for us the same success she has worked hard for.

A must read!!!...I've, known Areva since highschool and even as a young teenager it was quite evident that not only would this talented and ambitious young woman excel into becoming an award winning Attorney but her thirst for acquiring the facts would culminate into the inspiring, motivational and eloquent writer she is today.

In Make It Rain, Areva's true talents, passion and authentic desire to share her knowledge and success with others is remarkably depicted throughout every page of this book. Whatever your career aspiration; media, non for profit, sales or Corporate CEO...There are effective tools and tips inside this guide to help amplify your voice and assist with reaching your targeted audience.

Areva, you are truly a Rain Maker and all that read this book will have the necessary insight to also "Make It Rain"!!!

★★★★★ Areva does an excellent job of highlighting the fundamentals of building a brand ...

Reviewed in the United States on March 20, 2018

As a self-employed small business owner, with limited marketing resources, I found "Make it Rain" to be a very timely read. While most of us will likely never appear on a network talk show, Areva does an excellent job of highlighting the fundamentals of building a brand that can be employed at any level. She points out the basic elements of developing a consistent message and provides examples of how to take advantage of business, social and community interactions to reinforce that message and amplify it across social media channels. A must read for anyone looking to increase awareness of their product, service, cause, or agenda!

Worth it only if you are determined to get onto a national TV program. Reviewed in the United States on September 18, 2019 Verified Purchase
This is a review of the book, and quite separate from a more recent incident on which some reviewers are focusing. I was deeply disappointed in Make it Rain, which I read and formed an opinion on before learning anything about the above incident.
Obviously, if one can get one's business before the audience of a national network television show it is going to be a great boost. Therefore, IF that is your serious goal then by all means buy this book. It will no doubt be very helpful even if only for all the names and connection who are mentioned on almost every page. There are quite a few hints that could be helpful in that case. However, before buying it I had understood that it was written for all business people, including entrepreneurs and small businesses owned by people who are unlikely to ever get onto one of the big programs. In fact nearly all of the book concerns just that, national network TV, with numerous examples of all the famous media people that the author knows and how she connected with them Yes, there are a few comments about how similar techniques might work for local TV as well, but clearly that is just an afterthought. Drake's first rule of rap club: make it rain at the strip club

These photos sum up every rap song we've ever heard. Make it rain and then drop it like it's hot. We're pretty sure Drake doesn't even realize there are strippers all around him. His only intention is to make sure that box of money gets dumped out on the floor. Our favorite part is how the strippers' first instinct is to dance in the cash; not pick it up and for that we give this a giant thumbs up.

Make it Rain 2021: Hiding Free Money All Around Downtown TC

April 20, 2021 by Monika Zachara (https://www.9and10news.com/author/monikazachara9and10news-com/), Derrick Larr (https://www.9and10news.com/bios/144763/)

Making the people of Northern Michigan smile a little wider this week, the new Honor Bank Commercial Lending Center in Downtown Traverse City is hosting the 'Make it Rain' event this Wednesday.

After a rough year for many businesses, Honor Bank wants to give back to the community by giving away free money!

(https://www.9and10news.com/content/uploads/2021/04/k/m/frontstreetopening.jpg)

They will be hiding $5,000 in gift cards throughout Downtown Traverse City, "making it rain" to have some fun and most importantly, to support the local businesses and get some people walking through their doors. There are 43 businesses participating in this fun event. It will be a scavenger hunt style, hiding 100 envelopes A DAY, featuring hiding places at these participating businesses and in public places throughout Downtown TC.

The 'Make it Rain' event will be held this Wednesday, April 21 until Sunday, April 25.

For more information on how you can be part of this event and find those gift cards click here (https://www.myhonorbank.com/rain).

Now go find that money!

WHAT WE DON'T INCLUDE

NO Parahen

Like pthalates, not all parabens are created equal. Parabens can be found in nature, especially as antioxidants in blueberries, but some parabens, primarily used as preservatives, have been found to be more toxic than previously thought. Parabens have been shown to cause allergic reactions and exacerbate some skin conditions. Some research has shown that parabens mimic estrogen and can trigger hormone disruption in the body, however, no direct link has been found with consumer goods.

NO SLS/SLES

Sulfates are what make shampoos "sudsy."

Technically, they are known as "surfanctants," and they attract oil and water. They also remove dirt and dead skin cells from skin and scalp. While all

"sulfates" are not "bad" for you, some sulfates, such as SLS and SLES, have been known to strip natural oils from the hair and scalp, cause irritation on the scalp and skin, and cause dry/brittle hair.

NO Phthalates

Phthalates are used to make plastics flexible and lubricate cosmetics.
Technically, we call these "plasticizers."
These are often found in synthetic fragrances. Not all pthalates are bad, but the ones that are harmful are known as "endocrine disruptors," which means their chemical structure mocks the human hormone in the body, potentially causing premature sexual development in young girls, reproductive toxicity, and potentially weight gain in men.

NO Mineral Oil

Mineral oil is used to treat certain scalp conditions, including dandruff or scalp psoriasis. However, mineral oil is a derivative of crude oil - the very same crude oil that is purified into petroleum. The problem with this is the purification process uses toxic chemicals and carcinogens, and if not properly distilled, remain in the mineral oil. While it will not put you in mortal danger, mineral oil has been shown to negatively impact hair growth and also causing lasting disruption to the scalp with those who have sensitivity to it.

How to Use

To use, apply generously to damp hair after cleansing. Leave on for two to three minutes (or longer- you do you) for deeper hydration and conditioning. Rinse thoroughly.

ABOUT THIS GAME

How fast can you make it rain? No, really... how fast??

It's a fiendishly clever game, that's too simple and too easy and too hard and too fun. But what does it all mean...

Well, just start swiping and watch the money pile up. Hundreds, then thousands, then millions, then billions, then kili-billies, mega-billies, and beyond. But to get that much you'll have to make some wise investments!

Maybe you'll invest in venture capital, loan sharking, or offshore drilling.

Maybe you'll start a lemonade stand or a casino or a clown college.

Or maybe you'll buy off a federal judge and watch the dollars roll in!

Or maaaaaybe you prefer to die and share your patrimony with your descendency and be richer again but faster.

Calling COVID-19 "the current enemy of world peace," President Joe Biden announced Thursday that the U.S. purchased 500 million doses of Pfizer's COVID-19 vaccine to donate to 92 low-income countries and the African Union. The U.S. and other wealthy nations have been under pressure to share their vaccine surplus with the rest of the world. Starting in August, donated doses will be distributed through the global vaccine alliance known as COVAX; 200 million will be shared this year, and the remaining 300 million will be donated in 2022. "America knows firsthand the tragedies of this pandemic," Biden said. Nearly 600,000 people in the USA have died from COVID-19 – more U.S. deaths than in both World Wars, the Vietnam War and the 9/11 terrorist attacks combined. Later, British Prime Minister Boris Johnson said the U.K. will donate 100 million surplus vaccine doses within the next year, including 5 million within the coming weeks, primarily for use in the world's poorest countries.

Enjoy the famous mobile game now on your PC!

How fast can you make it rain? No, really... how fast? Make it Rain a fiendishly clever game, that's too simple and too easy and too hard and too fun. Start swiping and watch how your money rises, start with hundreds and finish with mega-billies (if you want to stop as you can earn all the money that you want). Invest your money wisely or otherwise, you will fall into bankruptcy, what about investing in a lemonade stand? And then follow it with a casino or a clown college investment? Do your outlays properly, then maybe when you are too rich you decide to die and share your patrimony with your descendency and start being rich again but faster.

Psst, but there's more than swiping, you can bet all your current money to double it or even multiply it for hundred times in the match-3 minigame, finish with the oil, pigs or buildings to claim your worth and appreciated earning or beg for some money and try it again. Moreover, you can play tournaments where you can earn big prizes, that will help you on your capitalist venture, but remember there's a lot of players looking for these rewards. Are you thinking there isn't anything else? For sure there is! The Rob the Tower mode will let you play five levels of match-3 to earn a lot of goods to make your way to fame.

4/7/2021 Game Troopers

Start swiping bills to discover all the features that Make it Rain brings to you and start your way to the monetary glory!"Make it Rain: The Love of Money is a really easy but really addictive game and bringing to Steam has been a great pleasure" - Marc Pérez, Producer.

Features of Make it Rain on Steam

- Match-3 game mode.
- Tournament mode.
- Lots of customizable bills.
- Rob the Tower mode.
- Steam leaderboards between your friends and all the users in Make it Rain.

Hi, welcome to the Make it Rain bethouse. M4tthog4n will now be running the house and for the foreseeable future we will only be taking moneyline, total runs and run line bets (favourites only for run line bets) for the baseball only. There is now an autocap on every line of betting set at 5 MHC. Any bet after the cap has been hit will be refunded.

You are also welcome to parlay these types of bets

Most of these changes will only be short term while m4tthog4n learns the ropes of running the house. Thanks for betting with make it Rain.

The Rules:

1. All wagers are auto-confirmed. Wagers must be posted and mhc sent to M4tthog4n (http://www.muthead.com/members/m4tthog4n) 5 minutes prior to the listed start time of the game(s). If both these Conditions are not met, there will be no action on the bet and it will be refunded. mhc must be sent at the time the bet is https://old.muthead.com/leagues)

Prices (https://old.muthead.com/leagues)

- 'game will result in no action. 3-way moneylines are fine.

