PETITIONER'S REPLY IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Registrant produced volumes of documents - many of them irrelevant, without URLs or filed in multiple copies - but not one shows sales or advertising of entertainment services listed in the Registration Certificate (Ex. 98) and in 20 TTABVUE 16 ("the Services") in connection with standard character mark APPLE ("the Mark"). Exhibits don't show the required direct association between the Mark and the Services, and the Mark being used to identify and distinguish the Services and their source. See In re Florists' Transword Delivery, Inc., 119 USPQ2d 1056, 1062 (TTAB 2016). Exhibits related to the relevant period of time show that entertainment services are associated with third parties and with third party marks or services provided in connection with other marks such as iTunes. The statement about Apple's longstanding rights in the Mark for entertainment services is not supported by evidence. No evidence is presented to show that Apple's predecessor-in-interest's Apple Corps registered or used the Mark for the Services in the U.S. dating back to the 60s. Registrant used the trade name Apple Computer until 2007. Ex. 63.

Registrant doesn't dispute use of marks iTunes and iTunes Store on or in connection with the Services, and it produced multiple exhibits showing this. Both marks are different from the Mark by appearance, sound, meaning and commercial impression. Consumers view these marks without association with word "apple" (Exs. 12, 57-63) and Registrant refers to these services the same way on its website (Exs. 46-48, 53). Registrant refers to use of iBooks mark as use of the Mark for the Services but several registrations for iBook(s) (Ex. 123) show that Registrant uses this mark for goods, software or services completely different from the Services. The Apple Books mark was not used for entertainment services and this is well-known to Declarant Thomas La Perle since he filed the application on an intent to use basis for computer software only and also made a second request for an extension of time to file an SOU. Ex. 114.

Registrant doesn't dispute that Apple TV is a device (20 TTABVUE 8, ¶¶24-27) but it deceptively states that Apple TV was available as a service "at all relevant times". 30 TTABVUE 8, ¶12. Statements in presented exhibits clearly show that Apple TV is a device only. For example, AAPL000009: "Apple TV has been redesigned to be small in size", "Just plug the power cord into the wall and connect Apple TV to your widescreen TV". Registrant admits at 30 TTABVUE 7, ¶11 that content providers for entertainment services are third parties. In AAPL000530: "Easily discover all your favorite shows from streaming services including Amazon Prime Video, Hulu, ESPN+, and more". (Providers of streaming services are third parties, not Registrant, and services are provided in direct connection with third parties' marks with the source of services on third party websites.) In AAPL001325: "Apple TV makes it easy to catch all the latest entertainment on iTunes". (Entertainment provided in connection with mark iTunes.) In AAPL001328: "With a Hulu subscription, enjoy unlimited instant streaming of exclusive original series." In AAPL000260: "With an HBO subscription, you can watch the best of HBO". In AAPL000261: "Subscribe to NHL GameCenter™ and watch live games in HD". "A subscription to MLS Live is like having preferred seating for the best soccer…" Without subscriptions from third parties and access to Internet, no entertainment services were available and Apple TV was just a box. Manufacturers of TV or radio receivers don't claim to provide entertainment services just because they sell the devices; neither can a computer manufacturer claim to provide internet or entertainment services just because a computer can be used to access the Internet with subscriptions obtained from third parties and entertainment on the Internet available from other third parties.

Apple TV is "digital electronic device" or/and "computer hardware" (Ex. 107), "like a DVD player…plays digital content… from the Internet" (Ex. 37). Not one of the Apple TV exhibits shows the Mark, or that the Apple TV mark is used for sales of the Services, or prices for Apple TV services during years 2011-2018. Apple TV related exhibits show the price of the device only: AAPL000013, 15, 19, 25, 31, 33, 37, 42, 43, 58, 64, 477, 481 and more. Mr. La Perle altered AAPL000015-16 for his Declaration (31 TTABVUE 38-39) by cutting portions of pages to create a deceptive impression that Apple TV was a service in 2011. Mr. La Perle wants the Board to believe that "$99" on P38 of his Declaration is the price for services while it is the price for a device. See AAPL000013, 19, 25, 31, 33 and more. By examining the original AAPL000015-16 (attached; also in Annexure A) it would be clear that these exhibits feature a small size device that needs to be connected to the Internet ("Since everything streams wirelessly to Apple TV using your Wi-Fi network…"). Registrant didn't apply for service mark Apple TV until 2019 because it was incapable in 2019 of producing any specimen showing use in commerce of the APPLE TV mark for entertainment services since no exhibit attached to the Response can satisfy the minimum requirement of direct association between the offer of services and the mark. Even in 2019 Registrant filed for registration of service marks APPLE TV and APPLE TV+ on an intent to use basis. (Exs. 105, 106). The previously registered APPLE TV mark is for goods only (Ex. 107). It is clear that Registrant didn't use the Apple TV mark for services during 2011-2018. Use of mark APPLE TV for goods doesn't constitute use of this mark or the Mark for the Services.