 4. We will accept lines fromBovada (http://www.muthead.com/linkout?remoteUrl=https://sports.bovada.lv/) only at this
- Dead lines will not be considered valid and will be refunded. Intentional and continuing use of dead lines will result in your wagers being forfeited.
- Grading and payouts will be done at the end of the night after all games are completed most nights, in the event that some games run very late we reserve the right to complete payouts the following morning. All bets will be graded according to ruling/definitions provided by Bovada.
- 7. Once a bet is placed it is locked in and cannot be cancelled or changed. If a mistake is made, quote your original bet along with the correction(s). Posts edited prior to game(s) start will result in no action. Posts edited after game start will result in a forfeit of the wager.
- Maximum winnings:
 - · 10 mhc daily cap
 - · 5 mhc for straights
 - · 10 mhc cap for parlays
- 9. We reserve the right to refuse wagers and to lock lines due to heavy action on one side of a game. For the time been there will be an autocap at 5 MHC on each line of betting (moneyline and runline will be added together for cap purposes). Any bet placed after a team has 5 MHC bet on it will be refunded. (parlay bets count towards the total bet on that team).
- 10. Only Baseball bets will be taken at this time:
 - -Straight bets and Total runs
 - -Run line for the favourites only
- 11. Line manipulation/fake lines are prohibited and repeat offenses will result in bets being forfeited. If you are unsure, PM us to ask about a wager beforehand. You may only bet on one side of a game.
- 12. General Parlay rules:
 - · Any parlay with a win amount of over 3 MHC must have at least 1 spread or total.
 - · Parlays may not contain props, alternate lines, or pieces of full game wagers.
 - · Moneylines on teams with a spread of greater than -6 are not allowed in parlays.
 - · Maximum of one -150 or greater line in a parlay.
 - · Payout cannot exceed 50x amount bet
 - Use the following parlay calculator http://www.vegasinsider.com/parlay-calculator/ (http://www.muthead.com/linkout?remoteUrl=http://www.vegasinsider.com/parlay-calculator/)
- 13. If your payout is missed or you have a dispute, PM us and we will get it sorted out. If a dispute cannot be resolved with us, a panel of bettors will decide the resolution and the decision reached will be final.
- 14. Make it Rain Bethouse is not affiliated with any clans and is owned/operated by rolsen3

Make It Rain Sweepstakes Official Rules

Official Rules

June 9th, 2015 - June 10th, 2015

PRELIMINARY INFORMATION: NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. A purchase will not improve your chances of winning. Void where prohibited. Make It Rain Sweeps ("Sweepstakes") will begin on June, 9th, 2015 at 9:00 PM ET and end on June, 10th, 2015 at 1:00 AM ET ("Sweepstakes Period"). All times in the Sweepstakes refer to Eastern Time ("ET"). Odds of winning depend upon the number of eligible Entries received. Sweepstakes is subject to all applicable federal, state and local laws.

ELIGIBILITY: Open only to permanent, legal United States ("U.S.") residents who are physically residing in one (1) of the fifty (50) United States or District of Columbia (excluding Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands and other United States territories), and who are eighteen (18) years of age or older and of the age of majority in their state of residence as of the start of the Sweepstakes Period. Officers, directors, and employees of Sweepstakes Entities (as defined below), members of these persons' immediate families (spouses and/or parents, children, and siblings, and each of their respective spouses, regardless of where they reside), and/or persons living in the same households as these persons (whether or not related thereto) are not eligible to enter or win the Sweepstakes. Sweepstakes Entities, as referenced herein, shall include Oxygen Media, a division of NBCUniversal Media LLC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10112 (collectively "Sponsors"), and each of their respective parent, subsidiary, and affiliate companies, and administrative,

Twitter user name and password, then become a follower of @Oxygen by searching for "Oxygen" clicking on the Oxygen icon and then clicking the "Follow" button or (2) if you do not already have a Twitter account, create a free Twitter account according to the instructions on the Twitter Site and follow Oxygen as indicated in (1) above. Please note that you must agree to comply with the Twitter Terms of Use in order to create a Twitter account. Once you become a follower of Oxygen, you will be required to submit a "Tweet" ("Statement") of one hundred and forty (140) characters or less with the hashtag that will appear in a lower third on-air within the first 25 minutes of the premiere of Sisterhood of Hip Hop on June 9 at 9/8c and the @username "@Oxygen" (the "Twitter Entry"). Your Twitter Entry must include the hashtag that will appear in a lower third on-air during the premiere of Sisterhood of Hip Hop and "@Oxygen" or your Twitter Entry will not be valid. You must have the permission of any person that you identify or otherwise refer to in your Statement. Statement will not affect your chances of winning. If your Twitter profile is set to the "Protect my Tweets" setting, your Twitter Entry may be disqualified and rejected as ineligible for consideration in the Sweepstakes. If you choose to submit a Twitter Entry via your web-enabled mobile device, data rates may apply. See your wireless service provider for details on rates and capabilities.

All Entries become the property of Sponsors and will not be acknowledged.

You may enter once during the entire Sweepstakes Period. Multiple Entries received from any person beyond this limit will void all such additional Entries. Entries must be received before June 10^{th} , 2015 at 1:00AM ET to be eligible for the Sweepstakes. Sponsors' computer shall be the official timekeeper for all matters related to this Sweepstakes. For the purposes of these Official Rules a "day" will start at 12:00:00 AM and end at 11:59:59 PM ET. Entries generated by a script, macro, or other automated means or by any means that subverts the entry process will be disqualified. Entries that are incomplete, garbled, corrupted, or unintelligible for any reason, including, but not limited to, computer or network malfunction or congestion, are void and will not be accepted. In case of a dispute over the identity of an entrant, the authorized account holder of the Twitter account used to enter will be deemed to be the entrant. "Authorized account holder" is defined as the person who is assigned to a Twitter account by the Twitter Site. Entry constitutes permission (except where prohibited by law) to use entrant's name, Twitter user name, city, state, winner ("Winner") will be selected in a random drawing by representatives of Sponsors from all eligible Entries received during the Sweepstakes Period. Sponsors will make two (2) attempts to notify potential Winner via direct message to each potential Winner's Twitter account in order to obtain potential Winner's mailing addresses. Sponsors may share potential Winner's name and contact information with Sweepstakes Entities and/or any prize provider, as applicable, if necessary. Potential Winner may be required to execute and return an affidavit of eligibility, release of liability, and, except where prohibited, publicity release (collectively, "Sweepstakes Documents") within ten (10) days of such notification. Noncompliance within this time period will result in disqualification, and, at Sponsors' sole discretion an alternate potential Winner may be selected from the remaining eligible Entries. If a potential Winner cannot be reached, is found to be ineligible, cannot or does not comply with these Official Rules, or if prize or prize notification is returned as undeliverable, such potential Winner will be disqualified and time permitting, at Sponsors' sole discretion, an alternate potential Winner may be selected from the remaining eligible Entries.

PRIZE: There will be one (1) prize awarded ("Prize") to Winner, consisting of the following: twenty five thousand dollars ($25,000) to be paid in the form of a check. Prizes are awarded "as is" with no warranty or guaranty, either express or implied by Sponsors.

Total ERV of all Prizes is twenty five thousand dollars ($25,000). Actual retail value ("ARV") of Prize may vary. Any difference between ERV and ARV will not be awarded. For any Prize with an ARV of six hundred dollars ($600) or greater, Sponsors will furnish an Internal Revenue Service Form 1099 to Winner for the ARV of the Prize for the year in which was the Prize was won.

All details of Prize will be determined by Sponsors in their sole discretion. Sponsors reserve the right to substitute Prize (or portion thereof) with a similar prize (or prize element) of comparable or greater value at their sole discretion. All taxes and other expenses, costs, or fees associated with the acceptance and/or use of Prize are the sole responsibility of Winner. Prize cannot be transferred by Winner or redeemed for cash and is valid only for the items detailed above, with no substitution of Prize by Winner. If Prize is unclaimed within a reasonable time after notification from Sponsors, as determined by Sponsors in their sole discretion, it will be forfeited, and time

Twitter, and each of their respective officers, directors, and employees (collectively, "Released Parties") from any liability, illness, injury, death, loss, litigation, or damage that may occur, directly or indirectly, whether caused by negligence or not, from such entrant's participation in the Sweepstakes and/or his/her acceptance, possession, use, or misuse of Prize or any portion thereof; (b) to indemnify Released Parties from any and all liability resulting or arising from the Sweepstakes and to hereby acknowledge that Released Parties have neither made nor are in any manner responsible or liable for any warranty, representation, or guarantee, express or implied, in fact or in law, relative to Prize; (c) if selected as a Winner, to the posting of such entrant's name and/or Twitter user name on Oxygen.com (the "Website") and the use by Released Parties of such entrants name, voice, image, and/or likeness for publicity, promotional, and advertising purposes in any and all media now or hereafter known, throughout the world in perpetuity, without additional compensation, notification, permission, or approval, and, upon request, to the giving of consent, in writing, to such use; and (d) to be bound by these Official Rules and to waive any right to claim any ambiguity or error therein or in the Sweepstakes itself, and to be bound by all decisions of the Sponsors, which are binding and final. Failure to comply with these conditions may result in disqualification from the Sweepstakes at Sponsors' sole discretion.

ADDITIONAL TERMS: Sponsors reserve the right to permanently disqualify from any promotion any person they believe has intentionally violated these Official Rules. Any attempt to deliberately damage the Sweepstakes or the operation thereof is unlawful and subject to legal action by Sponsors, who may seek damages to the fullest extent permitted by law. The failure of Sponsors to comply with any provision of these Official Rules due to an act of God, hurricane, war, fire, riot, earthquake, terrorism, act of public enemies, actions of governmental authorities outside of the control of Sponsors (excepting compliance with applicable codes and regulations), or other "force majeure" event will not be considered a breach of these Official Rules. PLENTY OF SWEET TREATS AVAILABLE AT ALL THE PA CASINOS THIS APRIL

News

Posted By Mark Gruetze on April 1, 2018

Neither rain nor long grass nor a combination of Friday the 13th and income-tax season shall keep Pennsylvania casinos from concocting inventive April promotions.

Robotic lawn mowers, showers of cash, car giveaways, vacations to other gambling destinations, and a Buddy Guy concert highlight the attractions across the state this month.

Here's a look at some of the best casino offerings for April:

EAST

(800) 480-8020

ROAD TO AC

Players can start earning entries on April 1 for a promotion offering more than 1.5 million Reward credits, 35 stays at Harrah's Atlantic City, and a grand prize trip to Las Vegas.

From April 1 through May 27, Harrah's Philadelphia players can activate free entries from 6 a.m. to 4:55 p.m. daily at casino kiosks and earn additional entries with:

- · Slot play: One additional entry for every 25 tier credits
- Table play: One additional entry for every 10 tier credits
- Mobile Monday bonus: 50 bonus entries by accepting the offer in the play by TR app
- Wednesday multiplier: Receive 5X earned entries

Drawings at 8 p.m. on:

- April 7
- April 14
- April 21
- April 28
- May 5
- May 12
- May 19

These drawings will award more than 100,000 reward credits and five trips to Harrah's Atlantic City. The finale drawing on May 26 will award more than 500,000 reward credits and one Las Vegas trip.

MOHEGAN SUN POCONO

Four people at Mohegan Sun Pocono will win a robotic Husqvarna Automower, which the manufacturer says trims grass on its own in all types of weather. Drawings will be at 1, 3, 5, and 7 p.m. on April 29. Players get one entry for every point earned for slot or table game play from 6 a.m. to 6:55 p.m. that day.

SUIT YOURSELF SWEEPSTAKES

Drawings on May 20 will award two prizes of $500 in gaming chips every 15 minutes. At 6 p.m., one person will win $5,000 in cash. Limit of one $500 prize per person.

MT. AIRY CASINO RESORT

APRIL COMPETITOR MATCH

From 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday in April, Mount Airy will match slot free-play offers from any other casino in Pennsylvania or New Jersey. Participants must be invited or earn 1,000 points to be eligible. They must show the other casino's players club card and offer. Redemption limited to one offer per day, with a maximum match of $300.

PARX

MAKE IT RAIN SWEEPSTAKES

The rain isn't in the form of water but in $60,000 worth of slot free play or table game match play (hint: slot free play has a better expectation of return than table game match play, especially when it's used on video poker).

Parx players receive a game card for every 200 entries earned for play from April 23 to 29. Eligible players will pick up their game cards – up to eight per person – between noon and 8 p.m. April 29 at XClub West. Each game card gives an instant $20 in free play plus a chance at winning $5,000 in free slot play or table-game match play. Any non-winning card may be entered in second-chance drawings at 2, 4, 6, and 8 p.m., each offering five prizes of $500 in free slot play. Players may participate in all four second-chance drawings.

SANDS

$10,000 SUPER SLOT TOURNAMENT

All players club members get one free entry to a tournament offering a top prize of $5,000 cash plus 24 other prizes of cash or free play. The tournament will be from 1 to 8 p.m. April 23. Entrants must register at the Sands

A 2018 BMW X5 xDrive5i and four prizes of $1,000 in slot free play will be given away at 7 p.m. April 29. The first entry is free, with additional entries based on rated slot play at Sands Bethlehem from March 26 through 6:45 p.m. April 29. A second-chance drawing at 9 p.m. April 29 will award five prizes of $1,000 in slot free play.

SATURDAY / MONDAY HIGH HAND BONUS

The Sands poker room is offering a $250 high-hand bonus paid every 20 minutes from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Mondays in April. From 5 p.m. to midnight Mondays, the bonus is offered every half-hour, but a minimum hand of quad fives is needed to qualify. Unawarded prizes roll over to $500, $750, and so on.

SUGARHOUSE

1001 N. Delaware Ave.Philadelphia, PA 19125(877) 477-3715

SPRING EGG-CITEMENT

Every 30 minutes from 2 to 9 p.m., April 1, one player will be chosen to select an egg that contains up to $2,500 in slot free play. At 10 p.m., the top prize increase to $5,000 in free play.

BUDDY GUY

Blues virtuoso Buddy Guy will perform at SugarHouse at 9 p.m. April 20 at The Event Center. Guy, a Rock and Roll Hall of Fame member, was named among Rolling Stone's 100 greatest guitarists of all time and has influenced two generations of guitarists. Remaining tickets are $49 each.

VALLEY FORGE RESORT CASINO

1160 First Ave. King of Prussia, PA 19406 (610) 354-8118

ANNIVERSARY SLOT TOURNAMENT

In observance of its opening in March 2012, Valley Forge will sponsor a slot tournament from 3 to 7 p.m. every day in April. The daily prize pool totals $30,000 in cash and free play. Entrants must redeem one players club point if they do not receive an individual invitation. Registration will be open from 3 to 6:45 p.m. Entrants must print a voucher at a kiosk and take the voucher to the tournament. New club members receive one free entry. Sessions are filled on first-come, first-served basis.

LUCKY 13 / TAX SEASON DRAWINGS

GOING GREEN SWEEPSTAKES

Blackjack and Baccarat players will can earn entries for a drawing awarding $5,000 cash based on play from April 1 through 8 p.m. April 27. For every natural at Blackjack or Natural 9 with banker bet at Baccarat, players will receive a drawing entry. The drawing will be at 9 p.m. April 27 at the high-limit tables.

PRIUS GIVEAWAY

Players earn entries from April 1 through 28 for a drawing offering a top prize of a 2018 Toyota Prius C. Entries are based on slot or table play, with 10X entries on Wednesdays. Players get one free entry by swiping Valley Club card at any kiosk on April 28. Finalists will be announced at 9 p.m. April 28 at Center Bar.

WEST/CENTRAL

HOLLYWOOD AT PENN NATIONAL

777 Hollywood Blvd.Grantville, PA 17028(717) 469-2211

LUCKY 13

From 2 to 9 p.m. April 13, five players at Hollywood will be chosen every 20 minutes to win up to $1,313 in slot free play. Contest is open to all slot and table game players with an open rating.

$40,000 SUPER PROGRESSIVE CASH JACKPOT

The super progressive jackpot has rolled over to $40,000, and club members can earn one entry in this month's drawings for every 20 points earned through slot or table game play between April 1 and 26. From 6 to 8:30 p.m. April 26, five club members will be selected every 30 minutes to win $250 in slot free play or $100 in free play and a spot in the final round at 9:30 p.m.

At 9 p.m., four more club members will be selected for a spot in the final round. Each of the 10 finalists will select an envelope with prizes ranging from $300 to $1,000 in free play, the progressive jackpot of $10,000 cash, or the super progressive of $40,000 cash. If the super progressive is not awarded this month, the May amount will grow to $50,000 cash.

LADY LUCK NEMACOLIN

SPIN INTO SPRING

Every Saturday at 9 p.m., 10 players will be chosen to compete for a spin-the-big-wheel game. The winner gets to play for a $5,000 cash prize. The finale on May 27 offers a guaranteed winner of $15,000 cash, plus a second-chance drawing for five prizes of $500 cash.

'Let it rain!': Philip Seymour Hoffman and Hollywood's funniest hoops scene

Doug Haller Dec 12, 2022

On a cool November day 20 years ago, John Hamburg watched Philip Seymour Hoffman deliver the line and put up a shot on a makeshift basketball court in downtown Los Angeles. The take was fine, but not quite what the director envisioned. He approached the future Academy Award-winning actor.

"Phil, this guy thinks he's Michael Jordan," Hamburg said. "When he's saying, 'Let it rain!' you gotta blurt it out."

LET IT RAIN!

This was early in the shooting of "Along Came Polly," a 2004 romantic comedy about a risk assessment analyst (Ben Stiller) who falls for a former classmate (Jennifer Aniston). The opposites-attract story has nothing to do with sports, yet it contains one of the funniest basketball scenes in film, including a performance by Hoffman that still inspires imitation today.

Hoffman plays Sandy Lyle, a former child star who uses confidence to mask his insecurity. On the basketball court this translates into trash talk and the cringey sound of a jump shot slamming off a metal backboard.

The scene's intended punch line actually comes later, when Stiller's character, germaphobe Reuben Feffer, has to guard a sweaty, hairy opponent in a game of two-on-two. But, as he had a knack to do, Hoffman steals the scene long before then. If you ask movie buffs to name Hoffman's top roles, "Polly" would not come close. But to sports fans, it's among the first performances that comes to mind.

On the basketball court that day, Hamburg understood why Hoffman seemed hesitant — he was starting to get recognized as one of the great talents of his generation after memorable roles in "Flawless," "The Talented Mr. Ripley" and "Almost Famous." Hoffman didn't want to look foolish, but Hamburg also knew the actor liked to be challenged.

"Phil, I promise you, if it doesn't work, we'll figure out another way," Hamburg recalls. "But in my mind, this guy has all the bravado and he thinks he's the greatest player that this court has ever seen."

Hoffman gave it another shot. This time he didn't hold back.

"LET IT RAIN!"

Brick.

"It's the first shot in the sequence, and the entire crew burst out laughing," Hamburg says. "And I think Phil found the character in that moment. I almost barely had to direct him after that because he had just totally found the essence of Sandy Lyle."

Hoffman, who died in 2014 at age 46 after what was ruled an accidental drug overdose, was a great actor on the basketball court. But that's not to say he didn't have athletic skills.

Hoffman's right-handed jumper isn't textbook, but he holds his follow-through on release ("OLD SCHOOL!"). During two-on-two action, he backpedals with ease and attacks the basket with aggression ("WHITE CHOCOLATE!").

Growing up in Fairport, N.Y., a suburb of Rochester, Hoffman played baseball and wrestled. His mother encouraged him to try acting, but Hoffman resisted. "I was like, 'Mom, I love sports, why would I want to do that?" he told Radio Times magazine in 2011. "All the guys I hung out with were jocks. Sport was everything for me. I couldn't even think about anything else."

A neck injury suffered during wrestling practice altered his plan and changed his life. According to The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, a doctor told Hoffman's mother that if Hoffman were his son, he'd never let him play sports again. "He'll break his neck."

So Hoffman tried acting.

"He started drama in 10th grade and never looked back," former classmate and wrestling teammate Dave Garlock wrote in an email to The Athletic. "In either our junior or senior year he played Willy Loman in 'Death of a Salesman,' and he was so unbelievably good they basically shut down school for a day. He did three performances for everyone in the school."

As Hoffman's career took off, he noticed similarities with the world he left behind. According to Peter Shelley's book, "Philip Seymour Hoffman: The Life and Work," Hoffman would doze off before a wrestling match because of anxiety and stress. Before acting on stage, Hoffman often did the same in the dressing room.

"Sporting events are very much like theater," Hoffman told the New York Times in 2006. "They do the same play, but it's different every night. There's both discipline and creativity. There's visualization. In wrestling, you're on top and you think, 'OK, if I hit his arm there, I can get around here,' and you see yourself do it. Same as acting. They have a goal and they go after it, and out of going after it, their character will be revealed."

Living in New York, Hoffman was a Knicks fan, often attending games at Madison Square Garden. His favorite movie was "The Bad News Bears," because it made him feel like he was 10 again, he said. "How that story unfolds, and how adults treat children and children treat adults in that film is really ... it's really appalling!" Hoffman told Tucson Weekly in 2004. "And you still find humor in it, and you also find a lot of drama in it, and both of them work. I just think the movie's amazing."

As an actor, Hoffman played mostly serious or eccentric characters — a hospice nurse, a storm chaser, a rock critic. Some of those characters' stories crossed into sports.

In 2011, Hoffman played Oakland Athletics manager Art Howe in "Moneyball," a movie about a low-budget baseball team that finds a different way to compete. Leading up to the film's release, Hoffman said taking the minor role was a no-brainer because of his love for baseball.

But "Polly" was his breakout sports moment.

"It's a role that may not be huge among the cinephiles, but I think among the viewing public many of them would pick it as a signature scene of Phil's," says John Baynes, the actor's former high school English teacher and friend. "Just because it combines the comedy with physicality. He was a very physical actor. Even in 'Boogie Nights,' the way he's kind of using his body as a way of expressing his character. And also, there's just kind of the crazy, funny aspect of American males and their sports fantasies."

The scene stemmed from Hamburg's hardwood experiences. The comedy writer and director grew up in Manhattan as a Knicks fans during the days of Bernard King and Patrick Ewing. During his college years at Brown University, Hamburg recalled playing shirts and skins and getting matched up against the sweatiest guy in the gym. "He was the skin, I was the shirt," he said.

Hamburg also encountered ballers who talked a game their skills could not match. This is not uncommon in pickup hoops. It's what makes it so funny. These guys usually are dressed as Hoffman was in "Polly," red tank over yellow T, gray sweats and black high-tops. The last guy picked but the first guy to fire.