APPLE TV is a unitary mark because the elements of a mark are so integrated and merged together that they cannot be regarded as separable. See In re EBS Data Processing, 212 USPQ 964, 966 (TTAB 1981). APPLE TV "has a distinct meaning of its own independent of the meaning of its constituent elements." Dena Corp., 950 F.2d 1555, 1561, 21 USPQ2d 1047, 1052 (Fed. Cir. 1991). A word "TV" in this mark is not used in its generic meaning because this device is not a TV but an attachment to a TV: "…connect Apple TV to your widescreen TV". AAPL000009. "Apple TV is … so small it fits in the palm of your hand". AAPL000021.

The Apple Podcasts mark is registered and used only for goods (software, Ex. 108) and all presented exhibits with references to podcasts refer to offered software not services. "Podcasts is a media player application developed by Apple Inc. for playing podcasts from the iTunes Store."(Ex. 116). Registrant didn't make use of this mark for entertainment services. U.S. Patent and Trademark Office records with approved request for second extension of time to file an SOU (Ex. 109) show that this mark is currently not in use for services. Mr. La Perle altered AAPL000047 (PP21, 46, 89) and AAPL000102 (PP52, 235) for his Declaration by cutting tops of pages to prevent the Board from seeing that these pages are related to iTunes services. True copies of AAPL000047 and AAPL000102 are attached; also in Annexure A. Mr. La Perle deceptively refers to Podcasts as services while on the same pages the Description shows: "Introducing the Podcasts app" with clear reference to an app – software. In AAPL000540: "This app is only available on the App Store" shows Apple Podcasts below as an app. The App Store offers apps (Ex. 110) not services. "Podcasts by Apple" on all exhibits clearly refers to Apple Inc. and not to any services. Mr. La Perle had knowledge that Apple Podcasts were not used for services (Ex. 109) but he made deceptive statements in his Declaration anyway.

The Apple News mark is registered and used for computer software (Ex. 111) and computer services (Ex. 112). The registration certificate for the Apple News mark in Class 41 (Ex. 113) shows a first use of commerce of April 5, 2016 with listed services substantially different from the Services. The reference to Newsstand as a service (30 TTABVUE 9, ¶17) is deceptive because Newsstand is an app (software) and not a service. Ex. 122.

There are a few registrations of the Apple Store mark (Exs. 118-120) but services provided under these marks are all completely different from the Services. Registrant didn't offer "production of live musical performances" under mark APPLE STORE but only was involved in "providing a facility for live concerts and special events". Ex. 117. Registrant didn't provide proof of production of live musical performances in its Apple Stores. The word "store" as a part of the APPLE STORE mark is not used in its generic meaning for Reg. No. 3710912 (Ex. 117) because the services listed for this mark are totally different from the dictionary definition of "store". Ex. 121. Services for Apple Store marks are completely different from the Services.

Registrant doesn't dispute that Apple Special Events and Apple Worldwide Developers Conferences (WWDC) (20 TTABVUE 9-11, ¶¶33-48) are conducted for presentation and promotion of Registrant's goods and services and accordingly such events are done in connection with sales of goods and performance of featured services. Providing general information or instructions as to the purpose and uses of Registrant's goods is merely incidental to the sale of goods, not a separate service. (See TMEP §1301.01(b)(v)). Events in Apple Stores also are done for promotion of Registrant's goods. Conducting a contest to promote the sale of one's own goods or services is not considered a service, because it is an ordinary and routine promotional activity, and a company that promotes the sale of its own goods or services is doing so for its own benefit rather than rendering a service for others. See In re Reichhold Chems., Inc., 167 USPQ 376, 377 (TTAB 1970). The above events can't be considered as services because the activity performed must be qualitatively different from anything necessarily done in connection with the sale of the applicant's goods or the performance of another service. In re Canadian Pac. Ltd., 754 F.2d 992, 224 USPQ 971 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Betz Paperchem, Inc., 222 USPQ 89 (TTAB 1984); In re Integrated Res., Inc., 218 USPQ 829 (TTAB 1983); In re Landmark Commc'ns, Inc., 204 USPQ 692 (TTAB 1979). Accordingly, live music performances during such events are part of the event and not services. It is well-settled that the promotion of one's own goods is not a service. In re Radio Corp. of Am., 205 F.2d 180, 98 USPQ 157 (C.C.P.A. 1953).

At 30 TTABVUE 8, ¶13 it states "On June 8, 2015, the Company launched Apple Music…" Non use of the Mark for the Services on this date was more than three consecutive years and six months and therefore the Mark was legally abandoned. Petitioner filed opposition to registration of Apple Music in Class 41. 20 TTABVUE 4, ¶2.

Apple Music is a unitary mark because the elements of the mark are so integrated and merged together that they cannot be regarded as separable. The word "music" in this mark is not used in its generic meaning because services provided under this mark (Ex. 99) are different from the definition of "music" by Merriam-Webster (Ex. 115).

Registrant's Response does not dispute any of the MSJ's material Undisputed Facts but instead raises its own interpretation of the doctrine of legal equivalents and well-established criteria of what constitutes a service. Registrant implies that use of multiple different marks for goods and services is equivalent of use of the Mark for the Services because there are references to Apple Inc. on the website. The exhibits don't show the mark APPLE used in a manner that creates in the minds of potential consumers a direct association between the mark and the Services. The exhibits show that the word "apple" is used solely as a trade name in reference to Apple Inc. and not to some particular services:

Ex. 53: "Apple Names Jeff Williams Chief Operating Officer", "Apple Releases Swift as Open Source", "Apple Reports Record Fourth Quarter Results", "Apple Announces Record iPhone 6s & iPhone 6s Plus Sales", "Copyright © 2019 Apple Inc. All rights reserved";

Ex. 47, P5: "Apple CEO Tim Cook and team debut iPhone 4S";

Ex. 19, P1: "Apple Announces iTunes Festival", "Apple designs Macs, the best personal computers in the world", "Apple leads the digital music revolution with its iPods and iTunes online store", "Copyright © 2019 Apple Inc. All rights reserved";

Ex. 20, P2: "Apple hosted the iTunes® Festival in London for eight years", "Apple revolutionized personal technology with the introduction of the Macintosh in 1984".

Mr. La Perle uses "apple" in reference to Apple Inc., also: "Apple launched its iTunes Music Store" (¶14), "making Apple the number one music provider." ¶18. On P53 Mr. La Perle deceptively circles the word "apple" on AAPL001732 claiming that it is mark while it is clear reference to Apple Inc: “Can I work directly with Apple or should I use an aggregator? Aggregators are experts in delivering content to iTunes.”

The word “apple” identifies Registrant’s business and not the Services and therefore according to 15 U.S.C. § 1127 it is used solely as a trade name. When the mark used solely as a trade name, the mark does not function as a service mark to identify and distinguish the services and indicate their source.

Apple TV, Apple Podcasts, Apple News, Apple Music, Apple Store and Apple Books are unitary marks. The word “apple” separately from the second word of each mark doesn’t identify Registrant’s goods or services and refers only to a fruit or Apple Inc. as a company while their use as unitary marks with each of them clearly refers to goods or services of Apple Inc. The elements of each the above mark are so integrated and merged together that they cannot be regarded as separable. Each unitary mark has a distinct meaning of its own independent of the meaning of its constituent elements. As shown above second word in any of these marks is not used in its generic meaning for services because none of these words describe such services. The points of comparison for a word mark are appearance, sound, meaning, and commercial impression. See Palm Bay Imps., Inc. v. Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin Maison Fondee en 1772, 396 F.3d 1369, 1371 (Fed. Cir. 2005). Any the above unitary marks and mark APPLE don’t make the same commercial impression and they are different marks by appearance and meaning.

Consumers don’t associate provided services with single word ‘apple” but associate each service or goods with certain unitary marks. Exs. 57-63. Registrant refers to its services and goods with unitary marks and not the Mark on its website and during presentations. Exs. 46-48, 53. Each of the above unitary marks can’t be considered as a legal equivalent of the Mark. “A mark is the legal equivalent of another if it creates the same, continuing commercial impression such that the consumer would consider them both the same mark.” In re Dial-A-Mattress Operating Corp., 240 F.3d 1341, 1347, 57 USPQ2d 1807, 1812 (Fed. Cir. 2001).

As it is shown above, services in connection with marks iBooks, Apple Store, Apple TV, Apple Podcasts, Apple News and Apple Books are substantially different from the Services. It follows then that "the tacking of the use of a mark for certain goods or services onto the use of the same mark for other goods or services … should be permitted only when the two sets of goods or services are 'substantially identical.'" Big Blue Prods. Inc. v. Int'l Bus. Machines Corp., 19 USPQ2d 1072, 1075 (TTAB 1991).