"Making these comedies, you sort of observe everyday life," Hamburg says. "That's always the basis of my comedy. I don't make sci-fi movies. My movies are based on observing regular people going through the day, and there are those people that have this sense that they're always better than they are. They should not be this confident and nothing will faze them."

After Hoffman captured the essence of Sandy Lyle, Hamburg had Hoffman and Stiller play two-on-two against actors Edward Conna and Robb Skyler. Conna's background mostly was in stunts, but he had gotten more work for the simple reason that he also could act.

A former comic, Skyler was there for a different reason. He had heard that "Polly" needed a "large, hairy basketball player." During his audition, Skyler not only had to show off his basketball skills but also take off his shirt to reveal his hairiness. "You've got to be very careful when you ask that in a casting situation," Hamburg says with a laugh.

On the court, the four mostly just played two-on-two as Hoffman worked his way into character. Most of his dialogue came from the script, but he also ad-libbed.

"RAIN DANCE!"

"It was funny, but we couldn't laugh," Conna says.

"You could hear the ball slamming into the backboard," Skyler says. "It was like thunder, the noise, because he fired it against the backboard so hard."

The second day of shooting mostly focused on Stiller and Skyler — the germaphobe and the sweaty man. The script called for Skyler to back Stiller into the lane, jumping to shoot, then coming down, his sweaty and hairy chest rubbing flush against Stiller's face. To make it work, Skyler had to get his chest lathered with a glycerin solution that looked like sweat.

It took 12 takes, Skyler dribbling onto a small trampoline and jumping high enough so he could slide down Stiller's face. "I had to lean into Ben," Skyler said. "It was a very tricky shot to shoot."

"Comedy is very specific," says Hamburg, whose writing credits include "Meet the Parents," "Zoolander" and "Night School." "When you have something in your mind, you know whether it's working or not. And Ben was so incredible. Even though it was so unpleasant, not because of (Skyler), but just the idea of what we were doing. He knew we had to get it right. He was never like, 'John, we're moving on.' He was a great sport about it."

On "Polly's" opening night in 2004, Hamburg visited theaters with the movie's producers and studio executives to gauge audience reaction. They watched for about 30 minutes at each stop.

At one theater, Hamburg was in the aisle and noticed someone leaving to go to the bathroom just before the basketball scene. He stopped the person. "I know you're going to think I'm crazy, but I really would wait five minutes," he recalls. "You may want to see this scene first."

In the basketball lexicon, the phrase "Let it rain" predates "Polly," although its exact origin is difficult to pinpoint. In the 1994 documentary film "Hoop Dreams," the father of featured high school player Arthur Agee throws it out several times during a one-on-one game against his son.

"You want to see it rain?" Agee said, taunting, pulling up for a jumper. "Let it rain."

Swish.

In a text message, the younger Agee told The Athletic that he first heard the phrase in a Reebok commercial featuring Chicago playground legend Lamar Mundane in the late 1980s. In it, a man is telling friends about the greatest player he had ever seen. "Lamar be rainin' 30-footers from out of the sky."

Hoffman and "Polly" gave the phrase a second wind.

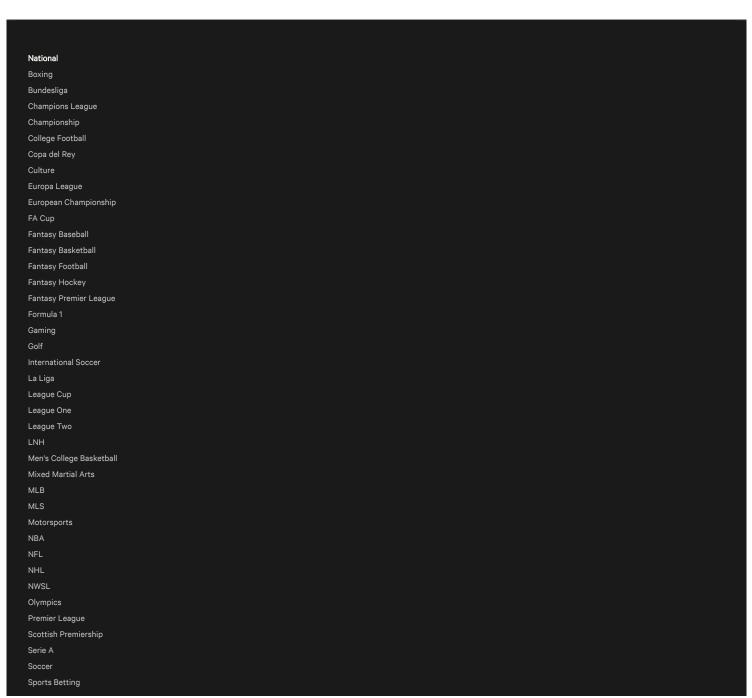

Hoffman went on to play more memorable roles. A year after "Polly," he won an Academy Award for his lead performance in "Capote." He was a three-time best supporting actor nominee for his work in "Charlie Wilson's War," "Doubt" and "The Master." "Polly" was hardly the only movie in which he stole a scene.

In July, in honor of what would have been Hoffman's 55th birthday, Variety published a list of Hoffman's 15 top film performances. "Polly" didn't make the list. And maybe it's better that way. The movie, at least the basketball scene, lives on in other ways. In addition to the social media love, Hamburg has had conversations with people who tell him they yell out "Let it rain!" whenever they play pick-up.

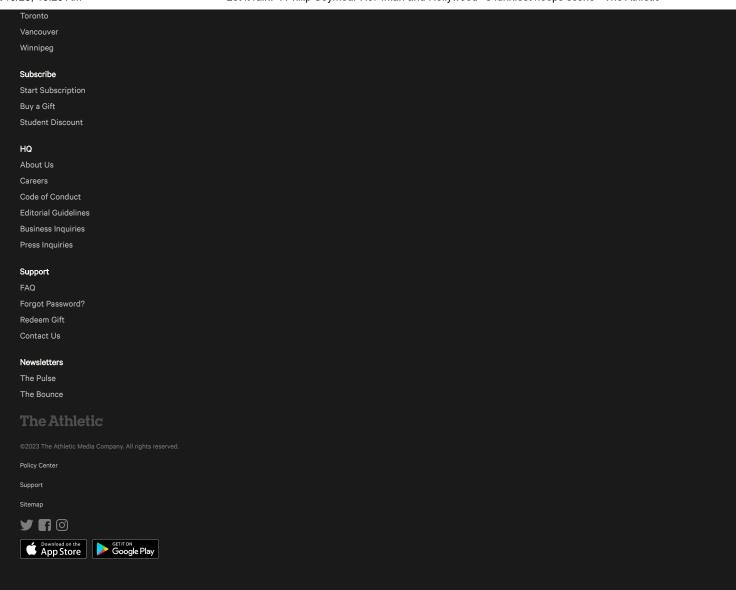

That's staying power.

"You never know when you make these movies what's going to stick and what's not," Hamburg says. "But I'm very, very grateful that people clicked with the movie, but also with that scene. I really had fun writing it. I had fun shooting it and previewing it, it was just one of those special kind of things in a career."

shy of the sweep.

This series out of the rest of NBA s playoffs seemed a tad more entertaining, due to the Lillard vs. Westbrook rivalry. Westbrook has averaged a triple-double the past two years, and won Most-Valuable Player of the NBA in 2016. Lillard, however, was not afraid of the high energy,

3 reasons Bucks will beat Heat in 2021 NBA Playoffs

Published May 19, 2021 at 4:11 PM EDT

By Quinn Allen · 4 min read

The No. 3 Milwaukee Bucks and No. 6 Miami Heat will meet in the first round of the 2021 NBA Playoffs in a rematch of last year's Eastern Conference Semifinals. As most people would remember, the Heat took down the high-flying Bucks in five games as they heroically made a run all the way to the NBA Finals.

Miami has been a much different team in 2020-21 in numerous categories, while Milwaukee is stronger as a whole after upgrading from Eric Bledsoe to Jrue Holiday in the offseason while adding more shooters.

While both squads went 8-2 to end the campaign, here are three reasons why the Bucks will dominate in this seven-game series.

Revenge in The Minds of Giannis Antetokounmpo, Bucks

After finishing as the No. 1 seed in the Eastern Conference last season, Giannis Antetokounmpo and the Bucks shockingly exited out in the second round. They were absolutely rolling before the pandemic shut down the league for a few months. Once basketball returned, Milwaukee really struggled. The difference this time around is that the Bucks are playing tremendous basketball right now and they get to cruise right into playoffs with that momentum.

Not only do the Bucks have a dominant two-way guard in their backcourt in Holiday, but The Greek Freak and the rest of this team will also have revenge on their minds.

Antetokounmpo averaged 21.8 points and 11.0 rebounds per game last year against the Heat in the East Semis, but to put it lightly, he looked off. Giannis was committing way too many turnovers while shooting just 21.7% from deep. Antetokounmpo also missed Game 5 due to an injury.

We know he committed his long-term future to this franchise in the hope of winning a title. Last year's performance in Orlando was a sheer disappointment. The Bucks also went to absolute work against Miami during the regular season, winning two out of three. In those wins, they outscored Erik Spoelstra's squad by 61 points.

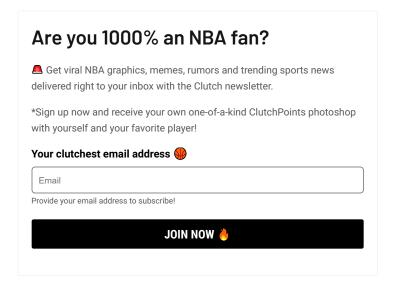

The Heat were also a top-10 offense and defense a year ago. This season, they're not in that same conversation. Jimmy Butler and Co. were dreadful against teams above .500 in 2020-21, compiling a 12-21 record. Last season? Miami went 17-14 vs. clubs over the .500 mark.

Even though Butler didn't play in any of the three meetings with the Bucks all season, expect Giannis to win this battle and get revenge. You better believe Milwaukee has been preparing for this opponent, and I have no doubts they're going to dominate with a fundamentally sound team on both sides of the ball.

Bucks Are More Dominant on The Glass

We're looking at two completely different organizations in terms of productivity on the boards. The Bucks were second in the Association with 48.1 rebounds per game, while the Heat ranked 29th. While this is a similar situation to last season when these two teams met, Bam Adebayo hasn't been that same dominant figure on the glass this season. For Milwaukee, they have numerous guys throughout the roster who grab boards.

Antetokounmpo has 11 per contest, while Khris Middleton, Brook Lopez, Bobby Portis, and Donte DiVincenzo are all averaging over five rebounds a game. The Bucks are very physical inside while possessing more overall size. It should play a factor in this series.