As shown above entertainment services in connection with marks Apple Books, Apple TV, Apple Podcasts and Apple Music were not available during November 11, 2011- June 1, 2015. Musical performances during promotional events don't constitute service.

Registrant gives deceptive interpretation of content of its exhibits by pretending that provided goods are services and services of third parties (and in connection with third parties' marks) constitute service of Registrant because Registrant offers devices and software to access services via Internet. Registrant provided entertainment services, not in connection with standard character mark APPLE but in connection with other marks. All other marks used by Registrant to identify goods and services can be seen on the online menu of the website apple.com or on the sitemap. Exs. 46, 53. The Mark is not on the menu or on the site map. The Mark was not used or displayed in the sale or advertising of the Services during period of more than three years and six month from the date of the SOU.

Registrant doesn't dispute that during period November 11, 2011 – June 1, 2015 the apple.com Sitemap didn't show APPLE services, Newsroom didn't show announcement of APPLE services and APPLE services were not promoted on Apple Special Events or WWSC. Registrant doesn't dispute that La Perle in a July 18, 2018 trial Declaration filed with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (in a different case) listed Registrant's products and services, but he did not include any APPLE services in this list. iTunes and iTunes Store marks used in the above period in connection with the Services are not legal equivalent of the Mark. Services provided by third parties and in connection with third party marks don't constitute use of the Mark for the Services.

The evidence presented shows that the Mark was never used for the Services by Registrant. The mark is used solely as a trade name on registrant website. Since Registrant began using Apple Music, Apple TV and Apple TV+ for the Services, this does not show an intent to "resume" the use of the Mark but a replacement of it. Regardless, no use for more than three consecutive years and six months is a prima facie evidence of abandonment of the Mark according to 15 U.S.C. § 1127.

Referring to the above "there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact," Petitioner is "entitled to judgment as a matter of law" and the Mark should be cancelled. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a).

Images of trademark registration certificates issued since July 2016 and some office actions are absent in the API. Customers who need to retrieve a copy of a registration certificate or an office action should download it directly from the TSDR documents tab.

INTERMITTENT SYSTEM ISSUES: Due to high-volume usage, you may experience intermittent issues on the Trademark Status and Document Retrieval (TSDR) system between 6 – 8 a.m. ET. Refreshing your web browser should resolve the issue. If you still need assistance accessing a document, email teas@uspto.gov and include your serial number, the document you are looking for, and a screenshot of any error messages you have received.

Podcasts (software)

Podcasts is a media player application developed by Apple Inc. for playing podcasts from the iTunes Store. It is available for the iOS, iPadOS, tvOS, watchOS, and macOS operating systems.

A standalone Podcasts app was initially released for iOS on June 26, 2012, after formerly being a section of the iTunes app. It was followed by launches on Apple TV on September 24, 2012, tvOS on January 26, 2016, and watchOS on September 17, 2018. It was released with macOS Catalina on October 7, 2019 as one of three applications created to replace iTunes.

New Version of iOS Includes Notification Center, iMessage, Newsstand, Twitter Integration Among 200 New Features

Available to iPhone, iPad & iPod touch Users This Fall

SAN FRANCISCO—June 6, 2011—Apple® today previewed iOS 5, the latest version of the world's most advanced mobile operating system, and released a beta version to iOS Developer Program members. The iOS 5 beta release includes over 200 new features that will be available to iPhone®, iPad® and iPod touch® users this fall. New iOS 5 features include: Notification Center, an innovative way to easily view and manage notifications in one place without interruption; iMessage, a new messaging service that lets you easily send text messages, photos and videos between all iOS devices; and Newsstand, a new way to purchase and organize your newspaper and magazine subscriptions. With the new PC Free feature, iOS 5 users can activate and set up their iOS device right out of the box and get software updates over the air with no computer required.

"iOS 5 has some great new features, such as Notification Center, iMessage and Newsstand and we can't wait to see what our developers do with its 1,500 new APIs," said Steve Jobs, Apple's CEO. "Perhaps iOS 5's paramount feature is that it's built to seamlessly work with iCloud in the Post PC revolution that Apple is leading."

With iOS 5 and iCloud®, you just enter your Apple ID and password and iCloud will seamlessly integrate with your apps to automatically and wirelessly keep all of your mail, contacts, calendars, photos, apps, books, music and more, up-to-date across all your devices without ever having to connect to a computer.

Newsstand (software)

Newsstand is a discontinued built-in application on Apple Inc.'s iOS devices: the iPad, iPhone and iPod touch. It was dedicated to downloading and displaying digital versions of newspapers and magazines. It was replaced by News in iOS 9.

The application was selected by screen and when opened is a visual shelf, directly on the home screen, similar in style to iBooks. It emulated a newsagent's shop with virtual shelves that held and presented each newspaper and magazine that has been downloaded. The app icon updated with the latest front covers with a notification indicator of new editions.[1][2]

There was a Store button in the lower right corner, to go directly to the Newsstand category in the App Store, where after a newspaper and magazine was downloaded for free, in-app subscriptions or per individual periodicals can be purchased with an iTunes account, to download and deliver in the background the most recent edition of news automatically.[1][2]

The most popular and largest printed newspaper and magazine names published digital content specifically designed for mobile devices and tablet computers, often

Now there's always something good on TV.

Apple TV gives you access to everything you want to see and hear — blockbuster movies, TV shows, your music and photos, even news and sports — right on your widescreen TV. And now that your content is stored in iCloud, you can easily access your previously purchased TV shows. Even your photos update automatically. And best of all, Apple TV is just $99.

Overview

A lot of entertainment. In a very little box.

With Apple TV, everything you want to watch — movies, TV shows, photo slideshows, and more — plays wirelessly on your widescreen TV. No managing storage. No syncing to your iTunes library. HD movies and TV shows from iTunes and Netflix play over the Internet on your HDTV, and music and photos stream from your computer. All you have to do is click and watch.

With iCloud, you can browse and watch your purchased TV shows and listen to your previously purchased music.[1] And with Photo Stream, your photos update automatically — no syncing, no sending.

Apple TV features a powerful A4 chip, so it plays everything effortlessly, without frozen screens or stutters. Videos look crisp and clear. And just like watching a DVD, you can fast-forward through opening credits, pause for a popcorn break, or replay a hilarious scene until you memorize every line.

Apple TV is quiet, energy efficient, and so small it fits in the palm of your hand. Which makes it perfect for sitting neatly on a TV stand or squeezing into a crowded media cabinet. And when it's not filling your living room with drama, romance, and comedy, it uses less power than a night-light.

Silent, cool, and small.
Apple TV is quiet, energy efficient, and so small it fits just about anywhere.

Intuitive interface.

Cruise through the simple Apple TV menus with the sleek, aluminum Apple Remote, included with every Apple TV. Choose from Movies, TV Shows, Music, Podcasts, Photos, Internet, and Settings menus with a click. The Apple TV interface takes full advantage of your widescreen TV, making it clear and easy to find whatever entertainment you're in the mood for.

Get connected with Apple TV.

Setting up Apple TV is about as simple as it gets. Just plug the power cord into the wall and connect Apple TV to your widescreen TV using an HDMI cable (sold separately). Since everything streams wirelessly to Apple TV using your Wi-Fi network, that's all you need. Well, that and a comfy couch.

Less clutter with HDMI.
Play audio and video through a single HDMI connection.

Give your digital collection some airtime.

Home Sharing on your Apple TV makes sure those songs, movies, TV shows, and photos — even home videos — don't have to stay on your computer. For maximum entertainment, stream your digital collection over the air to your Apple TV. Just don't forget to call dibs on the recliner.

Remote app control.

From the movie theater to your home theater.

No more waiting in line to check out DVDs or watching stale blockbusters on cable. With Apple TV, you get instant access to the hottest Hollywood titles and new releases — often the same day they come out on DVD. Popular movies are never out of stock, and you can rent as many as you want. That's perfect for those spontaneous movie nights (or afternoons or mornings). Search by top movies, title, or genre. Even read a quick movie review, watch the trailer, and check out the latest ratings from Rotten Tomatoes. Once you find what you're looking for, simply press Play, and in seconds, you're watching the opening credits with theater-like Dolby Digital 5.1 surround sound.[2] SD rentals start at just $2.99, and HD rentals start at $3.99. You have 30 days to start watching, and once you begin, you can watch as many times as you want in 24 hours.

Now anytime is prime time.

Buy your favorite TV shows and watch them without commercial interruption for just $1.99 in SD or $2.99 in HD. And you can download them later to your iPad, iPhone, iPod touch, or computer at no additional cost. It works the other way around, too. Buy an episode on any of your devices, and it automatically shows up in your list of previously purchased items, so you can watch it via Apple TV. Watch a show the day after it airs, or camp out on your couch and catch up on past seasons with a marathon of back-to-back-to-back episodes. And Apple TV keeps track of your favorite shows — so the next time you turn on your TV, you can quickly see which season you're watching and which episodes are new. Just choose shows with a few clicks of the included remote.

Search by category. Or enter a specific movie or TV show using the Apple Remote.

iCloud and Apple TV. A match made in iCloud.