Bucks Make it Rain From Downtown

Last season, Milwaukee was 17th in the league in 3-point percentage. In 2020-21, Mike Budenholzer's team has been one of the most feared shooting squads in the NBA, ranking fourth with a 38.9% clip. Holiday has been a big help on that front, shooting just a tad under 40% from long range, while Portis, Middleton, and Bryn Forbes are all shooting well over 40% as well.

The Bucks have a lot more shooters around Antetokounmpo this season. They simply didn't have these players who could pull up and hit 3s from all over the floor during the playoffs last year. While the Heat aren't awful at defending the 3-ball (16th in the league), they're going to have a tall task at hand with a boatload of different guys who can make it rain.

Keep in mind, Miami can get hot from deep, but they're far less consistent this season. While the Bucks allow their opponents to hit quite a bit of 3-land, their own ability to shoot it efficiently will play a key part in advancing.

The Bucks have been consistent for the majority of the campaign. Miami has not. This is Milwaukee's time to shine as they eye a title run, and the first step will be getting past last year's East finalists.

56. Cleveland Cavaliers (via Indiana and Miami)

57. Portland Trail Blazers (via Utah and Memphis)

Note: The Bucks and Heat lost their second-round picks after investigations by the NBA revealed the two teams entered early discussions with Bogdan Bogdanovic and Kyle Lowry, respectively. The Bulls also lost a second-rounder during the 2021 free agency period after entering early discussions with Lonzo Ball, but the team does not own a second-rounder in the 2022 draft.

Bayern Munich Fans 'Make It Rain' for Neymar in Sarcastic Jibe During Champions League Clash

90 MIN · DEC 7, 2017

PSG's 3-1 defeat to Bayern Munich may have been a null fixture after both sides had already qualified for the knockout stages, but Paris' trip to the German champions turned out to be an even more miserable night for record signing Neymar.

The world's most expensive footballer rarely fails to make the headlines for one reason or another, and last night the Brazilian managed to hit the papers yet again without too much effort.

The former Barcelona star was targeted by the home fans as they hurled fake money at him during the game.

The 25-year-old was greeted, as he walked up to take a corner, with fake €500 notes with his face on the being showered over him by the flag.

Whilst PSG lost to a Robert Lewandowski brace and a goal from French midfielder Corentin Tolisso, they can look proudly on Kylian Mbappe, who became the youngest player in history to score ten Champions League goals.

Despite beating Paris, Bayern still finish second in the group with 13 points, two behind their French opponents, whilst Celtic move onto the Europa League in third.

What do you make of the gesture by Bayern's fans, though? Does Neymar deserve to be on the receiving end of such treatment or is it too much?

SPORTS OF THE TIMES

Before Vast Riches, Free Agency's Focus Was Freedom

By William C. Rhoden

July 10, 2016

Throughout the recent period of N.B.A. free agency, with owners making it rain like crazy, I kept thinking of Oscar Robertson.

He was one of the most complete, fundamentally sound players in history. Yet Robertson's greatest triumph came 40 years ago when, as president of the National Basketball Players Association, a lawsuit he filed brought free agency to the league.

Filed in 1970, Robertson v. the National Basketball Association sought to end the "option clause," which bound a player to a single team in perpetuity.

Six years later, the settlement, a major provision of which is known as the Oscar Robertson Rule, led to freedom of movement and lavish salaries as franchises battled one another for the industry's most precious commodity: players.

"I don't think anyone could imagine what's going on right now," Robertson said last week. "We were just trying to get better playing conditions. We wanted to make sure that when you signed a contract with a basketball team and didn't want to play for them, they couldn't keep you from playing for any other team in the league. I thought that was terribly wrong."

When he filed the suit, owners denounced him, and some players initially resisted out of fear that free agency would kill the N.B.A.

"It was a tough sell," Robertson said. "A lot of the guys felt that our stance was really going to hurt basketball. It was going to put a lot of teams out of business. But it did not. It went the other way."

The game has never been more popular than it is today, thanks to the unimpeded flow of players entering the N.B.A. from around the world and star players selling their services every few years.

"It was amazing how so many owners didn't really understand it; they thought free agency was going to kill basketball and basketball would never be the same," Robertson said. "And it's true. Basketball has never been the same since then."

When Robertson entered the league in 1960, there were eight teams in two divisions.

Now there are 30 teams in six divisions, and according to Forbes, the average value of an N.B.A. franchise is $1.25 billion.

When Robertson filed the suit, powerhouse teams were put together by owners on owners' terms. As in other sports, players played where they were told to play.

Take Bill Russell. Before the 1956-57 season, the Boston Celtics traded Ed Macauley and Cliff Hagan to St. Louis for the draft rights to Russell. The Celtics won the N.B.A. title that season, signifying the beginning of the Celtic dynasty.

Philadelphia traded Wilt Chamberlain to the Los Angeles Lakers before the 1968-69 season.

When Robertson was traded to Milwaukee from Cincinnati before the 1970-71 season, the Bucks' front office also wanted to trade away some starters on a team that had just reached the Eastern Division finals.

"I told them that if they traded any of the starters, I would refuse to play for them," Robertson said. "If you kill the team, there was no need for me to be there."

> Sign up for the Sports Newsletter Get our most ambitious projects, stories and analysis delivered to your inbox every week. Get it sent to your inbox.

Robertson had a no-trade clause in his contract and another clause that gave him the right to pick the team he wanted to play for.

Heeding Robertson's threat, the Bucks kept all the starting players.

Today, most star players have no-trade clauses, and free agents can determine where they will play and with whom. Old-school players insist they wouldn't want to play with a stacked deck filled with rivals.

"What's wrong with a stacked deck?" Robertson said. "I don't think in this day and age, one superstar is going to win."

The free-agent circus is good for the business of basketball, which is also show business.

Referring to Kevin Durant's going to Golden State, Robertson said: "Look at what this is going to do for the N.B.A. Everywhere the Warriors go, they will sell out. You'll want to see Cleveland on TV. You want to see exciting teams on television.

"When the player gets to the point where you can command not only the money but command the right to say, 'Hey, I don't want this, I don't want that,' when you get to the point where the owners who are millionaires and billionaires don't have the final say, that's the key to it."

This year, Mike Conley agreed to a five-year, $153 million contract with the Memphis Grizzlies. Matthew Dellavedova signed a four-year deal worth $38 million with the Bucks, and the Lakers signed Timofey Mozgov to a four-year contract worth $64 million.

"I applaud the players who can make $30, $40 million and play basketball," Robertson said. "I know people are going to say, 'These greedy basketball players, making millions and millions of dollars.' But the owners have the money there, and they say, 'Young man, if you come and play with me, we'll give you $30 million.' You got to take it."

The long- and short-term problem will come when players fail to live up to public expectations. If Golden State does not win a title, if Conley, Dellavedova and Mozgov cannot deliver playoff-caliber performances, what then?

"People want their stars to be heroes; they want to put them on pedestals," Robertson said. "They also want the stars to perform. If they see you get $30-to-$40 million to play basketball, they expect you to play like a $30-to-$40-million player."

The Robertson Rule was a solution to a specific problem, namely that owners had players in a headlock. And though the players have since escaped, the battle over control, player movement and a fair share of revenue continues.

"When you Look at the Oscar Robertson Rule, it was like throwing a raft into the water for the guys whose boat was sinking," Robertson said.

No matter how rosy things seem now, the N.B.A. and the union inevitably will face continued confrontation over basketball-related income. Current N.B.A. players, if they want leverage, should study Robertson's 40-year-old playbook.

He took on the N.B.A. and won.

MILWAUKEE BUCKS

Bucks 112, Knicks 100: After blowing a 24-point lead, Milwaukee makes it rain threes to pull out a win

Jim Owczarski

Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

Published 6:30 p.m. CT Nov. 10, 2021 | Updated 10:59 p.m. CT Nov. 10, 2021

NEW YORK – The last time the Milwaukee Bucks saw the New York Knicks – Friday night – they blew a 21-point lead at Fiserv Forum and afterward Mike Budenholzer said his team lost its defensive identity.

On Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden, the Bucks saw a 24-point with 5 minutes 16 seconds left in the third quarter disappear. This time, though, the Bucks' fortitude and three-point shooting led to a 112-100 victory.

"We definitely had that in the back of our mind," Giannis Antetokounmpo said of the Bucks' previous loss to New York. "Coming here tonight on a back-to-back, obviously our bodies are tired but at the end of the day we gotta do what we gotta do. We gotta go out there and compete, play hard defensively, move the ball, try to get open shots.

"We were up 20, they came back tied the game and it wouldn't sit well with us if we lost the game tonight. But I think guys; (George Hill) hit the big three from the corner, Pat (Connaughton) came down (and) knocked down some shots, Jrue (Holiday) came down had the ball in his hands, made the right play. Grayson (Allen) hit big shots. We played good basketball. We kept our composure and that's who we are."

BOX SCORE: Bucks 112, Knicks 100

Milwaukee evened its record at 6-6 while New York dropped to 7-5. It is just the second time this season the Bucks have won consecutive games.

The defending NBA champions continue their longest road trip of the season Friday night in Boston.

Antetokounmpo had put the Bucks on his shoulders their previous two games, playing 39 and 36 minutes in Washington and Philadelphia. He rolled an ankle early in the game Wednesday but still played 38 minutes. Antetokounmpo wasn't his usual dominant self, scoring 15 points on 5 of 15 shooting, but was picked up offensively by a team effort that saw the Bucks hit 26 three-pointers.

It helped that the Knicks were hobbled in the front court, too, with 7-footer Mitchell Robinson dealing with a hip issue and 6-11 Nerlens Noel ruled out with a knee injury. In the Knicks' win in Milwaukee the duo didn't score much but combined for 19 rebounds and five steals while harassing Antetokounmpo. Without Noel, the Bucks out-rebounded the Knicks 50-37.

Milwaukee also had 20 second-chance points.

Despite the double-digit margin of victory, it appeared the Bucks were about to drop another shocker to the Knicks. After Milwaukee peppered the basket with 5 three-pointers in the third quarter to open on a 22-7 run and take a 73-49 lead, the Knicks found a glimmer of life in the final seconds. A three-point play by Semi Ojeleye gave the Bucks an 82-60 lead with 57.3 seconds left, but the Knicks scored six points in that final minute to breathe life into the crowd.

The Knicks would erase that 24-point third quarter deficit thanks to a three-pointer by Immanuel Quickley with 5:06 left in the game, tying the score at 89-89. The Knicks outscored the Bucks 23-7 in those opening seven minutes of the fourth.

"It's a long game," Hill said. "We talk about it being a 48-minute game all the time.

"You've got to tip your hat to them. I think their second unit came in and played with tremendous energy but at the same time in this game, for many years when you're up a lot of points you kind of let that guard down. They sped us up a little bit, took us out of our rhythm, kind of rushes us to take the shots we didn't want. They made some tremendous threes for a long stretch of time.

"We learned from our past mistakes, settled down, move the ball very well and made s hots late in the game and got some stops."

The Bucks desperately needed bucket, and it was Hill who provided with a three-pointer off an assist from Antetokounmpo.

F .

That awakened the Bucks. Holiday and Connaughton then knocked down threes to put the Bucks up, 98-94, with 3:41 to go. Milwaukee had scored seven points in seven minutes to let the Knicks back in the game and then scored nine in 66 seconds to take back the lead.

"Those shots are all big," Budenholzer said. "I think Giannis trusted his teammates, Jrue trusted his teammates and those guys having confidence to let it fly. It's what we needed tonight."

Antetokounmpo then delivered defensively, blocking an Obi Toppin drive to the rim with 2:51 to go. Initially whistled for a foul, Antetokounmpo quickly told Budenholzer to challenge the call. But as he did so, he took the ball with him, and Holiday quickly grabbed it to hand the refs – a heads up play as another delay of game by the Bucks would have resulted in a technical foul.

The challenge was upheld, and then Antetokounmpo won the jump ball — which led to an open Connaughton three in the corner to put the Bucks up 101-94. Connaughton followed it up with another three and the Bucks had a double-digit lead again at 104-94 with under two minutes left.

"That's what we pride ourselves on – it starts with our defense," Connaughton said. "Giannis has the ability to make so many different plays on the defensive end. We rebounded better than we did against them last week. We just did things that you have a to do to win in this league and I think we've been continuing to grow on that in the last two games.

"It's good to have some game pressure. It's good to be in situations where you're in hostile environments and you've got to find a way to stop their runs and then in turn go on your own run. I think the last two games, on bac-to-backs against great teams, we were able to do that and we were able to kind of grow upon it and work together."

From there, Allen hit two big threes to truly end the Knicks threat.

Connaughton scored 23 points off the bench and hit seven of 13 three-pointers. Allen scored 15 points, all on threes. Holiday scored 18 points with four, three-pointers and handed out six assists. Bobby Portis scored 17 and Hill added eight.

Derrick Rose led the Knicks with 22 points off the bench while Quickley had 18 as the Knicks got 68 points from their bench. Julius Randle had 16 points.

"They turned up their defense," Budenholzer said. "Credit to them. Their bench just played with a ton of energy, covered a lot of ground in their close outs and their contests and we were struggling to score. And conversely, I mean, Rose and Quickley tonight, they were phenomenal. I thought a lot of them were contested, a lot of tough shots."

The Bucks took a 51-42 lead into the half thanks to a closing 8-1 run, fueled by five points from Portis. Milwaukee led by as many as 11 points in the first quarter and 10 in the second quarter thanks to hot shooting from behind the three-point line.

Milwaukee opened the game making seven of their first nine from behind the line in the first quarter and they finished the half making 12 of 25 (48%). Portis made three while Allen, Ojeleye and Connaughton each hit a pair, which helped offset slow starts from Antetokounmpo (1-for-6, 3 points) and Holiday (3-for-8, six points).

Portis led all scorers in the half with 16 points.

New York was paced by Randle's 13 points, but 11 came in the first six minutes of the game on 4 of 6 shooting. He went just 1-for-6 the rest of the half.

After weathering Randle's early hot touch — and some turnovers — the Bucks flipped a 15-12 deficit to a 31-20 lead after the first quarter thanks to a trio of threes from Ojeleye, Connaughton and Antetokounmpo. Jordan Nwora and Connaughton then punctuated the first quarter performance with a strong dunk in the half court and a step-back, fading three.

The Knicks would come back to take a 36-35 lead at about the halfway mark in the second quarter thanks to a 14-4 run as the Bucks' shooting went cold. But the Bucks were able to tighten up defensively and Portis then carried them into the break by scoring eight points in the final 3:12.

The Bucks did suffer a couple of injury scares in the first half. Antetokounmpo stepped on a Knicks player late in the first quarter, rolling an ankle and sitting the final 3:13 of the period and first three minutes of the second quarter. It was then when Allen was hit on the right (shooting) hand by Taj Gibson on his follow-through on a three-point attempt at the 10:32 mark of the second. Allen was in clear pain and shook his hand for some time but continued playing.

Antetokounmpo continued marching up the all-time franchise leader boards, as his third free throw of the game in the fourth quarter moved him past Hall of Famer Sidney Moncrief (4,214) for most all time for the Bucks. It is now the third category in which he is No. 1 in Bucks history along with defensive rebounds and triple-doubles.

Class 2A bo⊠s basketball makes it rain ⊠ith 40 3-pointers in t⊠b semifinal games

Author: Anchorage Daily News O Updated: April 3 E Published April 3

The power of threes was on display Friday night during the semifinal round of the Class 2A boys state basketball tournament at Palmer High.

The four teams combined for 40 3-pointers, including 14 by reigning state champion Tikigaq. A total of 113 attempts were made behind the 3-point arc.

The Harpooners beat Glennallen 76-47 to earn the chance to defend the title they won in 2019 (last year's tournament was canceled because of COVID-19).

Tikigaq will face Tok in Saturday's 7:45 p.m. game. The Wolverines advanced by rallying past Hooper Bay 61-54.

In the girls semifinals, Su Valley and Hooper Bay picked up victories to advance to Saturday's 5:45 p.m. title game. Su Valley tripped Chevak 55-23 and Hooper Bay outlasted Glennallen 30-23.

Bo⊠s semi⊠nals

Tikigaq 76, Glennallen 47 -- The Harpooners outscored Glennallen 42-21 from 3-point range, an effort spearheaded by Henry Kowunna's six triples and Clyde Frankson's five.

Kowunna finished with 28 points and 19 rebounds, Frankson had 19 points and Joelian Lane added 21 points.

Glennallen trailed 23-7 after one quarter and never recovered. Hunter Terrel drained four 3-pointers to power the Panthers with 20 points, and Ryan Albert and Dillon Cramer combined for 17 points.

Tok 61, Hooper Ba⊠54 -- Teddy Northway racked up 26 points and Jeffery Adams provided 17 points and 11 rebounds to lead Tok.

Northway sank four triples, grabbed six rebounds and had five steals for the Wolverines, who got 10 points from Revyn Almquist-Corgill.

Hooper Bay's Nile Smith and Evin Matchian had 18 and 17 points, respectively, and Matchian knocked down five 3-pointers.

Consolation games

Su Valley's Tristan Shelby netted a game-high 21 points but Unalakleet countered with depth to take a 74-49 victory. Five players scored nine or more points for the Wolfpack -- Carter Commack (13), Kanayaq Ivanoff (11), Ellsworth Haugen (11), Cody Ivanoff (10) and Kael Erickson (9).

Four players reached double figures for Scammon Bay in a 71-45 triumph over Selawik -- Cassius Sundown (14), Josiah Sundown (13), Jerry Kaganak (12) and Collin Kaganak (10). Selawik's Axel Snyder turned in a double-double with 16 points and 12 rebounds.

Girls semi⊠nals

Hooper Ba⊠30, Glennallen 23 -- Points were hard to come by, but Hooper Bay finally broke through in the fourth quarter to outscored Glennallen 16-3 for the victory.

Mary Lane (9 points, 10 rebounds) and Zoey Lane (10 points) sparked Hooper Bay. Glennallen, which led 20-14 after three quarters, got 11 points from CeAnika Palacious.

Su Valle ≥ 55, Che ≥ 23 -- India Roderick sank five 3-pointers and swiped the ball five times to lift Su Valley.

The Rams battled to a 13-12 lead in the first quarter but held Chevak to 11 points the rest of the game. Roderick led the winners with 21 points, Kenna Grenier tossed in 15 points and Emma Kehoe grabbed 10 rebounds.

Leading the Comets were Hannah Pingayak (8 points) and Haley Ulroan (7 points).

Consolation games

Unalakleet romped past Tok 54-16 behind Victoria Fisher's 24 points and seven rebounds and Lena Ivanoff's 21 points and 11 rebounds. Danisha Paul and Desirae Constantine combined for 11 of Tok's points.

Tikigaq, the 2019 champion, survived a 27-point outburst by Selawik's Samantha Skin to win 64-32. Eleven players scored for the Harpoonerettes, including Makayla Lane (16 points) and Ashina Melik (10).

The Clippers led from tipoff against the Lakers, extending their win streak to 3 despite a dominant performance from LeBron James.

Summary

To kick off the third installment of this season's battle for LA, the Clippers came out hot with determination and defense. They played with an urgency that they often lacked to start games (maybe Paul George wasn't lying about urgency starting), which was as refreshing as it was rewarding, as they forced the Lakers to call a quick timeout with a quick 9-0 lead.

While I wish the Clippers were able to shut them out for the rest of the game, all good things must come to an end. LeBron continued his brilliant play getting the Lakers quickly back into it with a few scoring bursts.

Unfortunately for him, the Clippers decided to increase their 3 point sliders. While they initially only started 1–5 from deep, they ended up raining 3s finishing the quarter 7/13 from downtown, capped off by a Mann buzzer beater.

Game Coverage Editorials News

were able to cut the lead down to 14 with some great chances at getting even closer, the Clippers settled down and were able to string together some consistent runs of their own to push the lead back to 16 to end the quarter.

While the Clippers began the half with a bit of a lull, they came out hot with much better play to start the 4th. Unfortunately for them, basketball is a game of runs and LeBron James is... well, LeBron James. He's arguably the greatest player ever, and apparently he decided he would also shoot like Steph Curry tonight. LeBron single handedly willed the Lakers back into this with 15 points in the 4th quarter, including 3 3-pointers leading to a career high of 9 3-pointers. (For those keeping track, this gave LeBron 46 points, meaning he finally broke the 40 point barrier against the Clippers.)

The Lakers shifted gears and cut this one down to 10 with some incredible play, but as mentioned before, basketball is a game of runs. The Clippers roared back with a quick 8-0 run in a 45 second span sparked by some defensive intensity of their own, and this was enough for Darvin Ham to raise the white flag. The Lakers head coach called a timeout and subbed in his bench unit at the 5 minute mark. Fortunately, the Clippers did not introduce any unnecessary tension as they sailed to victory the rest of the way with a 133-115 win. That bumps their current win streak up to 3, and their current win streak against the Lakers up to 10.

Game Notes:

- Paul George was great, but let's keep PG as his initials: Paul George was absolutely phenomenal tonight. He hit big shots, had important defensive plays, and was aggressive on the boards. He ended the night with 27/9/4, but also a team high 4 turnovers. Now, 4 turnovers isn't egregious, but he once again showed signs of why he may not be the point guard this team needs. PG continues to have sloppy handles, often times dribbling directly into traffic, and even sloppier passes. Some of these included tough entry passes (which the entire team struggled with), a pass off Zu's head, and a lob straight into the 4th row well out of reach from a wide open Reggie Jackson.
- Role Players dominating their roles: Speaking of Reggie Jackson, he looked absolutely phenomenal tonight finishing with 19/5/3. He played within himself, knocked down open 3s, and looked much more spry and comfortable out there. Powell also looked fantastic with a hyper efficient 22/4/4 on 12 shots. The questionable fit between the two seems to be sorting itself out as they build chemistry and get more reps together.
- Kawhi continues to impress: Not much to say here, but Kawhi continues to look more and more like his former self. He adds a much needed level of stability to every lineup with consistently good defense and very well rounded offense. He finished the night with 25/9/3/2/2.

The Mook hurt happened with about 2.5 min to go in Q1 but the camera did not show how it happened. He waved to the bench asking for a sub in obvious pain. On the bench, he was in pain grabbing his left side rib area. Haven't heard anything definitive yet as to exactly how it happened or severity. Have you?

Play of the game with about 6 min to go: Only 10 down, WB makes a lazy out of bounds pass that PG tips into the backcourt. PG and Dennis S run/battle it down. Dennis, on the floor, tries to pass to LBJ but the Klaw's claw swoops into action, manages to claw the ball away and makes the lay in to kill their effin spirit. Nice combo effort there boys. Dennis tried hard to save it (and their chances) but he was at their mercy.

Will be interesting how they play if forced to go without Mook and Wall. If there were 2 guys I wanted to see how the team looked with them out of the rotation early in the season, it was those guys. I really think there is a potential for "addition by subtraction" if Mook and Wall continue to miss time. We'll have to see, but definitely don't mind Mook taking his time, and having the team get a good look at Batum or RoCo with the starters.

Only problem is it really thins out the bench, as RoCo was acting more as the backup center as of late. With the deadline approaching, maybe will make the push for a backup C all the more important.

While I'm far from a Morris fan, removing him from the rotation entirely does thin out the Clippers' frontcourt

It always feels great to be the Lakers. It's feels as good as UCLA beating USC.

The team played like it didn't want to be broken up at the trade deadline. PG was great, but we really do need him to cut down the wtf turnovers when playing teams like GSW, Memphis, N.O. Kawhi makes an impact at both ends and is efficient. Zu looked really good but as usual he gets no calls. Morris was good until the injury. Hope he's not out for long. Batum has Russ/Lebron timed well at the rim. Reggie was the dagger man. Happy for him. The comments from PG suggest that this will be Reggie's role (implying he won't get traded). Powell's play in half court offensive sets looks much improved over these last 3 games. His 3 ball is falling a bit more, but where he can add value is when he's able to score against set half court defenses. Lue took him out early when he was a bit erratic offensively and committing fouls on defense. After that, he sorted it out. That's really the way to handle Norm and to optimize his skill set. I do think the team will upgrade with a taller, younger energy player at the 4/5. Wenyen Gabriel put the F.O. to shame in that first half with the way he out hustled us. Wenyen missing FTs probably held the Lakers back, but he has played very well and consistently for the Lakers and we need that type of guy now. Last year, everyone hustled b/c we knew our backs were against the wall every night. This year, we need more grunt work folks to se things up for the stars.

Despite this recent winning streak I still think this team can't afford to just sit out at the trade deadline, but with every win I slowly inch my way back from the "we need a big trade" ledge and get closer to the "it'd be nice if we got an upgrade" spot.

I'm not there yet. I'll wait to see how we look against Cleveland and Milwaukee before I completely back off advocating for a big trade. FWIW, when I say "big trade" I basically mean FVV and/or John Collins - I was never of the opinion we should trade either of PG13 or Kawhi.

Covington did his usual thing in this game, disrupting, deflecting, stealing, blocking, rebounding, making timely shots. He was +14, second only to Kawhi's +16. RoCo is obviously as good as ever. Lue strangely sat him for half a season, preferring to fiddle all that time with his pet smallball project rather than developing the team's strength, Wingstop. With the season on the line, suddenly Lue turns on a dime and ditches smallball. Hmm, wonder if the front office had a serious sitdown with him. This was of course a fantastic win, streaking now, next four are winnable. Three out of four would be great.

IMHO, Lue's "change of heart" coincided with Wall being injured. Or perhaps with Wall and Luke out, there's simply less pure guards so his hand is forced into it ... there simply aren't enough players to play nano-ball.

Not to disparage Wall, but the recent success is enabled by keeping him out. The Clips are able to play Clips brand of basketball: Focus on the 213, and surround them with shooters and long-armed defenders. Wall fits none of those categories.

I feel more strongly than ever that Wall needs to go or sit unless absolutely needed. He just doesn't fit w/ the first or 2nd units and him being unavailable prevents Ty from that sweet Wall temptation. I like him, I think (as Flom pointed out on Twitter) he can still be of service to an NBA team but not this roster.

And man I wish we had Gabriel instead of Brown currently.

The guy to get last summer would've been Thomas Bryant. I thought he was going to get like a deal in the mMLE to full MLE range. Crazy that he could've been had for the minimum.

Gabriel was solid for the Clips, but he went to the Lakers last year when the Clips had pretty solid depth with Zu and Hart.

The issue w/ Bryant has always been his health - dude just hasn't been able to stay on the court for very long. Given our own set of injuries I could see why the FO was hesitant to offer him anything more than a minimum. Plus he started his career w/ the Lakers, so maybe he actually wanted to go back to them to begin w/

Yea, I don't want to continue to just hate on the guy either, but it's really obvious that the Clips are just better w/o Wall. Even when Reggie and Norm are ice cold they're both still less harmful than Wall because other teams still can't just leave them wide open, and neither of them really monopolizes the ball the way that Wall does. And when either of those guys actually has it going the way they did last night? It's not even close they're exponentially better than Wall.

At this point I'd be willing to trade him even just for 2nd round picks because it really doesn't even look like there's any reason for the Clips to pick up his option this summer. Heck, sending him to a team that actually has a need for his skillset would be doing right by him anyways.

As one of the few tradable contracts, I definitely would probably rather see Wall get traded for more of a position of need (ie. backup center) or combined in some type of consolidation move. Always the problem I saw with making a significant deal is the Clips most "tradable" players are all still GOOD players, but due to their contracts wouldn't have a ton of value on the open market, or for a rebuilding team. I view Wall as a totally expendable contract which maybe can be combined with some picks to bring at least something solid back.

Wall's a respected vet and is no doubt close with key players, not to mention his personal hardships have been really rough. I'd be willing to bet that the team may have promised that he wouldn't be traded this year.

Yes, this change coincided with Wall's injury. I also doubt it was a "change of heart" on Lue's part. It feels like he's simply had too many of his favored guard toys to play with. I do want Wall gone as he's been a disaster overall. He can still play, just not on this team in this moment. They gambled on him and it hasn't paid off.

Feels like every year Ty has had a choice that kind of befuddles all of Clips Nation. Starting Serge over Zu, starting Bled and Reggie together. These were all experiments that lasted until January. I don't know why he consistently seems to do this every season. It is just like "leaving no stone unturned"? But if that were the case, wouldn't we see like more adjustments? Is he purposely sandbagging and not giving teams a lot of film? I just hope he gets it all figured out by the playoffs.

I don't really know what to say about PGs decision making but some of them suck whereas all of KLs decisions are stellar – (maybe KL effs up execution once in a great while). As to PG, he often decides to dribble drive directly into traffic and gets into very predictable trouble. Ty is entrusting PG more and more to initiate things and Ty sees what we do (and so does PG). Ty has to save this guy from himself somehow. Do they even look at film? Of course, you gotta take PGs elite shooting all day long but geez.....

According to the New York Post ESPN is negotiating a new deal with the First Take co-host and word is that salary will be somewhere in the ballpark of $10 million per year.

The Post spoke with multiple executives and agents to figure out the number that Smith could garner, and the consensus was in the $8 million-to-$10 million range. By comparison, Mike Greenberg is paid $6.5 million to host "Get Up!," which is the network's highest publicly known salary. PTI's Michael Wilbon and Tony Kornheiser are believed to be in Greenberg's neighborhood.

"SportsCenter"'s Scott Van Pelt, with his rising late-night ratings, is also considered in the nearly indispensable category in Bristol.

Since Smith still has two years remaining on his current contract — which is paying him, according to sources, in the $5 million per range — the two sides have not yet begun serious talks. But ESPN considers Smith among its most valuable on-air performers, and many think he is on top of the mountain.

No disrespect but are the ratings still that good? Just askin.' Still, much props on the well deserved pay raise to the Queens native and we hope he's prepared for the kind of hate that will follow when word spreads that he's ESPN's highest paid on-air personality.

ESPN releases video of Pacman "making it rain"

Posted by Gregg Rosenthal on July 17, 2009, 12:00 PM EDT

Believe it or not, we're about to write something fairly positive about former Titans and Cowboys cornerback Pacman Jones.

I probably should make sure I don't have a fever.

With training camps due to open in the next couple of weeks, and with Jones (somehow) managing not to take a ride in the back of a sedan with windows that don't go down for the entire NFL offseason, ESPN has released for the first time two-plus-year-old video from inside a Las Vegas strip club on the night that resulted in the shooting of Tom Urbanski — which in turn triggered a one-year suspension of Jones.

We've asked Bill Hofheimer of ESPN to identify for us the date on which the video was obtained, because frankly we're a little suspicious that the video might have been held until now in the hopes of hurting Jones' chances of landing with another team. (We have no proof that ESPN did this, and frankly ESPN has every right to decide when and how to publish its stories. Of course, we have every right to offer opinions as to whether ESPN might have opted to hold a story in order to advance some separate agenda.)

On the surface, the notion that ESPN would hold a story for collateral purposes sounds ridiculous. But two key facts have fueled our suspicions.

First, ESPN has on at least two occasions in the past published potentially controversial investigative journalism studies at strategically critical times. In early 2008, the Matt Walsh story from Mike Fish of ESPN.com arrived just two days before Super Bowl XLII, and Fish's story possibly prompted the Boston Herald to push to print the next day its own story regarding alleged videotaping of the Rams' walk-through practice prior to Super Bowl XXXVI by the Patriots. (The Herald later retracted that allegation.)

More recently, Fish and ESPN unveiled a piece regarding the connection between Dr. Richard Rydze, the Steelers, and HGH in the days preceding the AFC title game, which was played in Pittsburgh. But the ESPN story arose nearly two years after reports first surfaced of Dr. Rydze's purchases of HGH. (Curiously, Fish and ESPN opted not to answer our questions regarding Fish's reporting — and regarding the selection of the date on which the story was first published.)

Second, Pacman Jones vowed to sue ESPN earlier this year, based on its report linking Jones to a separate strip-club shooting in Georgia. That story possibly triggered the Cowboys' decision to part ways with Jones.

"It will be a lawsuit within a week against ESPN," Jones said in January.

Although Jones to date has not pursued legal action against ESPN, it's hard not to have a bias against people who threaten to sue.

Regardless of whether the timing was intentional or coincidental, the renewed focus on one of Pacman's prior misdeeds will do nothing to convince an NFL team to invite him to camp, especially since the owners, coaches, and General Managers of every NFL franchise will now have a chance to watch unsavory images of Pacman "making it rain" on Vegas strippers.

Look, we think that Pacman has done some bad things, and that he generally has been a bad guy. We wish he'd never attended West Virginia University, and we agree with the league insider who has expressed amazement to us that no one was killed in Morgantown during the overlapping tenures of Jones and receiver Chris Henry.

But whether Jones gets another shot in the NFL should be based on his current on-field abilities — and his recent off-field activities.

Recently, he has stayed out of trouble. Thus, if a team thinks he still has the skills required of an NFL player, he should receive a chance to prove that he has changed.

And if he blows it this time around, he should never get another chance.

Still, the ultimate decision should be based not on never-before-seen video of stuff from early 2007 about which we already knew.

Pacman Jones is a wreckless sociopath with no regard for anyone else, and ESPN is a sensationalistic, tabloid network who gave up trying to be credible years ago. Other than their game coverage, ESPN is becoming obsolete thanks to NFL and MLB Networks. And thank god, because I never have to watch Sportscenter again.

In short, neither has any real value to society and they both need to go away.

This video really only gives more insight into Nelly and Jermaine Dupri. Really doesn't paint Pacman in a bad light, other than he has enough money to bring $100,000 to a strip club to throw in the air like LeBron James tosses up talcum powder (I think when he is strapped for cash, he will look at that video and wonder whether how much interest has accrued on his account at that strip club...what?....strip clubs aren't banks?....well someone should have told me that before I decided to make a rather large deposit there myself last night). When I clicked on the link I was expecting to see video of someone shooting something, not people just enjoying themselves in a strip club before the tape cuts out at the best part. ESPN is such a tease.

Didn't an NFL source back in the day something like...

"If Jefferty Dahmer ran a 4.1 40', GM's would say he had an eating disorder."

Apologies around if I spelled the name wrong.

Point being, if you can play, you will play.

Kinda like a blogger with a WVU fetish. Jones deserves pity because ESPN shows stuff he actually did, on top of $H!t load of other stuff he has done. But, yeah lets give him another chance. Mean while we can go back to slamming Brett Favre for the nerve to think about coming back to play for the Vikings. Hey lets write a few lines that suggests Favre's poor play late last year wasn't due to injury.

Seriously, you think he deserves another chance? Is Pacman holding a gun to your head or did you lose your mind? After ALL the chances he got, with his own little group of bodyguards following him, he STILL managed to screw it up.

Also, in case you don't remember, he wasn't any good when he was playing for the Cowboys! He sucks, and he's dangerous, so obviously some team should pay him a lot of money, right? I swear Florio, were you a public defender?

Lets see...Florio hates cops, and thinks that criminals are good people who just need a 32nd chance.

Maybe im wrong but anyways, I think he disrespected some people by doing that and caused a bad vibe in the club which quickly turned into fights and gunfire.

Don't forget, JimmySmith, Pacman fumbled on a kickoff return at the end of the first half — when a Cowboys comeback was feasible. It resulted in a last-second field goal for the Eagles. So he's directly responsible for some of that 44-6 humilation.

ESPN releases video of Pacman "making it rain"

"I would really hurt myself if I wasn't averaging 30 points per game" - Glen Rice on playing in today's NBA

"G Money" loves the fact that even the bigs are now shooting from beyond the arc.

JOHN JEFFERSON TAN • JAN 19, 2023

Glen Rice made quite a living by nailing three-pointers during his time. When asked how he thinks he would fare in today's game, "G Money" said he would've been a walking bucket, averaging about 30 points per outing.

Easy 30 for G Money

Most NBA stars from the past eras are confident about how they would've stood out with ease in today's game. Rice, the 1995 NBA three-point shootout king, was no different.

According to Rice, if he drained half a dozen treys back then, and given how shooters are licensed to pull up from beyond the arc these days, he'd probably drop 30 a night, firing from all cylinders without breaking a sweat.

"If you like eating a lot you'll get full on me!," Rice told NBA.com in 2019 via Sporting News. "... When I was playing, if we shot six 3-pointers as an individual [per] game, we thought we were shooting too many threes. The opportunity to get out there and maybe shoot 15 3-pointers a game? I would really hurt myself if I wasn't averaging 30 points per game. It would really be a great time."

G Money likes watching players make it rain from downtown

In retrospect, NBA teams weren't really able to maximize the three-point territory until probably the 2010s. Rice acknowledges the fact that it has become a staple for every NBA team to shoot a lot of three-pointers each game and he admittedly likes it.

For "G Money," noticing that even the bigs add three-point shooting into their arsenal is amazing and more importantly, it has made the game even better.

"I like it. I'm a 3-point shooter, so obviously I like to see guys shoot the three," Rice confessed. "It's amazing to me that you have so many big guys who are stepping out there and [are] able to shoot the 3-pointer, and do it well. It helps the game, it definitely widens the floor. It gives guys who can shoot and dribble an opportunity to be that much more explosive and better offensively – it's doing the game a real good justice."

This is not the first time a 90s NBA star shared the same sentiment about the evolution of the game, especially in terms of shooting threes. Indeed, it's still hard to tell if a three-point gunner from the past such as Rice could really excel in today's NBA. However, one thing we can all agree is that these old heads would've shot a lot of treys without getting called out for it.

COLUMBIA DAILY TRIBUNE

NEWS

In next few days, NBA teams will make it rain

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Published 12:01 a.m. CT June 30, 2016 | Updated 1:00 p.m. CT June 30, 2016

Miami President Pat Riley is a big fan of the symbolic 12:01 a.m. phone call to his team's top targets. San Antonio Coach Gregg Popovich says he would rather be sleeping at that moment. And more than $1 billion in deals will likely be hammered out in the next couple of days alone.

Free agency has returned to the NBA, and this July 1 is unlike any other.

Sure, there's the annual list of superstars who could take their talents elsewhere — Kevin Durant will hear sales pitches designed to talk him into leaving Oklahoma City, Dwyane Wade is prepared to leave Miami if he doesn't get a deal to his liking, and it seems LeBron James will make the Cleveland Cavaliers dig even more deeply into their pockets to reward him for the city's first NBA title.

All this comes with a backdrop of an enormous jump in the salary cap, going from $70 million this past season to likely somewhere close to $95 million when the league announces the actual number early next week.

So the spending will be out of control. That's for certain.

Just about everything else is uncertain, starting with Durant's status.

"My message to him is just try to get through this, don't make a decision based off anybody else, make your own decision," New York Knicks forward and Durant's Olympic teammate Carmelo Anthony said. "Because at the end of the day, you're the one that has to live with that."

Durant, true to his nature, is tight-lipped about how his decision-making process will actually work.

"I'll factor in everything that's important to me, which is playing basketball at the end of the day, and we'll see what happens," Durant said.

Durant plans on going to New York — not to play, but to deliberate. Some teams have been granted invites to meet with Durant this weekend in the New York area, and Miami center Hassan Whiteside is planning to meet with teams there as well on Friday. There's been no indication how quickly Durant will reveal if he's staying with the Thunder or moving on, but in Whiteside's case the answer could come on Day 1.

"I'm not calm. Look at me. Woooo!" Whiteside shrieked earlier this week in Miami, when he talked about the looming decision that will take him from someone who made just under $1 million this past season — pocket change by NBA standards — to quite probably more than $20 million in each of the next four seasons. "I'm excited, man. C'mon, man. Free agency time."

Whiteside will strike it rich without going to a single All-Star Game first. Bismack Biyombo — who made $2.8 million this season and is expected to at least quintuple that going forward — will probably do the same, and that comes with him not even having been a full-time starter in Toronto.

This is the new NBA.

And it's not changing.

The cap will take another giant leap next season, too. Basketball Hall of Famer Gary Payton stopped playing less than a decade ago; he made about as much in his entire career as Whiteside will likely make in the contract he can sign starting next Thursday.

Payton equates free agency today to a lottery, with a lot of sweepstakes winners.

"Some of these players, they make decisions because of all of the money," he said. "You're going to get the money. I think you go to a place where you're going to be successful and have a chance to win ..., always be in the competition to win a championship."

Payton could have made so much more money now, but he's far from upset about it. He even says a player like James should be making about $50 million now, given what he's done and what he means to the league.

"I got on my mom about that the other day and asked her why she had me so early," Payton said. "It is what it is. It's a different era. I was in the best era. I liked my era. We started all this."

That includes the commissioner of the NBA.

"As I've said, there will be unintended consequences from all this additional cap room this summer," Adam Silver said back in February at the All-Star Game. "I just don't know what those consequences will be."

Starting at 12:01 a.m. Eastern time Friday, when the shopping window officially opens, the league will begin finding out.

"It's not so much about the things you want," Thunder General Manager Sam Presti said.

"It's about the things that are made available to you."

Ja'Marr Chase Flagged For Pretending To 'Make It Rain' On Chiefs Defenders After TD (VIDEO)

December 4, 2022 @5:11pm by Darrelle Lincoln (https://www.totalprosports.com/author/darrelle-lincoln/)

After the trash talk on social media, Ja'Marr Chase was ready for this game.

Early on in the second quarter, Bengals WR Tee Higgins caught a pass on third-and-8 and took it for a touchdown.

He was flagged for it.

On the season, Chase has totaled 605 receiving yards and six touchdowns on 47 catches.

On the season, Higgins has 57 receptions for 826 yards and 4 touchdowns through 11 games.

John Wall makes it rain in DC on #StadiumSaturdays

Players in this post: John Wall, James Harden,

Larry Sanders

Larry Sanders celebrated his contract extension by getting a tattoo that said "Receive." Well, actually his tattoo said "Recieve" but shoot the artist not the canvas who I hope got his money back.

Now, John Wall was in DC this past weekend celebrating his new contract extension and he was all about "giving" and not "recieving" to the classy ladies of Stadium Nightclub when he showed other guests how to properly make it rain – waterfall style. If you aren't familiar with this technique and in need of some tips then please watch the informational video below.

James Harden seems to get the most credit for putting the most women through med school but John Wall deserves a little more credit for his charity work that has been well documented over the past couple of years. Here's a pic from 2011 of Wall and R. Kelly at Stadium and some pics of him from the famous King of Diamonds.

PS, I wish James Harden would help revive Treasures in Houston – best buffet deal in H-Town!
